Astrological Forecasts

By SYDNEY OMARR

For August 24

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): You may feel surrounded now by indecision. Then you should take initiative. Others look to you for example. Stress independence of thought, action. Give leadership.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Those who advise you in money matters may not be fully informed. Obtain hint from extra message. Do personal research investigating. Don't merely accept without checking.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Home conditions, legal ties accented. Best to relax into situation. You could gain more if you don't press issues. If you are right, things work in your favor. Have faith!

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): Give attention now to those who depend upon you. Key is consideration — for others and yourself. Be charming as always. Watch diet . . . remember health resolutions.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Money may appear to be restricting influence. But your creative capabilities could solve dilemma. Think, utilize imagination. Make right effort . . . then conditions change.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Many around you may appear eccentric. Maintain sense of balance, heed your own counsel. Don't count on one who promises everything. Instead get the facts. Ignore extravagant claims.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): Be ready now for changes, possible delays. Highlight versatility. Get help from behind the scenes. Don't trust what appears too obvious. Dig deep. Think!

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Money and ability to get most from effort are emphasized. You gain through older individual. Good progress indicated by utilizing past experience. Be thorough.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Cycle continues high. Spread influence. Enlarge sphere of activity. Now you attract others with their problems. Be fair and sympathetic. You will be repaid.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): You may find yourself fearing the unknown. Solution could be to take the cold plunge . . . Jump into fray. Be confident and accelerate. Then you attract success.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Friends and investments may not be best combination today . . . therefore exercise caution. Don't permit impulse to dominate logic. Romance is indicated.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Key satisfaction now is degree of self-reliance. Persons close to you may not appear dependable. Survey situation. Realize others may be super-sensitive.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY . . . you are completing a cycle . . . you recently had opportunity to prove your abilities. Your sense of harmony could lead to many pleasurable moments.

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Cycle high for Sagittarius, Capricorn, Aquarius. Special word for Cancer: Important is to be aware of details — and to be realistic.

ACRES OF FREE LIGHTED PARKING

There's nothing magical about it!
We don't claim we can go around pulling customers out of a hat — just like that! It takes a lot more than a few sleight-of-hand tricks to keep people happily hopping into your store week after week, month after month and year after year. It takes top-notch buyers . . . friendly sales people sincerely interested in a customer's purchase, whether it's a 10¢ thimble or a $200 coat. It also takes the kind of merchandise that Walker's excels in. And a lot, lot more! If we can make any claim at all to performing a feat of magic, it's the bargains galore you'll find on the following pages.

Pinch Hitting

By GARRY ALEXANDER
Staff Sportswriter

Transport yourself to the world of top professional sport for a few minutes.

Would you trade places with Willie Mays, Bobby Hull, Gordon Clay, Sandy Koufax or Johnny Unitas?

Sure, it would be nice to draw down the Say Hey Kid's 100 grand plus. And with Hull's commercial commitments and bonus money, his yearly figure too would approach that figure.

We've all heard youngsters talking about sport and often the gist of the conversation goes something like this: "Why, I what I was Gordie Howe. All he does is play hockey, and look at the money he gets for it."

And this envious attitude toward sport heroes and their fabulous salaries is not necessarily confined to youngsters either. Many's the time that "Pop" said a sorry eye at the family paycheck and wishes he could fire a fastball like Sandy Koufax.

But dollar for dollar, the best bet for a rich athlete lies in the world of golf.

It has been estimated that Arnold Palmer averages close to half a million bucks a year. Jack Nicklaus can't be far behind, although the giant Ohio links ian't tied up in as many commercial enterprises as Palmer.

And the best part of the whole thing is that you don't get your kracks scrambled on a golf course like you can from a Louis right, an Apple elbow or a Shack stick in the rasnels.

Palmer is said to be the head of 17 different companies and needs his own jet plane to enable him to meet business engagements.

Arnie and Nicklaus are not wading alone in their gold gold. Top names like Doug Sanders, Billy Casper, Gary Player, and until his untimely death, Tony Lema, pull down more in most years than some of us do in twenty.

Aside from the physical aspects, golf has its advantages over team sports in several other areas as well.

No one will argue that there is terrific pressure on a golfer when it comes down to the last hole and some $15,000 is riding on a three-foot putt.

But the pressure is on you alone. You miss the putt, you finish second and collect a few thousand less.

Were you Mickey Mantle in as tough a spot. (Man, I wish I could this year). The Mick stands at the plate with one on and his club a run behind. It's the last inning of the seventh game of the World Series. Koufax strikes him out. Who suffers in the pocket book? Every Yankee player and team member, that's who. It's the same in every team sport.

Once again, the golfer is less pressed for it is his decision when he plays. No one forces Ben Hogan to enter any tournament. He can play in two a season or twenty. The choice is his own.

But from March's end through September, or October if you are lucky enough to be in the World Series, a baseball player's life belongs to his club. From September through April, Dave Keon must abide by Punch Imlach's rule. From July to November, Rosa Jackson attempts to dodge 240-pound chunks of charging manhood, attempting to push his nose into the ground.

Yes, the money in pro sport is great. Not many would turn it down if blessed with the talent to make it up top in any athletic field.

But the bruises on Manny Wilts' legs, the torture of stopping a Tim Horton slapshot in the blazer or the agony of having Hat Hamilton 75-Cat defgoes pounding away at you all afternoon might explain a few things.

They might give you some idea why one of the greatest football players ever, Jimmy Brown, quit this year in his prime; why Hull says he will hang up his skates in a few years or why Brazilian soccer star Pele says he will never again represent his country in a World Cup competition.

Pass me the three-wood, Mother.

Perry Leading Favorites

NEW YORK (AP) — Who would have thought that Gaylord Perry would be leading Sandy Koufax and Juan Marichal as a candidate for the Cy Young award?

Yet, with less than six weeks left in the baseball season, San Francisco's Perry, an eight-game winner in 1965, heads the list of candidates for the trophy given annually to the major leagues' outstanding pitcher.

Koufax, the Young award winner last season and in 1963, is making another strong run this year. Despite an arthritic left arm that pains him intermittently, he has won 19 games of 25 decisions. He is also the majors' leader in strikeouts with 256 and earned run average of 1.87.

However, Perry, with a 20-3 mark, has lost five fewer games than the Los Angeles Dodgers' southpaw, his ERA is 202, and he has yielded only 38 bases on balls and struck out 168 batsmen.

The Giants' Marichal, who appeared to be a certain 25-game winner earlier this season, has a 17-6 mark.

Jim Kaat of Minnesota, with an 18-9 record, is the only other ace shot to win 20.

By DICK COUCH
Associated Press Sports Writer

Ollie Brown is still six home runs behind Willie Mays, but it doesn't seem that much to Juan Marichal today.

Brown, San Francisco's superior centre - fielder Tuesday night, walloped a three - run homer, propelling a surprise starter Marichal to his 12th victory as the Giants whipped Cincinnati Reds 7-3 and regained the National League lead.

Their fourth straight victory, coupled with Pittsburgh Pirates' 5-4 loss to Philadelphia Phillies, lifted the Giants one game ahead of the Pirates in the tight race.

Brown, a light - hitting rookie with five major league homers to his credit, was shifted to centre field when manager Herman Franks decided to rest Mays, who had smashed his 337th career homer three days ago.

For 5½ innings, Marichal appeared to be in trouble. Deron Johnson's base - fringe homer in the second and Leo Cardenas' two-run shot in the top of the fourth put Marichal behind 3-2.

THEN CAME BROWN

Then, in the last of the fourth, Jesus Alou singled across the tying run and Brown, batting seventh in the lineup, sent the Giants ahead to stay with his three-run blast off Milt Pappas.

In Tuesday's other action, the third - place Los Angeles Dodgers shaded Atlanta Braves 8-7, St. Louis Cardinals blanked Houston Astros 5-0 on Bob Gibson's three - hitter and New York Mets trimmed Chicago Cubs 4-1.

Marichal gave up eight hits in his 9½ inning season mark in 18-5. It was his first winning start since July 23.

Willie McCovey hit his 36th homer, a two-run shot in the first inning, as the Giants took the league lead for the first time in 36 days.

The loss was the sixth in a row for the Reds.

Bill White's second two-run single of the ninth snapped a 3-3 deadlock in the seventh, leading the Phillies past Pittsburgh. His first hit capped a three-run burst in the first inning.

SHORT WINS 13th

Left - hander Chris Short pitched seven hits, including a three-run homer to Roberto Clemente in the fifth, en route to his 13th victory against seven setbacks.

Willie Davis' two-run single with two out in the ninth climaxed a three-run rally that gave the Dodgers their second successive crew Atlanta in two nights. Singles by Lou Johnson and Jim Gilliam and an error by second baseman Woody Woodward got the first run home before Davis delivered the winning blow.

Phil Regan, who came on one after Felipe Alou's three-run homer capped Atlanta's five-run uprising in the seventh, gained his 13th victory in 23 decisions.

Phil Maxvill drove in two St. Louis runs and scored the third, helping Gibson breeze to his 16th victory.

Maxvill had two singles, a double and a walk in four trips to the plate.

Dennis Ribant checked the Cubs on five hits while Glenn Jones, with a two-run homer, and Ron Swoboda, with three singles, led the Mets' attack against Dick Ellsworth, who now has dropped 19 of 26 decisions.

Yesterday's Stars

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Pitching—Dean Chance, California Angels, scattered three hits for his first shutout of the season in a 1-0 victory over New York Yankees.

Batting — Bill White, Philadelphia Phillies, drove in four runs with two singles, the second snapping a 3-3 tie in a 5-4 triumph over Pittsburgh Pirates.

Windsor Team Loses Opener To Sacramento

WILLIAMSPORT, Pa. (AP)—Righthander Zach Verges kept the hitting well spaced and struck out 12 batters Tuesday as Sacramento, Calif., won the opening game of the 1966 Little League World Series from Windsor, Ont., 3-2.

Verges was matched in a tight pitching duel with Windsor's Rickey Chase for the first three innings of the six-inning contest. A home run by Sacramento's first baseman Dean Stotz broke the scoreless deadlock in the fourth.

Stotz was the batting hero for the Californians, knocking in their third run with a single in the top of the sixth.

BETTERS MARK

UTRECHT, Netherlands (AP) Galina Prozumenschikova of the Soviet Union bettered the women's world record for the 200-metre breaststroke Tuesday night during the European Swimming Championships. Miss Prozumenschikova's time in the final was 2 minutes, 40.8 seconds. This eclipsed the mark of 2:42.2 set by Irina Prochorova,also of the Soviet Union, in Moscow last month.

Parsons Trounce Brockville

Belleville Parsons trounced Brockville 7-0 for their easiest victory of the year in a Kingston and District Soccer League match here last night.

The visitors were no match for Parsons who opened up a 4-0 lead by half time. Belleville maintained a grip on first place with the decision.

Alan Brown opened the scoring after about twenty minutes. Bob Rutherford followed with two goals and Ron Gale broke down centre to make it 4-0.

Parsons continued to dominate play in the second half and Brockville rarely had a scoring opportunity.

Bob Rutherford, the game's scoring star, notched his third and fourth goals to make it 6-0 before Joe Hasenik's hard drive closed the scoring.

Saturday's scheduled game between Parsons and Kingston Hungaria has been postponed until September 24.

The Belleville squad has an exhibition game this Sunday, against the RCAF team from Camp Borden. Due to difficulties in obtaining a field, the time and place of the game will be announced later.

Bombers Batter Injured Stamps 19-9

Alone At Top

By WALTER KREVENCHUK

WINNIPEG (CP) — Winnipeg Blue Bombers battered the injury-weakened Calgary Stampeders 19-9 Tuesday night to grab first place in the Western Football Conference.

Kenny Ploen and Ken Nielsen teamed for the two touchdowns before 30,817 fans that propelled the Bombers to victory number four in five matches—good for a two-point lead over Saskatchewan Roughriders.

The hard - luck Stampeders, mired in fourth place with two points in five games, saw another player fall victim to injury.

Bill Gaskins, Calgary's fine defensive halfback, suffered a severed achilles tendon early in the third quarter. The same injury had already knocked veterans Lovell Coleman and Ted Woods from action.

After the game, the rookie from Washington State said he was back-peddling when "I felt something give. There was no one near me."

Coach Jerry Williams stood in the middle of the dressing room muttering: "I just can't believe it." The injury is not a common one, making the loss of three players for the season even harder to take.

The Gaskin's injury probably clinched matters for Winnipeg. It forced Williams, whose club was trailing 13-8 at the time, to move Le Bain from offence to defence, leaving Calgary with a woefully weak backfield.

It made things easier for the tough Winnipeg defense which drove in to drag Calgary signal-caller Peter Liske down for losses seven times. Ernie Pitts, Fred Robeson and Al Miller were the major Bomber threats.

Calgary had a big zero in rushing in the second half—40 years in the game. The pass, which got them their touchdown by Terry Evanshen in the fourth minute of action, was the Stamps only threat.

Liske completed 13 of 26 attempts — one was intercepted by Miller after being knocked down by Robeson—for 217 yards and most of his club's 13 first downs. Evanshen caught four for 71 yards, Les Sparks an identical number for 68 yards.

Nielsen went down and out to catch a one - yard touchdown pass near the end of the second quarter that put Winnipeg ahead for good, 13-8. He went deep in the fourth quarter, grabbed Ploen's aerial and faked Jerry Keeling and Bain for a 69-yard touchdown. Ploen, Nielsen and Robeson, the other Bomber points, two field goals and one convert.

Larry Robinson booted two singles and a convert in Calgary's vain bid to hold an early 7-0 lead.

Calgary got its only touchdown on their first sequence of the game. Liske passed to Bain for 13 yards, missed on his second aerial and then hit Evanshen for a 36-yard pass-and-run touchdown.

After a single by Robinson before the quarter ended, which gave Calgary a 8-3 lead, Winnipeg took control.

Billy Cooper helped the rally with a 48-yard romp early in the second quarter and Winnipeg collected his second field goal seconds later.

Action stalemated in centre field until Ploen connected with Nielsen for a 46-yard touchdown

Green Has 4-Hitter

Trudeaus Defeat Petes 3-2

Bobby Green, Trudeau Motors' veteran lefty, shaded de all his pitching in Peterborough.

Several times during the past number of years Green has had trouble winning during the regular season, only to shine against Peterborough in playdowns. This year he did very little pitching.

But, as in the past, Green came up with a strong performance in the Littlock City while pitching Trudeaus' 3-2 victory over Peterborough Norm Bowster.

The victory gave Trudeaus' a 3-0 lead in their OASA intermediate "A" playdown. Second game in the two-of-three set will be played at Alemite Park Thursday, at 8.30.

Green once struck out 32 batters in a game in Peterborough. He was below that mark last night but he did strike out 10 and stopped the losers on four hits. He walked three, all in the early going, and fanned the side to preserve the slim lead in the ninth.

The Petes moved ahead 1-0 in the second on Beatih's lead-off homer.

Trudeaus jumped ahead 2-1 in the top of the third. A walk and Fielder's choice started it and Roger Drake slammed a home run.

The home squad tied it in their half, on a single by Quigley, an error on the play, a walk and Beatih's fly ball.

Trudeaus plated the winner, unearned, in the sixth. Plane led off with a single but was erased on the base paths. An error at third put Muirhead on and Larry Mavety's fly ball drove him home for the 3-2 score.

Killins pitched in defeat. He gave up five hits, struck out seven and walked only one.

Roger Drake's two-run homer was the big blow for Belleville. Bob Wannamaker contributed two singles and one each went to Ralph Plane and Stu Muirhead.

Beatih's homer and singles by Allen, R. Quigley and G. Brady accounted for Peterborough's hits.

Trudeaus: Drake 1b, Plane cf, Muirhead rf, Mavety c, Weston ss, Wannamaker 2b, Soule lf, Chatland 3b, Green p.

Peterborough: B. Keating 3b, G. Brady cf, R. Quigley ss, Murphy lf, Beatih rf, McNamara c, Allen 1b, Dalliday 2b, Killins p.

Women's Bowl Titles Decided

KINGSTON (CP)—Mrs. Eleanor Crossin of Stouffville won the singles title at the Ontario women's lawn bowling championships Tuesday.

She piled up six points with three victories in the round-robin playoff.

First place in the triple went to a team from Wallaceburg skipped by Muriel Wiseman. Her partners were Eleanor Colwell and Mary Truan.

Mildred Haddrill and Beatrice Getty of London teamed to win the doubles title, winning all three games.

Senior Hockey Season Tickets On Sale

Season tickets for the Belleville Senior Hockey Club's 1955-56 season went on sale here today, according to team general manager Robert Temple.

The tickets, good for 28 home scheduled games, are selling for $35, each. They are available at Carl Thompson's Front Street Cigar Store.

Holders of season tickets will be given first chance for seats for the club's exhibition and playoff games.

Temple travelled to Trenton this afternoon to complete arrangements for ice time in the Trenton Community Gardens.

The club, as yet un-named, will open its training camp there since Ice will not be available in Belleville Memorial Arena until the end of October.

Belleville's first home game in the ten-team OHA Senior "A" schedule is October 21.

Cuties Attract Overflow Crowd At Alemite

A band of barnstorming softball "dames" visited the Alemite field last night, under the name of the "California Cuties". Their slapsticking antics combined with experienced displays of softball prowess, formed a mixture that kept an overflow crowd in perpetual good humor.

After the fun and games were over, however, the Cuties had stolen another victory from a bedraggled opponent, this time the Belleville Elks Juniors, by a score of 8-2.

The first three frames of the seven inning game were played as seriously as possible, under the circumstances.

Slinging Shiela, the husky pitcher who starred for the Cuties, put her team ahead in the second inning with a booming triple to right. They added another next inning, and before the night was out, had completed six more runs. Their big rally came late in the game when Dumpy Dave threw the ball over the fence for a cute six-run homer.

During the next four frames, the fun really began. Jazzy St. Denis was picked up by one of the cuties on his way to second, and carried off the field, and a grapefruit was pitched in place of the ball and pobbled up by Ellis' catcher Bob Moon, who smashed it to pieces. When an Elks player tried to steal second, one of the cuties stole the bag. Slinging Shiela got bested out of a tight spot when she struck out Bill Barberstock with a ball on the end of an elastic.

McDowell, Chance Regain Form

By HAL BOCK
Associated Press Sports Writer

Dean Chance and Sam McDowell, two of the top hurlers in the American League, had managed three victories between them in the last two months and the case looked ominous.

Then, just as suddenly as they faded, the two pitchers appeared field and now they look like themselves again.

McDowell signaled the end of the dry spell with a three-hit shutout against Chicago White Sox last Friday. Then the Cleveland Indians lefthander came back with a 3-1 six-hitter against American League-leading Baltimore Orioles Tuesday night.

Not to be outdone, Chance fired a three-hitter as California Angels shaked New York Yankees 1-0.

Rocky Colavito's 28th one run proved to be the winning run for McDowell, who had the Orioles shut out until the eight inning.

Meanwhile, Jim Kaat, who has flourished despite the demise of the defending champion Minnesota Twins, beat Washington Senators 7-0 in the first game of a twi-night doubleheader. Washington won the nightcap 4-3.

PETERS BEATS TIGERS

Elsewhere, Chicago signed Detroit Tigers 2-1 in 12 innings with Gary Peters going all the way and Kansas City's doubleheader at Boston was postponed by rain.

McDoyall struck out 10 and hurled his sixth complete game. His first five route-going efforts were all shutouts. He had the Orioles blanked until Frank Robinson's two-out single delivered a run in the eighth.

Chance, 9-15, got the only run he needed on Paul Schaal's fourth-inning single.

Rich Rollins' grand slam homer gave Kaat an early cushion against the Senators and the Minnesota left-hander coasted to the victory. It pushed his record to 12-9.

Willie Kirkland's pinch homer, leading off in the bottom of the eighth, gave the Senators the split in the nightcap.

Peters had Detroit shut out 1-0 with two out in the bottom of the ninth but Norm Cash walloped his 31st homer, sending the game into extra innings.

The White Sox, who had scored a run without a hit in the fifth inning against Johnny Podres, pushed the winner across in the 12th on pinch hitter Wayne Causey's sacrifice fly.

Cementmen Win Battle Of Errors

Going into last night's Commercial Softball League semi-final game, Point Anne Cementmen trailed City Hotel one game to none.

Maybe they are not used to being behind.

The cement - winning Cementmen evened the four-of-seven series by whipping City Hotel 15-7 in a maze of hits and errors.

Point Anne opened a 3-1 lead in this one, then fell behind 4-3 before exploding for seven runs in the third. It was never close after that as City committed 13 errors and the winners pounded out 12 hits.

Ron Maracle let the jokers down on eight hits and even the winners booted the ball around for five errors, making a total of 17 in the contest. Maracle struck out 13 and walked five.

City started Gerry Genereaux and later used Lazgard and Dave Feeney in an effort to stop the slaughter. They fanned three and passed nine with seven of the walks charged to Lazgard.

Ron Maracle also led his own attack by clouting a home run, double and single. David Akey poked three hits and Miles Cook two, Glen Maracle tripled, Jim Horwood and Eric Maher had doubles, Rick Rosebush and Dermer Maher a single each.

Larry Potter collected three Hotelmen singles and Doug Hull had a pair. Doug Mooney crashed a home run, Billy McGuire and Gerry Genereaux a hit each.

The series continues at the Point Thursday while Point Anne plays host to Maple in OASA Junior "C" action tonight.

Point Anne	317 142 0	18-13-3
City Hotel	130 012 0	7- 8-12

Batteries: R. Maracle and D. Akey; G. Genereaux, Lazgard, Maracle (3), D. Feeney (8) and L. Potter.

Get Exclusive Rights To Open

TORONTO (CP) — Representatives of the Canadian Broadcasting Corp. and the Royal Canadian Golf Association Tuesday announced a four-year agreement for exclusive world broadcast rights to the Canadian open golf championship.

The agreement covers the Canadian Open for 1966 to 1969. No financial arrangements were disclosed.

Ski Team Has New Coach

TORONTO (CP)—John Platt, a 38-year-old engineer from Trail, B.C., will become the new coach of Canada's national ski team, Pierre Alain, president of the Canadian Amateur Ski Association, announced Tuesday.

Platt, a member of the Federation Internationale de Ski and one of Canada's top skiers in Austria and France in 1958 and 1962, replaces Dave Jacobs who is retiring to open a ski boot manufacturing plant in Montreal.

The Tracks

FORT ERIE, Ont. (CP)—Jockey Avalino Gomez Tuesday accounted for the daily double of $41.20 by bringing in Togs Sea in the first and Iron Star in the second at Fort Erie race track.

It was Togs Sea's first win and it paid $5.20, $2.20 and $2.20 in the six - furlong race for maiden two-year-old fillies.

Iron Star paid $4.80 to win.

A crowd of 5,645 wagered $288,283.

Vets Spark Leafs To 7-0 Win

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

A pair of veterans pitched and hit Toronto Maple Leafs to a 7-0 victory over Toledo Mud Hens in International League action Tuesday night.

Julio Navarro scattered eight hits to record the shutout and bring his season record to 5-5, while Stan Johnson contributed three hits and scored twice.

Rhombers, Rochester Red Wings defeated Jacksonville Suns 4-3 before losing the second game of a doubleheader 10-8. Richmond Braves swept both ends of their doubleheader 9-1 and 8-2 to Syracuse Chiefs, and Buffalo Bisons defeated Columbus Jets 3-1, but lost the second game 2-1.

Johnson started things rolling in the first inning with a single that touched off a three-run rally. Johnson singled again in the second inning and scored on a sacrifice fly. Tony Hoitsa also hit a two-run triple for the Leafs.

Watson May Be Next Nats' Coach

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—Former Toronto Maple Leaf star Harry Watson has been offered the job of coaching London Nationals of the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A series next season.

Nats' president Ebbie Blakely said Tuesday Watson was "inquired" to terms offered but would make no decision until Friday.

He indicated that if Watson rejected the job it would be offered to ex-Leaf goalkeeper Turk Broda or former Kingston Frontenacs' forward Dick Cherry.

Patterson Gets 'Split' Decision

NEW YORK (CP) — Former heavyweight champion Floyd Patterson and his wife of 7 years, the former Sandra Kilbon Hicks, have been divorced says Patterson's attorney, Julius Savage.

November said Mrs. Patterson obtained the decree last month in Juarez, Mexico.

The reason for the split, the attorney added, was that Patterson insisted on continuing his ring over the objections of his wife who wanted him to retire.

Details of the settlement were not disclosed.

Turner Paces Ontario's Team Victory

BRANDON (CP) — Medalist Peter Turner of Toronto got consistent support from his team-mates Tuesday to propel Ontario to its second consecutive championship team title in the Canadian junior golf championships.

Turner had got the 37-37—74, giving him a 144 in the 36-hole qualifying round for the individual match play title. His mates—Gar Hamilton, Jr., of Toronto, Bob Cranston of Brampton and Wayne McDonald of Oakville—each turned in fine performances in the same day and fist for the tournament. British Columbia finished with 301 and Alberta 307 in the 4-man aggregate.

Saskatchewan settled for third spot at 618, solely on the strength of a 39-35—72 by Prince Albert's Ted Rick that left him just a stroke back of Turner at 145.

From there the team battle thickened, with Alberta at 626, Manitoba 631, Quebec 635 and Nova Scotia 638. New Brunswick, Prince Edward Island, with 646, and Newfoundland, with 728, finished.

British Columbia's move to stop Ontario from taking its fourth championship in succession matches began in 1939 crumbled when only one player of the province, Ken Venables, proved on his opening - day score. Morgan had 73, to go with an 81 from Venables.

His mates were generally consistent—Vancouver's Ross Kidd had 76 and 77, Jim Thomson of Port Hammond was 78 and Doug Cooper, Kidd's mate of Vancouver added two strokes for an 80.

Saskatchewan, in second place slight strokes behind Ontario after Monday's play, had Rick's 74 to offer Tuesday.

The Saskatoon trio was Lawrence Rambord, who took his second 79, Rick Folk, up five to 80, and Rick Maguire, up two to 82, all had problems as B.C. moved into second place and Alberta threatened for third.

Jason Pendleton of Prince Arthur, Ont., who anchored Manitoba with a 72 Monday, had a 76 to Tuesday on the 6,351-par 70 Brandon Golf and Country Club course.

Pendleton's 72 had left him sharing second place Monday with Rick and Toronto's Turner was the only impressive early score for the host team.

Third in the medalist race were defending champion Ian Thomas of London, Ont., and Nova Scotia champion Graham MacIntyre of New Glasgow, Ont.

Best among the remainder of the 64 qualifiers for today's match play round—first of a trio that wind up with a 36-hole final Saturday—were Trowbridge and Brian McLean of Lachine, Que., with 160s.

The cutoff turned out to be 164 and forced a four-man playoff when one qualifier, Quebec captain Eric Reid of Dorion, withdrew from match play to meet academic commitments at home.

The sudden - death playoff eliminated Vancouver's Greg Gardiner and Toronto's Bertie Mc Jack Scrymgeour of Calgary, Wayne Leslie of Winnipeg and Harold Foreman of Pembroke, Ont.

While some golfers like Frank Stranahan found their scores soaring Tuesday, the day brought a pleasant surprise for others.

Don Billsborough of Victoria had a 33-36—71, lowest score of the day and a contrast to his opening day 80.

Larry LaPierr of St. Boniface, Man., rebounded from a first-round 87 with approach shot that gave him a 72 and qualified him for match play.

'No Family, No Lindsay' Says Ted

TORONTO (CP)—Ted Lindsay, fiery veteran of 16 National Hockey League seasons, has decided not to stampede his induction into the Hockey Hall of Fame here Saturday because his family won't be allowed to take part.

Hall of Fame curator Bobby Hewitson confirmed Tuesday that the 40-year-old Lindsay had indicated he would not attend.

The induction ceremony is an all - male affair, but Lindsay doesn't think it should be.

"If my family can't share in this, I won't go," he said. Lindsay has three children.

NHL president Clarence Campbell and nine former stars are to be inducted Saturday.

Henry Fonda Maintains Active Career in Theatre

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — You may forget the motion that you scan stars stay on top with looks, luck and the loyalty of fans. It takes more than that.

Career management is the necessary ingredient.

Henry Fonda is an expert planner, and the only longtime star who has also maintained an active career on the theatre. His stage appearances are carefully planned.

"When I went into Darrington on the stage last year, he explains, "I made certain I would remain active in films. I had three unreleased movies before I started the play.

With the end of his successful run in Generation, Fonda has returned to films in MGM's Welcome To Hard Times. It is a labor of love for him (though of course he also earns his usual high salary).

WONT EARN MONEY

"Its not the kind of picture that will earn a lot of money," he says. "But its an offbeat story that could be damned good. Besides, I have hold that makes his interesting for an actor.

"But you cant make them all the time. If you do, you become known as an actor whose pictures dont make money. Then the banks wont lend on your name, and your career is in trouble.

"So I must also do commercial pictures like Sex and the Single Girl and Battle of the Bulge. Then I can afford to do a Twelve Angry Men or a Welcome To Hard Times.

Fonda hopes that Hard Times will have the same success of The Ox-bow Incident, the classic western he made at Fox in 1943.

Planned Night Soap Opera Turned Into Police Show

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Television producers, like custom tailors, can usually turn out anything a client orders. But the remodeling of a new soap opera evening soap opera called Men vs. Evil into a police-action show called The Felony Squad must have taxed even broadcasting's most flexible writers.

The project started at a time when the success of Peyton Place was at its peak—packagers that its serial form was the hottest thing on the channels.

"Some guy called and asked M T d he interested in a project like Peyton Place and built around a police department," recalled actor Ben Alexander, the unforgettable officer Frank Smith through eight seasons of Dragnet.

Alexander said sure, although he raised an eyebrow even then at the kickoff situation. A police captain with a wife who has taken to drinking.

DIDN'T START TREND

Peyton Place did not, after all, start a trend, and ultimately the salary assured Men vs. Evil were cut out along with the women's roles. Eventually it evolved into a straight series about a police sergeant (Howard Duff) and a young cop and his father (Alexander), a veteran policeman. Meanwhile the show shed gears through a tortured period of title changes, from The Force, to The Heavy Squad to finally — Felony Squad. It will be launched in the form on ABC's Tuesday

The Lions Club grabbed a 7-3 win over Little Oven Bakery in tyke last night to take the best-of-three series in three games. The Lions Club won two and tied the other. In the BMBA preview playoffs Tip Top evened their three-game series at 1-1 by defeating IBEW 10-8 and the Jaycees tied their series against Sinc Shell with a 3-1 win.

In the tyke tilt, the Lions Club exploded for six runs in the third frame to grab an early lead which they never gave up.

Ron Sergent hurled a fine pitcher for the winners, and struck out 14. On the Bakery mound, Jerry Cunningham gave up seven hits and fanned eight.

McTaggart, Greg Sly and Terry Madden led their team with a pair of singles each. Brian Thompson slammed a triple. Murray Wilson, Jim Sergent and Mark Coates singled for the losers.

Jeff Tip and Tip Top both managed four hits. The latter took a 4-3 lead in the first, 8-5 in the second, and 10-5 in the fourth. IBEW stormed back with single runs in each of the final two frames but could not earn a tie.

Austin Wilson pitched for Tip Tops, striking out 10 and walking nine. Mike Coogan fanned five and issued eight walks for the losers.

Pete Wager, Wayne Adrews, Austin Wilson and John Irvine stroked base hits for Tip Top, while Stephen Burke led IBEW with two singles. Jim Griffin and Mike Burley had one each.

Dick Meagher and Barry Colkin combined for a sparkling one-hitter, to lead the Jaycees to their win. They struck out 19 and walked three.

The winners grabbed an early 2-1 lead in the first frame, and added another in the fifth, as they coasted behind their pitching. Sinc Shell was shut out for the final six innings.

Greg Duffy, Brian Sharpe, Don Welch and Jim Hall all singled for Jaycees, while Barry Colkin got Sinc Shell's lone hit.

FINGERS STIFF.

NEW YORK (AP) — Whitey Ford, who has been placed on baseball's disabled list for the second time this season, entered a Houston, Tex., hospital Tuesday for examination of his pitching hand, The New York Yankees said. The left-hander is apparently suffering from a recurrence of a circulatory ailment in his fingers.

Departmental Softball

The Fire Department rallied with their backs to the wall and stayed alive in the Departmental Softball League semi-finals last night.

Firemen whipped City Hall 13-3 but still trail the three-of-five series 2-1 with one game tied. The next tilt is scheduled for Thursday. The Public Works Department play tonight.

Larry Reid slopped City Hall on five hits. He struck out eight. Gary Reid was combed for 12 hits in defeat, fanning seven.

Ricky Davis paced the winners with a two-for-four effort while Lyle Wannamaker hit a double and single. Brian Smith, Jim Lloyd and Norman Bell also se just about every man in the lineup he safely.

Ricky Davis was best for City Hall with two of their five hits.

The winners built up a 13-0 lead before City scored late in the contest.

Cassius Has No Inkling

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) Cassius Clay's draft board says it's all right to leave the country before the fight next month, but the heavyweight champion has no inkling of whether he'll eventually escape the military.

A four - hour hearing on Clay's appeal for an exemption brought the disclosure he's been classified for two years in the Muslim religion he embraces—preaching and converting people.

Clay came out of the hearing Tuesday and said it was "just like I was in a courtroom but there was no decision. When there is one, I'll be the first to tell you."

The hearing stemmed from Clay's earlier appeal for a draft deferment as a conscientious objector.

Clay disclosed Tuesday that the draft board had given him permission to leave the country for his September fight with Karl Mildenberger in Frankfurt, Germany.

Powerful New Telescope Will Hunt Distant Quasars

By RALPH DIGHTON

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — A stubby star - gazer more powerful than older telescopes twice its size is expected to start sweeping the skies by 1970.

Its 50-inch - diameter mirror, aided by modern electronics, is designed to reflect at larger piece of the cosmos at one time than any other long-focal-length telescope—including the world's largest, beside which it will sit atop Palomar Mountain in southern California.

Although its cannon-like barrel is only 25 feet long, half the length of earlier 60-inchers and one-quarter as long as Palomar's 200-inch "big eye," the scope now under construction will reach out to some of the most distant objects yet seen: the quasars that are reshaping astronomers' thinking about the size of the universe.

One of the main tasks the new telescope would take over is not photography but photometry — counting the photons of light that come from stars and thus measuring intensity and color.

This is essential in finding the mysterious objects called quasars, starlike objects which are the fastest, most-distant things yet seen in the universe. All give off blue light. Astronomers hope the new 80-inch can detect more of the blue, distant objects for the 200-inch to study.

It will have a better chance, at least. Television and radio broadcasting antennas built on Mount Wilson in recent years interfere with the electronic equipment needed for photometric studies. There are no antennas on Palomar.

EXPECT TAKEOVER

CHATHAM (CP) — Kent County road committee members are "fairly sure" the county will have to take over 40 additional miles of provincial highways into its 425-mile county road system, County Engineer Peter R. Crawford said Tuesday. He made the comment after committee members returned from a meeting in Toronto with Highways Minister Charles MacNaughton to review the province's decision to delete Highways 98, 21 and 78 from its highway network.

"He's a weird one. All I can get him to say is: 'Hi ya', skinhead!'"

Inexperience Brings Troubles To Algeria's Self-ruled Farms

Algeria has nationalized many of its farms and commercial enterprises and turned them over to the workers to run. El Djamsaouria, a large Algerian farm, seems to be thriving under self - management. But a Canadian Press reporter who visited the country finds many cases where serious flaws have developed in the system.

By PETER BUCKLEY

BOUFARIK, Algeria (CP) — The old man in the doughnut-shaped turban and the patched work trousers had worked on the same farm for nearly 40 years.

For all but the last three years, his employers had been French "colons." In 1963 the farm was nationalized by an independent Algeria and turned over to the farm workers to run.

"I like it much better now," said the old Algerian, shuffling his booted feet in the earth of the peach orchard and allowing a grin-toothed smile to crease his weathered face.

"Now I'm free, I'm my own boss."

He is not only his own boss, he is chef d'equipe (team leader) for 30 full-time and part-time laborers in the orchard section of the estate.

The farm is 25 miles east of Algiers is the second largest in the area and one of the richest in Algeria, a country almost the size of Ontario and Quebec combined. More than a third of its 1,300 acres is devoted to vineyards. The rest is divided among grain, orchards, vegetables and pasture, providing almost year-round crops for the 135 permanent workers to plant and harvest.

The last members of the Barnabe family, who had founded the estate a century ago, have returned to France with as much of their assets as they could salvage. Now the estate bears the title of El Djamsaouria—The Republic—and it is a show-piece of the Democratic and Popular Republic of Algeria.

RUN BY COMMITTEE

Across the tidy fields of grain and fruit trees and vines are the blue hills around Algiers, World bourgainvillea covers the walls of the farm buildings and splashy flowers blossom along the footpaths. The North African sun glows hotly and a breeze touches the lines of fir trees that border the farm's dirt roads.

It was a picture-book farm when the Barnabes ruled it from the cool recesses of the rich manor house, and its image is in fact despite the workers' councils and quotas that have come along under nationalization.

Instead of old Henri Barnabe making all the decisions, El Djamsaouria's workers now gather solemnly once a year to elect a five-member management committee. The national agricultural department appoints a general supervisor.

Production is turned over to the state for sale, with the workers getting "advances" of between eight and 30 dinars ($1.76 to $4.40) a day, according to type of work, to be repaid when the revenue from sales is in and divided.

But the question of how much profit the farm makes is left vague, and there is a strongly defensive reaction to questions about some aspects of farm operations.

The defensiveness is easy to understand because farms like El Djamsaouria are the centre of heated debate in Algeria.

WORKERS TAKE OVER

The French word inevitably used here to describe such operations — auto-gestion — sounds like some mysterious form of car trouble. It translates literally "self-management" and it applies to hundreds of farms, factories, hotels, cafes and stores whose workers took over their own operations after Algeria won independence from France in 1962.

Most of the original European owners fled in panic after independence. Others, like the Barnabes, left when their property was nationalized.

With virtually no trained management or technicians left in the country, many of the properties have suffered.

Production has often dropped alarmingly and machinery has fallen apart. Some management committees were found to be eating up their income in irrational expenditures and high living. The national government was forced to pump money from its strained treasury into what were once profitable enterprises.

Now there's a new, stronger wind blowing. Accounting procedures are being tightened and outside supervision imposed. Loans from the treasury must be justified and paid out of earnings.

Ever since the flamboyant Ahmed Ben Bella was ousted as president a year ago and replaced by his more sober defence minister, Col. Houari Boumedienne, government spokesmen have multiplied their threats against inefficient autogestion.

SWITCH IN POLICY

Some large farms seized from wealthy French and Algerians have even been returned to their owners. Left-wing pressure groups, led by militant unions, protested loudly that the socialist revolution in Algeria was being betrayed and the government was forced to nationalize some of the farms again. Most of them have remained in private hands.

Under Ben Bella, autogestion was a cornerstone of the revolutionary program.

To an outsider, he appears to have made socialist virtues out of practical necessity.

Since few of the European managers remained to run things after independence, workers would appear to have been left with little option but to take over.

Now, with more professional administrators being prepared, moderate elements in Algeria want the self-managed sections of the economy either to justify themselves on the balance sheet or to be taken under strict government control.

The hard-line socialists and revolutionaries retort that autogestion has not been given a chance, that it should be expanded with more producer co - operatives and greater state investments in machinery and technology.

FARM HANDS HAPPY

The ordinary peach-picker or vine-pruner on ah estate like El Djamsaouria may not be able to read or write, but he is almost certainly aware of the debate about who should be running his farm.

Asked through an interpreter about suggestion, they inevitably reply that it is working well and they are happier than before. The harvests are said to be equal now in almost every respect to those before independence, despite the almost total lack of training for Algerians under the French.

A long-time North African resident quotes one government-appointed farm administrator as having said: "They accuse us of all the wrongs, but it's not true. The laborers work, production increases, the accounting is in order. . . . The trouble is up there, in the administration, not here on the farms."

That answer seems far too simplified.

El Djamsaouria is a model of autogestion, with its prosperous fields, busy cattle barns and bulging wine cellars. But in thousands of other farms and businesses, the workers who were never taught to manage, to budget, to forecast or to order supplies are reported to have foundered under their new responsibilities.

The future of autogestion seems anything but assured.

Tomorrow: Algeria too wealthy for its own good.

Pearson Warns Rail Pay Boost Cannot Be Huge

By MICHAEL GILLAN

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Pearson Tuesday night coupled an appeal for compromise in the railway crisis with a warning that any huge, inflationary wage increases will hobble the country in world markets.

In an 11th-hour bid over television and radio to head off the national rail strike set for noon regional standard time Friday, the prime minister said there must be some increase in wages.

He said the government will introduce legislation to revamp the railway system and enable the companies to grant "reasonable" boosts.

"But we also know that increases in wages must not be so large that they send up costs and prices which will largely offset the wage increases . . . and seriously threaten Canada's competitive position in world markets.

"Wage increases on a scale that will result in serious inflation will lead inevitably to loss of markets, loss of income and a return of unemployment."

MEDIATION ARRANGED

Mr. Pearson spoke on a countrywide hookup over the CBC and CTV television networks and the CBC's radio networks during a mediation meeting for today with company and union negotiators.

On Monday, Mr. Pearson recalled Parliament early from its summer recess to meet Monday, Aug. 29, to deal with the strike if mediation efforts fail and to lead off with a bill to revamp the railway system and permit the government to pay for wage boosts.

The prime minister said in his television address that legislation would be based broadly on the MacPherson royal commission report.

This report recommended freight rate subsidies paid to the railways be gradually terminated and the companies be allowed to find their natural competitive position in the transportation industry. Eliminating uneconomic passenger branch lines would be one step towards this goal.

In television interviews following Mr. Pearson's speech, CPR President Ian Sinclair and William Kelly, president of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, said there can be no real collective bargaining in the railway industry if railways are operated as an instrument of national policy.

Since the start of the 1960s rail freight rates have been frozen by law with pay increases covered by government subsidies.

WILL CHANGE SYSTEM

The prime minister indicated this system will be changed in the new legislation.

He said subsidies covering three increases since 1960 now cost the treasury about $100,000,000 annually and they cannot be continued without increasing taxes.

"And this we are not prepared to ask Parliament to do."

The legislation would give the railways greater freedom to adjust their rates to meet competition, increase earnings and enable them "to bear the burden of a legitimate and fair increase in wages."

The prime minister said it is a serious matter to interfere

Marines Fight Reds At Border

SAIGON (AP)—U.S. marines hunting Communists south of the demilitarized zone between North and South Viet Nam fought a heavy, 12-hour battle today with a force of North Vietnamese troops, a U.S. spokesman announced.

Company — sized marine elements met late Tuesday with Communists entrenched in fortifications and caves in the hills of the Cua Le River Valley, 12 miles west of Dong Ha and five miles south of the demilitarized zone.

The engagement was described as heavy until about dawn today, and then tapered off to light and moderate.

The marine reconnaissance force was quickly reinforced with aircraft, artillery and ground troops.

The spokesman said marine casualties were light, while 17 Communists were known to be killed and two others captured.

MARINES CALLED IN

In another ground action, U.S. paratroop brigade engaged in an intensive search for the Viet Cong for the past two weeks east of Saigon was airlifted into the jungles southeast of Saigon Tuesday, the U.S. military command said.

The brigade was flown in helicopters into Phuoc Tuy province after U.S. marines and Australian forces found evidence of a Viet Cong division.

Although no direct contact had been made with the Communists, diaries and hot rice and other food left in disarray in jungle huts indicated the Viet Cong were somewhere nearby, a spokesman said.

In the air, navy jets pounced on four North Vietnamese torpedo boats discovered hidden among islands in the Tonkin Gulf and sank one, possibly sank a second and badly damaged a third.

Carrier-based planes also reported sighting three MiG 17s during their patrol, but the MiGs did not venture close enough for a fight.

Air force pilots bombed a petroleum dump 26 miles up the coastline from Hanoi.

THE WEATHER

Synopsis: A northwesterly flow of cool air will continue over the province for the next few days. Considerable cloudiness and a few showers will persist in the northern and eastern regions today and Thursday. However, over southwestern Ontario skies will become mostly clear tonight and Thursday.

Strike Looms at Hamilton

HAMILTON (CP) — Possibility of a strike at Canada's largest steel plant looms again after 11,000 Steelworkers Tuesday rejected what appeared to be months-five ratification of a contract that would have made them the highest-paid steelmen in the world.

The rejection, on a 4,464-to-3,837 vote, by Steel Co. of Canada Ltd. workers surprised both union and company negotiators who reached the settlement Aug. 17 after 12 days of bargaining.

Veteran mediator Judge Walter Little of Parry Sound, Ont., who termed the settlement the finest he had ever seen, expressed bitter disappointment at the membership vote.

The contract would have given Stelco workers a pay-pension deal estimated at 66.7 cents an hour over three years and cost this company $22,000,000.

A key factor in the rejection appeared to be union members' discontent with the treatment of 21 men disciplined by the company after a recent violent five-day wildcat walkout. The walkout, to protest the slowness of earlier negotiations, spurred the settlement offer put before the workers for ratification Tuesday.

SOME FIRED

Some of the 21 men were fired. Earlier this week, a leaflet was circulated among Stelco workers saying that the new contract was accepted it would be in exchange for the ReinHood of the 21 men.

Immediately after the voting result was made public, the union asked Ontario Labor Minister Rowntree to intervene and to clear the road for strike action by making public Judge Little's conciliation report. The union can legally strike after 21 days after the report is made public.

Under the rejected settlement Hamilton steelworkers would have been earning $2.81 an hour one cent more an hour than is earned by U.S. steelmen, now the highest paid in the world.

In addition to the 11,000 workers at Stelco's main works here, the union bargains for 2,000 Stelco employees in fabricating plants at Toronto, Hamilton, Gananoque, Hamilton and Edmonton.

The contract at the main Hamilton plant normally sets the pattern for the others.

BLAME BATMAN

LEICESTER, England (AP) The U.S. comic strip and television show Batman was blamed Tuesday for the death of Charles Lee, 13. He was found hanging from a nail in a shed at his home. Police said the boy was wearing a piece of sacking and mask over his head and an old black dress that "lured out like the Batman's cloak."

"O.K.! Count me in! Now which of us will be Prime Minister?"

Country Busily Gears Self For Impact of Rail Strike

WILL I GET THERE—The seeming question of Vancouver-bound train passengers at Union Station in Toronto Tuesday is whether they would reach their destination before the threatened rail strike on Friday. After Tuesday, passenger service was to be curtailed pending settlement of the dispute. (CP Photo)

MONTREAL (CP)—While rail and union leaders began meetings in Ottawa aimed at heading off a threatened strike of 118,000 non-operating railway employees, the country began to gear for the possible effects of such a walkout.

Some officials have said the effects of a nationwide rail strike could be "disastrous" to the economy, but other types of freight carriers were looking forward to capacity business.

Truck companies began a search for additional vehicles to handle the expected crush and Air Canada, already flooded with inquiries of charters, issued a hasty embargo on all air freight and air express between Canada and United States points.

Rail shipments from the United States would be halted at the international border and rail have to make the final leg of their journey to Canadian centres by truck.

George Gonin, president of the Canadian Trucking Association, said in Toronto Tuesday his organization, which represents 2,000 companies, "has been setting up co-ordination centres across the country in anticipation of a dispatch and emergency transportation effort."

Joseph Goodman, general manager of the Automotive Transport Association of Ontario, predicted that the province's 50,000 trucks would be able to handle the situation "easily."

STOCKS LIMITED

Both General Motors at Oshawa, Ont., and Procter and Gamble Ltd. at Hamilton say they can maintain production for only a week before their stocks run out.

Eric Gracey of Toronto, general-manager of the Canadian Industrial Traffic League said

Rail, Union Chiefs Meet

OTTAWA (CP) — The Big Eleven in Canada's railway dispute met face to face today in a last-ditch attempt to head off a crippling strike.

About 50 representatives of the railway unions and management met in the 10th floor boardroom of the labor department office under the chairmanship of Labor Minister Nicholson.

All sides in the crisis situation were uncommunicative about settlement prospects as they filed into the meeting room. However, officials said the first joint session under government mediation was likely to be a short one.

Management and Union Spokesmen at Odds Over Major Issues in Strike

OTTAWA (CP) — Management and union representatives found one point of agreement on Tuesday night but remained at odds on major issues in question-and-answer sessions on both the looming Canada-wide rail strike.

The sessions were held on separate CBC and CTV television network programs after Prime Minister Pearson had finished his broadcast appeal calling for common sense on all sides to avert the strike called for 12:01 p.m. 100 railway union members for noon Friday.

CPR President Ian Sinclair and William Kelly, vice-president of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, agreed on the CTV program that there can be no collective bargaining in the rail industry if railways are operated as an instrument of national policy.

But the wage issue that is a key one in the strike situation found Mr. Sinclair, Mr. Kelly and Norman J. Smith, president of the Railway, Transport and General Workers, at odds on the CBC program.

A 30-per-cent wage increase is no big. Mr. Sinclair said, that the railways, closely regulated by government, could not seriously consider it, "nor can it be considered, I believe, from the standpoint of the Canadian economy."

Mr. Smith said if inflation is afoot in the land it has not been caused by railway workers. Their pay was substantially inferior to that in other industries.

Mr. Sinclair said he wouldn't agree rail wages were inferior.

On collective bargaining, Mr. Sinclair said:

"We don't like not being able to meet the unions and bargain collectively." But the railways had been wrongly used as an instrument of national policy.

Mr. Kelly said it is a tragedy that no such bargaining takes place. But he stressed this problem is of only indirect concern to the unions, whose purpose it is to ensure that railway operations are not subsidized by the workers.

Mr. Smith agreed the railways are highly regulated by governments. Until railway management is assured by Parliament that earnings can be increased "we will be on a collision

Chance For Peace Move Seen

By RON MacDONALD

BANFF, Alta. (CP)—An Australian correspondent says there is a good opportunity at present for new peace moves in Viet Nam because a military stand-off has been reached there.

Dennis Warner, who has been reporting events in Southeast Asia since the Second World War and was now one of the correspondents in Viet Nam for his many years of reporting from that country, spoke Tuesday to the Banff conference on world development.

Mr. Warner said a settlement in Viet Nam must be reached on the basis that there be no victor and no vanquished. All the war needed was the possibility of achieving that kind of settlement could diminish as political talks began fighting intensifies.

If the current opportunity for peace move in Viet Nam yields no rewards, Mr. Warner said, the United States has no reasonable alternative but to fight on with the South Vietnamese.

Mr. Warner said he is not hopeful that the current opportunity for peace initiatives will yield results.

Rail Situation in Brief

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Ottawa — Labor Minister Nicholson was scheduled to meet with rail and union officials today in a bid to help settle their wage dispute before a nation-wide railway strike takes place Friday. Parliament recalled for Aug. 29 to deal with the situation.

Prime Minister Pearson made a plea on a nationwide television and radio broadcast Tuesday night for a compromise settlement and warned that inflationary wage increases will hobble the country in world markets.

Montreal — Union leaders predicted that no strike will take place on schedule Friday regardless of developments before that time because union members will probably have to vote on any agreements resulting from today's Ottawa meeting.

The railways and unions agreed to provide emergency train services during fires or floods or for other essential services.

Truck companies began a search for additional vehicles to handle the expected crush and Air Canada announced a hasty embargo on all air freight and air express between Canada and the United States points. The CNR and CPR earlier announced immediate embargos on livestock and perishable goods shipments.

Agreement reached between railways and unions for maintaining all east coast ferry services with the exception of the Saint John, N.B.-Digby, N.S. service which will be halted and the Cape Tormentine, N.B.-Borden, P.E.I. ferry whose status was still being discussed.

Charlottetown — Premier Aleg Campbell of P.E.I. said Tuesday night his government is prepared to declare an emergency in the province if the strike results in cancellation of the island's ferry service.

Press Search For Girl

By ALFRED KLUEBS

BERLIN (Reuters) — Police today pressed their search for a four-year-old Canadian girl who had barely landed in West Berlin with her mother before she was kidnapped.

Regina Klewer, 36, of Montreal said her daughter, Andrey, was kidnapped Monday morning by a masked man. Mrs. Klewer said she was held at gunpoint, tied up and chloroformed.

The abduction took place in the home of the woman's father, an antique dealer, in the fashionable Wannsee district of West Berlin.

The child's mother was reported to be in a hospital suffering from shock. She and her Ottawa - born daughter were alone in the house when the kidnapping occurred only hours after they arrived in West Berlin.

Sources said the kidnapper asked for 35,000 marks ($9,800) in a ransom note he left behind.

FIRST SINCE WAR

Police said this was the first case of kidnapping for ransom of a child in West Berlin since the Second World War.

Andrey's grandmother, the second wife and one son returned from a vacation Monday for what was to have been a family reunion.

West - informed sources said the mother and daughter arrived in Berlin Sunday morning and the kidnapping took place at 2 a.m. Monday.

Sources said police thought several persons were involved in the kidnapping which they said could have been plotted only by someone well - acquainted with the circumstances of the family.

Sources said the family received a phone call since the kidnapping from someone who demanded the ransom be paid.

Police said the mother re-

Britain Denies Basing New Strategy On Five-Day Limit to Non-Nuclear War

LONDON (Reuters) — British officials denied today press reports that Defence Secretary Denis Healey is basing his new defence strategy study on the conviction that no war in Europe would last more than five days before entering the nuclear stage.

The reports said the government was to spring the idea on the NATO allies to speed cuts in the size and cost of the 98,000-man British force now based in West Germany.

The 15-nation Atlantic alliance now works on the principle that a non - nuclear war in Europe might be fought for as long as 90 days.

The whole strategy problem is now under discussion by experts in the NATO working groups.

Britain's strategy thinking on NATO and the defence of Europe was outlined in the government's defence policy review in February.

The British view is that once nuclear weapons are employed in Europe, however limited the scale, it is almost certain that general the aggressor decides to stop fighting the conflict would escalate rapidly to a general nuclear exchange.

Organized land warfare then would quickly become meaningless. Britain has therefore urged NATO to abandon military preparations based on the assumption that a non-nuclear war in Europe might drag on for several months.

At the same time, according to British thinking, NATO must maintain enough conventional forces to deal with small-scale conflicts in the European theatre without automatic resort to nuclear weapons, when the origin of the conflict may be uncertain and the intentions of the enemy obscure.

Minister Urges Shakeup Of Secondary Schools

PORT ARTHUR (CP)—A total shakeup of the secondary schools was urged Tuesday at the Ontario Secondary School Principals conference by J. R. McCarthy, Ontario deputy minister of university affairs.

Mr. McCarthy asked the principals to consider the school shakeup, including a non-graded system, free - wheeling discussions between teachers and students, more independent student study and an increased emphasis on the humanities.

"If you are not prepared to look at these (new ideas), you will inevitably find yourself implementing ideas which others have decided are desirable.

"The time has come to review the over-all purposes of the school . . . I can think of no more worthy enterprise for this organization than to develop its views on this and then publish them."

He said if a student demonstrates that he cannot do one subject beyond a certain grade, he might as well be able to drop it altogether to spend more time on other areas in which he has some interest and ability.

CHOICE CLIM

He said that Ontario students are supposed to have options "but when the student gets down to making choices they are almost non-existent."

He also said the impressive results of this year's Grade-13 examinations may be meaningless.

"The really interesting figures would be the proportion of students succeeding in relation to the number who entered Grade 9 in 1961, and the number who might have been allowed to continue in the five-year program if the threat of adverse Grade 13 results could have been removed from teachers and principals."

He cautioned the principals against instituting any obstacles to replace Grade 13 departmental examinations, slated for abolition in 1968.

"I have in mind possibilities such as city-wide or system-wide set examinations."

He also suggested more flexible study courses to meet individual high school students requirements.

Teaching methods should be modified to favor a greater exchange of views, to allow students to study independently and to follow the subjects that interest them most, he said. This might encourage students to continue to university after their high school graduations.

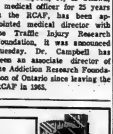
He said universities now are more willing to work closely with high school teachers to help determine which students can enrol, even before final exam results are available. Universities are also relying more on students' over-all high school records than simply on Grade 13 results.

The headmasters described the teacher recruitment program by school boards as a period of frenzied activity akin to a cattle auction.

An Alexandrine, proposed in a Provincial House which was scheduled to be debated again today, would be a free market recruitment plan.

Earlier, the principals passed a resolution authorizing the council executive to set up machinery "to assist teachers and control standards after the abolition of Grade 13 external examinations."

In another motion, the principals accepted an invitation from the education department to form a joint committee to explore the removing of mandatory time allotments for high school subjects.



Each school now must spend eight periods a week on English, for instance.

NAMED DIRECTOR

MAKES PROFIT

The Alberta government netted $1,187,806 Tuesday from a sale of petroleum and natural gas permits on land in east central and southern Alberta. The sale brings to $67,786,643 the amount received by the government from such sales to date this year.

MORE STEEL MADE

The steel industry, with labor disputes in abeyance and vacations over, brought its production of steel ingots to 359,081 tons during the week ended Aug. 20, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics reported Tuesday. Production had been only 130,215 the week before. Output a year ago was 194,604 tons.

MILK SALES UP

Commercial sales of standard, special and two per cent milk in June totalled 25,962,000 quarts, an increase of one per cent over a year earlier, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics reported Tuesday. January-June production was 764,349,000 quarts, two per cent higher than last year.

WON'T PAY

British American Construction and Materials Ltd. said Tuesday it will not pay a dividend for the quarter ending Aug. 31, because of the tight money market and a need to conserve working capital.

ACCEPTED BY TSE

Arnold Pitt, president of New Imperial Mines Ltd., said Tuesday that shares of the company have been accepted for listing by the Toronto Stock Exchange and will be posted for trading Aug. 24.

Potato Growers May Organize Co-operative

There is increasing interest in the commercial growing of seed and table potatoes in the North Hastings area and in the Madawaska Valley.

Some months go a North Hastings Potato Growers' Association was formed with Andy Ellenberger as president, and during the year the Association serving the eastern part of the Madawaska Valley was formed at Barry's Bay.

Now there is talk of its two Associations co-operating with the view of obtaining ARDA financial assistance in the development of a marketing co-operative to make bulk purchases of fertilizer and for organization of an educational program.

It is felt that if top quality potatoes are to be grown, farmers must obtain the latest scientific information from special trained experts.

This Friday evening a meeting of potato growers will be held at the St. John's Parish Hall in Bancroft to discuss what the Association needs from ARDA.

Yukon Aircraft Will Carry Supplies to Quake Victims

TRENTON — The people of Canada's contribution to the earthquake victims of Turkey will reach its destination on the morrow afternoon.

At 11.00 a.m. today the big Yukon aircraft that will carry badly needed drugs, medical supplies, blankets and clothing valued at $35,500 took off from Canadian Forces Base, here. It was headed for Ottawa where the cargo is being loaded. The flight from Trenton to Turkey will take 10 hours.

Of the amount contributed $20,000 is the gift of the Canadian government and $15,500 the gift of the Canadian Red Cross. It was gathered together in response to an international appeal from the League of the Red Cross Societies, Geneva.

Aboard the aircraft delivering the relief supplies was Canadian Red Cross worker, Mrs. Vera Altbeck of Toronto who was born and educated in Turkey. She will be in Turkey eight days and report on the distribution of the shipment on return. Red. Cross officials R. H. Glenn, national director of public relations; John Bush, headquarter's administrative assistant and John Cradd, a representative of the secretary-general of the Australian Red Cross were at the air station for the departure.

The crew for the Air Transport Command mercy flight includes, Major B. G. Burd, F/L D. T. Thompson, F/O J. R. Nicholl, F/O T. G. Bremmer, WOI C. Trethowan, Sgt. J. A. Gauthier and Cpl. A. Street.

SCHOOLS READIED

Trenton's six public schools and the high school are being readied for the influx of students in September. The town will employ 150 teachers this year. School enrollment is expected to be very much the same as last year. . . 1,400 for the high school and 2,200 for public schools. . . but the total enrollment will not be known until after the first day of school.

Strangling Of Two Women Is Admitted

MONTREAL (CP) — Roland Belisle, 22, a Halifax accountant, testified Tuesday he strangled two young Montreal women last year in a fit of jealousy after having sexual intercourse with them.

Belisle made his statement at a coroner's inquest, and was found criminally responsible for the deaths of Dirette Marchessault and Charlotte Shirley Doucet, both 20.

The accountant is expected to be arraigned today. In Quebec, charges are laid in cases of violent death until criminal responsibility has been determined by a coroner's inquest.

The accountant said he met Miss Marchessault in a Montreal nightclub last Tuesday, and said she agreed to spend the night with him for a $20 fee.

"The couple went to a downtown rooming house, Leblanc said, where they "had a few drinks and then intercourse, I choked her immediately after."

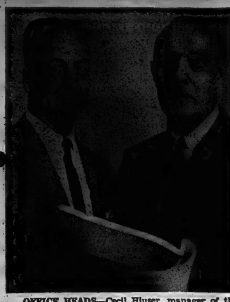
Assessment Now Nearly Completed

TRENTON — Assessment commissioner J. Allan Smith and Paul Bernard, who has worked in the summer for the assessment department for the past two years, have just about completed their examination and assessment of the town.

The commercial and industrial properties are finished and all that remains of the residential properties to do are houses around the high school area and some in North Trenton.



The "leg work" and reports must be completed by Sept. 10 and Mr. Smith must report to council after that.

Assessment this year should be very much the same as last year's ($16,428,470) Mr. Smith said yesterday, with allowance made for the usual $200,000 — $250,000 annual increase. Supplementary assessment will be "picked up" during the last three months of the year and added to the 1967 list on which 1967 taxes are based.

OFFICE HEADS—Cecil Hluser, manager of the Unemployment Insurance Commission office here and H. W. Karn, recently appointed as manager of the local National Employment Service office, confer after the latter's arrival in Belleville this week.

Employment Service Office Now Has Separate Manager

There will be no change in office procedure, but the Belleville office of the National Employment service has a new manager this week.

He is Mr. H. W. Karn who comes to Belleville from Kitchener, where he held a similar office.

Mr. Karn's move to Belleville is the result of government action in April 1965 which separated the functions of the National Employment Service and the Unemployment Insurance Commission.

Since that time the two departments at Belleville have been in charge of Mr. Cecil Hluser who will continue as manager of the Unemployment Insurance Commission office.

Mr. Karn said that despite the change in office procedure there will be no change in the requirement for unemployed workers applying for benefits. Workers will still be asked to register for employment before they can qualify for benefits.

LONG SERVICE

Both Mr. Hluser and Mr. Karn have been with the Employment service for approximately 30 years, with the former having been at Belleville for the past eight years.

Mr. Karn is a native of Sydney, N. S., and worked at Dosco before joining the Cape Breton Highlanders early in World War II.

Following discharge from the army he joined the Employment Commission in 1947 and reported to the local office in Toronto as employment officer. From there he went to Weston as employment branch supervisor and became manager at Napanee. He served as manager at Brockville and then37 SH M F WYP ville, Woodstock and Kitchener before coming to this city.

Misunderstanding by Union Lawyer Said Cause of Strike

TORONTO (CP) — A misunderstanding by T. A. Armstrong, a lawyer for the Textile Workers Union of America, resulted in the strike by 39 union members at Tilco Plastics Ltd. Peterborough, a company lawyer told a labor relations board Tuesday.

The board is hearing an application by the union for permission to prosecute the company for failure to bargain in good faith. The hearing concluded Tuesday without a date for a ruling being set.

Richard Shirriff, a lawyer for Tilco, said Harold Pasmnett, co-owner of Tilco, and Mr. Armstrong were negotiating a contract last November when Mr. Pasmnett said he would agree to a union condition that tool makers be part of the bargaining unit if the union agreed to his monetary and bonus proposals.

Mr. Shirriff said Mr. Armstrong conferred with Victor Skurjet, a union representative, and then told Mr. Pasmnett, "You've got a deal."

"I had no doubt at that time that the contract was agreed and there would be no signing bonus," said Mr. Shirriff.

DENYS ACCEPT

"The following Monday when he received the draft Mr. Skurjet said the contract was not acceptable because there was no $25 signing bonus. Mr. Armstrong later said he could not remember whether or not he had mentioned the signing bonus to Mr. Skurjet.

"I do not for one minute doubt that it was a misunderstanding but I am sure there was nothing but good faith on Mr. Armstrong's part."

Mr. Skurjet earlier told the hearing that the company had reneged on an agreement to pay $25 to each worker in lieu of retroactive pay.

After further negotiation, the company offered a $15 signing bonus and the strike was called.

The strike by about 30 workers began at the Tilco plant last December. The company later obtained a court injunction limiting pickets at the plant to 12.

In February this year mass demonstrations were held at the Tilco site with up to 400 persons protesting the injunction.

Attorney - General Arthur Wishart ordered charges laid and 26 demonstrators were later jailed for their part in the protest.

WAS CONCESSION

John Sopkina, also counsel for Tilco, told the board Tuesday that the offer of Tilco to take back five strikers was a concession because the company was under no obligation to take any back on the payroll.

He said the company had bargained in good faith, had made several substantial concessions and that while employees could not be fired for engaging in a lawful strike, once acts of violence were committed, the strike was no longer lawful.

"Up until the time of the strike, the company was sincerely trying to effect an agreement," he said. "They weren't having all those meetings and hiring lawyers just for the fun of it."

He said the company had hired new employees and was under no obligation to discharge them. It would not have been bargaining in bad faith if the company had come to the bargaining table and said none would be taken back. But the company agreed to take five strikers back, he added.

"Anything the union got was windfall."

Last-Passenger Train Here Will Be Railiner Friday

Last CN passenger train service through Belleville if the impending railway strike materializes will be the Railiner from Brockville to Toronto, arriving here at 8:08 Friday morning, J. K. Flemming, Passenger Sales Manager of the Central Ontario Area, announced this morning. Union leaders have announced that the strike will take effect at noon, local standard time.

On the Toronto-Montreal service the last trains will leave Toronto and Montreal Thursday night, arriving at their destinations Friday morning.

Last trains on the Ottawa-Toronto service in both directions will leave Thursday night, arriving at their destinations Friday morning.

On the Ottawa-Montreal run the last train from Montreal will leave at 10.30 a.m. and the last from Ottawa will leave at 7.40 a.m. Friday.

The Champlain will be the last train on the Montreal-Quebec City service leaving Montreal Thursday evening.

On the Montreal-New York-Washington run the last train will depart from Montreal at 10.50 a.m. Thursday.

Local passenger on route to Western Canada will get to Winnipeg only on the Super Continental and Panorama leaving today.

The Ocean Limited of the Montreal-Halifax service will leave Montreal for its last complete trip today and the train leaving Thursday will go only as far as Moncton, with road connections to St. John, N.B.

CNR Places Embargo on Freight, Express

TORONTO (CP) — The CNR here placed an embargo Tuesday on express and freight of less than carload-lot size originating or terminating in Metropolitan Toronto.

However, a spokesman said the railway will continue to accept freight and express for transfer at Toronto.

David L. Venutti of Belleville, has been appointed manager of Ontario Hydro's Lancaster Area, it has been announced by A. H. Pedersen, member of Hydro's Eastern Region. Mr. Venutti succeeds George L. Davidson who was recently appointed assistant manager of Hydro's Winchester area.

In 1963 he was appointed a regional lines supervisor at Belleville. Mr. and Mrs. Venutti have two sons. His new appointment is effective Sept. 1.

Claims Village Independent

LONDON (AP) — Leonard Warren, self - appointed overlord of Reach, which has a population of 39, says the village is independent.

Warren, 63, a member of Reach's parish and rural council, says King John gave Reach its independence in 1236 and a charter granted by the king "secures forever" the village's self-government.

In order to force a showdown with the British government, he has offered to allow pirate radio stations to operate from the Cambridgeshire village.

"With a pirate radio station operating here," he said in a telephone interview from Reach, "they (the government) would have to debate our claims. I'd like to make this a test case."

In Britain the only government - licensed radio broadcaster is the BBC, which does not broadcast commercials.

The radio pirates are broadcasting stations that are operating without licenses from ships and abandoned Second World War forts outside British's territorial waters.

Inflationary Spiral

How much inflation can this country stand? How long before this cost-wage spiral reaches dangerous proportions?

Even now the cost of living is higher than at any time in the past, and there seems no end to the upward trend of prices or to the parallel claims for increased wages.

That the Government appears unconcerned is borne out by its own massive spending programs. With no restraint at the top, the general public also continues its spendthrift ways. In any event budgeting is becoming more and more difficult, and the attitude seems to be one of "let's make the best of it while the going is good."

Hardest hit of course in this inflationary situation are people on fixed incomes like the pensioners.

But apart from one or two quickly-forgotten warnings from Finance Minister Sharp and Trade Minister Winters, not to mention one from Prime Minister Pearson, no one — cabinet minister or economist — has really come out with any intelligent prediction of what uncontrolled inflation will mean to the economy say three years from now.

Economic affairs was one of the subjects discussed by Prime Minister Pearson and President Johnson the other day. Both leaders face labor unrest and a broadening concern among consumers about prices. For its part, Ottawa has been reluctant, in dealing with the Canadian economy, to follow the U.S. example with regard to guidelines — voluntary, specific limits on wage and prices.

It is interesting in this context to note rising consumer unrest over prices in the United States. American visitors complain about food prices in Canada, but there is a familiar ring to the comments of American housewives within their own borders.

A Christian Science Monitor writer recently made a round of Boston supermarkets and found shoppers saying like this: "This is where everything seems to be creeping up, especially everyday items like milk, bread, and eggs. It's much harder to make ends meet," complained Mrs. Edwin Cutler, who has five youngsters.

"I used to get by with $45 to $50 a week in grocery money. But now I have to plead with my husband for $55 at least," she said.

Housewives are hunting harder for "specials," it is reported, and shopping elsewhere than their favorite mart, according to Monitor writer Martin Skala. And they are cutting back on higher-priced, fancier-prepared foods such as frozen pastry.

There we have a glimpse of inflation from the U.S. housewife's point of view. It is the same for her counterpart here, and symbolic of the pinch which just about everyone is feeling with regard to the declining value of money in a high-priced and costly economy.

Is Chivalry Dead?

The Toronto Star quotes an Australian journalist, back from visiting Canada, as saying Canadian girls "have killed chivalry. . . In striving for equality they have destroyed their femininity."

When The Star's Edwin Feeny polled Torontonians for their opinions on this theme he got some interesting replies.

Barbara Rose, 18, a student, said: "Chivalry is dying out because of today's competitive pace. Women didn't kill it off. It is sad, but when a woman competes with a man and equals or surpasses him, she cannot expect him to be gallant about it."

Frances Gibb, a receptionist, newly-arrived in this country, said: "I think chivalry is becoming a thing of the past, due to the attitude to selfishness in men. Men are not treating women as women. I'm only in Canada a short time and it is so noticeable here."

Bruce Sythes, a company director, gave the male viewpoint. "It is just common courtesy to show any lady respect," he said in part.

And having quoted the word of a gentleman, there is little more to be said. Just one thing perhaps, there is more chivalry involved in the part of men in their relations toward the opposite sex, and for more courtesy on the part of both men and women toward each other.

Airlines Benefit

If the rail strike takes place as planned (and it appears that this will be the case on Friday unless a settlement is reached in the meantime) the airlines stand to make further substantial gains.

We say "further gains," because Air Canada and, to a lesser extent, Canadian Pacific, reaped a huge harvest in revenue during the machinists' strike which grounded five airlines in the United States for a period of some weeks.

With the boost in airline travel which these walkouts present, it would be a salutary gesture toward the travelling public if the airlines would offer fare reductions at this time. They could probably well afford to do so.

"We are now making a brief stop, 'way to heck-an'-gone between Moose Jaw and Whittle Creek — er, does anyone NOT want to sign our petition for higher wages . . .?"

To Your Good Health

Attempting to Reduce Leaves Her Listless

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: I have always had a weight problem and am now past 50 years of age. I have been trying to cut down on food but find myself hungry and with no energy. I sleep morning, noon and night.

Medication doesn't seem to help reduce my appetite any more, and at times I find my hands shaking so badly, especially late in the afternoon, that I have to eat something to steady them. Being something badly, definitely. What do you make of all this?—Mrs. E.M.S.

I'd like to examine you, ask some questions about what you eat, find out just how much you weigh, and make certain tests before trying to answer.

But since I can't, I wish you'd think seriously of having your own doctor do that. Weight as I've often said, is a matter of eating more than you use up, but at that point reducing often does being simple, it can be extremely complicated at times.

You may have a metabolic problem, particularly an underactive thyroid which can cause sleepiness and listlessness. A metabolism test is one way of finding that out.

A diet inadequate in protein can also be a factor, which is why I would want to know what you eat. (More usually later about hypoglycemia, too.).

Or for a quite different answer, the whole thing could be psychological. It happens to a lot of people. They are used to eating. Food satisfies emotional needs. Limiting food upsets them emotionally until they learn how to change their outlook on life and dinner plates.

Your shaking hands might be related to the medicines you take to curb your appetite. It is not an unusual reaction. Some folks don't tolerate these drugs well, because of nervousness. Yet another possibility exists: episodes of low blood sugar, or hypoglycemia, which can occur during periods of anxiety, nervousness or weakness - and sweating. Emphasis on protein foods, which relieve their nervousness, is another way to help control slowly, in preference to starches, which do so rapidly, often smooths out these ups and downs in the amount of sugar in the blood and prevents the trouble.

And we cannot ignore the possibility that nervousness is causing the abnormal sleepiness. There are also other possibilities which only your physician can detect.

Thus when you encounter such difficulties in reducing, the wise course is to consult your doctor. Reducing just isn't always simple!

Dear Dr. Molner: I am 18 and concerned about a graduation by developing protrusion or overgrowth of the back region and vertebral columns. It is painful occasionally, and prevents me from wearing some types of clothes.

Would excessive bending when doing homework cause this? Could an orthopedist operate to straighten this deformity? What can I do to help myself? — Miss M. T. P.

Slumping (whether while doing homework or anything else) can contribute to this sort of thing, but your description makes yours sound like something more than that.

You should have an orthopedist diagnose the trouble, and without delay. The longest a spinal curvature remains uncorrected, the harder it is to treat, and in time can be beyond correction. Don't wait.

Note to "Knee-Knocker": At 16 your bone structure is pretty well fixed, and neither medicine nor exercises can alter your plight. The only possibility is surgery, but this is costly and time consuming, so you and an orthopedic surgeon would have to decide whether it would be worth the price.

Firearms Menace in U.S.

Christian Science Monitor

Minor individual pleasures must often be sacrificed for the major common good. The mere individual use of firearms to do this willingly and understandingly. The less mature frequently resist it. Yet such commonplace is often inevitable if the higher good is to be won.

So it is in the matter of the disgracefully loose control exercised (when it is exercised) over the sale, possession and use of firearms in the United States. We do not know how many more tragedies will be needed before the American people and the national Congress will be the stark necessity of ending the almost indiscriminate traffic in such instruments of death. We should have thought that President Kennedy's assassination in Dallas would not have made necessary the subsequent murder of 15 innocent passers-by in Austin to drive home this lesson. We wish that we were sure that this lesson had now been learned.

But, unhappily, we cannot be. Hardly had President Johnson issued his strongly worded appeal for enactment of gun control legislation now stalled in Congress than the same old opposition began to be heard. We are being told that such legislation would violate the Bill of Rights, that it deprives the innocent of pleasure to control the guilty, that it has had for basis reasons, and even that it weakens the nation militarily. Nor do these arise in the ways of Congress hold out strong hope for an early passage of the legislation.

Frankly, we do not believe that any of these arguments have validity. Article 2 of Bill of Rights was tied to the necessity for a "well-regulated militia." That militia in the time, and what was needful in 1791 can be far cry from what is right in 1966. Since the proposed legislation does not end the right of private citizens to own arms under reasonably controlled conditions, it can hardly be said to harm the innocent.

We urge Congress, and we urge the American people to demand Congress, to pass at an early date laws designed to effect strict control over the sale, ownership and use of firearms. The harm caused by their careless, thoughtless, indiscriminate sale, ownership and use is infinitely outweighs' all other considerations so as to make it incompatible for Congress not to act.

Weeds Show Ugly Face

Brockville Recorder and Times

We notice with interest that nearly every community of any size in Ontario is this summer complaining about the neglect of their parks, especially the growth of weeds. In Ottawa this week there were complaints that the outdoor summer concerts in the parks are "music in the weeds" events. The same could be said about Brockville and does other communities.

We wonder why it happens this way. This year it's weeds. Last year it was something else. All communities had in common. Next year it will be something else again. Is this what they conceive at these convensions which all the municipal legislators and officials attend? Do they decide what they are going to neglect as a body? Or is it just a coincidence brought on by a common lack of finances?

Immigrants From France

Windsor Star

Often in the past have Canadian governments professed hear yearning for the arrival of more French immigrants to these shores. And never have the arrivals matched the lovely proclaimed wishes of the multitudes. Now Immigration Minister Jean Marchand is determined to succeed where others have failed, or rather have fallen somewhat short of success. He intends to lure many more French nationals, particularly those with technical skills.

Mr. Marchand is aware that it is not nearly so easy as it sounds. In general, the French do not like to leave their country and take up permanent residence elsewhere. Patriotism has a special meaning in France that it does not have here, for as an emotion, anywhere else in the world.

President de Gaulle is a symbol of this emotion. The French have never looked kindly on emotions advertising the emigrants. In a way it has seemed like a minor form of encouragement to desertion. It would look more so if Canada sought to tempt skilled workers.

There are other and equally powerful reasons for the French-man to stay at home. While love of his country is possible, deep and enduring the government is extraordinarily generous in cash allowances to those who increase the population. One example of this generosity will suffice: A bride receives a special allowance of $4.50 a month from the day of her marriage. If she has a baby within two years the allowance is doubled; if she does not, it is cancelled.

France is proud of the fact that its population is "young". It is no longer what Hitler so contemptuously called it, "biologically effete". At the same time, it is difficult to persuade Frenchmen to come over to Canada in great numbers because most of them know little about the country, and what they do know does not include inviting examples to encourage them to leave La Belle France.

Fire Threat to Timber

Oshawa Times

Every year thousands of dollars worth of valuable timber is destroyed by fire. Sometimes as many times these fires result from natural causes but more often they stem from the carelessness of persons not impressed by the danger inherent in dry summer weather.

Cigarettes, matches and campfires are the prime factors in the cause of forest fires. A cigarette or match landing in a pile of dry grass, leaves or dry needles will soon burst into flame which spreads at an alarming rate in unsecured forest. Likewise, campfires which are not laid on a wide patch of clearing of ground or which are not properly extinguished after use, will quickly cause the dreaded forest outbreak.

Cigarettes should be extinguished in water or crushed into the earth. Similar precautions are required with matches which, should, in addition, be destroyed by fire. Campfires should be drowned with buckets of water and covered with earth. Campers and picknickers should also take care that they do not leave broken bottles in recreation areas. Sunlight concentrated by broken glass can start forest fires.

Above all, holidayers should be bored forest fire warning signs dotting the highways, parks and recreation areas. They indicate the forest fire danger, whether it is small or extreme. This way holidayers are briefed on periods of special danger.

If such precautions are respected, the fire danger in forests can be greatly reduced. The lives of birds and other wildlife as well as the valuable timberstands property can be saved from the ravages of flames.

Melodrama and All That

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

"In your discussions of the psychology of murder," asks one, "you often refer to certain plays as 'melodramas,' in a disparaging way. Surely murder makes a play a melodrama, and why is it inferior to a 'good' play?"

A fair question, which deserves a full answer, and I refer to it because I have just seen Bernard Shaw's long and brilliant preface of his play, "Saint Joan."

In one admirably brief statement, Shaw explains why there is no "real" life in a play; and, in so doing, he points up the difference between a work that we call a melodrama — a difference which still eludes many theatre-goers.

"It is what men do at their best, with good intentions," he says, "that makes tragedies. Men and women find they must and will do in spite of their intentions. That is the crux, and the only one."

A melodrama depends upon heroes and villains, and essentially ships with the history of the former over the latter. A serious play concerns itself with how decent people who are trying to do their best, with the best of intentions, are forced into mistakes, into their worst, against their better judgement.

This may seem elementary, but it is surprising how few persons can distinguish between a genuinely tragic play and its exciting counterfeit.

"Saint Joan," Shaw continues, "had not been burnt by normally innocent people in the course of their ordinary business, for their hands would have no more significance than the Tokyo bombers which in turn are a great many maidens. The tragedy of such murders as here is that they are committed by the murderers: they are judicial murders, pious murders."

The point, however, is no pity for the villain, only sympathy for the fool. In a serious play, the hero is often his own villain — it is a flaw in his character, or in his reasoning, that brings him to doom.

In a melodrama, the villain is responsible for all the vicious play, the villain is driven by ignorance, or expedience, or bad motives to commit terrible acts. He is, in short, pretty much like the rest of us.

Saint Joan was tortured and condemned by good men who thought they were acting for this reason, among others, plays are still being written about her and to explain why her prosecutors as deep-eyed villains would be to cheapen tragedy and to misread the drama of human will to the squalid notations on a police sergeant's blotter.

Today in History

By THE CANADIAN PRESS
Aug. 24, 1966 . . .

American inventor Thomas A. Edison applied for a patent for his kinetoscope, a picture camera 75 years ago today—Aug. 24—and the age of the movies began. Although earlier versions of his kinetoscope had been developed in Europe and America in the 19th century, Edison's research for a better model in 1887. He soon built a camera which used a new type of photograph film produced by George Eastman. Although the first models lacked projection and lasted only 38 seconds, several features of them are still standard today. After it was patented, Edison's invention stood idle in his laboratory until its first public appearance at a kinetoscope parlor on Broadway, New York City, in 1894—the beginning of the motion picture. Edison's invention served to bring genuine action into the graphic arts.

1870 — Wolseley's expedition reached Winnipeg bringing an end to the Red River Rebellion.

1921 — The British airship R-38 broke apart near Hull, Yorkshire, killing 62.

Children (And Adults) In Trouble

Richard J. Needham in the Globe and Mail

George von Hilsheimer is an American educational reformer. In that valuable little weekly, Manas, Mr. von Hilsheimer has some interesting observations about children in trouble. Perhaps teachers, parents and social workers would like to reflect upon them:

"Most children in trouble think that they are bad. Most children in trouble don't like themselves or anyone else. Most children in trouble are bored and do not see anything to do; they don't know how to do much anyway. Most children in trouble think they cannot change, and most adults they know agree with them. Most children in trouble get no sanction from adults only by being in trouble. Most children in trouble get no rewards for doing and saying nice things; their friends often punish them for staying out of trouble. Most children in trouble do not know many adults. Most children in trouble are not with adults alone. Most children in trouble have never seen a happy adult. Most children in trouble do not understand the work done by the adults whom they know; in fact, many of the adults they know don't respect their own work at all. Most children in trouble do not know any adults who behave in the same way toward them most of the time. Most children in trouble think all adults are inconsistent and untrustworthy, and most adults they know in fact are."

The sentence which strikes me most is the one, "Most children in trouble have never seen a happy adult." I think it's true, and I strengthen my personal belief that the basic problem in our whole society is simply the desperate unhappiness, the lack of gaiety and warmth and (in its broadest sense) love.

Most children in trouble or out of it, in the city or in the suburbs. How many adults does a child see who are happy in the way that they are doing what they do? How much love or trust does he ever see expressed among them? Aren't most adults permanent denizens of Gloomsville, Whinesville, Hatesville, Fearsville? Isn't the youth "problem" simply a gut reflection of the real, the utterly awful, grown-up one?

The industrial index, an indication of key stock movements, climbed .54 to 149.00. It had been as low as 148.07 Tuesday. Its lowest level since April 8, 1964.

Moore Corp. paced the advance, rising 1¼ to 78. Du Pont was up ¼ to 39. Alcan ¼ to 31¼ and Bell Telephone ¼ to 49½.

Royal Bank and Imperial-Commerce each fell ¼ to lows of 67 and 36½. Harding Carpets A slid 1¼ to 27½.

Cominco and Denison advanced ¼ each to 36 and 33½ in a higher base metal group. Craigmont rose ¼ to 12½ after the company announced higher nine-month earnings.

United Keno lost 70 cents to 6.95 after a one-month net loss of $120,000 compared with a profit of $278,000 last year.

On index, golds were up .53 to 173.14, base metals .70 to 85.06, western oils .20 to 90.76 and the TSE .35 to 142.10. Volume at 11 a.m. was 498,000 shares compared with 708,000 at the same time Tuesday.

The industrial index closed down .36 to 148.46. It had been as low as 148.07 at noon, lowest since April 8, 1964, and recovered to 148.29 before slicing back at the close.

A total of 121 issues fell to 1998 lows. Decliners outnumbered gains 329 to 118 with 217 issues unchanged.

Although volume was higher than Monday's turnover brokers say there appears to be no panic selling. Only 2,500,000 shares changed hands compared with 2,407,000 Monday.

Among industrials that toppled to lows were General Motors off ¼ to 77¼, Avco ¾ to 20½, Bank of Nova Scotia ¼ to 65 and Royal Bank ¼ to 67¼.

Bell Telephone gained ¼ to 49¾, Ford of Canada 2¼ to 140½ and Stelco ¼ to 22¾ despite a rejection by steelworkers of the company's latest contract offer.

The western oil index dropped .71 to a low of 99.35. Scurry Rainbow slid 2¼ to 24¼ and Pacific Petroleum ¼ to 9½.

In base metals Cominco retreated ¼ to a low of 35¼ while Noranda gained ¼ to 48 and Inco ¼ to 83½.

Campbell Red Lake was down 3 to 25 in golds.

On index, golds were off 1.45 to 174.39, base metals .83 to 87.38 and the TSE .42 to 141.52.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK

TORONTO (CP) — Trading was active with choice hands weight dry-fed slaughter cattle selling on a broad demand at strong prices at the Ontario public stockyards today. Other grades of steers and heifers were actively steady.

Cow prices were strong and veal calf prices were also good for choice milky lambs with lower grades and runners selling steady. Hogs were steady and lambs stronger to higher.

Replacement cattle 200: Good light steers $0.25-27.25; good steer stock calves sold up to 28.00; medisums and common 20-26.

Calves 165: Choice vealers 32-37 with sales to 38; good 28-32; medisums 24-27; commons 20-24; boners 17-20.

Two Charged With Arson Remanded for Observation

Will Interview 11 Applicants For Position

FRANKFORD — Announcement of the appointment of Frankford's new Chief Constable may come tomorrow, following today's interviews of 11 applicants for the position. The applicants will be interviewed at the community hall by the Frankford Village Council and Ontario Police Commission Inspector F. J. Taylor, former Chief of Police at Trenton.

Those applicants coming in longest distance for the meeting today will be interviewed first. Applications have been received from the Bay of Quinte area and as far away as Toronto. All applications were forwarded to the Ontario Police Commission for review before the interviews were scheduled.

Reeve Ray Morris said this morning: "The interviews will be conducted in closed meeting."

Frankford is seeking a replacement for Chief William Hockley whose resignation takes effect the end of this month.

NEED CO-OPERATION

REGINA (CP) — Canadian poultry producers must take some kind of co-operative action if they want to prevent a few private marketing organizations from controlling a major share of the market, Frank Payne of Ottawa said Tuesday. The chief of markets and merchandising, poultry division, federal agriculture department, was speaking at the annual meeting of the Canadian Hatchery Federation.

PICTON (Staff) — Clayson Richard Allen, 19, appeared in Picton magistrate's court this morning charged with three counts of arson by the Picton Town Police and one count of arson by the Picton Detachment, O.P.P.

Magistrate T. Y. Wills sent Allen for observation to the Ontario Hospital, Kingston, for an indefinite period. The accused had previously been remanded for a week during which he was examined by two doctors. Constable Williams Chard testified that Allen had been subject to violent headaches and at times would deny statements he had previously made.

Appearing on one charge of arson was Ronald George Latone, 20. Magistrate Wills remanded him for one week and had him sent to the Ontario Hospital, Kingston for observation. He will re-appear next Wednesday.

When asked by the magistrate if they had any objections to mental examinations both accused replied "No".

Want Ad False, Guilty Party Can Be Charged

The Intelligencer apologizes for an advertisement in last night's paper listing an address and phone number at which certain items were available for sale, namely, a Steinway Piano, an Electrohome Stereo and an outboard motor with a 17-foot fibreglass runabout.

The went ad was taken in good faith by The Intelligencer, but was by the unknown party giving the false information.

Persons running false "ads" can be prosecuted by the police on a charge of public mischief.

Family Counselling Service Here Explained to Kiwanis

Vincent Castellano, director of the Family Counselling Service of Belleville and Hastings County, explained to members of the Belleville Kiwanis Club yesterday how the service came into being locally, and what it is accomplishing. Family counselling has been available in the city and parts of the county since September, 1960. It came about as the result of a survey carried out after the Ontario Welfare Council had recommended the establishment of a service here.

Mr. Castellano credited the city, the Children's Aid Society and the United Appeal with supporting the effort that made the service a reality. In the director's opinion, the large number of interviews since the start, about one per week, bears out the need for such counselling. And now there is a need for expansion of the services.

In the beginning, it was decided that there was an immediate need for counselling in the areas of marital problems, those problems existing between parents and their children, and the problems of the individual. Expansion will allow counselling in a wider field.

While most of the interviews — 85 per cent of them — dealing with marital problems — are conducted in the office at the Children's Aid Society Building on West Bridge Street, sometimes counsellors will visit the homes of clients in special circumstances. Fifty per cent of the clients arrange for the interview on their own. The other half are referred to the Counselling Service by others.

ALCOHOLISM TOP PROBLEM

According to Mr. Castellano, alcoholism is the most serious problem the counselling has to deal with, since it has medical, legal, social and economic complications.

Intervention is the main concern of the counsellor and as the service becomes more well known and accepted, Mr. Castellano feels people with problems will come for help earlier. Clients may terminate the services any time they wish to do so.

"We don't tell them how to run their lives or their families," said the speaker, "We show them how to solve their problems."

At present .76 per cent of the clients are from the city. The other 26 per cent come from the country as far north as Madoc. Next year, the Town of Trenton will be included in the area served by the local counsellors.

A question and answer period followed.

A Kiwanian asked: "You say there should be concern about the problem of alcoholism and that this problem should be followed. What form of attack do you suggest?"

Mr. Castellano: "There is no one answer. All the people concerned should meet to consider the problem and then figure out an attack."

Question: "How does one go about getting your help if a person who is in need of counselling?"

Answer: "This is a great obstacle for us. The person must be motivated to get help. Sometimes just going makes them wait until it is too late. If you know of a neighbor who needs help, you must use tact when suggesting that he come to us."

Her Brother Made Tape Of Confessions Session

DEAR ANN LANDERS: We are seven teen-age girls who did a real dumb thing and now we need some advice — and fast.

Last night we were discussing sex and decided to make it a frank "tell-all" session. Well, all of us talked freely. I'm sure some of the girls told more than actually happened because they didn't want to look like goody-goodies. I am one who made up some things. I'm considered sophisticated and I didn't want to let them down.

ANN LANDERS

After about an hour of "true" confessions my brother walked in with his tape recorder. He wants $25 within three weeks for each one of us or he plays the tapes for his friends and various parents.

It would be worth $25 to me to be free of the worry. I would die if my stories got out. The other girls feel as I do. Rush your advice, please. — TALKED TOO MUCH.

DEAR TALKED: People who stand still for blackmail are never free. If your brother would pull such a stunt, he could also make reproductions of the tape, take the money and blackmail you again with the reproductions in three months.

Tell him "no sale" and to go ahead and play the tapes on the Voice of America if he can swing it.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: A man sold my husband two cemetery plots complete with a marker for our name. The salesman told my husband he could get a special rate on some fancy stone cut work if my husband wanted our names put on now. Over my objections my husband told the man to go ahead.

We now own two cemetery lots and a double headstone with our names on it. I hate the idea that our graves are waiting for us. Instead of the "peace of mind" which the salesman promised, it is making me sick. What do you suggest — NOT READY YET.

DEAR NO TREADY: I checked around, hoping I could tell you it is illegal to engrave the names of living people on headstones. Sorry but it's not against the law.

It is creepy, however, and I do hope your husband will agree to remove the headstone and keep it in somebody's garage or tool shed.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My husband had had some severe emotional problems for a long time. Recently his physician suggested psychiatric help. I am happy to say that he took the advice and is now in therapy.

My husband is self-conscious about seeing a psychiatrist and has not told anyone. I have been told a number of times in a couple of weeks ago. His mother came to visit us and I mentioned it to her, in the strictest of confidence. She promised not to let on that she knew.

This morning we received a letter from her, our first since she returned home. This first part of the letter was very pleasant. Then she wrote: "Are you still going to a psychiatrist, don't I don't think you need one. Why don't you just snap out of it!"

My husband is furious with me. It appears that my mother-in-law is (a) not on my side and (b) is looking to make trouble. Comment please. — A.A.W.

DEAR A.A.W.: You may be right about (a) and (b) and now may I add (c)? That loose lip of yours is what started all the trouble. I hope you've learned your lesson.

"Come on in and join us for supper, fellows!"

Russian Air Hostesses Rival Western Sisters

MOSCOW (Reuters) — Russian air hostesses today rival their Western sisters in everything—charm, good looks, poise and posture.

Things have changed since the austere days of Stalin when the hostess on a Soviet airliner was likely to have a sturdy matronly figure and a stern look which discouraged small talk from the gregarious male passengers.

Today scene of Russia's prettiest girls fly round the world as hostesses with Aeroflot, the state airline.

Though Aeroflot's need for hostesses becomes greater each year as it extends operations to cover most areas of the world, the standards demanded of the successful girls remain high.

Aeroflot takes only girls between 20 and 27 years of age, and all applicants must have completed at least 10 years in school.

To get onto the busy competitive foreign routes a girl has to have completed at least a diploma course at a foreign-language institute.

The graduates have to be outstanding to go straight into foreign skies. Normally they have to prove themselves in a two-in three-year trial period on internal Soviet routes.

Once accepted for training, the girl has to assimilate in a short time a whole range of new subjects, from flight theory to first-aid.

The training program also includes study of how the aircraft is built and how it works, how it is flown and controlled by the pilot, meteorology, the geography of world airlines and how to entertain small children.

NEED TWO MARRIAGES

CHATHAM, Ont. (CP)—You may have to marry again before you bring your Asian bride to Canada. Karma Vir Singh Sangwan, 26, formerly of New Delhi, found Canadian regulations did not recognize the Indian family ceremony so the Sangwans had to go through a second marriage before a judge.

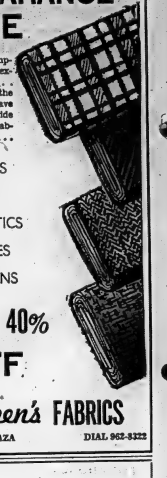
New Home Recipe Reducing Plan

It's simple how quickly one may lose pounds of unsightly fat right in your own home. Make this home recipe yourself. It's easy, no trouble at all and costs little. Just go to your drug store and ask for four ounces of Narah Concentrate. Pour this into a pint bottle and add enough grapefruit juice to fill the bottle. Take two tablespoons full a day as needed and follow the Narah Plan.



If your first purchase does not show you a simple easy way to lose bulky fat and help regain slender, more graceful curves; if ruthless pounds and inches of excess fat don't disappear from neck, chin, arms, abdomen, hips, calves and ankles just return the empty bottle for your money back. Follow this easy way endorsed by many who have tried this plan and help bring back alluring curves and graceful slenderness. Note how quickly blood disappears—how much better you feel. More alive, youthful appearing and active.

Patients Kept Isolated From Each Other

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — For mothers who worry about their children catching something in the pediatrician's waiting room, three Atlanta doctors have a unique solution.

It's a motel - like, drive-in clinic, with built-in privacy—and it keeps patients isolated from each other.

All mom has to do is drive in with her child, park in front of a vacant diagnosis room and enter. Inside, she locks the door, and flicks a switch to notify the doctor of her arrival.

"We've found this cuts the problem of cross-infection in waiting rooms," said Dr. Robert Garner, one of three pediatricians who built the clinic.

"In our old offices, we saw cases at least once a week of a well child's catching measles or mumps from another child in the waiting room," Garner said in an interview.

"This has been cut drastically," said Dr. Olin Shivers, another of the pediatricians. "In fact, I don't remember a case that's been caught in our new building."

All rooms are connected with an intercom system.

WEDDING

SISSON — BERTRAND

MARMORA — Joanne Marie, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Pat Bertrand, R.R. 1 Marmora and Percy Brent Sisson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Brent Sisson of Eagle Lake, were united in marriage by Rev. F. J. Spence in Sacred Heart Church, Marmora, on August 20, 1966. Mrs. Richard Hamilton and her three daughters of Toronto were three selections, accompanied by Mrs. Hugh Brady at the organ.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore an Empire style gown of white crepe with a front panel of nylon medallions and a detachable shoulder train. Her shoulder length veil of embroidered tulle was held with a jewel crown and she carried a cascade bouquet of pale yellow roses and stephanotis tilting from a single white orchid on a prayer book.

Miss Jill Hubbard of Toronto was maid of honor and the bridesmaids were the bride's two sisters, Gail and Jill Bertrand of Marmora. The bride's cousin, Linda Ann Sweet, was flower girl. The attendants were teal blue crepe gowns with velvet ribbons falling from the Empire style waistline, white straw picture hats and they carried accessory of pink and baskets of yellow roses and white Shasta mums.

George Kedzie attended the bridegroom and the ushers were Larry Bertrand, brother of the bride, and Douglas Cunningham. The bride's cousin, Frankie Sweet, was ring-bearer.

At the reception at Havelock Hotel, the brides mother received the guests, wearing a light blue floral sparkle organza dress, black accessories and a corsage of bleu tinted mums and white chrysanthemums. She was assisted by Mrs. Sisson, who wore a turquoise blue crepe dress with lace jacket, matching accessories and a corsage of white mums and stephanotis.

For their wedding trip to the Eastern States, the bride chose a navy bleu crepe jacket dress with lace bodice, navy accessories and a white orchid corsage.

On their return, Mr. and Mrs. Sisson will live at 345 Lakeshore Road, Port Credit.

Checks File For Phoney Documents

OTTAWA (CP)—Mrs. Bernice Lovett has $50,000 worth of cheques to riffle through every Monday to Friday. But none of them is any good.

Mrs. Lovett, an attractive brown-eyed blonde, is an assistant examiner in the fraudulent cheque section at RCMP headquarters. On file there are thousands of phoney documents written by known offenders.

She classifies handwriting, but for identification purposes, not character analysis.

"Personally I don't think anybody can tell what you're like from your handwriting. Some criminals seem to write a lot like me."

She began working for the force in 1952 as a clerk and later on the staff magazine. About five years ago she was asked to join as a civilian member.

A six-month course trained her for her present job, after a thorough security check showed her record was spotless. She helps three uniformed members in their efforts to call fraud artists across the country. The section staff includes five civilian members, of whom three are women.

Working there has given Mrs. Lovett a phobia about cheques. "I get awfully mad when I go into stores and see how easily they cash cheques. They don't have to operate this way. I wouldn't give a customer anything unless he paid cash."

63RD ANNIVERSARY will be observed Saturday by Mr. and Mrs. Sylvanus Mitts of Fuller, seen above as they appeared on their 50th wedding anniversary.

Fuller Couple to Mark Their 63rd Anniversary

A quiet party with "just the neighbors in" will mark the 63rd wedding anniversary for Mr. and Mrs. Sylvanus Mitts of Fuller on Saturday.

The couple still enjoy good health despite their age with Mrs. Mitts doing her own housework, and her husband keeping active about his garden and helping with the farm chores.

Mr. Mitts is 93 while his wife is 86.

A native of the Fuller-Crookston area, Huntingdon Township, Mr. Mitts during his 93 years has worked as a lumberman and river driver, a stone cutter and a farmer. Mrs. Mitts, the former Eliza McCrughen, was born at Stirling.

The couple live in one side of the divided farmhouse at the homestead where their only son, Gordon Mitts, and his wife, now operate the family farm.

Hit by Train Girl Learns To Walk Again

CALGARY (CP) — Blonde Judy Deschamps, 18, thinks it's time she learned to live.

"I've been dead long enough," says Miss Deschamps. "It's hard to learn living after you've been hit by a train."

Brown-eyed Miss Deschamps says she's on her way now as she can walk again, often without crutches. "And they say I'm through with hospitals."

Four years ago she was struck by a train while riding on horseback across a railway bridge to join a parade. Her horse was killed and she plunged 35 feet to the road below, suffering serious head injuries.

She came out of a coma after 39 days—but she couldn't speak and had no control of her arms or legs. Since then, after nearly a dozen operations, she has learned how to talk and walk.

U.C.W. Meetings

SCOTT'S U.C.W.

6TH SIDNEY — Mrs. Cameron Sine welcomed the ladies of Scott's United Church Women to her home for their August meeting.

Mrs. A. Sine opened the meeting with a reading. For Bible study she had a quiz on "Women of the Bible."

Mrs. M. Dafoe had charge of the program on Leadership. She said "We are prompted wisdom and direction if we have the following qualities: Intelligence, seeing things out. Integrity, courage, selfless dedication, fortitude, humility, kindness, honesty, patience and ability to inspire."

Plans were made to cater for a wedding anniversary.

Successful Living

Living With In-laws Proves Hard on Nerves

DORIS GLANZ

DEAR DORIS — For six years we have lived on a farm with my husband's parents. We have no life here, as I have been told many times by his Mom that her son is too good for me and if I wanted to leave I could.

I try to get along with her as best I can, but I find it is working on my nerves. One minute they are kind to the children, then they talk so cruel that it has turned the children to speak back.

My husband says he will move us, but I know they will try to stop him. I won't break up my family for them or anyone — JITTERY.

DEAR JITTERY — Mom is used to running things; like many another older person, she is sure she knows best. Put a deadline on the date for moving; and take an active part in finding the home you need. Be just as determined as you sound in that last line of your letter.

It rankles—that she says her son is too good for you, doesn't it? Part of the trouble is that you left school very young. Yet you have a good mind. Nowadays you can upgrade yourself (and impress her) with the help of some home lessons or night classes. How about that?

CONFIDENTIAL TO ANXIOUS — Perish any thought that you are homosexual. At 12, both girls and boys are curious about sex, and may later be ashamed of their own ailing into what seems forbidden exploration.

It is normal for women to show affection to other women they care about. We need the "touch of a hand"; not necessarily belonging to a person of the opposite sex. You are happily married; what more evidences do you want?

Susanna's Family Fair

TRAINS ARE FOR PICNICS

Dear Susanna: On a long day's train excursion into the country with our family (6 of us) the type of food we took along to supplement what the train had to offer, tasted like mama from heaven.

It was two loaves of buttered fruit bread and a large basket of mixed fresh fruit and small, firm tomatoes.

Taking along six good sized hand towels wasn't a bad idea either! Each one of had our own to spread out over our clothes when we were nibbling, and from the ghastly condition of these oversized napkins when we got home I can well imagine what we would have looked like without them! — The Group

CALL OF THE WILD

Hi Suzy: If you have used good cooking utensils for camping and have had them blackened by soot, you will like this idea. Coat them lightly with lard, then fill a dish pan with hot water and suds and see how easily it all washes off!

Are you still with me out there on the trail? Here's another one for you.

Bringing Up Baby

HINTS COLLECTED BY MRS. DAN GERBER, MOTHER OF 5

When your baby began to crawl he may reach a bit of the playpen but there will still be times when you'll want baby to stay put. Here is how to keep some school happy after he's had a taste of freedom! These tips may be helpful:

• Time element. If you reserve playtimes for baby's most contented times, he probably won't resent it.

• Toy trickery. A few different toys for each session help keep baby's interest. Remember, an interesting place to come home to. A covered saucepan with a Gerber Teething Biscuit inside adds a nice surprise.

• Position counts. By placing the pen where baby can watch your comings and goings, he won't feel neglected.

• Heart of the matter. A baby with crawl privileges needs protein to help develop those muscles he's using more and more. Gerber Strained Meats are excellent sources of protein in the smoothest form that ever simmered on a baby's stove. Made from government-inspected cuts they're low in fat for easy digestibility.... great on iron-rest flavours for ready acceptance. Like all Gerber Baby Foods, they're now in glass jars with re-closable Twist-Top caps for safe refrigeration of unused portions.

• Safety measures for fussers. Crepon mats a bodies for brisk objects so be sure Help feed-for-for button, buttons, etc. Iron and toaster cords should not be left a-dangle. Floor-type fans or heaters are a hazard.

• Sassy-aids up for creepers. Inspirers are the high-chair set. Gerber Strained Egg Yolks are bright as a splash of sunshine ... have a delicate, fresh egg flavour and creamy, mashes he's using cereal-like texture that's hard to beat for downright delightful eating. As for nourishment, Gerber Egg Yolks are excellent sources of vitamin A and iron and a good source of protein. Gerber Baby Foods, Niagara Falls, Canada.

TAMALE CASSEROLE

There is method in this. Every time I give you a casserole and every time I give you a hahburg dish I receive thank you letters.

What prompted this was a conversation I had with a meat manager. Beef and pork prices were sky high and I asked what meats the shoppers were buying. He said without a moment's hesitation, "Hamburg and wieners by the ton".

The Tamale-Casserole I am about to describe is a real stretcher—serves 6 to 8 from 1½ pounds hamburg meat.

TAMALE CASSEROLE

1½ pounds ground beef or hamburg
½ cup chopped onion
½ cup chopped green pepper

WEDNESDAY
Dinner Menu

by Mary Moore

Beef Stew with Vegetables; Homemade Light Whole Wheat Bread (see Mon.); Sliced Tomatoes and Cucumbers; Plum Cobbler; Coffee.

2 cups peeled and chopped tomatoes (or one 16-oz. can tomatoes)
1 teaspoon seasoning salt
2 teaspoon chili powder (or 1 package chili seasoning mix)
1½ cups corn cut from cob (or one 14-oz. can kernel corn, drained)
¾ cup pitted quartered ripe olives (optional but recommended)
1 cup yellow cornmeal
1 teaspoon salt
2½ cups cold water

Tamale Casserole borrows an idea from Mexico. A border of cornmeal tops it similar to the mashed potato border we Northerners often use. Mary Moore gives you the recipe for this casserole which calls for popular ground beef.

1 cup grated Cheddar cheese

Brown beef in large frying pan until crumbly — about 10 minutes. Add the onion, green pepper, seasoning salt, chili powder or seasoning and tomatoes. Simmer 10 minutes. Add corn and olives and remove from heat. Tip into large ungreased casserole. We used an oblong one that measures 7½ x 12 x 2".

In a saucepan mix together the cornmeal, salt and cold water and cook stirring until thick, then simmer for 15 minutes, stirring frequently, just as you make cornmeal porridge. Spoon an even border of the cornmeal around edge of filling in casserole. Bake at 350 deg. Fahr. for 40 minutes. Remove and sprinkle all over with cheese and bake 5 minutes longer.

Notes: 1) The cornmeal border soaks up some of the savory juices and is pretty.

2) The contents of the casserole did not stick to the dish so casserole was easy to wash.

Pr. Ed. County Teachers Attend Annual Meeting

Five hundred representatives of the 25,000 member Federation of Women Teachers' Associations of Ontario gathered at the Royal York Hotel in Toronto, August 16 - 19 for the organization's 48th Annual meeting.

Attending from Prince Edward County were: Miss Mary Huff of St. Barbara's School Picton; Mrs. Sandra Hughes, of Queen Elizabeth School, Picton; Mrs. Leone Brennan, of Sophiasburgh Central; Mrs. Lily Walt of Consecon, and Mrs. Edna Welsh of Massassaga School.

Delegates heard the provincial president, Miss Margaret Grant of Toronto, review the year's activities. One highlight of the year was the distribution of $100,000 among elderly women teachers on low pensions.

Guest speakers during the meeting were Mr. Evan Glyn Lewis, a school inspector from Wales; and Professor Isabel Laird of the Department of Psychology, Queen's University, Kingston.

Management

course" toward a strike, Mr. Smith added.

Asked on CBC Newsmagazine whether the strike will go into effect Friday, both union men said it would.

Frank Hall, an executive of the Brotherhood of Railway and Steamship Clerks, appeared with Mr. Kelly on the CTV program.

SAID POINT OMITTED

Both made the point that Mr. Pickersgill's speech had not touched on one recommendation of a recent federal inquiry. This was that when technological changes are proposed, both union and management should be able to negotiate on them.

Douglas Fisher, former MP and a member of one of four conciliation boards that reported on the rail dispute, also noted that point had not been touched.

Wage demands are a key factor in the current dispute but there are also union-management differences on adoption of new techniques designed to train the work force in an effort to achieve greater flexibility.

David Lewis (NDP — York South), only politician to accept CTV's invitation to appear, said Mr. Pearson's speech seemed to have favored a ban on strikes in major industries.

He also suggested better welfare people be appointed to members for the federal government in labor disputes and plumped for a 60-day limit after conciliation failure for investigation and mediation procedures. After that, workers could strike anticipatedly.

SHOULD STATE POSITIONS

Mr. Lewis said conciliators should be given authority to demand that company and union negotiators state their positions in any dispute.

Mr. Kelly then commented: "We haven't been offered one cent an hour by the railroads."

Social Credit Leader Robert Thompson issued a statement saying Mr. Pearson had finally admitted that government will have to act on a longstanding problem had "brought the chickens home to roost."

If mediation should fail, compulsory arbitration is the only solution to the problem, his statement said.

"But the looming strike had exposed the failure of the government to deal with a situation until it becomes a crisis."

There was a need for long-range planning and a conference of responsible men in the port unions and government to work out a comprehensive policy for the industry.

gained consciousness after the kidnapping and Audrey said some of her clothes gone. She then informed an uncle who lived across the street. He called the police.

WAS STUDENT

The mother of the kidnapped child had been living in Montreal where she was an evening student in languages at Sir George Williams University.

The West German consulate in Montreal said she first applied for a Canadian passport in 1964. After receiving it she applied for a three year extension in 1959 and this was granted.

She applied for another extension in 1962, but the consulate said it was apparently made in a city other than Montreal.

One Montreal source said the woman had been an interpreter for the United Nations. The only UN agency in Montreal is the International Civil Aviation Organization.

The RCAO had no record of her employment there, but an ICAO spokesman said permanent records were not kept for persons who were part-time.

The kidnapped child was born in Ottawa and therefore is a Canadian citizen.

Original manuscript of Stephen Leacock's Sunshine Sketches of A Little Town is held by Dr. Ralph Curry, right, director of the Stephen Leacock Memorial Home in Orillia. The manuscript was purchased from Mrs. Barbara Nimmo, Leacock's niece, for $20,000, a gift by the Montreal Standard Publishing Company, publishers of Weekend Magazine. Stephen Franklin, left, represents Weekend Magazine. The Leacock Home is in the background.

'Weekend' Publishers Buy Manuscript by Leacock For Museum at Orillia

The loss of Canada's most important literary manuscript to the United States has been forestalled by its purchase in Canada for one of the largest sums ever paid in this country for such a document.

It is the original handwritten manuscript of Sunshine Sketches of A Little Town by Stephen Leacock. Written in 1912, it has been described as "the most Canadian book ever written."

The manuscript has been purchased for $20,000 from Leacock's niece, Mrs. Barbara Nimmo, of Bloomfield Hills, Mich., through a gift from the Montreal Standard Publishing Company, publishers of Weekend Magazine. The gift to buy the manuscript was made by Mr. Stephen Leacock Memorial Home on Old Brewery Bay, designated as an historic site and owned by the Town of Orillia.

The manuscript, written in ink in Leacock's strong flourishing hand, will be officially turned over to the Leacock Memorial Home in a simple ceremony today.

Weekend Magazine writer Stephen Franklin was told casually that Mrs. Nimmo, the owner of the manuscript, who had been vacationing in Orillia, was negotiating the sale of Sunshine Sketches to the University of Chicago where Leacock had earned his Ph.D.

A week later Franklin went for the gift to the Leacock Home and the purchase of the manuscript had been completed.

Although the annual Leacock Medal for Humor, won in 1965 by Weekend Magazine associate editor Greg Clark, established an obvious bond between the great Canadian humorist and magazine publishing today, it was only after negotiations had been completed and the manuscript taken from a Detroit bank vault to be brought to Orillia, that an even closer connection was learned.

Yellowed newspaper clippings in Mrs. Nimmo's possession revealed that the late Lord Atholstan, former publisher of the Montreal Star and the Montreal Standard (the forerunner of Weekend Magazine), had commissioned Stephen Leacock to "write something about Canadian life."

The result was Sunshine Sketches of a Little Town.

Pearson

with the right to strike but this must be subordinate to considerations of national security and the common good.

Mr. Pearson said a brief strike will seriously affect the livelihood and well - being of thousands while a prolonged one could be disastrous, inflicting a heavy loss of income on most Canadians, slowing exports and reducing earnings needed to pay for imports.

'PUBLIC INTEREST FIRST'

"The whole Canadian economy would be harmed and some of the damage would take a long time to repair. In the face of such a threat, it is the duty of the government to place the public interest first.

"This we intend to do. In doing it, we will be discharging a duty, not violating a right."

Country

the strike would be disastrous. He estimated that it will take 200,000 additional trucks to replace trains—pointing out that trucks now carry nine per cent of everything moved in Canada and trains 43 per cent.

He also said trucking companies will be hampered because it will be impossible to provide a great deal more storage space.

The CNR and CPR Tuesday applied embargoes on all perishable goods and livestock shipments across the country as well as on express and freight of less than carload size originating or terminating in metropolitan Toronto.

No other large centres were affected by the less-than-carload embargo and the railways will continue to accept shipments for transfer to Toronto. The Toronto embargoes were a result of a wildcat strike among some non-op workers that tied up freight yard facilities for several days. About 600 men were involved.

END WALKOUT

In Sarnia, Ont., about 400 members of the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway Transport and General Workers (CLC) ended a four-day wildcat walkout Tuesday and agreed to stay at work until the general strike date Friday.

All men were back to work in Sarnia Tuesday after a 1,400-man wildcat walkout continued Monday. More than 3,000 others were out in Montreal earlier in the week.

A total of 300 men who had been on strike since the weekend at Sydney, N.S., and London, Sarnia and Brampton, Ont., were reported back to work Tuesday. About 175 men were reported still on strike in Windsor, Chatham and Oakville, Ont.

Besides the giants—CNR and CPR—several smaller railways were also planning to stop operations Friday if the men walk out. Included are the Canadian Railway and Dominion Atlantic Railway, both in Nova Scotia.

Albert J. Frye, manager of the Toronto office of Furness Withy and Co. Ltd. said Tuesday some ocean cargo will be delivered to Toronto from Montreal because Toronto facilities are better equipped for truck movement.

An official of Canada Steamships Lines Ltd. at Port Credit, Ont., said western communities beyond the Lakehead that depend on goods brought to Fort William, Ont., by ship for fall movement will be shut out.

"We take about 4,000 tons of package freight a day to Fort William, but there aren't enough trucks to move the goods out," he said.

The post office announced Tuesday it would expand its use of air and truck services during the strike and that this would mean "minimal disruption" of the service.

However, Postmaster-General Eric Kierans in a statement that an embargo will be placed on mailing of perishable items except those prepaid for air delivery. Embargoes would also be placed on parcel post, newspapers and third-class mail.

The railways reached agreement with the unions Tuesday for maintaining all East Coast ferry services with the exception of the Saint John, N.B.-Digby, N.S., service which will be halted and the Cape Tormentine, N.B.-Borden, P.E.I., ferry, whose status during the strike was still being discussed in Ottawa early today.

Newfoundland was assured of continuation of operation by the ferry service, the William Carson and the Patrick Morris, between North Sydney, N.S., and Port aux Basques, Nfld. Coastal services will also be maintained.

Premier Alex Campbell of Prince Edward Island said Tuesday night his government is prepared to declare an emergency in the province if the strike results in cancellation of the island's ferry service.

HOTELS NOT AFFECTED

CNR and CPR hotels across the country will not be affected by the strike but all public telegraph service will cease at noon Friday if the strike takes place on schedule.

A spokesman for the railways said, however, that private wire services and the cross-country micro - wave system will be maintained as they are almost completely automatic and need only monthly checks which will be carried out by supervisory personnel if necessary.

In Montreal, L. H. Kostler, president of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce, sent a telegram to Prime Minister Pearson Tuesday night urging "decisive government intervention" in the strike situation.

Rail and union officials also agreed Tuesday to provide emergency train service during any fires or floods and for other essential services, particularly in the first few hours after the strike begins.

Actions of China Not Greatest Threat to Security of Asian People Conference Told

By RON MacDONALD

BANFF, Alta. (CP)—A McGill University professor said Tuesday that Asian people do not accept the idea that the greatest threat to their security lies in the actions of China.

Paul Lin, a Chinese-Canadian, professor of Chinese history at McGill, a Harvard graduate and a teacher in China from 1939 to 1964, addressed the Banff conference on world development.

Prof. Lin said that in the eyes of Asians, "by any yardstick of logic or circumstantial evidence, the threat to their security can only be viewed as coming from foreign powers whose military forces appear in and around a country, regardless of the present, or who install compulsor figureheads prepared to sell their countries to foreign powers."

"They cannot accept assumptions of evil Chinese intentions, as evidenced when U.S. shrapnel, napalm, gas, defoliants and canisters filled with ranse - darts rain down on an Asian land where Chinese soldiers are not even present."

Prof. Lin said the image of China as a fire - breathing dragon is incorrect.

When Prof. Lin had finished his address, William Hauser, who works in the far eastern division of the Canadian external affairs department, rose in the audience to make a personal observation.

Prof. Lin, Mr. Hauser said, had in his address replaced one over-simplified view — that of China as a fire - breathing dragon — with another similar view—that of the United States as a fire-breathing dragon.

While China might not have aggressive intentions in Asia in the sense of conventional armed attacks across national frontiers, she certainly appeared to be exporting her kind of revolution to smaller Asian countries that didn't particularly want that kind of revolution.

It might be better to talk not in terms of devil theories, but in terms of the inevitability of the borders of small nations, he added.

In reply, Prof. Lin said the point of view he had attributed to Asian people might not win wide acceptance in the West, but the view nonetheless existed and would have to be accounted for.

Furthermore, he said, non-conventional types of struggle such as guerrilla fighting were not confined to China's ideological land as well by the West.

Prof. Lin said it was likely that the United States, by insisting on characterizing China as a threat and then attempting to "contain" China, was producing more Communists in Asia than China herself could manufacture or produce.

INDONESIAN AGREES

L. N. Palar, Indonesian ambassador to Washington, agreed with Prof. Lin that Asians do not view the major threat to their security as coming from China.

Mr. Hauser had talked about the invulnerability of national boundaries, Mr. Palar said. But to Asians, the boundary separating the two Viet Nams was not a sacred boundary. Rather, it was a boundary to be eliminated, for it was a boundary tearing a nation apart.

In his address, Prof. Lin said it was not surprising that China appeared hatred for American policies.

"Every day in Viet Nam, 2-22 bombers are storming down the gauntlet at China's very doorstep."

He said that if American policymakers do not re-examine the basis on which they are combating China, the confrontation in Asia between the U.S. and China almost inevitably will extend beyond the point of no return and there will be a massive clash that will draw in other countries.

Man, Woman Found Dead In Apartment

TORONTO (CP)—The bodies of Rita Dorothy Seyelnikoff, 45, and her estranged husband Ivan, 46, were found by police in a Toronto apartment Tuesday night after neighbors reported hearing shots.

Mrs. Seyelnikoff had been shot in the head and throat with a 12-gauge shotgun.

The couple's 15-year-old son was away at the time.

Police said the woman, separated from her husband for about a month, was talking to her mother on the telephone at the time. Her last words were: "He's got a gun."

The couple had spent most of the day together.

State Charge Laid Against Georges Lemay

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP)—A state fugitive charge has been added to federal charges and an immigration hold against a man identified by the FBI as Canada's most-wanted fugitive.

Georges Lemay, 41, and his wife, Lisa, 29, were booked on the state charge Monday by James Breman, Las Vegas justice of the peace.

Lemay was being sought on charges of masterminding the 1961 looting of the Montreal branch of the Bank of Nova Scotia of stocks, bonds and cash worth an estimated $328,000 to $4,000,000.

He was arrested by FBI agents last Friday in a Western-atmosphere casino in downtown Las Vegas. His wife was apprehended at the Lemay's recently rented suburban home.

Both were being held on federal charges of unlawful flight to avoid prosecution on conspiracy to bribe. Bail was set on those charges at $100,000-each.

Bail on the state charges also was set at $100,000 each, but the immigration hold precludes the possibility of posting any bail money.

The federal charge originated in Miami where the sheriff's office has accused Lemay of buying his way out of Dade County jail for $35,000, sticking down a hose from the seventh floor and fleeing Sept. 25, 1965.

He was apprehended in Miami on the bank burglary charges after a Fort Lauderdale man reported recognizing his picture as transmitted by Early Bird satellite.

PRELIMINARY WINNER — Miss Patricia Shorey, Hastings county Dairy Princess, seen with milker at the CNE after winning preliminary contest in all-Ontario Dairy Princess competition.

Dairy Princess of Hastings in Semi-Finals

Hastings county Dairy Princess, Miss Pat Shorey of R.R 2 Stirling, competing for the all-Ontario title has won her first preliminary contest at the Canadian National Exhibition and will now go into the semi finals on August 31st.

Miss Shorey, who won her county title at a Dairy Days competition on the Belleville market square late in June, visited girls from Huron, Prince Edward, Dundas and Brant counties in the preliminary contest in Toronto.

It is the first time that a Hastings girl has gained the semi finals for the Ontario dairy princess title.

The winner of the all-Ontario title undertakes a 12-month program of public appearances in promotion of the dairy industry, and also gets a trip to the United Kingdom.

P.E.I. Premier May Take Over Island Ferry

CHARLOTTETOWN (CP) — Premier Alex B. Campbell said Tuesday night his government is prepared to declare an emergency in the province if the threatened railway strike results in cancellation of the main ferry service between P.E.I and the mainland.

Mr. Campbell said railway union officials at Borden, the Island terminal for the CNR ferry service, had turned down a proposal that would have kept at least one ferry in service during the strike.

The premier said he is seeking another meeting with union officials and if this fails his Liberal government is prepared to declare a provincial emergency under the Emergency Measures Act.

The act gives the provincial government wide powers in transportation, including the right to take over the ferry service.

Mr. Campbell said in a statement he is reluctant to enforce the powers of the act.

"But when the lifeline of our Island economy is in jeopardy and we are faced with a serious curtailment of vital services, we are left with no alternative."

CNR ferries provide the only year-round water link between the Island and the mainland.

PLANS CAMPAIGN

TORONTO (CP) — Peter Swann, 44, new director of the Royal Ontario Museum, is already planning a fund-raising campaign for a $5,000,000, seven-story addition to the museum. Mr. Swan, who resigned as curator of eastern art at Oxford University's Ashmolean Museum, begins work Monday.

Astrological Forecasts

By SYDNEY OMARR

For August 25

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Time to be aware of responsibilities. Higher-ups may require special attention. If you give full cooperation . . . you also receive. Adhere to principles of Golden Rule.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Persons, situations at faraway places may demand attention. Take time to analyze desires. Separate wishful thinking from actual needs. Realism highlighted.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Plan day for checking accounts, debts and assets. Conservative action indicated. Read between the lines. Don't accept superficial answers. All that glitters is not gold.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): Time to exchange thoughts, ideas with mate or partner. Be aware of impression you make on others. Take special care with appearance. Weigh statements, actions.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Stress harmony — especially among family members. Accent on relations with co-workers, associates. Face yourself. Avoid extremes. Utilize knowledge gained in past.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Change, travel, romantic and creative pursuits take spotlight. Be wary lest you deceive yourself. Key is to be practical. Then conditions turn in your favor.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): Plan for attending to basic duties. Enhance security. Be sure of facts, figures. Don't feel you are restricted. This is merely time for welcome change of pace.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Gain information — study reports. Short journey may be indicated. Finish tasks. Keep mind open for helpful suggestions, ideas. Understand your responsibilities . . . help.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Gain indicated through buying, selling. Be on lookout for bargains. Know where possessions are located. Have facts available. Right thinking results in profit.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): Take initiative. Highlight personal appeal, magnetism. Move and act with confidence. But be aware of subtle nuances. Older person is both sympathetic and wise.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): People are willing to help you now. But don't confuse enthusiasm for real friend a bit. sophisticated. Know difference between illusion and reality. Be analytical.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Keep in contact now with those who show interest in your welfare. Realize that some may be reticent to show true feelings. Appreciate quality of shyness.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTH DAY . . . you tend to be introspective, analytical. You are attracted to law and would make excellent attorney.

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Cycle high for Capricorn, Aquarius. Special word is love: Obtain balance between desire and what is actually good for you.

What is Red Brand Beef ?

There is a very long and detailed answer to this question, but in a nutshell, the answer is very simple. Government Inspected Red Brand Beef is the very best beef available. At Food City we are extremely fussy about our beef just as we know our customers are. That's why you will find Food City meat counters just brimming with Canada's finest red brand beef . . . and only red brand. To go one step further, our own meat buyers "personally select" the choicest beef sides for Food City. When it comes to beef, come to Food City—"Where our meat is our reputation, and we lay that reputation on the line everyday.

at Food City our meat is our reputation

Too Late To Avert Railway Strike

P.E.I. Premier Plans to Take Over Ferries

Crediteste Facing Expulsion

By RONALD LEBEL

OTTAWA (CP)—Gilles Gregoire, the enfant terrible of Parliament since 1962, appears headed for a peck of trouble when the session resumes Monday because of his acceptance last Sunday of the leadership of a Quebec separatist party.

Mr. Gregoire, as an avowed Quebec separatist, faces immediate expulsion from the party he helped found, Le Ralliement Creditiste.

More important, his right to sit in Parliament may be questioned by the Commons privileges and elections committee.

Social Credit Leader Thompson has served notice his fiveman group will move Monday that the Gregoire case be referred to the privileges committee for hearings and recommendations.

A Liberal source indicated Wednesday his party would support such a move. The Conservatives are also expected to favor a committee inquiry.

The committee would be asked to decide whether Mr. Gregoire legally can sit in the federal Parliament while advocating the secession of Quebec from Confederation.

MPs must swear allegiance to the Queen and to Canada before they can participate in Parliament's deliberations. Mr. Thompson and Howard Groll say, the Conservative MP for Brome-Missisquoi, both charged this week that Mr. Gregoire violated his oath.

The impish, 40-year-old MP for Lapointe testified that he was duly elected by his constituents, and does not need a mandate from Mr. Thompson.

Eugene Forsey of Ottawa, an authority on parliamentary tradition and research director of the Canadian Labor Congress, said many MPs in the past have been free to criticize the monarchy and other institutions.

Mr. Gregoire precipitated the CHARLOTTETOWN (CP) — Prince Edward Island, its economy and way of life closely tied to the "Borden Boats," has taken drastic steps to prevent a break in its economic lifeline—threatened by Friday's scheduled nation-wide railway strike.

The island's Liberal government, under Premier Alex B. Campbell, declared a state of emergency in the province Wednesday because of the looming threat of the rail strike.

The steps, taken under terms of the province's Emergency Measures Act, give the government wide powers to deal with effects of transportation strikes.

However, the government has declined to say in detail what it will do if the Cape Tormentine, N.B.-Borden, P.E.I. ferries are tied up.

The ferries operated by the CNR are the main transportation link between this island of 108,000 and the mainland.

A second ferry service, operated by a non-railway company, will not be involved in the strike but its vessels already are hard-pressed to meet the demands of a record tourist season.

At least 300 cars were lined up Wednesday afternoon waiting to get aboard the CNR ferries at Borden and leave the island.

Islanders were recalling the crippling effects of the 1959 general railway strike, when the ferries were tied up for six days.

STRANDED THOUSANDS

At that time, thousands were stranded and emergency facilities were pressed into service as cars and trucks lined up for miles waiting to get off the island.

Mr. Campbell, whose Liberals ousted the Progressive Conservatives in a general election earlier this year, was still optimistic Wednesday night that railway union members would listen to cautious, last-minute voices which he says is "the life-line of our economy."

The Borden boats provide the only year-round ferry service to the island and they are also the only ferries equipped to carry railway cars. Led by the powerful Alexander Gibson, they break the heavy winter and spring ice in Northumberland Strait, the main outlet for the island's agricultural products to market and bring in the bulk of the province's supplies from the mainland.

Machinery to enforce the emergency legislation was set in motion Wednesday night. A special cabinet meeting called by the premier after he was unable to get assurances of continued ferry service from railway workers, established a three-man advisory committee and placed Maxwell Henderson, Minister Keir Clark in charge of information and transportation.

Mr. Campbell said the government was prepared to take over operation of at least one ferry but he declined to outline the mechanics of such a take over. It wasn't clear whether

Railway, Unions Continue Talks on Quick Curtailment Of Looming Railway Strike

OTTAWA (CP) — A decision was expected today on whether the railways and their unions can work out a negotiated settlement of their long and bitter wage dispute before Parliament steps in to do it for them.

Labor Minister Nicholson and his chief labor relations specialist, Bernard Wilson, were set to resume work on a final conciliation effort that ground on for 12 hours Wednesday in what Mr. Wilson described as a "scattering-on process" leading to probable climax late today. All parties have agreed there is no chance of averting a countrywide railway strike set for Friday.

But there still was hope for a breakthrough in the deadlock during the weekend and a final settlement—or prospects of one —before Parliament receives legislative proposals from the government to end the strike.

Prime Minister Pearson has already warned that the government will not tolerate a protracted walkout and has prepared legislation to outlaw it.

Although the terms of the legislation will be secret until Parliament receives it, some labor leaders have said privately that their 118,000 members may defy the law unless it lays down an acceptable wage increase.

They want a 30-per-cent increase in pay rates that for most of them now average $2.22 an hour. The railways have refused to consider such a figure but have made no counter-proposals.

Government informants say the legislation won't be introduced as long as negotiations show some signs of progress toward a voluntary agreement. Parliament would proceed instead with new labor legislation designed to improve the companies' financial position.

Wednesday Mr. Nicholson and Mr. Wilson held four preliminary mediation sessions, probably for some indication of concessions by either side.

They first held a brief joint session with labor and management negotiators to lay the ground rules for the mediation effort, then swung into separate talks.

Mr. Wilson said the prime objective was to co-ordinate the various wage demands of the four negotiating groups, em-

Say Judge Landreville Treated Roughly in Report

OTTAWA (CP) — A commission report on Mr. Justice Leo Landreville's touch - lovestated deal in natural-gas company stock comes out strongly against the Ontario Supreme Court judge, according to informants.

The findings of Commissioner Ivan C. Rand in the unprecedented government inquiry into how the judge got a $117,000 windfall in the wake of a gas franchise award were described by one informant as "devastating."

The report by the retired Supreme Court of Canada justice was received Monday by Prime Minister Pearson. The cabinet was expected to decide today whether to release it promptly or hold it for tabling in Parliament which meets again Monday to deal with the rail strike.

There was no indication that the government plans any early action on the report.

It has been asked by the government body of the Law Society of Upper Canada to undertake the removal of Mr. Justice Landreville, 56, an Ottawa native who was a prominent Northern Ontario Liberal politician. This requires a resolution of both houses of Parliament and has never been done in Canada.

After the judge refuffed a cabinet approach on whether he felt like resigning to take the government off the hook, the cabinet turned the issue over to Mr. Rand, 87, for an opinion, and he completed an investigation in April.

Informants said the noted former judge used strong language in severing the way Mr. Justice Landreville came into possession of 7,500 shares of Northern Ontario Natural Gas Co. stock while on the bench in 1957,

New Peak In Air War Reported

SAIGON (AP) — U.S. planes flew a record 148 missions over North Viet Nam Wednesday, the U.S. Command announced today.

The raids included attacks on 18 oil storage depots and a raid on a 40-car freight train. Pilots said hits were made on 25 of the boxcars.

The previous high for missions was 32 earlier this month.

A spokesman said bad weather hampered some of the aerial operations and prevented a full assessment of the damage.

FIGHTING FLARES AGAIN

U.S. marines clashed again today in brisk fighting with North Vietnamese Army regulars in the southern provinces of South Viet Nam.

The U.S. military command disclosed that the marines were engaged in two new operations and so far have killed 188 of the enemy.

Fighting also erupted 20 miles north of Saigon where units of the U.S. 1st Infantry Division engaged a reinforced company of Viet Cong troops early today.

RELEASE BOOK

MOSCOW (AP)—The second volume of a new history of the Soviet Communist party was released in Moscow Wednesday. It contained no mention in its preface of Nikita Khrushchev, although originally the six-volume work was intended to stress his role in party history.

THE WEATHER

Synopsis: A new outbreak of cool air moving down from Hudson Bay will reach southern Ontario Friday and halt the warm weather spell that has evident today. Temperatures for the next several days will continue to average well below the seasonable normals.

A few showers are being reported over northern Ontario and this activity will likely continue. The advance of the cool air southwards will trigger some numerous showers in Northern Ontario this afternoon and in southern Ontario tonight and Friday.

MONTREAL (CP) — Key industries are scrambling for trucks and predicting large-scale layoffs following word from Ottawa that it is too late to avert a strike of 118,000 railway workers at noon local times Friday.

In Charlottetown, Premier Alex B. Campbell declared a state of emergency in Prince Edward Island Wednesday night because of disruption of ferry service threatened by the strike.

In Ottawa, railway and union officials were expected to decide late today whether they can work out a negotiated settlement of their wage dispute during the weekend, before the problem comes before Parliament.

Mediation efforts involving Labor Minister Nicholson and Bernard Wilson, his chief labor relations specialist, continued for 12 hours Wednesday and Mr. Wilson said the talks probably will reach a climax late today.

MAY TAKE OVER

Premier Campbell said Wednesday night he is optimistic the ferry service will be maintained without emergency steps, but the P.E.I. government has said that if necessary it will take over operation of at least one of the three CNR ferries linking Borden, P.E.I., with Cape Tormentine, N.B.

The CNR ferries, which Mr. Campbell described as "the lifeline of the island economy," provide the main transportation link with the mainland.

They offer a heavy business Wednesday as tourists in P.E.I. rushed to get off the island. By late afternoon, more than 300 vehicles were waiting at Borden to be taken to the mainland.

Asked to comment on the emergency measures taken in P.E.I., Premier Joseph Smallwood of Newfoundland said he is "not panicky" about the threatened strike.

The CNR and union officials have agreed that the Newfoundland ferries should continue operating during a walkout, but the members of the North Sydney, N.S., local of the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway, Transport and General Workers voted last Wednesday to strike if they executive and join the strike.

Mr. Smallwood said the ferry service is an link the province would not be serious unless it continued for more than a few days.

In Brandon, Man., Pool Packers Ltd. announced a temporary layoff of employees on the grounds that embargoes on perishables by the CNR and CPR "have forced the situation."

There were no reports of immediate layoffs from other areas, but spokesmen for key industries in Ontario predicted heavy layoffs if the strike continues for as long as one week.

A spokesman of consolidated on the railways said layoffs would begin as early as Monday.

Court Reform Sought

By WILLIAM N. OATES

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — Africans in the United Nations are working to remodel the International Court of Justice in The Hague so it won't rule against them again as it did in the Southwest Africa case.

The court ruled in 1966, in cases brought for the African countries generally, that Ethiopia and Liberia had no legal right to claim judgment that South Africa had violated its League of Nations mandate over South-west Africa by introducing race segregation there.

So the African group of 36 UN delegations, in the General Assembly convening Sept. 20, will ask (1) to prevent election of unsympathetic judges to five-judge panels from the present 15-judge court and (2) to enlarge the court by UN charter amendment so that Africa and Asia will have more representation on it.

The big Western powers can stop any such amendment if they do not mind antagonizing the Afro-Asian bloc now in the assembly and ratification by two-thirds of the 117 UN members including all five permanent members of the Security Council — United States, Britain, France, Nationalist China and the Soviet Union.

But nothing seems likely to keep the Africans from electing sympathetic judges to the court and having the election of unsympathetic ones.

OBJECTIVES SET

Their objectives are spelled out in a speech of the African group privately circulated this week to the Asian - African group. The report was delivered orally at a private meeting Aug. 17 by Ambassador Endrias Makonnen of Ethiopia, acting for the African group.

Adventure Praises Tiny Vessel That Took Him Across Ocean

MOBILE, Nfld. (CP) — A bearded sailor who set out alone from Falmouth, Eng., more than eight weeks ago in his 13-foot sloop made landfall at this small community Wednesday, praising the little craft which missed the target of St. John's by only 30 miles.

Geoffrey Godwin, blown 200 miles off course in a North Atlantic gale and existing without "any food at all" for five days, "left over" as soon as he stepped ashore.

"After eight weeks balancing on a small boat like that you feel as if the land is leaping up and down," he said in an interview Wednesday night.

His first luxuries were a "complete kit of new clothes," which he bought from Fenny Elastrom.

Mrs. W. Hutchings, who greeted Godwin and helped him tie up the boat, said Fenny Elastrom...

"I had a darn good wash," he said.

A severe wind that tore away one of his sails and blew the Fenny Balerina far north of her course extended to eight weeks and three days the trip he had planned to make in about five weeks.

"About 12 days ago, I was down to half a tin of cold beans a day. That went for four days. Then I had five days with literally no food at all. And I hoisted so international code flags which was answered by three mornings ago by an American freighter.

"I had water. They passed me down things like sardines, tinned milk, bread and cigarettes. I was 130 miles out of St. John's when I met this freighter." He was 400 miles off shore when his food ran out.

Chinese Teen-agers Roam City Streets With Licence to Inflict Humiliations

An AP News Analysis
By WILLIAM L. RYAN
Special Correspondent

"Dare to organize the masses," said a Chinese Communist party directive issued several weeks ago. Now the "masses" are organized and in full cry, and those who dared are becoming the masters of what begins to look like a Fascist China.

Indoctrinated teen - agers, glorying in a licence for mass cruelty, roam the streets of Chinese cities, inflicting outlandish humiliations on fearful victims who have suddenly become "enemies of the people."

Evidently the stage is being set for a climactic act in the purge the party calls "the great proletarian cultural revolution." And evidently some people in high places are about to fall. Those who have "the masses" in their hands also have the action—at least for now. They will be tough. Ominously, the theoretical journal Red Flag announced this week:

"Any person, no matter how high his position, how old his standing and how great his fame, as long as he fails to do things according to Mao Tsetung's thinking . . . should have his arrogance and vanity boycotted and a determined struggle should be waged against him until he is dismissed from his official posts."

The impression left by the speeches going on in China is that within a short time Peking will make known to the world the more important results of the purge. Whatever opposition existed to the current line of policy is being ruthlessly crushed under the mass attack of the mobs of youngsters.

What is relatively certain already is that China has a military dictator masquerading as a proletarian. Defence Minister Lin Piao, a marshal when the party took power, is wearing big boss, and the great proletarian cultural revolution seems designed to establish the fact of succession after the ailing Mao Tse-tung.

With his opponents swept into oblivion, Lin appears to be using the armed forces to pull down his enfeebled...

It will go hard with those who tried to stop the Lin charge. Their sin, nicely prefigurated, was "losing touch with the masses." The winners got to the masses first.

Rampaging teen-age students are a wild card—but they both the sanction and inspiration of

Woman Guilty Of Impairment, Loses Licence

A 24-year-old woman was fined $100, and costs on a charge of impaired driving and $10, and costs on a charge of having liquor in a place other than her residence after pleading guilty to the offences in county magistrate's court this morning.

Jeannette Larmour, of Bolton, Ontario was arrested on the Belleville O.P.P. after she was involved in a two car accident on Highway 2 near Marysville on Monday.

The investigating police officer told the court that the accused was in an intoxicated condition when he arrived on the scene, and that he found two bottles, one empty and one partially filled with an alcoholic beverage in her car.

Mrs. Larmour was also prohibited from operating a motor vehicle in Canada, for one year by Magistrate T. Y. Wills.

When the dust clears, probably a half dozen new faces will appear on the politburo, which holds total power over the nation. Prominent names will be missing and other prominent men—probably including President Liu Shao-chi—will be downgraded.

Few, pobdering the spectacle, would doubt Peking's words that the revolution "has reached a new stage." This stage appears to be one which brings China the prospect of total regimentation, total subservience to the state, total conformity — be notions of those who are in party, and, in the bargain, total isolation from the outside world.

Quinte Area Education Board Covering All Schools Proposed

All Armed Forces Will Be Included

The old R.C.A.F. division of the Belleville United Appeal has been changed to the Canadian Forces Division.

Under divisional chairman Sq'n. Bob Gibson and his assistant; S/L Terry Croteau, the new division will include not only air force personnel but rather all armed forces personnel in Belleville.

Under the command of Wing Cmdr. Stu Olsen, the division set an all-time high in last year's United Appeal. The Belleville R.C.A.F. Division had one of the best standings of any armed forces group in any United Appeal in Canada last year.

With the addition of the other armed forces groups in Belleville, the division hopes to better 1965's record-breaking performance.

Driver Guilty Of Charge, Fined $100

Joseph Gougen, 29, of 15 Harriet Street in Belleville was found guilty this morning in county magistrate's court on a charge of careless driving in connection with a level crossing accident in Stirling May 7.

Gougen, who pleaded not guilty to the charge, told the court that he was unaccustomed to driving the vehicle he was operating at the time of the accident, a 1961 European-made car. He drew his attention was centred on shifting gears when he first saw a train approaching.

A Stirling clergyman who was watching the railway crossing at the time of the accident, said that he heard the train's horn sounding and that he saw the signal flashers at the crossing in operation. He then saw Gougen's vehicle being dragged a short distance along the tracks by the diesel engine of the train before it came to a halt.

A fireman on board the westbound train, which was carrying ore to Marmora, said it appeared that the car was stopped as it approached the crossing and that the train's emergency braking system was put into operation. He said that the van was stopped before the impact with the train, which was travelling an estimated 30 miles per hour before the brakes were applied.

Extensive damage was done to the car Gougen's vehicle, and he suffered broken feet and other injuries.

Fining Gougen $100 and costs, Magistrate T. Y. Wills said "If a person makes a bad judgement in an emergency, he should not be adjudged to be careless, but if he creates that emergency there must be some negligence on his part."

ADS COST MILLIONS

The U.S. soap firm of Procter and Gamble spent $177,600,000 on advertising in 1965, the world's most free, way.

Larger areas of school administration with boards of education having jurisdiction over both elementary and secondary schools, were the topic of discussion at a well attended Quinte area educational conference held Wednesday at the Harry J. Clarke school in Belleville.

Close to 75 municipal officials, school trustees and educators met to give consideration to 1965 developments in educational organization and administration and to determine what planning may be suitable for co-operation action in the Quinte area.

Steering and fact finding committees were set up to go further into the subject and if large area of administration is eventually decided upon could mean Belleville's return to a board of education system.

Prior to the early 1950's when the present Bay of Quinte District High School Board was set up, Belleville had a board of education which looked after the both public and high school matters.

MANY ATTEND

High interest in the subject was evidenced in the presence of Mayor J. R. Ellis of Belleville, Warden Clayton Hall of Hastings County, Wm. Hubbard, old Booster of Prince Edward County, Reeve Harold Mc-Keil, Delbert Harvey, Don Armitage of the Townships of Sidney and Thurlow and the Town of Deseronto.

Trustees were present from Deseronto, Frankford, Belleville, Sidney, Thurlow, Ameliasburg and Tyendinaga, as well as the appointed trustee for the Bay of Quinte High School district.

Educators present included R. W. Frosts, Superintendent Area No. 9, Ontario Department of Education; A. Keith, Superintendent of Belleville Public Schools and Inspectors P. C. Jackson, R. J. Allore, R. J. Dunsmore, J. C. McLeod and R. H. Horwood. Carl Bateman, Area-Treasurer for Hastings County and J. L. Anderson, Administrative assistant to the Belleville Public School Board also attended.

The meeting was a part of the work set in motion by Hastings Council in the appointment of committees committees for Public and Secondary schools. Chairmen of these committees, Don Rodgers of Sidney and W. A. Shannon of Marmora authorized and joined in, the planning and organization of the meeting and supported Macdonald Smith of the Belleville Public School Board, who acted as general chairman.

Delegates to the meeting were welcomed by Mayor Ellis following which W. A. Shannon, and Don Rodgers, chairmen of finalizing county committees committees, spoke of what they and their committees, along with R. A. Dunmore as secretary, had endeavored to accomplish.

NEEDS AND DECISIONS

Superintendent R.W. Frosts representing the department of education, explained the desirability of local decisions and the need of support for an up to date educational program.

Belleville school superintendent L. A. Kells reviewed some of the changes and progress in past years and advised that when a program of improvement is undertaken it should be preceded by a period of inquiry, research and public discussion.

For immediate action the proposal was accepted to form committees in the townships and reeves with the chairmen of all of the school boards in the area to meet with discussions of mutual interest, to disseminate information, to receive advice and to lay the groundwork for development.

Superintendent L. A. Kells will act as secretary of this committee and information should be forwarded to the county consultative committees through their secretary, Inspector R. A. Dunsmore.

Sod Turned for 52-Suite Apartment Building Here

Mayor Jack Ellis at noon today turned the first sod on a half-million dollar, 52-suite apartment building to be built at the corner of Victoria Ave. and John St., where the Lazier Bros. store stood.

Beachwalk Company, Ltd., with principals Ted Schrab of Belleville and Arthur Beach of Toronto, is having the seven-storey apartment built. Architect is E. I. Richmond of Toronto. The building will contain 38 two-bedroom suites, and 14 suites will be three-bedroom apartments and eight singles.

Construction Roundup

Tribau Company, Ltd., engineers and contractors of Rossmore, has been awarded a $40,000 contract for the construction of an underground water storage reservoir at Picton. Quinte Utilities Commission is having the million gallon reservoir constructed as part of its water works system.

The company expects to begin construction on Monday, August 29. About 3,000 yards of earth will be excavated from the site in the initial stages of the project. The reservoir will be ready to receive water by the end of December.

At the Belleville General Hospital, construction of the addition to the building is progressing well. All 74 columns from the fifth to the sixth floor in the main building (Block A) have been installed. The sixth floor slab has been completed and the basement floor is installed. In the south wing (Block B), all but a small portion of the basement floor has been completed.

Clerk of works M. MacLennan reports that setting of door frames and erection of concrete block walls is under way in the basement area and on the first floor. Erection of architectural precast concrete has been started at the east end of Block A.

Roughing-in work by the mechanical trades and installation of ductwork is continuing and rough grading is being carried out on the south and west of the buildings.

At the Centennial High School on Palmer Road, workmen have the building bricked in, as work continues. Carl Lamont, construction superintendent, is hopeful that by the time the new school term begins, all class rooms will be ready for occupancy, although some finishing touches may have to be applied. Mr. Lacoque says that by school time, 500 students will be accommodated and more rooms will be opened for use as they are completed.

Charles W. Lambert, Ltd. Construction, R.R. 4, Belleville, has let November 1 as the opening date for a 12-suite apartment being constructed on Colter St. Workmen are now busy on the last floor of the building.

Two houses being built at Plaza Square by DeMille Construction, Ltd., of 401 Bridge St., E., have reached the "brick and plaster" stage. Within two months, the company expects to begin construction of a 12-suite apartment on Chatham St.

Lightfoot Construction, Ltd. of Belleville is proceeding with construction of an overpass on Highway 401, west of Wallbridge Road. And the company is building an addition to the city water purification plant's chemical section, on Sidney St. This latter work is being done

Convict Dies Of Heart Attack In Kingston

KINGSTON (CP) — Howard Mulder, 33, serving a life sentences for non-capital murder in Kingston penitentiary, died in hospital Wednesday from a heart attack.

Mulder, father of 13 children, was sentenced June 15, 1965, for the slaying of his wife in a shack near their home in Iron row, near Windsor.

After shooting his wife Mulder attempted to commit suicide, blowing away his lower jaw. He was in hospital undergoing plastic surgery when he died.

Flour Mills and Robin Hood Flour, said they would have to cut down heavily on production. An O g i l v i e spokesman said about 2,000 of its employees across the country would be laid off within a week unless there was a settlement.

Canadian Industries Ltd. said lack of rail transportation would mean heavy layoffs, especially at its plants in Brownsburg, Hamilton, Ont., and Dalhousie, N.B., which produce chlorine and caustic soda.

CAN GET BY

Major industrial concerns in Nova Scotia felt they could get by for 10 days to two weeks without running into serious difficulties. Hardest-hit industries probably would be manufacturing, mining, food processing and construction firms.

C. M. Murray, general manager of Donkilon Steel and Coal Corp., Sydney, said a prolonged strike would have a "tremendous effect" on Dosco's operations, since Dosco products intended for the domestic market are 4ld shipped by rail.

An official of Hawker Siddeley, which employs about 2,000 persons in Trenton, N.S., said the plant would be forced to stop production of railway stock if the strike is lengthy. Effects would start to be felt after about 10 days.

Clairtone Sound Corp., newest major industry in Nova Scotia's Pictou County, has switched to trucks from rail transportation in an effort to maintain production schedules.

Getting trucks at this stage may prove difficult, however. A number of trucking firms report that they are already operating at full capacity, and they don't have the trucks or the men to handle any extra work.

FACE CRISIS

Ontario fruit growers say they face a delivery crisis. An official of the f r u i t marketing board said "this week is just about our peak" for picking fruit at the best shipping maturity.

In Winnipeg, officials said Canadian grain exports could continue for perhaps two weeks past the start of a prolonged railway strike.

Two weeks without rail transportation would close Pacific elevators and have elevators at the Lakehead and Churchill, Man., "scraping the bottom of the barrel."

For the Belleville Public Utilities Commission.

Ekroan Construction of Toronto will soon begin construction of a service station in the city. The station will be built at the foot of West Bridge St. Hill, where two houses are now being demolished.

Had Not Been Wartime Buddy in Forty Years

A well-known Belleville man had a long-lost friend visiting with him the past three days. Retired optometrist Norman R. Edwards, of 8 Montgomery Blvd., hadn't seen his first world war buddy Howard Hudson, since 1936 in St. Catharines, until Monday.

"Howard and I joined up with the Motor Transport, Fourth Ammunition Sub-Column, in St. Catharines in 1916" Mr. Edwards said. "We went overseas together and came back together in August, 1919.

"It was just by coincidence that we came back together. Howard was supposed to go on another boat, but because of a strike he was transferred to my boat."

Mr. Edwards said he didn't recognize his friend when he first met him at the railway station. "He's put on a little weight since 1936."

"I didn't know Norm either," Mr. Hudson said. "I've never seen him with a beard before. I may say it looks good on him."

Mr. Edwards said that his friend's visit wasn't really a surprise. "He wrote to me and told me he was coming to Canada for a visit for three months and I wrote him right back and told him to make sure and drop in here."

Mr. Hudson left by train early this morning for Montreal. He sails from there back to England on Friday.

POST REWARD

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — The Canadian National Railways investigation department and the Windsor police department Wednesday posted a $300 reward for information leading to conviction in Sunday night's train derailment here. The diesel engine of a passenger train from Toronto left the tracks at the entrance to the Windsor station. Police suspect sabotage.

DOUGHERTY — In loving memory of a dear father and grandfather, who passed away August 25, 1964.
Memories are treasures,
Always tender, fond and true.
We keep them all for you.
We do not forget you.
—Always remembered by son Fred, daughter-in-law Ruth and granddaughter Janice.

HESSMAN — In loving memory of a dear father and grandfather, who passed away August 25, 1964.
Sweet memories linger,
Always tender, fond and true.
And the hand I cannot touch,
Holds a place in memory.
Of the one I loved so much.
—Always remembered by daughter Ruth and family.

HESSMAN — In loving memory of a dear, dear husband and daddy, who passed away August 25, 1964.
Three years since the sad day,
God took my loved one called away.
God took her home, it was His will,
But in our hearts she lingers still.
—Sadly missed by husband Jim and daughter Nora.

LICKFOLD, John — In memory of a dear father, who died August 25th, 1964.
We watched him suffer day by day,
And prayed that he might pass away.
To see him sadly drift away
Was more than we could stand.
God took him home — it was His will,
But within our hearts he liveth still.
The blow was great, the shock severe,
We miss him more than words can say.
Only those that have lost can tell,
The pain of parting without farewell.
—Always remembered by son Bud and daughter-in-law Vera.

LEVERTON — In loving memory of a dear, dear father, Percy Emma Preston Leverton, who passed away August 25, 1964.
Three years since the sad day,
God took my loved one called away.
God took her home, it was His will,
But in our hearts she lingers still.
—Sadly missed by husband Jim and daughter Nora.

LICKFOLD — In memory of a dear father, Jack Lickfold, who died August 25th, 1964.
One year has passed since that sad day,
When one we loved was called away.
God took his home — it was His will,
But within our hearts he liveth still.
The blow was great, the shock severe,
We miss him more than words can say.
Only those that have lost can tell,
The pain of parting without farewell.
—Always remembered by son Bud and daughter-in-law Vera.

200 Guests View New Walker's Store Which Opens for Business This Morn

"You just wouldn't know the place".

That was the expressed opinion of a large percentage of the approximately 200 invited guests who last evening attended the official opening of the new Walker's store in downtown Belleville.

Representing an investment of close to one million dollars, the store, formerly occupied by the T. Eaton Company Ltd., was officially opened by Mayor Jack Ellis, who said it was a "real delight and pleasure to open this beautiful store!"

This morning promptly at 9.15 saw the store grand opening bot long before the doors swung open to admit the public, hundreds of shoppers lined the sidewalk waiting to get their first glimpse of the latest addition to downtown shopping in Belleville.

The former T. Eaton store, one of several such stores in Ontario centres purchased about a year ago by Walker's, has been completely refurbished inside and out.

EXTERIOR NOT FINISHED

A finish stucco coat has still to be added, but the exterior of the store presents an entirely different picture. Front upper story windows have been closed up and an entirely new display window and front entrance have been added. The store name is spelled out in large letters across the front of the building.

Inside, the transformation is just as complete, with the entire store having been completely done over. Complete air conditioning has been added, with new lighting and new wall valances and shelving installed.

ATTEND OPENING

Attending last evening's official opening was Mr. David Woods, president of Walker's Division of Gordon Mackay and Co. Ltd., which owns the store, and other company officials.

Store manager Les Wynick "emceed" the opening ceremonies attended by members of city council, city hall officials and downtown businessmen and their wives.

An honored guest for the opening was Mrs. Annie Rose, now in her 90's, who 40 years ago worked in the original Ritchie drygoods store operated on the present site and later purchased by Eaton's.

Also attending the Belleville opening were a group of girls from Brockville, members of the Brockville Chapter of Walker's Young Adult Fashion Council. Following the opening the Brockville girls helped serve refreshments to guests.

Following the opening, guests were invited to inspect the store facilities.

WERE FORMERLY HERE

Despite their new up-to-date store, Walker's are not entirely new to Belleville. For many years the firm operated a drygoods store on Front street, but closed out its local retail outlet about a dozen years ago.

Walker Stores president, D. M. Woods told guests at last night's opening that Walker's was a fine old all-Canadian company, with a history going back more than 100 years. The new Belleville store is the 42nd company store in Ontario.

The store opening marks the opening of the fifth of a group of six stores purchased from Eaton's.

"The store opening is particularly of interest because it represents an important assessment by Eaton's and ourselves of the role which each of us can play in Canadian retailing. It is a firm demonstration of our belief in the continuing importance of downtown cities outside the metropolitan areas", Mr. Wood said.

He said that in the smaller cities the consumer will undoubtedly continue to find the most exciting shopping — and finest merchandise — and the widest comparisons in the downtown area.

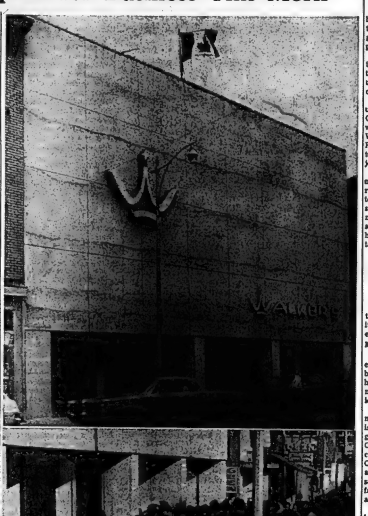
Ninety five per cent of all Walker's goods are bought in Canada, according to Mr. Woods.

The Walker's store—and the merchandise being offered are new, but there will still be a feeling of familiarity. Close to one half of the approximately 40 employees have been re-engaged from the Eaton store.

Belleville residents will remember Walker's as primarily a drygoods retail outlet, but the new store is offering a much wider range of goods.

Walker's remains as a fashion centre offering a wide range of women's, men's and children's clothing.

DEPARTMENTS ADDED



But other departments have been added, ranging all the way from cosmetics and jewellery to occasional furniture, mirrors, and luggage. Even small appliances and a paint department have been included.

On the main floor is the men's and boy's departments, cosmetics and gift suggestions, while to the rear on the mezzanine floor are toiletries and women's foundation garments.

The second floor is the fashion department for women and teens. Here the floor has been completely re - carpeted and the whole decor is suggestive of "big city" shopping.

On the third floor are draperies, fashion fabrics, occasional furniture and luggage.

The basement area has a new double entrance off the footbridge walk. Here are the paint department and a wide choice of kitchen and other small appliances.

NEW FRONT features the new Walker's store on Front Street which saw grand opening this morning. Store front (top) was not all completed in time for opening and will have a finish stucco coat applied later. Below is a picture of the crowds blocking sidewalk before the store opened for business.

Fire Destroys Madoc House; Probe Cause

The Ontario Fire Marshal's office in Belleville may be called to assist in finding the cause of an early morning fire today that gutted an Elgin St. home in Madoc.

Fire was discovered about 5 a.m. today in the home of Charles Hamilton. Mr. Hamilton, alone in the house, escaped safely, but all his belongings were lost in the blaze.

Mr. Hamilton's wife is in hospital, and his four children are staying with relations in Picton.

Fire chief Lou Empey of Madoc said that by the time the alarm was received, there was nothing that could be done to save the frame-insulbrick home. Firemen concentrated their efforts on saving the home of William Derry, about 12 feet from the Hamilton home. There was some smoke and water damage to Mr. Derry's home.

No estimate of loss has been made yet, but Chief Empey says he plans to return to the scene later today to attempt to discover the cause of the blaze.

bracing 17 separate unions. If this could be done, serious bargaining could begin on a single package.

He held conferences of about two hours each with teams from the international non-operating unions, the international shopcraft unions and the railways.

Similar sessions were scheduled for early today with the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway, Transport and General Workers and the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen. These were to wind up by noon, leading to joint talks with the four groups.

Emerging late Wednesday night from a conference with railway executives, Mr. Wilson told reporters: "It's too early to say what progress is being made. But you might call it a softening — up process that we hope will lead to some results tomorrow."

MAY ISSUE PERMITS

Mr. Lloyd said the government may be forced to issue boarding permits to motor vehicle operators if the present tie-up lasts over the ferry service.

A list of priorities for shipment to and from the mainland is to be drawn up by an emergency control program under Orrin Simons, the province's civil defence co-ordinator. Mr. Campbell said details of the list are still to be worked out but such items as livestock, fish, frozen food and other perishables will be given priority.

A radio communication system was established, linking control headquarters here with the ferry terminals.

The status of a second major East Coast CNR ferry service remained in doubt early today.

WALKER'S GIFT TO HOSPITAL—Traditionally Walker's Stores present gifts of wheel chairs to hospitals when they open new stores in Ontario centres. Belleville has only one hospital so it was presented with two chairs at last night's store opening. Seated in one of the chairs is Nurse Margrit Uebele. Standing from left are David M. Woods, Walker's Division president, hospital administrator Sian Johnson, Dorothy Hughes, Reg. N. and store manager Les Wynick.

Was Travelling 40 M.P.H. Over Limit

A Belleville man in his early twenties was fined $45 and costs in county magistrate's court this morning for exceeding the speed limit by 40 miles an hour.

Gary Allan Palmer pleaded guilty to the charge of speeding, Crown Attorney Ralph Graham told the court that Palmer had five previous speeding convictions against his driving record.

Palmer was apprehended travelling in excess of 80 miles per hour with three other passengers in his car on Highway 2 in front of the Canadian Forces Base in Trenton.

Asked why he made the trip, Godwin said: "It's something I've wanted to do."

Godwin said he believed his craft was the shallowest ever to make the crossing. "She's . . . 20 feet overall length with a glass fibre hull. . . She only draws 27 inches of water."

Married with a family, Godwin said he had "at least one grand-child."

Plato or the Moon?

One of the main criticisms of the secondary school system in Ontario is that it is too rigid/too disciplined (on paper at least), places too much emphasis on marks, and too little on the development and exchange of ideas and on creative thought.

Evidently some people in Government circles feel the same way, judging from a challenging address by Dr. J. R. McCarthy, Ontario's deputy minister for university affairs, to the conference of the Ontario Secondary School headmaster's council at Lakehead University.

Dr. McCarthy told the school principals they should not be so preoccupied with academic standards that they fail to develop broader educational objectives.

"Among these I include a diminution of role learning in favor of thought-provoking exchanges of views among teachers and students, a pursuit of topics of special interest, a development of the skills of locating and utilizing information, provision for independent study, an emphasis on development of creativity and time for the incubation of sound values."

With regard to non-graded schools, Dr. McCarthy describes to the view that students should be able to concentrate on the subjects in which they excel. "There is little logic in a requirement that says if a student is poor in French that he can't go on in art or music or English," he said.

The need for renewed emphasis on the humanities was another point made by Dr. McCarthy. In today's complex world, with science and technology claiming more attention than ever, the humanities have been pushed into the background.

Macleans Magazine puts this situation in perspective in an editorial in its current issue. "At the University of Toronto this spring," it points out, 302 young engineers were going to receive their Bachelor of Science degrees. There were five graduates in Honor Classics; next year there will be three. Yet the U. of T. has the strongest Classics department in English-speaking Canada; some universities have none. . ."

"This seems symbolic for a world in which interest in science is soaring and the humanities are in decline." As the heading on the editorial aptly phrased it, "Must we use Plato to gain the moon?"

Aurora's Bylaw

In Aurora, a town of 10,000 population 15 miles north of Toronto, the Mayor's wife, Mrs. William Davis, and her son, are reported to have been ordered "to move along" on the main street following introduction of an anti-loitering bylaw.

The incident occurred on a Sunday of all days, and Police Chief William Langman was quoted as saying: "The bylaw states they shall not loiter and we must enforce it."

But wait! The bylaw was introduced primarily to control the activities of crowds of young people said to have been "creating havoc on our main street," to quote one councillor.

This is one of those cases where the law is made to look ridiculous. A little discretion goes a long way in applying such strictures. If police in small towns want to curb troublemakers they will not achieve it with such an iron hand.

It would be interesting to know if any of the malingering "crowds of young people" were on the street that particular Sunday.

Just Like Humans

The "birds and the bees" is a term which has gone into the language as one that is synonomous with the word "facts of life".

And bees, for that matter, are more akin to human beings than may be supposed, if we are to take seriously an intriguing report from Rio de Janeiro.

Brazilian bees, according to an official of the Ministry of Agriculture, are "tired, overworked and mentally disturbed because flowers here bloom all year."

In Europe, where the bees came from, they had to work only three months a year.

So what those clever bees thought was going to be a nice change of scene, amid all that sun and among all those blooms, has turned out to be pretty frustrating.

It is the old story — all work and no play makes Jack a dull boy. . . er, sorry, bees!

Aid for Turkey

When Chile was hit by serious earthquakes some years ago Canada was quick to send relief supplies by air.

Now, only a matter of a few days after the disastrous tremors in eastern Turkey, $35,000 worth of medical supplies, clothing and blankets has been flown to that country.

The shipment was flown from Trenton this week in a Yukon of Transport Command. The speed with which these urgent supplies were sent to Turkey is a tribute to the Federal Government, the Red Cross and Tgansport Command — and indicates a high degree of preparedness on the part of all three agencies.

Legg-Perthes Disease Cured by Long Rest

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: What is Legg Perthes disease? Is there any special treatment? Can he be crippled? A neighbor's nearly-six-year-old boy has it and all the doctor wants him to do is be in a wheel chair for two or three years. Will the lad recover? — Mrs. F. S.

This is a condition which I find it necessary to mention every so often, because people evidently pay no attention if they are not personally involved with the ailment, and then become very much disturbed if the Hastings district, it has been learned.

Fortunately this corrects itself automatically if the afflicted bones are given prolonged rest, and new strong bone forms. Without rest, the weakened bones can, of course, become deformed.

There is no specific treatment other than rest, but the resting is vital, and commonly requires close to two years. In many instances a cast is worn; there may be special reasons why this youngster requires a wheel chair instead of one. It's a bonsome time for the boy, but you sound pretty worry about his ultimate recovery.

Dear Dr. Molner: Please make clear in your column about the change of life. I belong to a woman's club and all sorts of hearsay is passed on — how I remember my sister started the change at 30 and by 40 the menses had ceased." Most of the answer to the change begins around 45 to 54.

Some say the change is nothing at all, but flashes and chills. Is that all? What about nightmares and headaches and feeling like you want to run out of the house at all hours? — S.R.

I wouldn't, in a column, even begin to get started on so complex a topic, but you are right, there is a great deal of hearsay handled about.

As to age, between 45 and the early 50's is the usual time for menopause, or change of life, but it can occasionally occur at 30 and even earlier in rare cases.

For some women hot flashes are the principal symptom and they ride through it with little trouble. The majority, it is ever, benefit by at least a moderate amount of medical support for a time.

Because the condition varies so much from one person to another and because so many differing questions come up, I required a lot more space for a really useful discussion so I wrote it in booklet form. If you would like a copy, send 25 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed stamped envelope and ask for Change Menopause Easier. (Send your request to Dr. Molner, in care of the Chicago Sun-Times Syndicate, P. O. Box 156, Dundee, Ill.)

Dear Dr. Molner: A vein ruptured in the calf of my leg suddenly and with great impact. The leg became swollen, discolored and sore. Please write something about the cause, treatment and length of recuperation. Is it a clot?—Mrs. M.T.

Are you certain that this was a vein disorder? I recall a similar sequence of events and symptoms which proved to be a rupture of the calf muscle.

Unless you have varicose veins, I doubt whether this was the rupture of a vein. A severe strain can cause a muscle to rupture. In that event, rest, cold compresses and medication to limit pain are the treatment. (If you have large varicose veins, then you've had warning that they should be corrected.)

Strictly Personal

Why Lovers Rarely Talk

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Thoughts at Large:

The motive for a deed is never the same before, during and after its performance; for the very act itself changes the motives, unearthing deeper aspects we were unaware of.

The worst drawback to wealth is the accompanying fear of losing it; and it is this fear, rather than all the political rationalizing, that makes the privileged class in every society so rigid (and often so self-defeatingly) conservative.

Watching others frolic ecstatically in a pool, one wonders if it is not possible to be condemned to pleasure.

Lovers rarely talk: they sigh and stroke and nuzzle, perhaps subconsciously realizing that if they spoke, fully and frankly and at length, they might be lovers no longer.

It is the sentimentalist, not the realist, who believes that the more terrible the instruments of war become, the more reluctant will mankind be to use them; and the arch-sentimentalist of our period, who actually declared that his invention of dynamite was so fearsome that nations could no longer war against each other.

Why is nobody ever said to be on Cloud 8 or Cloud 10?

It is the contradictions in modern society that confuse us so; and the reason we are upset was lately explained by Ortega a generation ago: "Man adapts himself to everything, to the best and to the worst. To one thing only does he not adapt himself; to being not clear in his own mind what he believes about things."

Eventually, the patient knows more about the disease than the doctor does; but by then it is too late to change either one of them.

It is narrow to think that only individuals become insane: whole cultures can be deranged, whole strata of society, or geographical areas, can be mentally sick, and the treatment of social psychopathology may be acute in the future of the most rewarding fields of study.

All criminals (by which I do not mean merely those who break the law), however diverse their other traits, have this one thing in common: they do not truly believe that other people exist.

Few other words in English express so utterly what they mean as "flabbergasted."

You don't really know yourself unless you are capable of changing those aspects you know about and don't like; self-knowledge as an intellectual exercise is no good for a lifetime, like a chimpanzee scratching the same place, but never getting rid of the flea.

Today in History

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Aug. 25, 1966 . . .

The Belgian Revolution against Dutch control broke out 136 years ago today—in 1830—stimulated by the July Revolution in Paris, by unrest among the lower classes, and by general discontent with the autocratic Dutch King William I. Belgium and Holland had been united in 1814 to create a bulwark against France, but William I failed to make the union work. Traditions, religions and interests were different in the two territories, and Belgians felt the political system of the united kingdom gave an inferior position. Belgian politicians united in opposition to the Dutch King in 1830 after he introduced a regal veto on the election of bishops and a harsh press law. After the revolution broke out, violent fighting began in Brussels within a month. Dutch troops were driven out by Belgian workers, a provisional government was established, and independence was proclaimed. Although Holland later tried to invade the country again, other European powers drove the Dutch out and insisted on a settlement, which — when finally agreed upon in 1839 —recognized Belgium as an "independent and perpetually neutral state."

1886—The Prince of Wales drove the last rivet of Victoria Bridge, Montreal.

1927 — The Japanese destroyers Warabi and Asahi sank, killing 100. . .

First World War

Fifty years ago today—in 1916 — President Poincare of France "Goodness knows what happens to all the resources . . . Then we have to build up our strength again to the point where we can get the railroad cars back and reload them for shipment east."

Just what all this rhetoric means is uncertain. The wage police B.C. may think they know; they may have some weird Western reasoning in justifying their decision. But the rest of Canada is not with them. Quebec is not with them because Quebec, while just as offensively opposed to a Quebec-Canada deal as among neutral Government, uses a different folklore to justify its stand.

This poor country is being torn apart by these crazy provincial doom-mongers and malcontents. This country will inevitably lapse into a loose collection of small and self-independent principalities if things go on as they have been since the end of the war. Some of the blame attaches to Ottawa, especially the present Government. But most of the trouble arises out of provincial megalomania.

Out of Control

Winnipeg Free Press

Given the wage settlements now completed or pending in Canada, the calculations of the Economic Council, the forecasts of the current budget and the plans of business generally will have to be revised. Inflation, already a serious concern, has started a new and faster spiral.

The politicians and their experts, if they are honest, must abandon the feeble pretence that the national economy is working under some sort of plan, that the situation, though difficult, is under control. It cannot be under control, of course, when the cost of production is increasing faster than it increases far in excess of any possible growth in productivity.

Ottawa Offbeat

When Polyansky Blasted U.S. He Had Canada in Mind

By GREG CONNOLLEY
RICHARD JACKSON IS ON HOLIDAYS
From The Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — The Russian parliamentary delegation which visited Canada a few weeks ago threw a curve at our government when first deputy premier Polyansky made a threatening homemade speech in Ottawa.

Mr. Polyansky used the occasion of a government dinner tendered to the Russians by External Affairs Minister Martin to level a devastating attack on the United States.

He gave the Americans a real going-over and severely castigated their presence in Viet Nam.

Mr. Polyansky by very broad indirection blamed Canada for giving general support to the U.S. and for not criticizing our neighbors' intervention in Viet Nam.

Some people have said the Polyansky speech was a refreshing change — the diplomats usually talk a special kind of language versed in polite phrases.

But of course Premier Polyansky is not a diplomat — he is a politician, a communist politician from Russia.

And Soviet politicians like to wave their fists around to show they can get away with it.

Remember the blustering and threats of Nikita Krgshchev!

Remember Khrushchev at the United Nations, banging and threatening and banging his shoe on the table!

This is a Russian ploy. Talk hard, talk tough — that way perhaps you can scare some country like Canada into carrying out your wishes.

Far-fetched, angry speech, although aimed at the United States,was really a threat at Canada. The Russians were telling us to change our generally friendly policy to the U. S. and become more cool to the Soviet bandwagon and criticize the Americans too.

DIPLOMATIC INCIDENT

Premier Polyansky was really being rather crude — a visitor to a formal dinner as guest at a special dinner in the U.S., sounding off in the way he did.

External Affairs Minister Martin was quite correct when he had a lively argument with Polyansky. But the Russian couldn't have heard less. He had made his point.

Some sources in Ottawa suggested that the Soviet official hadn't meant to make this attack — that he had become excited and had published his comments about the U.S.

But in fact, his speech was cleared and approved in Moscow before he even came to Canada.

This Soviet delegation, by the way, was supposed to be a conference with politicians, and exchange of business and farming know-how.

Polyansky, though, tried to turn it into a propaganda visit.

But while we are trying to probe the mysteries of the communist speeches and phrases, we may also take a look at some of the intricate dealings between the U.S. and Canada.

Some weeks ago George Bundy, a special aid to the U.S. State department, visited Ottawa. This was followed very quietly and Prime Minister Pearson and Mr. Martin kept very quiet about the whole affair.

There was some talk that Mr. Bundy had come to Ottawa to discuss the visits of Chester Ronning to North Viet Nam. He may well have done so but almost certainly Mr. Bundy told the Canadian government of the intention to step - up bombing in Viet Nam.

When the word came that the Americans had bombed docks and installations at Hanoi and Haiphong, both Mr. Pearson and Mr. Martin seemed to be upset.

But if doubt very much if either of them were surprised — they knew it was coming.

AMERICAN PRESSURES

In the Commons, the Prime Minister made a statement that demonstrated a change in Canada's general support of the U.S. position. Mr. Pearson declared that, though he was sorry that the bombing had been stepped up — he was just as sorry that more North Vietnamese troops were pouring over the border to fight in South Viet Nam.

The close relations between Ottawa and Washington are, of course, useful. Nobody denies are the pressures which the Americans exert on our government and about which we bellow and protest on occasion.

Recall U.S. pressures on Canada to fulfil its promises to take on nuclear armament.

Recall the recent blasts of interference of the Americans in past election campaigns when they advocated the defeat - the defeat of former Prime Minister Diefenbaker.

Recall President John s on blistering Prime Minister Pearson last year after the latter in a Philadelphia speech suggested a pause in American bombing in Viet Nam.

We are accustomed to bad manners now and then from the U.S. But we think we have to handle it and we have no hesitation in shouting out our protests and anger.

And generally we manage well with our big neighbor to the south.

But pressure from the Soviet Union — that's another matter. This is something we are not accustomed to and at first thought it may seem a little frightening. But in fact as restrained between Canada and the Soviet Union become closer, there are bound to be more exchanges of views, more "pressures". And presumably we will become more skilled at handling them and we won't be as surprised as we were by the recent diplomacy of Mr. Polyansky.

Provincialism Run Riot

Kingston Whig-Standard

Next to Quebec, British Columbia is the province with the most iconoclast province in the country. British Columbia has led by example the models of what governments leaders should not do. It was in B.C. that Mr. W. A. C. Bennett is a wildeyed reactionary parading as a hard-nosed realist. It was in the fairy banners of Social Credit, His Minister of Highways, Mr. P. A. Gaglardi, to take an example from the B. C. Cabinet, is a grown-up adolescent who doesn't mean to take on the laws his own department is most concerned with.

Both these things are said-Canada in that they hate Ottawa and the idea of a centralized Government. Last week, when the Premier got to his feet and read a crowd which was celebrating his 15 years (15 years in the Legislature) that British Columbia was living in a "provincial Government alive "with provincial resources and tax bases bridging the gap and providing liveliness to the provinces, the westernmost province. . . was becoming the envy of all." He (he) then went on to gabble about how the freight rates were B.C. provinces to the east where, "Goodness knows what happens to all the resources . . . Then we have to build up our strength again to the point where we can get the railroad cars back and reload them for shipment east."

Just what all this rhetoric means is uncertain. The wage police B.C. may think they know; they may have some TV Aerial Built For Belleville...

ADVT.

Here is a television antenna specially designed and built for the best possible reception in the Belleville area. Other TV antennas on the market are not designed, that is whatever locally they are installed, as channels are received with equal strength. This means that in any given area some of the antenna's receiving power is wasted on channels which cannot be received, and the popular channels are brought down to an average level.

The "Bell Star" antenna design concentrates on only the TV channels normally received in Belleville such as 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, 13 with 20% more gain on channel 9). This means that you receive the FULL POWER of this antenna where it is needed . . . all of the time.

This Bell Star Color V-log Antenna challenges all competition. Its swept element design assures the finest in brilliant color and sharply defined black and white television reception as well as superb FM monaural and stereo quality. Three models are available all with new gold vitalized finish for maximum protection against corrosion.

This antenna was engineered and developed at Lindsay Antenna Specialties Limited and is available in Belleville only at Circle TV Service, 70 Coleman Street. Prices start at $44.95. For further information on this revolutionary TV antenna, phone 968-6791.

PARADE OF PLAYGROUNDS theme this year in Trenton was "Great Movies". Judges of the entries agreed that this year's parade was one of the best of recent years. This entry is all set to move off from Bay Shore Park for yesterday's parade to Hanna Park for the annual Penny Fair.

ONE OF THE ENTRIES in the annual parade through town yesterday by youngsters from the Trenton Recreation Commission summer playground program readies for the march through town. Following the parade, a Penny Fair was staged at Hanna Park to signal the end of the playground activities for another year.

Playground Parade Best In Years

TRENTON — Winners in yesterday's summer playground parade through Trenton streets were: Allison Park, first, with "Ben Hur" and "B.C."; North Trenton, second with "The First Man on the Moon" and Trenton High School, third with "The Magnificent Men and their Flying Machines." Cash prizes were awarded to the winning playgrounds.

The theme of this year's parade was "Great Movies." The judges, Miss Mary Salisbury, Mrs. L. Leavey and Mrs. M. Codling agreed that the children had shown great originality and imagination in assembling their entries.

Rain in the start-off place, Bayshore Park, threatened to ruin many of the cardboard props, but fortunately ended before too much damage had been done.

"Peter Pan," by the children of College Street playground sported Peter "herself," pirates and even Captain Hook.

"The Last Day at the Alamo," with Davey Crockett and crew, drew spectator applause. This was entered by St. Peter. The Hanna Park entry, "Sword in the Stone," and Queen Elizabeth's "The Tomb of Largely" were ambitious projects, involving much preparation. Hanna Park youngsters also got a laugh with the "Little Abner" side-story.

Following the parade, the children ended the season's activity with a Penny Fair in Hanna Park.

ATTENDANCE GAINS

TORONTO (CP) — Attendance at the Canadian National Exhibition Wednesday was an estimated 212,000, showing a gain of 2,000 over the same day last year. However, total attendance so far this year is still down 10,000 from last year at 987,500.

Seek Police Chief

8 Applicants Interviewed By Frankford's Councillors

FRANKFORD — The field of applicants for the position of Frankford Chief Constable has been narrowed from 11 to eight. Interviews conducted by the five village councillors here yesterday were attended by eight hopefuls. One applicant cancelled his appointment and two others simply did not appear.

According to Village Reeve Ray Moran, council will need about four days to decide which of the applicants will get the job.

Said the Reeve: "We hope to make an appointment before the end of this month. Chief William Hockley's resignation takes effect August 31. Council wishes to do its very best in selecting a new constable and must be very careful. If no one is appointed to the position by the end of the month, we will ask for the assistance of Provincial Police for assistance."

Ontario Police Commission member Inspector F. J. Taylor, who at one time was Chief of Police at Trenton, acted as an advisor for Village Councillors at yesterday's interviews.

Inspector Taylor told a reporter that, in his opinion, a police officer should work no more than 40 hours per week if he is to be effective in carrying out his duties.

"Any more hours than that and a man eventually becomes tired and cannot do his work properly," he said.

He continued: "In setting up a police force similar to the type required in Frankford, the general rule of thumb is, one officer for every 1,000 people."

Frankford's population is 4,700.

The Inspector offered the opinion that village constables must be guided by law enforcement regulations, plus new bylaws that come into effect as they are passed by the community's council. He stressed the need for local residents to be made aware of any changes brought about by new by-laws.

"After the officers are acquainted with the changes, then the police can crack down on offenders," he said.

The party, founded last spring by some Creditistes and separatists, garnered less than four per cent of the popular vote in the June 5 Quebec election.

Creditiste Leader Real Caouette, who opposed the formation of the RN, has publicly called for Mr. Gregoire's resignation as an MP or his ouster as Creditiste House leader. The three Creditiste MPs are scheduled to meet here Monday to vote whether to expel Mr. Gregoire from their ranks.

Ways to Cook Corn on Cob Are Outlined

OTTAWA (CP) — Corn-on-the-cob addicts are happiest when they've got butter up to the ears and kernels wedged between their teeth.

To keep your corn-munchers happy, home economists at the federal department of agriculture suggest roasting the cobs the old-fashioned way, over an open fire.

In method one, you husk the cobs and cook them in boiling water until they are as tender as you like them. Then butter, fix on long sticks and roast over the fire.

Method two is more authentic, producing lightly browned ears with a slight caramel flavor.

Pull back the husks and strip the silk. Replace the husks and tie the ends with string. Line the ears up on a grid over hot coals. Turn the corn frequently, roasting until the husks are dry and browned, about 15 to 20 minutes.

To jazz up the plain corn flavor, the dietitians suggest brushing seasoned butter, made by adding small amounts of garlic, lemon juice, curry, chives or other herbs to creamed butter.

BATH USE VARIES

Wants Church Funeral For Favorite Horse

ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My aunt owns some pretty good show horses and she is a fair horsewoman herself. When her husband died three years ago she worked out her grief by devoting all her time and energy to the horses.

Yesterday her favorite horse fell in a hole, broke two legs and had to be destroyed. Auntie went to pieces. She called the family together and it was like a wake. When she started to outline her plans I could not believe it. She wanted to have a regular funeral for the horse, a minister, flowers, hearse and the works. We all told her it was out of the question. She replied, "That horse had finer qualities than most people I know. If I want to bury him like a friend why should anyone object?"

Well, the mortician refused to haul the horse in the hearse and the minister not only refused to conduct a service but he told my aunt she should get psychiatric help. The woman insists that the whole world is against her and announced that she is resigning from the church.

I walked out of the meeting in disgust and so did my sister. We've already been severely criticized for our "lack of compassion." What is your opinion? — P.N.G.

DEAR P.N.G.: The minister gave your aunt excellent advice. I hope she takes it.

I can understand people grieving at the loss of animals to whom they have become attached, but the idea of asking that a horse be buried from a chapel is so bizarre that only a sick person would suggest it.

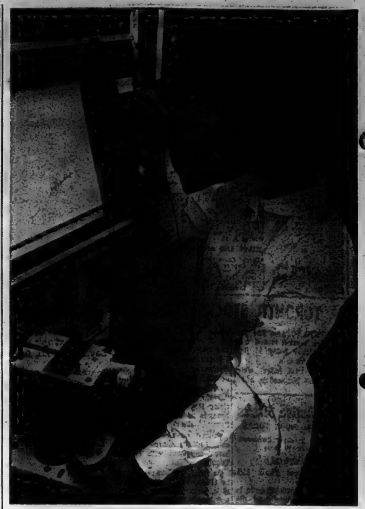
DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am a boy 16 who used to think your column was for laughs. Now I need to see my letter and your answer in the paper and believe me I am not laughing.

Dad made up a rule for all the members of the family. He said, "Anyone who spills food or drinks has to clean it up himself." Whenever I spill anything dad is the first one to point it out to me. Last night dad spilled some food on the stove. Mom looked at me and said, "Dad spilled something. Clean it up." I reminded mom that the rule was that the person who spills has to clean it up himself.

Dad got mad and yelled, "You don't do anything around here so shut up. You ought to clean up after everybody."



Stuff like that burns me. Do parents have the right to change the rules to suit themselves just because they are parents? I wish you would settle this in the paper because I'll bet other kids are having the same problem. — YUMA.

DEAR YUMA: When a parent makes a rule for all members of the family there should be no exceptions. Children who figure they are being treated unfairly feel betrayed. Their hurt often turns to anger and hostility.

Parenthood does, of course, mean privileges, but breaking one's word is not one of them.

Confidential to THE GREAT BIG Q: Each of us knows at least one couple that fits the description, "Love him but can't stand her." Or it's the other way around. You can't tell a man that his wife is a jerk. You can only hope he will tire of her crude behaviour and decide he must teach her some manners.

FOOD TESTING BY MACHINE — Mrs. M. E. Larmond, a native of Saint John, N.B., who heads the Food Research Institute's test kitchen in Ottawa, studies results of a test panel. Aim is to find how different methods of processing affect flavor and general appeal of food products. (CP Photo)

Taste-Testing Is Spooky Job

By MARILYN ARGUE

OTTAWA (CP)—It's spooky being on a flavor test panel. The blinds are drawn and the room is dark except for the red glow of an overhead bulb.

You sit in your booth, eyes front and no talking. A passthrough door glides open and ghostly hands push three tiny cups on to the table in front of you.

There is strawberry jam in the cups but it looks like maroon glue.

"That's the point," says Mrs. M. E. Larmond, head of the Food Research Institute's test kitchen, "you don't want appearance to influence the panel's decision on flavor. In this light everything looks quite terrible."

Mrs. Larmond, a blue-eyed strawberry blonde, is one of Canada's few experts on food panels. She has written a pamphlet for publication this fall telling interested industries how to run their own. Her test kitchen is a section of the federal agriculture department.

A native of Saint John, N.B., she graduated in food science from Mount Saint Vincent College in Halifax five years ago. After interning in Ottawa hospitals, she came to the Food Research Institute where she runs one or two panels a day. The aim is to find how different methods of processing affect flavor and general appeal. The jam in this particular test was made with uncooked strawberries, the idea being that it could be bought frozen and kept in the refrigerator.

TASTE BUDS TESTED

It was the brainchild of a member of the institute and its future is uncertain. Results of the tests are published in food journals and then it's up to industries to decide whether they want to manufacture such a product.

Mrs. Larmond's panels are drawn from the secretaries, scientists and technicians working at the institute, housed in a two-storey brick building in the park-like Dominion Experimental Farm.

Testers are selected after a short lecture and a preliminary test. "I give them samples that I know are different, and if they can account for the difference—maybe there's more salt in one—then they're accepted."

Panels may also rate foods for color and texture. For these tests a cool, white light illuminates the pale grey booths.

Automation is a threat to sippers and samplers. Machines rate the toughness and tenderness of some foods. And color, as in jam, is analyzed electronically as well. But they haven't invented a machine that says "yum-yum" yet. Only people tell you about the flavor."

Tobacco-coated taste buds are welcome in the lab as long as they haven't had any smoke on them in the 30 minutes prior to testing.

"I decided that people who smoke are used to it. They can still tell you what something tastes like."

Successful Living

Older Women Often Lack Self-confidence

DEAR DORIS — I would like information regarding career opportunities for women of 40 without any previous training, with only senior matriculation. — OVER FORTY.

DORIS CLARK

DEAR OVER FORTY — The older woman who wants a job usually lacks self-confidence. She may have raised a family of six, seen them through earthquakes, fires and epidemics, yet when it comes to looking for a job, she is convinced that she "can't do anything".

She may have been treasurer for the local Red Cross, convener of program for her church women's association, volunteer canvasser for the United Fund, yet — "I can't do anything!"

Little does she know how much today's employers look for the mature, responsible women with a strong motivation.

A woman who is a whiz at sewing and has had years of making all her own family's clothes has considerable appreciation of fabrics and patterns. She might well become the star saleslady in a dry goods department. If she makes her own hats she could develop her own business by sewing for her friends. One woman I know did.

There are government allowances, there are short brush-up courses; there are special skills to be learned now. The Career Girl could do no better than to go to her N.E.S. and ask for the person who counsels older workers. What she needs is nerve.

DEAR DORIS — Let's face it! What a person does with their life, whether it be right or wrong, who pays for the mistake?

I am over 21 and single. Many people will talk bad against a person and who are they to say? In the case of the girl who went to the boy friend's room in the hotel. If anything happened she would have to face the music, as the saying goes.

As far as I'm concerned, people who talk bad about others haven't got much to talk about; they might be worse themselves. — UNATTACHED.

DEAR UNATTACHED — Brave talk! Isn't it better not to deliberately give the gossips something to talk about? — nor to have a girl put herself in a compromising situation on purpose? Proprieties are set up for good reasons.

It's my hope that when I offer advice, the "Irma Lady's" I will write to will have the good sense to listen and save themselves grief. No reputation is protected by saying "I don't care!"

CONFIDENTIAL TO WRONG IMPRESSION — If your shirts are tight and short, your lipstick too outlandish, or your voice too loud, tone things down. Having two sisters who had to get married doubtless gave your reputation a poor start.

Just stand by your guns and the boys will come to know you mean to walk the straight and narrow and is save yourself for The Real Thing.

DEAR DORIS — I was wondering if you knew of any way to lose fat cheeks. A diet wouldn't help because I do not need to take off weight. Maybe you could suggest some, sort of exercise — FAT HEAD.

DEAR FAT HEAD — Are you sure it's fat? If the bony formation of your face is round, it is not going to be easy to change the look of rounded cheeks by removing fat which isn't there.

Write in again, enclosing your proper name and address on a stamped envelope, and ten cents, for my leaflet "Make-Up Magic". This will give you some idea of how to use make-up to enhance your best features and play down the roundness.

DEAR DORIS — My sister is 55. She went on a camping trip and took ill. They brought her to hospital immediately as she had a slight hemorrhage. She has very high blood pressure.

A person working at the hospital told my cousin she was drunk when she came in. I questioned my sister when I drove her home and she said she had a pain she could hardly see straight, but she certainly hadn't been drinking.

Now she won't speak to me. She thinks I don't believe her. How can I fix things? — HURT AND UPSET.

DEAR HURT — From where I sit she is the injured party.

A person with high blood pressure is likely to be quite dizzy and to stagger. Did you know that? Did you or didn't you believe she was drunk? Was there a skeptical gleam in your eye?

Send her a thoutful small gift and a note suggesting a date for lunch. Waste no time in patching up this precious friendship.

CONFIDENTIAL TO TEEN-AGER — Write in again this time enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope for a private reply. If you would like to enclose ten cents as well, I would send you my leaflet on acne, which is the medical name for trouble with pimples.

DEAR DORIS — I am 22. I am tall, my height being five feet nine inches. I'm quite good looking. My problem is my legs; they are so long and thin.

I have withdrawn myself so much from anything I would like to do because of this.

What can I do to add some fat or muscle to my legs, or is it too late? I've tried exercise but I get discouraged easily — TALL.

DEAR TALL — If just your legs are thin, you can develop the calf muscles with exercise. If you are thin all over you can develop some curves by a new regime of dieting-to-gain.

In either case there's no room for easy discouragement. Weight doesn't pile on like padding in a pillow (not for thin types!); you have to grow it gradually.

I'm send you an exercise and the ten-cent leaflet "Chart for Curves". Make weekly record of measurements and celebrate when your calves take on a quarter of an inch!

TRIM DOWN WITH SPORTS—Sandra Bowes, a pretty physical education instructor at Carleton University, says some co-eds won't try track or basketball because they don't want to muss their hair but they need the exercise to keep the figure trim and let off steam built up by the pressures of university study. Sandra, 21, is a native of Moose Jaw, Sask. (CP Photo)

College Girls Shun Athletics Fearing to Muss Their Hairdos

By MARILYN ARGUE

OTTAWA (CP) — Only their hairdresser knows why a lot of Canadian girls aren't as trim as they might be, says a young physical education instructor at Carleton University.

Sandra Bowes, 21, says some co-eds won't turn out for track or basketball "because they don't want to muss their hair."

Appointed director of women's athletics at Carleton in July, Sandra is blonde and blue-eyed with grey-framed glasses. A native of Moose Jaw, she graduated from the University of Saskatchewan this spring with a BA in physical education.

She will create her own program at Carleton, where physical education is not compulsory. Previously there was no director for women's sports.

"This job usually goes to someone with a post-graduate degree. Naturally I was thrilled to be accepted. It's a wonderful opportunity with unlimited scope."

She says the "can't be bothered" attitude toward athletics starts in unsupsried high school programs.

"It is there that the girl who decides she doesn't like sports persuades her mother to write that letter of excuse. Of course, I blame the mother too for not seeing that her daughter participates in what the schools have to offer."

Still, she feels it is because school programs that most girls of college age are in "fairly good shape."

EASES TENSION

Some kind of athletic exercise, whether it's a splash around the pool or an exercise class, is good for everybody, but especially for college students.

"There's a great deal of hard work and pressure in university and this is an extremely good way to let off steam."

Secretaries and housewives too would feel a lot better mentally as well as physically if they got some exercise.

"You see, even going to a movie doesn't relax you the same way. Actually moving around and doing something makes you realize that you're alive."

But if you buy the XBX book or tune into the TV workout, you have to go all the way.

"Exercises are good only if you do them properly. If you can say 'Well, that wasn't so bad, I didn't even work up a sweat,' then you're probably not doing it right."

Her job isn't nine to five—most evenings include coaching and weekends mean road trips with basketball or volleyball teams—but that's the way Sandra likes it.

"It's fun for me. The only thing that tires me out is sitting around."

WEDDING

GRAY — CAMERON

Dorothy Helen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Cameron of Gatineau, Quebec and Donald Harold Gray, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Gray of North Gower, Ontario, were united in marriage by Rev. L. C. Edmonds in St. Andrew's United Church, Gatineau, Quebec, on Saturday, August 20, 1966, at 2.00 p.m. Mr. Clayton Presley was organist and Miss Moore Harrison was soloist.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a white satin full-length dress with lace bodice and short lace-trimmed train. Her elbow-length veil was caught at the back of her head with orange blossoms worn by her paternal grandmother 64 years ago. Her bouquet of white gladioli was centred with red roses and ivy.

Mrs. J. Johnson of Belleville, as maid of honor, wore a white eyelet embroidered cotton dress over mauve peau de soie, with matching open crowned hat. She carried a bouquet of purple gladioli and pink carnations. Miss Margaret Martin of Gatineau, a bridesmaid, wore a similar gown over green peau de soie and carried an arm bouquet of green gladioli. Miss Linda Gray, sister of the bridegroom, the second bridesmaid, wore white eyelet cotton over yellow peau de soie and carried an arm bouquet of yellow gladioli.

Mr. Bruce Gray was his brother's attendant and the ushers were Mr. Norman Rickaby of Belleville and Mr. George Robertson of Ottawa.

At the reception at the Executive Penthouse, Duverny Motel, Hull, Quebec, the bride's mother received the guests, wearing a blue suit, white feathered hat and a corsage of white flowers. The bridegroom's mother wore a navy blue suit, white accessories and a corsage of pink rose buds.

For her wedding trip to Gaspe, the bride chose a pink linen sheath, navy coat, navy and pink accessories and a corsage of sweetheart roses.

On their return, the couple will live in Ottawa.

MR. AND MRS. BRUCE ROBERT CHRISTOPHER

Christopher – Donaldson

On August 20, 1966 at 2.00 p.m., Wanda Lee, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Manuel Gerald Donaldson of Foxboro and Bruce Robert Christopher, son of Mr. William Christopher and Mrs. Florence Christopher of Belleville were united in marriage by Rev. James MacKnight in Calvary Temple, Belleville. Mrs. Doris Osborne was organist and the soloist was Mr. Lorne Shepherd Jr.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of pure silk organza with fitted bodice of imported Chantilly lace, sweetheart neckline and long lily-point sleeves. The skirt was of four tiers of organza bordered with scalloped Chantilly lace at the back, with an apron front caught up with a large lace rose. Her six-tier illusion veil fell from a headdress of roses and orange blossoms and she carried a bouquet of red roses.

Miss Gayle Donaldson, sister of the bride, was maid of honor. She wore a silk organza dress in iced lilac tint, with Empire waistline, cap sleeves and an over skirt bordered with Chantilly lace. Her flowers were mauve and white 'mums. The bridesmaids, Miss Joan Daley and Miss Linda Pritty, were dressed identically as the maid of honor. The flower girl, Miss Debbie Donaldson, cousin of the bride, also wore a gown matching those of the other attendants and carried a basket of white and mauve 'mums.

Wayne Christopher was his brother's attendant and the ushers were John Shepherd, cousin of the bridegroom and Clare Homan, cousin of the bride. Dale Donaldson, cousin of the bride, was [illegible].

To receive the guests at the reception at Club [illegible] ville, the bride's mother wore a sheath dress of Copen blue re-embroidered Chantilly lace, chiffon with pink accessories and a corsage of pink roses. The bridegroom's mother wore a pink lace sheath dress with matching accessories and a corsage of pink and white roses.

For her wedding trip to northern points and the United States, the bride chose a two-piece pink suit with black accessories and a corsage of white 'mums.

On their return, the couple will live at Marathon, Ontario.

MR. AND MRS. WALTER M. RANIOWSKI

Raniowski – Howe

Rt. Rev. J. P. Sullivan officiated on August 20, 1966, at 12 noon, at the marriage of Mary Ella Diane Howe and Walter Michael Raniowski of Tweed, Ontario. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Patrick Howe of Belleville and he is the son of Mrs. John Raniowski of Toronto, and the late Mr. Raniowski. Mr. Gary Fitzgibbon played the wedding music and Mr. Robert Burke was soloist. Assisting at the Nuptial Mass were alter boys Robert, William, Richard and Edward Howe, brothers of the bride.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a floor-length sleeveless gown of white toreae trimmed with Guipure lace fashioned on princess lines with a train falling from the shoulders. Her headdress was a circle of toreena and lace with a double shoulder length veil. She carried a ball of white carnations and yellow roses and a lace handkerchief carried by her great-grandmother at her wedding in August, 1882.

Mrs. John McGinnis of Belleville wore a floor-length sleeveless mint green gown with a panel of Swiss eyelet lace ruffles at the back. Her headpiece was a matching circlet hat. Dressed in gowns identical to that of the matron of honor were the bridesmaids, Miss Patricia Harris of Toronto, Miss Patricia and Miss June Howe, sisters of the bride. Miss Frances Kearney was junior bridesmaid and Miss Mary Ann Kearney was flower girl. Their gowns were also fashioned in the same style as the matron of honor's. The senior attendants carried balls of yellow and white 'mums and the junior attendants carried baskets of the same flowers.

Mr. John Raniowski of Toronto was his brother's attendant and the ushers were the bride's brothers, Louis, Michael, Paul and Bernard Howe.

The reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, 506 Dundas Street West, Belleville. They receive the guests. Mrs. Howe wore a light grey silk lace over pink crepe gown with matching coat, pink and grey accessories and a corsage of pink rose buds. Mrs. Raniowski wore a sky blue lace dress with short matching jacket, dark blue and beige accessories and a corsage of white asters.

For her wedding trip to the Maritimes the bride chose a two-piece suit of navy blue silk printed with green and white flowers, a full length green linen coat and white accessories. A orchid corsage completed her outfit.

On their return, the couple will live in Tweed, where Mr. Raniowski is on the staff of Tweed High School.

Bloomfield Woman Named a Director Of Teachers' Group

Miss Mary J. Huff of Bloomfield was elected a director of region 4 of the Federation of Women Teachers' Associations of Ontario, at the 48th annual meeting of the organization in Toronto last week.

Now president of the Federation is Miss Melba Woolley of Ottawa, a teacher of deaf and hard of hearing children.

MR. AND MRS. PAUL J. ZAKOS

Zakos – Van Stone

Rev. A. W. Lauder officiated at the wedding ceremony in Christ Church (Anglican) Belleville on Saturday, August 20, 1966 when Margaret Florence Van Stone, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. S. Van Stone, Belleville, was united in marriage to Paul James Zakos, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Zakos, Belleville.

The church organist Mr. John Withers played traditional wedding music and accompanied the choir boys in appropriate nuptial selections.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a floor length Empire styled gown of imported delustred jacquard brocade, highlighted with a matching train extending from rosettes at the shoulders. A shoulder length four-tier veil of tulle flowed from a headdress of roses studded with seed pearls. She carried a hand bouquet of amber gold roses, white carnations and baby's breath.

Matron of honor Mrs. Doreen Dickson of Gananoque, sister of the bride and the bridesmaids, Miss Carol Green, Miss Moira McLaughlin and Miss Patricia Rupert, all of Belleville were identically attired in Empire styled gowns of Caribbean blue peau de reine. They wore matching headdresses of tiny rosettes with blue veils. Each carried a hand bouquet of white carnations and stephanotis.

Mr. Bill Meens Jr. of Belleville was groomsman, while Mr. Eugene Bristow of Belleville, Mr. Robert Dickson of Gananoque and Mr. Rodney Turner of Belleville were the ushers.

For the reception in Christ Church parish hall, the bride's mother welcomed the guests wearing a two-piece pink brocade suit with pink and navy accessories and a corsage of deep pink Sensation roses. Also receiving was the bridegroom's mother in a two-piece pink ensemble, pink and navy accessories and a corsage of white gardenias and pink Sweetheart roses.

Mr. and Mrs. Zakos will reside at 75 Broadway Ave., Apt. 508, Toronto.

WEDDING

MACKENZIE — SHANKS

Marie Claudette Louise, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis A. Shanks of Kingston, and Brian Bruce MacKenzie, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bruce G. MacKenzie of Belleville, were united in marriage by Rev. Bernard J. Walsh in St. James' Chapel Kingston.

Mrs. Peter G. Roberts of Toronto, sister of the bridegroom, was matron of honor and Miss Jane MacKenzie of Belleville, sister of the bridegroom, was bridesmaid.

Mr. James Sillilie of Toronto was the bridegroom's attendant and Mr. Earle MacDonald jr. of Belleville and Mr. David Blakely of Belleville ushered the guests.

Before the couple left on their wedding trip to Pennsylvania, a reception was held at the Sheraton Motor Inn. On their return, they will live in Toronto.

Convention Not Entirely Men's Affair

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—The bi-annual convention of Canada's army, navy and air force vet-erans is not entirely a man's affair.

Some 150 delegates from ladies auxiliaries across Canada are also here for the five-day convention.

Mrs. R. M. Jopling of Winnipeg, Dominion president of Ladies' Auxiliary, the Army, Navy and Air Force Veterans in Canada, says delegates don't come to the conventions just for a good time.

"They must have paper and pencil handy to take notes."

She says members "visit vet-erans in hospitals, buy wheel-chairs, beds and televisions, help burned-out families, assist in disaster areas, and adopt children around the world."

The auxiliaries began in 1930 and today there are 58 branches in Canada.

DEVILLED EGGS

Last week we had a letter from a girl who wanted to know how to make Egg Salad Sandwiches. I was surprised at a request for such a simple item but I gave it in a read-ers' column to our correspond-ent. But yesterday when my newly married hairdresser ask-ed me how to poach eggs my surprise changed to belief. Some girls do not know how to cook or make anything at all. I had better renew my 35-year-old efforts.

So today I am describing in detail the simple steps in mak-ing devilled eggs — the old favorite for a picnic or for buf-fet table.

THURSDAY

Tamale Casserole (see Wed.); Generous Chef's Salad; Pumpkin Pie with Whipped Cream or Topping; Tea.

SUNDAY (Guests)

Stewed Chicken with Cream Gravy; Hot Tea Biscuits (see Fri.); Sliced Zucchini; Buttered Corn on the Cob; Fresh Fruits; Choice Dessert Pears, Thomson Seedless Green Grapes, Lombard Plums; Assorted Cheese Tray; Crackers or Melba Toast; Coffee.

DEVILLED EGGS (18 halves — serves 7 or 8):

9 large fresh eggs
3 or 6 tbsps. genuine mayonnaise (not salad dressing)
½ tsp. prepared (French) mustard
1 tsp. finely chopped chives (or young green onions including some green tops)
½ tsp. salt

Carefully put 9 eggs in 1 layer in flat-bottomed pan. Cover with cold water. Put on lid and turn on medium heat and bring slowly to boiling point. Turn heat as low as pos-sible and simmer 5 min. Turn off heat and let stand 10 min. Now drain off hot water and chill in running cold water for 5 min. Drain. Remove shells by cracking them gently all over by knocking against counter which loosens shell. Now peel off shells and dis-card them. Cut hard-cooked eggs in halves lengthwise with a sharp knife. Using the tip of a spoon scoop yolks out of whites into a bowl. With a strong fork press yolks into a smooth puree. Add mayon-naise, mustard, chives (or onion) and salt and mix thor-oughly. Pick up 1 heaping tsp. of yolk filling and refill whites with it. Divide the filling fairly between all 18 halves. Use the tips of a fork to press the filling down into the whites fairly firmly and score top attractively with fork lines. Sprinkle tops sparingly with paprika. If desired decorate tip with a ¼" sprig of par-sley. Arrange on serving plat-ter on bed of fine inner lettuce leaves or watercress which has been well washed and dried or use large sprigs of parsley as a border. Chill covered with saran or test of wax paper or foil until needed.

SOCIAL And PERSONAL

"AT HOME"

Mr. and Mrs. Percy Macmul-len, Stirling, R.R. 3, will be "at Home" to relatives and friends on Sunday, September 4th from 2 to 4 and 7 to 9 p.m. in Mount Pleasant — Rawdon United Church hall on the occasion of their 50th (golden) wedding an-niversary.

ENGAGEMENT NOTICE

Mr. and Mrs. Fred J. Bree-ken of Lonsdale, announce the engagement of their daughter, Patricia Marie, to Robert George McCutcheon, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bert C. McCutcheon, R.R. 3, Napanee. The wedding will take place Saturday, Sep-tember 24th, 1966, at Holy Name of Mary Church, Marys-ville at 11.00 a.m.

Mrs. Ina Miller, Mrs. Ethel Neil, Mrs. Bert Rutherford, Mrs. Norma Williams and Miss Vivian Grause, all nurses from Belleville and Miss Polly Nel-son and Miss Olive Fulton from Trenton held a social get-to-gether at the home of Mrs. Ar-thur Ames, at Codrington.

Before her marriage Mrs. Bruce Christopher, the former Wanda Lee Donaldson of Fos-boro, was entertained at mis-cellaneous showers given at the home of Mrs. Clare Homes in Corbyville, with Miss Joan Daley as co-hostess and at the home of Mrs. Thomas Donald-son, with Gayle Donaldson and Linda Pettry as co-hostesses. The couple were presented with a gift from the young people of Calvary Temple in Belleville and the manager and staff of National Grocers made a pre-sentation to the bride.

Previous to the marriage of Mrs. Donald R. Potter (nee Anne Reid) of Campbellford, the bride was entertained at an afternoon tea and presentation party given by the staff of Kingston Collegiate Institute at Kingston; a buffet supper and presentation given by the K.C.V.I. teams and the Girls' Athletic Association at the home of Miss Ann Millikers of Kingston, and at a miscella-neous shower at the home of Miss Carol Heath in Rivoise. A trousseau tea was given in honor of the bride by her mother and the parents of the bridegroom entertained at an after-rehearsal party.

MARRIAGE NOTICE

Newman — Sharpe — At Rideau Park United Church, Ot-tawa, on Saturday, August 20, 1966, Brenda Lynn, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. F. Sharpe of Ottawa to Alan Robert Newman, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. H. New-man of Port Carling. Mrs. New-man is the granddaughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. G. Roo-botham, formerly of Belleville and the late Mr. and Mrs. F. Sharpe, formerly of Wooler.

Mrs. W. J. Tufts, Foxboro Road, has returned home from a ten-day conducted bus tour around the Gaspe Peninsula and New Brunswick.

Before her marriage, Mrs. Walter Rankowski, the former Dianna Howe, of Belleville, was entertained at miscellan-eous showers given by Mrs. Stevenson at her home, by Mrs. John McGinnis at her home, by Mrs. William Knud-sen at her summer home with Mrs. R. D. Boyce as co-hostess and by Mrs. W. J. Brown at her home. The secretary de-partment staff at Belleville General Hospital made a pre-sentation to the bride and the students at Tweed High School made a presentation to the bridegroom.

Word has been received in the city of the death of Mr. M. C. Milliken of Millbrook, fa-ther of Mr. R. C. Milliken, 29 Albion Street, Belleville.

Recent guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Austin Ray of Foxboro were their cousins Mr. and Mrs. James Batchelor from Sanboro, New York and Mr. and Mrs. Peter Gaylord of Actinolite; also Mrs. Percy Gaylord and children of Tweed.

ROOTS FOR BOTH

LONDON (CP)—Mrs. Ursula Banks, 27, faced a problem of divided loyalities when her hus-band Gordon played goal for England's soccer team against West Germany in the World Cup final. She was born in Ger-many. "I shall be cheering for England," she said, "but I am proud my native country is in the final." England won.

16-Year-Old Just Waves At Lookers

STRATFORD (CP) — Elaine Hutchison just smiles and waves at the second - lookers now.

But at first she was embar-rassed, the 16-year-old from Derby St./Marys says, when motorists would stare that sec-ond time to make certain they had seen right the first.

After all, it isn't every day a motorist sees a young girl pi-loting about 10 tons of clumsy-looking road machinery on a construction job.

But that's what Elaine does during the school holidays. She operates a heavy tractor and road roller owned by her father. She has been doing road work for the last three weeks on a section of Perth County Road 23 near Tavistock.

"When I first started on this job . . . I always felt self-con-scious when I saw drivers star-ing at me.

"Now I'm used to it. I just smile and wave at them."

SNITCH QUEEN'S FISH

LONDON (CP)—Someone has been poaching the Queen's trout —and in the very shadow of Parliament. A book and a piece of broken line were the only clues to the disappearance of 15 fish owned by Her Majesty from the moat of the 16th cen-tury Jewel Tower, between Westminster Abbey and the House of Lords.

TOTAL SUCCESS

Dear Susanna: I have seen many suggestions for baking pie shells but the method use ab-solutely never fails.

I turn a pie plate upside down and place the pastry on it.

Trim around the edge and pick all over with a fork. Bake and cool, then turn it into a slightly larger pie plate.

Success every time. — Bobby

KNITTING TRICK

A hint for knitters with little ones in the family.

When knitting a cardigan sweater if you work buttonholes on both sides and sew the but-tons on a piece of tape, the sweater made for a girl can be passed on to a boy without a lot of extra work. — Mrs. Ar-thur Brooks.

WHAT IS A MARINADE?

Dear Sir: Love to turn in your column in our paper. I've only been mar ed a few months and following your hints has given me an extra measure of self-confidence like having an edge on the other fellow.

Just to show you what a long way I still have to though or soaked several hours to give extra flavor before cooking.

Like some suggestions for seasonings to use? Try any of these: garlic, thyme, mario-ram, oregano, celery salt, on-ions, or cloves.

Most general cook books will have the specific instructions for you to follow.

Best wishes and happy times. — SUSANNA.

Little Girl's Diary Describes Period in Ottawa's Social History

By MARILYN ARGUE

OTTAWA (CP)—A diary begun by a little girl in 1862 has become one of the few records of a golden period in Ottawa's social history as one century ended and another began.

Ethel Chadwick wrote down in a book her father gave her the details of children's parties and May Day teas at Government House.

As she grew up she filled other books with descriptions of elegant dances in the Rideau Hall ballroom, theatre parties in the velvet-and-gold Russell Theatre, and summers at Murray Bay and Blue Sea Lake in Quebec.

"I wanted to be a journalist," says Miss Chadwick, a small, sprightly woman with hazel eyes and short brown hair. "But the family couldn't afford to send me to journalism school, so I decided the next best thing was to go out and meet a lot of people."

Among the people she met and wrote about were Lord and Lady Aberdeen, Sir Wilfrid and Lady Laurier, and the Duke and Duchess of Connaught. The duke was "a darling."

Born in a big stone country house in County Meath, Ireland, Miss Chadwick came to Canada as a baby in her Irish nurse's arms. The family first lived in Montreal.

A picture of her birthplace is the frontispiece of her memoirs to be published book on the social history of Montreal. She still speaks with her English mother's accent and her Irish father's turn of phrase.

GREEDY CHILD

The family moved to Ottawa when Ethel, the oldest of four children, was 7. Her father joined the civil service.

Their first invitation to Government House came in 1868 from Lady Aberdeen, a friend of Mrs. Chadwick's mother in England.

"It was a skating party and they would put on the card for the mother and father to bring the children.

"I was a greedy little girl. I remember drinking glasses of lemonade and eating sandwiches and little cakes and putting chocolates in my pocket to take home."

Even non-skaters came to the parties every Saturday afternoon to meet their friends and sip hot mulled claret in the tea room.

"It was a very gay thing. The prime minister and Lady Borden came, and Sir Wilfrid and Lady Laurier in their time."

Later Ethel graduated to formal parties and dinner dances for young people and many "brilliant balls" in the formal Rideau Hall ballroom.

The leisurely age gave her time to set down all the details in her succession of diaries. "I would write it the next morning. I had a lot of leisure time because girls didn't work in those days."

CONVENTIONS STRICT

The highlight of an Edwardian young girl's life was her debut and the series of parties that followed.

"I remember going to a bachelor's ball. There was about 18, shaking with fear because I was so shy. I had a white satin dress, rather stiff, covered with flowers and furbelows. I thought it wonderful to have an evening dress."

Nice young girls never travelled alone or, horrors, with a man.

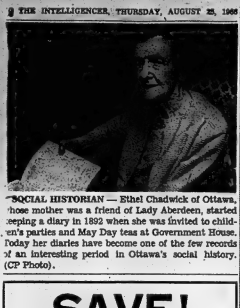
"Four girls used to share a cab or a sleigh to go to a dance, and if a man said 'I'd like you home if you stayed on,' we thought it rather an insult."

Properly brought up young ladies attended the theatre though with mother or perhaps with a sister and their young men.

"It used to be a brilliant sight. There were red velvet curtains on the boxes and velvet chairs and everyone wore evening dress. Heaps of young people went. It was like a meeting place."

SAW LEADING ACTORS

The Governor-General had his own box and right next was the box of Mrs. Charles Harris, then the owner of Earnscliffe, the former residence of Sir John A. Macdonald. Cabinet ministers rented boxes, and the best places cost only $1.50.



The playbills read like a who's who of the theatre.

"I saw Sir Henry Irving there in his last performance. I thought he was too mannered, but I loved Sir John Martin Harvey, though his wife was an awful frump."

Miss Chadwick still keeps her diary. Her wish to be a journalist was realized when an Ottawa paper asked to publish excerpts from it, which now have reached the 1920s.

These entries tell of terrifying trips in early motor cars at speeds up to 25 miles an hour, but they lack the glamor that ended with the First World War.

Then the dashing young men enlisted and the debutantes turned to charity work. "The great gaiety of 1914 was all changed. It never really came back the same."

SOCIAL HISTORIAN — Ethel Chadwick of Ottawa, whose mother was a friend of Lady Aberdeen, started keeping a diary in 1862 when she was invited to children's parties and May Day teas at Government House. Today her diaries have become one of the few records of an interesting period in Ottawa's social history. (CP Photo).

KOOL KAT DECOR—On hand for the official opening of the new Walker's Store Wednesday evening were merchandising vice-president Mr. W. Wheeler and Mrs. Wheeler who paused for a moment in the Tempo 66 department of fine women's apparel section. An eye-catching Kool Kat (upper right) dominates this particular area.

Walker's Store Features Fine Assortment of Women's Apparel

Style conscious women in the Belleville area will find the latest in fall and winter fashions when they visit the new Walker's Store, Front Street.

There is a wide range of women's apparel ranging from fabulous sportswear fashions to elegant after five party dresses and a choice assortment of fall and winter coats.

Buyers were on hand from Toronto at the official opening of the store last evening and pointed out the highlights of the merchandise in the various women's departments. One of the newest fabrics in dresses is known as naked wool which is a rein lightweight material and is suitable for any occasion. Many stunning and varied styles are shown in the popular fall shades of teal blue, jade, burgundy and grape suitable for all age groups. There is a fine selection in the 5-13 sizes especially enticing to the young adult or teenager. One of the buyers noted that there was a tremendous upswing this year to the after five or party dresses and there is a good supply of these displayed in the store.

There are numerous racks of the latest fashions in fall and winter coats included among these are fun furs, fake fabric furs, boucle, all wool, simulated otter and suedes, which are more popular than ever this year. Especially attractive to the younger set are the matching coat and dress ensembles in the latest styles and colors. Also in good supply are casual coats with zipped in chamois linings, and the innovation this year are coats featuring dyed to match raccoon collars.

The millinery department is also well stocked with the latest in fall and winter creations, with many of the new vibrant shades being shown.

The Experts Say

To Shop Effectively One Must Begin by Relaxing

By JEAN SHARP
Canadian Press Women's Editor

TORONTO (CP) — The advice of one experienced food shopper on how to organize your shopping effectively is to begin by relaxing. Choose the time and method that fits best into your schedule, do a little thinking about food buying, and be flexible.

Mrs. G. B. Armstrong is president of the Toronto branch of the Consumers Association of Canada and mother of five children. She says you can take the fuss and frustration out of shopping if you plan it to suit you and your family's likes, schedule and budget. Don't let other people's advice, admonishments or penny-pinching hints harass you.

"If you're a person who has to have a list, make one. I think every housewife will at least have a list made mentally so she knows what she needs to replace. But if you have beef on your list and get into the store and find beef is high priced and there's a special on chicken, I think you have to be prepared to scrap your list. It's only sensible to switch to replace an item with something of equal food value."

Mrs. Armstrong says watching food ads may help you plan.

"If one store at a distance from you has short ribs on one week, you watch. It may turn up in other stores near you in the next two or three weeks."

Mrs. Armstrong says she regularly divides her shopping among three stores to get what she wants at the best prices. She says she considers it worth her while because she has the time and because she stores are on a route that is on her way home.

"That isn't necessarily the best way for everyone. Each individual must decide. Have you a car? Do you walk? Are you sure it doesn't pay you to stick to one store? Sometimes it's better for a mother to have half an hour's rest than to save two cents.

"There are a few things you can do if you're in a position to choose your shopping time. Some stores have better price specials on Monday and Tuesday than at the end of the week. Sometimes the produce is fresher at the beginning of the week.

"Probably you won't be as rushed, and there aren't crowds, so time you definitely can save by shopping early in the week.

"And if you can shop in the morning, it's cooler, quieter, less crowded and you're probably rested and not in so big a rush to grab the first thing you see."

READ PAPERS

Mrs. Armstrong says it pays to read newspaper articles on food.

"They are a terrific fund of information. The food editors' columns will tell you when some things are a good buy in your area, what fruit is right for freezing, etc.

Mrs. Armstrong says one small economy she practises is to freeze as an occasional handful of fruit from her summer shopping.

"A handful here, a handful there. You dont spend any more and the fruit salad you've made bid by bit over the summer could replace expensive oranges in the winter.

"You can read everything that's published, but what you want to know is what it's going to do for you. Once you find a product you like, play with it, as long as it continues to suit you.

Halloway

HALLOWAY— Mr. and Mrs. F. Wellman and family spent a week recently at Grapbite Lake.

Mr. and Mrs. Eric Emerson and family have moved into their new home at Halloway.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry McMullen, accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Harold Holden, spent several days holidaying in Algonquin Park.

A charivari was held recently at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harry McMullen for the newly married couple, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Reid. She is the former Jean McMullen.

Guests of Mr. and Mrs. Coleman Townsend over the weekend were Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Townsend and family.

Miss Frances McKenzie of Trenton spent the weekend at home.

Miss Jennifer Fewtrell of Belleville spent the weekend with Miss Margaret Huffman.

The annual picnic of the Kus' Double Club was held at Glen Allen Park, Crowe Lake, with a good attendance.

CAN'T SPEND IT

MONTREAL (CP) — The Greater Montreal Council of the Arts had a surplus of $300,000 last year although it spent more than $400,000 on subsidizing organizations and individuals. Total revenue was $665,796, of which $339,793 was from the city government.

Family Reunion

WOODCOX CLAN

FRANKFORD — The second annual reunion of the Woodcox family was held at Frankford Community Hall last week with 46 descendants of the late David Woodcox and Elizabeth Steel in attendance.

The reunion was opened with prayer by Mrs. Annie Woodcox of L'Amable. Grace was given by Mr. Ken McGeachy of Glen Miller.

Chairman was Mr. Maurice McGeachy, who asked for a minute's silence in memory of the departed members of the family.

Election of officers for 1966 was held. They are: president — Mr. Merritt Woodcox; vice-president — Mrs. Freda Collier; secretary-treasurer — Mrs. Jean Woodcox; recreation committee — Mrs. Jean Parks, Keith Woodcox, Mrs. Eileen Woodcox and Harry McGeachey; typist — Mrs. Norma Powers.

Future reunions will be held in Frankford Community Hall on the second Sunday in August each year.

Prizes were given to Mrs. Hilda McGeachy of Frankford; Mr. Clifford Collar of Glen Miller; oldest man — Mr. William Woodcox; oldest lady — Mrs. Myrtle Woodcox; farthest distance — Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Storring; youngest child — Kevin Parks; most articles in purse — Miss Geraldine McGeachy; fewest articles in purse — Mrs Myrtle Woodcox; longest name — Mr. Merritt Woodcox; largest waistline — Mr. Louis Woodcox; ladies' kicking shoe — Mrs. Helen McGeachy.

The children enjoyed races and a candy scramble.

Club Activities

FRANKFORD TRIMETTES

FRANKFORD — The Frankford Trimettes Club met on Monday evening, with president Mrs. Fern Downs in charge.

Weigh in showed a total loss of 28 pounds, and 13 pounds were gained. Highest loser was Debbie Payne, with a total loss of 9 pounds for the week.

Linda Doerscher led the class in exercises.

The president suggested one night a month to be spent in bowling.

A graduation banquet will be held in Trenton on October 4th. The Frankford Club is invited to attend.

DOG SHOWS WAY

VANCOUVER (CP) — At 17, Gail Brewer will be one of the younger students at the University of British Columbia this fall, but she'd have a campus guide. Gail is blind and Sheba, her black Labrador setter-eye dog, will go to class with her.

Early Life in North Hastings Recalled by Private Museum At Scotts' Lavallee Lake Park

Memories of early life in North Hastings will not be completely forgotten if the interest of a Belleville physician Dr. J. Russell Scott, can be taken as an example.

As an adjunct to their Lavallee Lake Tent Park on the Lower Faraday Road 10 miles north of Coe Hill, Dr. Scott and his wife Marion have set up a unique private museum containing a treasure trove of old items, all of them used in early hamboring and farming operation in North Hastings. The collection represents a 50-year personal effort on the part of Dr. Scott.

Appropriately enough, Dr. and Mrs. Scott are calling their collection of Canadiana the "North Hastings Museum."

HOUSED IN LOG CABIN

And, also appropriately, the museum items are housed in an original log structure on one of the earliest settled farms in Faraday township.

Included in the collection are wooden beams from the plows of pioneers who first settled the area; a huge horse - operated "stone picker" of the type used to clear fields of big boulders now found in stone fences about the county, and "swamp shoes" for strapping to horses' hooves to prevent them becoming mired in boggy swamps.

Early box stoves, candle moulds and other early household equipment together with blacksmith tools used before the turn of the century, are also included.

"There are not many people left who have any recollection of some of these items," says Dr. Scott, "but I think it is important that our ties with the past be preserved."

Items of old farming equipment in the collection include cradles used for cutting grain before the day of the reaper and flails of the type used for threshing before the day of the mechanical threshing machines.

There are left and right-handed broad axes, once used for hand-finishing railway ties and for squaring timbers used in house and barn construction.

Old household items include dash and barrel churns, rocker washers, a charcoal-burning sad iron and a portable oven used by setting on the top of a stove.

Beautifully finished rifles fashioned more than 125 years ago by F. Criess of Canniffton, then known as the "Yankee Gunsmith," hang on the log walls as part of a collection of old guns and other sporting equipment.

Even portable dental equipment used by one of the north country's early "travelling" dentists, is preserved for posterity.

Before the day of the automobile when travel was mostly by horse and buggy it wasn't always convenient for residents to travel long distances to have their teeth attended.

So the dentist did the next best thing. He went to see the patients.

Periodically, the dentist, whose normal practice was, say, in Madoc, would pack his treadle-operated drill and portable dentist's chair into a case, load it on the train or stage, and then, for the next few days, set up office 40 miles away in a railway station or hotel.

Dr. Scott has the portable equipment of an early dentist on display at his museum.

The early hotel days in North Hastings are recalled by the "back bar" from the old Hogan's Hotel near Millbridge. Even several of the old whiskey jugs have been preserved. Also from the old hotel is a spring-wind phonograph once used for the enjoyment of the hotel guests.

The Scott museum sits almost on the exact site of one of the earliest custom sawmills in North Hastings, and even part of the mill is preserved as a museum piece.

The big circular saw, which turned logs into lumber, has been painted, appropriately lettered, and erected as the museum billboard.

An interesting sidelight of the Lavallee Lake area where Dr. and Mrs. Scott have their tent park and summer home is that the one time owner, Garrett Vader, actually grew all the tobacco used by lumbermen in the lumber camps of the district.

But for some reason the particular type of tobacco grown by Mr. Vader seems to have disappeared.

At any rate agricultural experts today have no record of tobacco which can be successfully grown that far north. And professional weathermen say there is nothing to show that the climate in North Hastings was any less severe than it is today.

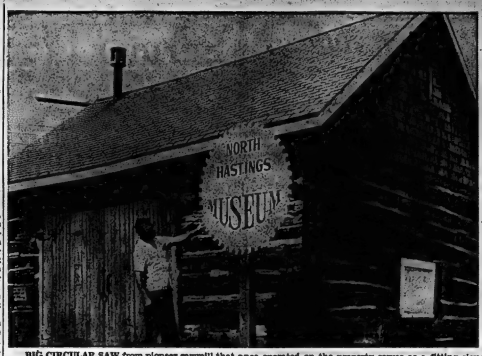
It is generally agreed that the tobacco grown by Mr. Vader a century ago must have been a hardy early maturing type to escape the early frosts.

The North Hastings Museum is a major attraction at the Lavallee Tent Park which each summer attracts hundreds of campers.

Started about five years ago, the tent park has close to 200 campsites on the shore of picturesque Lavallee Lake and every one of them is filled during the holiday season.

Actually the tent park has been a boon to the district tourist industry. Where a few years ago the lake area was abandoned farmland, it is now thronged with holidayers and the tent park provides year-round employment for a parks superintendent and several other workers.

Currently the campsite is being expanded to include a trailer park and recreation field. Plans also call for additional camp sites and for nearby Allen Lake to be opened up.

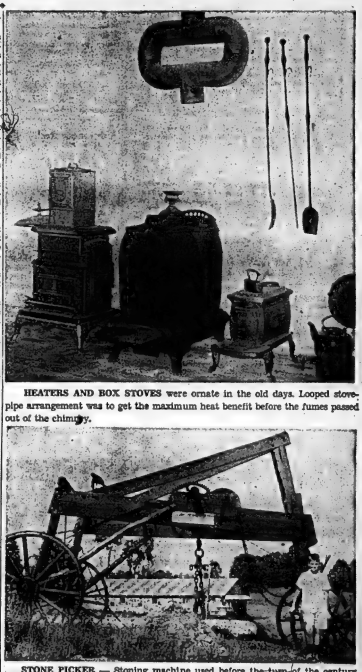


Dr. Scott's interest in things historical shows up in his efforts to determine how local places or lakes got their names. A case in point is Allen Lake.

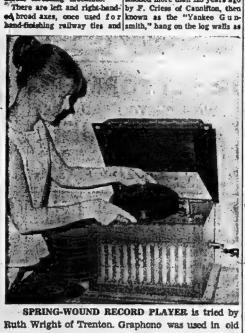
Many years ago it seems that a young Scottish immigrant named Allen, homesteaded the farm area about the lake, intending to bring his Old Country sweetheart to Canada as his bride when he completed the log house he was building.

But before the log house was finished Mr. Allen received the word that his bride-to-be had died.

With a broken heart Mr. Allen stopped work on his uncompleted log house and immediately left the area.



Today the rotted walls of the old cabin still stand in bushland near the lake which now bears Mr. Allen's name.



BIG CIRCULAR SAW from pioneer sawmill that once operated on the property serves as a fitting sign advertising the North Hastings Museum at Lavallee Tent Park in Faraday Township. The museum items, ranging all the way from a giant horse drawn "stone picker" to rare horses' "swamp shoes" and pioneer household equipment, all at one time used in North Hastings homes and farms, were personally collected by Dr. J. Russell Scott of Belleville. Lavallee Lake is about 10 miles north of Coe Hill on the Lower Faraday Road.

PORTABLE DENTAL CHAIR and treadle-operated dental drill, once used by itinerant Hasting county dentist, is examined by Carol Peacock.

HEATERS AND BOX STOVES were ornate in the old days. Looped stovepipe arrangement was to get the maximum heat benefit before the fumes passed out of the chimney.

SPRING-WOUND RECORD PLAYER is tried by Ruth Wright of Trenton. Graphomo was used in old Hogan's Hotel in the early 1900's. Records played only on one side.

OLD GUNS, two of them hand made 125 years ago by F. Criess, one time "Yankee Gunsmith" of Canniffton, are part of North Hastings collection.

STONE PICKER — Stoning machine used before the turn of the century to clear fields of big boulders is an outdoor exhibit at North Hastings Museum.

SWAMP SHOES — Museum owner Dr. J. Russell Scott examines rare "Swamp Shoes" worn like snowshoes by horses to keep them from becoming mired in muddy swamps.

BROAD AXES once used for finishing railway ties and squared building timbers are tried out by Roy Knobel of Fort Colborne, wooden sap bucket is seen at right.

IRON COOKING POT is tried out by Dr. Scott's mother, Mrs. C. S. Foster of Burlington. Heavy iron utensil was far cry from today's lightweight kitchen equipment.

PORTABLE SAD IRON is checked by Mrs. Roy Knobel of Fort Colborne. Burning charcoal was used to heat iron, with fumes rising from curved chimney at top.

According to Sports Illustrated, the National Football League was forced to merge with the rival American League to prevent a wholesale raid on its top talent.

The magazine, in a copyrighted article, said the then AFL Commissioner Al Davis' master plan for elevating his league to the number one position was to buy up all the NFL's quarterbacks.

The story continued by quoting Oakland general manager Scotty Stirling as saying:

"If this merger had been put off two days, we could have had 10 NFL players under contract at Oakland and four of them would have been quarterbacks."

The magazine claims that Stirling has already signed Los Angeles QB Roman Gabriel and was ready to grab Rudy Bukich of Chicago, Jim Ninowsky of Cleveland, Sonny Jurgensen of Washington, Milt Plum of Detroit, Fran Tarkenton of Minnesota and John Brodie of San Francisco.

It adds that Paul Hornung, Willie Wood and Herb Adderly were set to go to New York Jets while other Green Bay players, Henry Jordan and Jim Taylor, were also leaving the Packers for the AFL.

Apparently the American League was prepared to spare no horses, or money, to become the best.

Had the merger not come when it did, the NFL and AFL battle might have made the Viet Nam war seem like a Sunday School outing.

Swim fans are in for a treat next Thursday, September 1, when the Kinsmen present their annual water show at the Dundas Street swimming pool.

The show gets under way at 7.30 and will feature Beverly Boys, the Canadian ladies' diving champion, winner of silver and bronze medals at the British Empire Games. Other diving stars will also take pleft.

Synchronized swimming displays will be put on by Canada's championship team from the Pan American Games. Clown diving is also on the agenda.

Added to the program are the junior indoor one metre diving champions, Bob Eaton and Pat Hoskins.

Don Webb, well-known here, and former world champion lower diver, will also be in attendance. Webb is Miss Boys' coach.

Some local swimmers will also receive their awards for completing tests during the show.

It looks like a great evening and the Kinsmen are looking for a break from the weatherman. This show is an annual affair but was cancelled last year because of cold weather.

Sharpen up those shooting eyes, boys, the duck season is just around the corner.

The monthly report from the Tweed Lands and Forests announces the dates and limits for waterfowl in this area.

September 24 to December 15 inclusive is the season in the southern district. The bag limit is five and the possession limit is 10 for ducks, for geese and for rails, coots and gallinules in the aggregate. Wilson's snipe limit is 10 and 30 when woodcock is eight and 16.

Hunters may take four wood duck per day and may possess eight. On and after October 14, two additional scaup or goldeneye may be taken daily and four additional may be possessed.

The daily duck bag limit may include two canvasback or redhead ducks and two may be possessed.

Waterfowl hunters are also reminded of the new Canada Migratory Game Bird Hunting Permit which they must purchase. The fee is $2, at a post office, and these must be obtained as well as the regular hunting license. This is the first year for the permit.

The season in the same territories for grouse, prairie chicken, ptarmigan and pheasant. Pheasants have a bag limit of three while all the others have a daily bag limit of five, and 15 the most you can possess. The season for Hungarian partridge is September 24 to November 16, with the bag limit eight and the possession limit 16.

Bobcat Errors Costly

Kingston Indians took advantage of Belleville errors to even their best-of-three OASA Senior "S" series at one each, last night at Kingston McGaffin Stadium.

The home - towners whipped the Belleville Bobcats 11-4 to revenge their 7-2 defeat in the first game of the series.

The third and deciding game will be in Kingston Saturday at 3.00 p.m.

The Bobcats errored eight times to make the Kingston offensive pay as easy one. Belleville outhit the Indians 10-9.

Rick Locke singled and scored in the first frame for Belleville, and Terry LeSage upped the score to 2-0 in the third, when he slamed a homer into left field.

Kingston replied with a lone run in the fourth, when Charlie Pester scored. Next inning, two errors and a walk followed by a double by Doug Senior, gave Kingston three runs. Three more Kingston runs crossed the plate before the inning was over.

Belleville managed two more runs late in the game but never came close to challenging Kingston's lead.

Joe Barrous started on the Bobcat mound, and lasted till the fifth. He gave up only four hits, but errors by his team mates made his task difficult. Bob Lott took over for Barrous and allowed five hits in the final four frames. Combined, they managed eight strike outs.

Mike McMahon gave up 10 hits and struck out eight for Kingston.

Rick Locke slammed a homer and single to lead the Bobcats at the plate. Sam Mowat and Bill Mills had two hits each. Terry LeSage cracked a homer, and Jim Whyte doubled.

Doug Senior and Haven Ferguson led Kingston's winning effort with a double and single each.

Mexico Defeats Windsor Team

WILLIAMSPORT, Pa. (AP)—Oaxaca, Jalapa, took advantage of a defensive lapse of Rhein Main Air Force Base, West Germany, Wednesday to win 8-3 in extra innings in first-round action in the Little League baseball's World Series.

The victory moved Oaxaca into the championship against West New York, N.J., which earlier Wednesday defeated Kankakee, Ill., 3-1.

In a consolation game, Monterrey, Mexico, defeated Windsor Central, Ontario champion, 5-7, on a three-run homer by Jose Villa in the last inning.

Both teams lost their games Tuesday, Windsor losing 3-1 to Sacramento, Calif.

Rejects Return Bouts

PANAMA (AP) — The World Boxing Association reaffirmed Wednesday its stand against return bouts for world championships, rejecting an amendment that would give Eddie Cotton another chance against lightheavyweight champion Jose Torres.

However, the WBA indicated it still is willing to give dethroned title holders another opportunity when they lose titles by a close decision, or because of injury, or when there is public demand for a rematch.

The WBA also approved of its convention a measure introduced at Emile Griffith that no fighter can hold two titles at the same time. The courts had upheld such a ruling by the New York State Athletic Commission when it was challenged by Griffith, recognized as the welterweight champion only, although he never has lost his welterweight title in the ring.

Jim Deakin, outgoing WBA president, was reported showing considerable improvement after suffering a heart attack during the first session of the convention Monday.

Ontario Sweeps Bowling

WINNIPEG (CP) — Ontario bowlers won their final rounds in each of the three divisions Wednesday for an unprecedented sweep in the Canadian lawn bowling championship.

Records of 6-0 were posted by Allan Bradley's Kitchener team in the fours, the combination of George Shedden and Ken Jones of London, Ont., in the doubles and Gordon MacMillan of Ottawa in the singles.

George Cordell of Winnipeg, president of the Canadian Lawn Bowling Council, was the only other province had a similar achievement in the 12 years of national tournaments.

Bradley took out Reis Lplante's team from Saskatoon by a 22-13 score in the final round, leaving Quebec in the runner-up spot with a 5-1 record.

In the pairs, Robbins and Jones finished impressively with a 37-7 rout over the Saskatchewan team of James Campbell and Art Adams of Saskatoon.

MacMillan completed the sweep with a 21-12 victory over John White of Vancouver. John Henderson of Montreal was second with four victories.

Brampton Wins Over Petes

PORT CREDIT, Ont. (CP)— Don Arthurs scored twice Wednesday night to lead Brampton Excelsiors to a 7-6 victory over Peterborough in the second game of the Ontario Lacrosse Association Senior A finals.

The victory gave Brampton a 2-0 lead in the best-of-seven playoff with the third game scheduled for Peterborough Friday night.

Other Brampton scorers were Florie Tomchishen, Mike Finnegan, John Spicer, Jim Richardson and Bert Naylor.

John Davis, Roy Wood, Terry Bowser, Bobby Allan and Joe Todd scored for Peterborough.

Seals Acquire Pete Conacher

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—California Seals of the Western Hockey League acquired winger Pete Conacher Wednesday.

Conacher, a native of Toronto, played for Hershey of the American League last season and is signed with Boston Bruins of the National League.

MONTREAL (CP) — Flanker Peter Kempf, obtained from British Columbia Lions during the off season, scored all of Montreal Alouettes' points as they downed Hamilton Tiger-Cats 16-8 in an Eastern Football Conference game here Wednesday night before an estimated 20,000 spectators.

Kempf kicked a field goal in the first quarter and converted a touchdown in the second frame and added a pair of field goals in the final quarter to give the Alouettes their second victory in four starts this season.

Kempf's three field goals equalled Montreal's field goal output for the entire season last year.

His now has five for the season and his 16 points moved him into first place in the scoring race with 31 points, one more than Hamilton's Tommy Grant, who was inactive Wednesday night.

Montreal's win moved them to within two points of first place in the EFC standings. Hamilton and Ottawa Rough Riders share first place with six points apiece. The Rough Riders are undefeated in three games this year.

LOSE FIRST GAME

A touchdown by Art Baker and a pair of singles by Dave Suther is accounted for Hamilton's points in the defending Grey Cup champions suffered their first defeat of the season. The loss also marked the club's first in 11 games. They won their last four league games last season, two playoff games, the Grey Cup contest and their first three games this season.

Montreal won their last league victory over Hamilton Nov. 6, 1960, by a score of 21-6. They managed at 25-25 tie at Hamilton in 1962 and defeated the Ticats 37-6 in Hamilton Aug. 6, 1964—their last win over the defending champions.

Kempf started the Alouettes rolling with a 20-yard field goal at 8:44 of the opening quarter. The Tiger - Cats didn't get on the scoreboard until 9:44 of the middle frame when Suther's 27-yard field goal attempt was wide but good enough for a single point as Larry Fairbairn conceded the point in the Montreal end zone.

Hamilton took a 7-3 lead less than three minutes later when Baker dove over from the one-yard-line after Grant had set up the touchdown by latching on to two long passes from quarterback Tom Clements.

Montreal appeared to have scored a touchdown when a speedy halfback Bob Parsons took Suther's kickoff at the Montreal 14 yard - line after Baker's touchdown and ran the length of the field into the end zone. But Montreal was called for clipping on the Hamilton 18, the penalty moved the ball back to the Hamilton 33.

Kempf took over at that point and wound out Hamilton's lead when he took a 33-yard touchdown pass from quarterback Sonny Palonay after aftermath quarterback George Dork guided the Als from the Hamilton 33 to the Hamilton 23-yard-line.

Kempf converted his major score to give Montreal a 13-7 lead and increased Montreal's lead to 13-7 with a 35-yard field goal in the final quarter after the teams played a scoreless third quarter.

Hamilton came back with a single point three minutes later when Ed Learn conceded a single point in the Montreal end zone on Sutherin's 47-yard punt.

But Kempf closed out the scoring with his third field goal of the night with five seconds remaining to play after Dennis Davis intercepted a pass by Consenino on the Hamilton 35-yard-line.

Kempf's third field goal travelled 23 yards.

Hamilton end Zeno Karen suffered torn achilles tendons in his left ankle mid-way through the first quarter and is expected to be out of action the remainder of the season.

Hamilton held an edge in the statistics with 15 first downs to Montreal's 10. The Ticats picked up 140 yards rushing and 149 yards through the air for a total of 289 yards. The Alouettes rushed for 70 yards on 29 carries, up 135 yards passing for 205 yards offence.

Consenino attempted 22 passes and completed eight while Berk, Palonay and Paremore tried 18 passes and completed seven. Berk attempted nine passes and completed four. Palonay completed three of eight attempts and Paremore's lone attempt was incomplete.

Montreal's Gino Berretta punted nine times for a 43.2 average while Sutherin punted nine times for an average of 39.3.

Both teams fumbled once and lost the ball on each occasion. Montreal was penalized 205 times for 20 yards and Hamilton took seven penalties for 64 yards.

Paremore was Montreal's leading ground gainer with 41 yards on 14 carries. Don Lisbon led the pass receivers with two receptions for 69 yards. Kempf caught three for 45 yards.

Baker was Hamilton's top ground gainer with 43 yards on 11 carries. Grant caught three passes for 77 yards and Bethea caught three for 57 yards.

Defending Champ Out
Jr. Golf Dotted With Upsets

BRANDON (CP) — Giant-killers finished off the defending Canadian champion and four provincial champions Wednesday in the first round of match play for the Canadian junior golf championship.

In one 18-hole round dotted with upsets, Ian Thomas of London, Ont., who won the 1965 championship at Brae burn, Que., had a 2 and 1 win over Chris Seaver of Halifax.

And 1966 provincial winners from British Columbia, Alberta, Nova Scotia and New Brunswick — Prince Edward Island joined Thomas on the sidelines as 32 golfers moved into two rounds today aiming for a berth in Saturday's 36-hole final.

On the par - three 14th at the sun - drenched Brandon Golf and Country Club course he overshot the green twice to let Seaver tie the match, and then beat the next two holes to set up a 17-hole split that gave the Halifax star the victory.

Edmonton's Roger Klatt, Alberta champion, went down 3 and 1 to Larry LaFleur of St. Boniface, Man.

B.C. champion Doug Stewart of Vancouver bowed 2 and 1 to Ken Trowbridge of Brampton, Ont., and Jean Beaudoin of Edmundston, N.B., fell on the 19th to Don Bilsborough of Victoria.

Nova Scotia champion Graham MacIntyre of New Glasgow was a 2-and-1 loser to Miles Chambers of Toronto, Ont., after taking a 1-up nine-hole lead.

Medallist Peter Turner of Toronto scored a 3 and 2 victory over John Morgan of Victoria.

Turner's opponent in today's 18-hole morning round will be Ritchie Downey of Waterloo, who got by Jason Pasichnuk of Port Arthur, Ont., 1 up.

Winnipeg's Bob Miller had a 1-up lead after 17 but took a par five white Alec Lockington of Dundas, Ont., got a birdie, and lost on the 19th with a per of a missed 10-foot putt.

Other 36th-hole wins went to Bob Wynne of Ancaster, Ont., over Scott Seaver of Halifax, Chris' 15-year-old brother, Jack Scrymgeour of Calgary over Dale Tales of Nornada, Que., Wayne McDonald of Oakville, Ont., over Keith Allen of Calgary, and Bill Bilsborough over Rondreau.

The 1963 hole was also tough for San Francisco champion Brad Lucy, the only American among the 64 golfers who teed off Wednesday.

Lucy responded to a 1-up 15-hole lead held by Saskatchewan champion Rick Magnire of Saskatoon by recording a birdie 4, but Magnire did the same to win the match.

Prince Albert's Ted Rich, back Paul Sloan of Toronto 3 and 2.

Other seven provincial champions who qualified for match play, only two besides Magnire were their matches—Dave Hill of Winnipeg, 2 and 1 over Lawrence Bamford of Saskatoon, and Gar Hamilton, Jr., of Toronto, 2 up over Ross Ellison of Vancouver.

Vernon Law's first comeback as five years in the making. ursabort! No. 2 required only 1 hours and gave Pittsburgh trates instant relief.

Law came out of the bullpen ar the first time this season Wednesday night and backed Philadelphia for six nings as the Pirates trimmed he Phillies 6-4 and inched back ito the first place in the National League race. They lead San Francisco Giants, beaten by Cincinnati Reds 8-4 in an afternoon game, by one percentage point.

Law turned the tables on the Phils 24 hours after they had belted him from the mound in his first inning. He did not relire a batter Tuesday night, yielding three runs and failing o last for the 15th time in 21 starts.

In 1960 Law won 20 games for he world champion Pirates and captured the Cy Young award as that year's top pitcher. Last season, after a five-year bout with arm trouble, he put it all together again, posting a 17-6 record and a 2.16 earned run average to earn Comeback of the Year honors.

This year has been no picnic for the 36-year-old Chandler. After his brief stint Tuesday night he showed an 8-7 won-lost record and a fat ERA of 4.46.

ALLOWS ONE HIT

Wednesday night he came on for starter Tommie Sisk in the fourth inning, worked his way out of a bases-full jam and allowed only one hit the rest of the way in nailing down victory No. 8.

While the Pirates moved past San Francisco again, Los Angeles Dodgers nipped Atlanta Braves 3-1 in 11 innings and moved within two games of the top. Houston Cubs edged New York Mets 4-3 in other NL games.

The Pirates broke a 4-4 tie on Bill Mazeroski's RBI single in the fifth inning and added an insurance run in the sixth on Matty Alou's run - scoring hit. The Phils had tied it 4-4 in the fourth, Clay Dalrymple's single delivering the run and knocking out Sisk.

Mazeroski and Bob Bailey each drove in two runs as the Pirates clipped three Philadelphia pitchers for 13 singles.

Vada Pinson cracked a grandslam homer and two doubles in the Reds' romp over 20 game winner Gaylor Perry and the Giants. Bill Henry, who replaced Perry in the fifth with Cincy trailing 3-1, was greeted by Pinson's 3-run loaded shot.

END WINNING STRING

Joe Nuxhall went the distance for the Reds, who had lost six in a row, and boosted his record to 5-4. The loss, Perry's first since July 14, ended a four-game winning string for the Giants.

Maury Wills' single scored Jim Gilliam with an unearned run in the 11th giving the Dodgers their fourth straight victory in the three one-run decisions over Atlanta.

Phil Regan, who will-pitched the lying run home in the ninth, blanked the Braves thereafter and gained his 12th victory against a single loss.

Picton Loses In 15th

Four unearned runs in the 15th inning helped Bath eliminate Picton Kinsmen 6-3 in OASA Intermediate "B" playdowns before the largest crowd of the year at Picton last night.

All six Bath runs were unearned as Picton's Eldon Gray lost a heart-breaker. He gave up only three hits over the 15-inning route, two of them in the final frame, struck out 16 and walked but one.

A hit batter and two errors loaded the sacks in the 15th and winning pitcher Ken Lewis drove all three home with a double. He was erased on base before Willie Thurlow hit a homer to end the scoring.

Bath's only other hit was Davidson's double as Bath netted lone runs in the second and sixth frames. Picton had runs in the third and fourth.

C. Franklin started and gave way to Lewis in the eighth for the winners. They gave up seven hits, struck out 18 and passed nine.

Picton left 15 runners stranded and their five errors proved most costly. Bath erred but twice.

Hitting for the Kinsmen were Eldon Gray with a double and single, Warren Ostrander and Keith Stacey, each with a double, Ron Weese, Leo St. Denis and Keith MacDonald, each with a single.

Picton lost the series opener, in Kingston, 2-1.

ARRANGEMENTS FOR TRAINING CAMP of Belleville's Senior "A" Hockey Club were completed yesterday in Trenton. The contract for rental of ice at Trenton's Community Gardens was signed and it is expected the club will begin training the last week in September or the first week in October. The team will move to its home rink in Belleville as soon as ice is available here. While the club general manager Robert Temple and Community Gardens manager Ronald Thornton check the contract, playing coach Floyd Crawford (left) and the team's business manager, Ron Fralick, look on.

Ties OASA Series

Madoc Clips Point Anne

By ROBERT SNEFJELLA

Led by the pitching and scoring of Larry Griffin, Madoc fought back from an early deficit to grab a 7-5 victory over Point Anne last night in their second OASA Junior "C" meeting. The Madoc win at Point Anne evened the series at 1-1.

Key to the victors' win was the clutch pitching of Larry Griffin over the final five frames. He gave up only one hit and struck out nine. Griffin also scored the winning and winning runs, late in the game.

The winners jumped on Point Anne pitching ace Ron Maracle for three runs in the first frame, when Griffin powered a homer with two men on base.

Point Anne replied with two runs in their half of the inning, as Ron Maracle blasted a two - run, wrong - field homer.

In the fourth, two Madoc errors paved the way for three Point Anne runs. It was the only inning in which the losers got more than a single hit, as they banged out three.

Griffin scored the tying run in the sixth for Madoc, when he scored from third on a passed ball. The Madoc star got on base with one in the eighth, and later scored the winning run on Ab Reid's single.

In the ninth, Poined Anne threatened with two men on and none out. Griffin struck out one, and made the next two pop outs to preserve his victory.

Darryl Kramp started on the Madoc mound, and lasted till the fifth. He gave up five hits, fanned six, and walked five. Griffin took over and allowed only one hit while fanning nine and walking five.

Ron Maracle gave up 10 hits in defeat. He threw third strikes past five and walked one.

Ray LeSage and Harold Bailey had two base hits each for Madoc, Griffin had his homer, while Brian Gray, Brian Stewart, Len Mesteri, Ab Reid, and George Aikman had singles.

Vern Wheeler stroked two singles for Point Anne. Maracle had his homer run, and Mike Cook, Dave Akey, and Rick Rosebush singletons.

Madoc: Gray 3b, LeSage rf, Stewart 2b, Griffin cf, Masters lf, Reid ss, Bailey 1b, Atkinson c, Kramp p.

Point Anne: Cook cf, D. Maher lf, Akey c, Maracle p, Rosebush 2b, E. Maher ss, G. Maher 3b, Whalen 1b, MacDonald rf.

S. Warner Clobbers Lightfoots

A ten-run third-inning helped Stewart Warner trounce Lightfoot Construction 10-3 in the opening game of their Commercial Softball League semi-finals last night.

The winners had a 14-0 lead before Lightfoots plated five in the sixth.

They play again Monday, at Prince Charles School, while City Hotel visits Foffi Cafe for their third game tonight.

Doug Ellis pitched a strong game for Stewart Warner. He gave up three hits and lost his shutout via four errors in the sixth. Ellis struck out 13 and walked three.

George Young started and lost with Don Smith taking over after three batters in the third. They gave up 19 hits, fanned two and walked five.

Each team erred six times.

Lyle Wannamaker again paced the winners at bat by clouting a home run, a double and single. Doug Ellis helped his own cause with a circuit blast while Fiori Geogan hit a double and a single. Gary Gow doubled, Rod Turner, Keith Bertrim, Claude Carr, Chuck Rowbotham and Pat Glancey had singles.

Don Smith managed a double, Don Wood and Joe Clapp a single each for Lightfoots.

A bad collision between the losers' Rusty Garvin and Doug Rose injured both players late in the game.

Intelligencer Reaches Loop Finals

Lucky thirteen earned The Intelligencer a spot in the Departmental Softball League finals last night.

The Intelligencer whipped Public Works 13-7 to capture the three-of-five semi - final set. Three games to ten. The winners scored 13 runs in each of the three victories.

Cy Hall, leading the Fire Department two games to one, will bid for a finals berth in tonight's game at Hillcrest School. Game time is 6.30.

Intelligencer scored in each of the first five innings, with a big six in the fifth clinching the decision, last night. Johnny Edwards was strong in the clutches and got good support while hurling the win. Moe Huddleston toiled on the losers' hilltop and gave up 13 hits.

Lyle Thompson spearheaded the victors' attack by slamming a triple, two doubles and a single in five trips. Bob Beare was close behind with a double and two singles while Don Wood contributed a double and single.

The hard - hitting losers got three singles from Bob Dafoe and Rod Green, a homer and double from "Pug" Kellar and two hits each from Bill Hannah and Miller. Doug Murray was ejected from the game by umpire Al Kelleher in the second inning.

Trap and Gun Results

George Roberts and Earl Marvin potted perfect scores of 25 at the Quinte Trap and Gun Club's Wednesday shoot.

B. Young and J. Rutan followed closely with 24 and 23 respectively.

Other scores were: Garry Gow 23; L. Harrington 22; J. Walsh 22; D. Johnston 21; B. Thomson 21; L. Gauthier 21.

HOW TO PUNCH-SHOTS FROM SAND
Most golfers play all of their sand shots pretty much the same way; most use some variety of explosion shot.
Blasting from sand usually is necessary when you are near the green, when you have a low lie, or when the bunker has a big lip.
However, most professionals find it easier to hit sand shots almost as they would fairway irons whenever the situation allows. If the ball is sitting up well in the sand, and if the bunker hasn't much lip, I suggest you try playing the shot just as you would from the fairway.
Try the ball well back in your stance so that the clubhead strikes it before contacting the sand. Then swing largely with your arms, so as not to disturb your balance in the sand.
It is vital to avoid hitting the sand first. Therefore, choke down on your club and keep your left arm fully extended at impact. Choking down and extending the arm will compensate for the fact that your feet are lower than normal in the sand.

Chiefs Win In 22

Homer Settles Marathon

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Nine pitchers struck out 46 batters and allowed 25 hits as Syracuse Chiefs edged Richmond Braves 6-5 Wednesday night in an International League game that tied the league endurance record of 22 innings.

Pancho Herrera finally ended it with a 360-foot home run over the centre field fence that won for the Chiefs.

The record was established in 1950 when Rochester Red Wings defeated Jersey City 3-2.

Elsewhere, Toledo Mud Hens but out Toronto Maple Leafs 4-0, Rochester Red Wings swept both ends of a doubleheader 5-4 and 6-4 against Jacksonville Suns, and Buffalo Bisons defeated Columbus Jets 3-1.

The Syracuse-Richmond marathon lasted four hours and 34 minutes, and Ron Chandler, the fifth Syracuse pitcher, got the victory. Jim Britton, the fourth Richmond pitcher who had held the Chiefs scoreless from the 13th inning, took the loss after giving up Herrera's homer. It was the fourth hit of the game for Herrera.

Dick Hughes was for Toledo, allowing three hits. Gary Waslewski pitched a two-hitter for Toronto, but two errors in the same inning gave the Mud Hens the only run of the game.

Swimmers Tired But Race Today

BY DON MacLACHLAN

VANCOUVER (CP) — Two girls with a string of successes behind them were expected to provide a close battle today in the 220-yard backstroke event at the British Columbia centennial swim meet.

But whether Karen Muir, 15, of Kimberley, South Africa, and Elaine Tanner, 17, of Vancouver, were ready remained a question mark.

Miss Muir, world record holder in the 110-yard event, was reported to have recovered from back strain but her coach said she and her team - mates were "pretzed out" after last week's national United States meet.

Miss Tanner, Canadian record holder, said she was tired after the British Empire Games earlier this month and had time for only "a couple of days" of training before the four-day B.C. meet.

Heats and finals also were scheduled today in the 110-yard freestyle and breaststroke and the 440-yard medley for both men and women. Events take place in the 50 - metre University of B.C. outdoor pool.

Empire Games medallist Ralph Hutton, 18, of Ocean Falls, B.C., was expected to challenge Mickey Of lo Diana in the men's 220-yard backstroke.

He also was favored in the men's 440-yard individual medley but the entry list included powerful Ken Webb of the University of Indiana, former world record holder.

In Wednesday's only event, Greg Fink of Los Angeles covered the 1,650 - yard trail in 29 17:31.2.

Don Schollander, 20, of Santa Clara, Calif., who set three world records at the U.S. meet, was an odds-on favorite in the men's 110 freestyle.

Another Santa Clara swimmer, Sharon Finnerar, 20, holder of the two 200-metre mark, said she would ask officials for a special time trial for a combined crack at the 200- and 1,650-yard marks if she performs well in the meet.

Defeats Gonzales

Curtis Cokes Cops WBA Welter Title

● NEW ORLEANS (AP)—"As long as I own the title I don't care how much money I get," said Curtis Cokes, who won the world welterweight boxing championship Wednesday night but earned only $5,715.00.

Cokes outfoxed Manuel Gonzales in the 15-round bout for the World Boxing Association's version of the 147-pound crown. Cokes also will probably get recognition from the New York Athletic Commission and the French Boxing Federation—which both act independently of the WBA.

Cokes pursued Gonzales throughout the fight.

In the 12th, Cokes got into trouble and went down for the mandatory eight - count. Only a few seconds remained in the round but Cokes said he didn't care who his next opponent is. There was lockerroom talk of a bout with Florent Jean Gregorek.

Josselin won a fight that was billed as a welter title match earlier this month in South Africa but the French Boxing Federation unexpectedly withdrew its version of the match.

The WBA and New York both stripped Emile Griffith of the welter title. The WBA did it because Griffith didn't defend within six months; New York took the crown away from Griffith after he won the middleweight championship from Dick Tiger.

Cokes, 29, pushed his record to 43-8-2 with the victory. Gonzalez, 27, now 56-6-6, said it was his last fight as a welter and he'd move up to the middleweight division.

Eastern Scoring Leaders

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Peter Konrad accounted for all the Montreal Alouette scoring in a 16-4 victory over Hamilton Tiger-Cats Wednesday night to take a one-point lead in Eastern Football Conference scoring.

Konrad scored the only Montreal touchdown, converted it and added three field goals to give him 32 points in four games. Tommy Grant of Hamilton, held scoreless Wednesday, is in second place with 28 points on five touchdowns.

Don Sutherin of Hamilton kicked two single points and remained in third place with 25 points.

Walt Tucker of Ottawa Rough Riders is fourth with 22 points, John Vikmas of Toronto Argonauts follows with 20 and Moe Racine of Ottawa has eight.

Art Baker of Hamilton scored the Tiger-Cats touchdown to join 10 other players tied at six points each.

Manitoba Wins Third Canoe Lap

ST. JOHNS, Que. (CP)—Manitoba paddlers raced 20 miles up the Richelieu River in less than three hours Wednesday to take the lead in the Canadian centennial canoe pageant, a 445-mile canoe race from Montreal to New York.

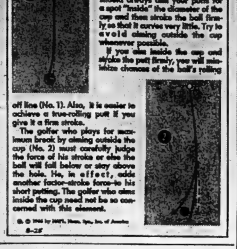
The Manitoba entry covered the distance from Beloeil to St. Johns in two hours, 32 minutes and 53 seconds, nearly eight minutes ahead of the British Columbia team which won the first two laps Monday and Tuesday.

The racers enter United States waters in Lake Champlain's south lap from St. Johns to Plattsburgh, N.Y., on Lake Champlain. The race continues to New York City via Lake Champlain and the Hudson River.

In order of finish behind British Columbia and Alberta in Wednesday's lap were Ontario, Saskatchewan, Quebec, New Brunswick, Nova Scotia, Yukon and Northwest Territories.

FAILED AGAIN

GUNTERSVILLE, Ala. (AP) Brink wind from the third straight day prevented Lee Taylor of Downey, Calif., from trying Wednesday to qualify his jet boat for a run at the world water speed record. He's after the world mark of 200 m.p.h. held by Don Campbell of England.



THE ARNOLD Palmer Method
by GOLF'S 4-TIME MASTERS WINNER

AIM SHORT PUTTS 'INSIDE' THE HOLE

I find that too many golfers play for too much break on short putts. Unless there is a great deal of sidehill slope to the green, I think you should always aim your putts for a spot "inside" the diameter of the cup and then stroke the ball firmly so that it carries very little. Try to avoid coming outside the cup when you miss.

If you aim inside the cup and strike the putt firmly, you will minimize chances of the ball's rolling off line (No. 1). Also, it is easier to achieve a free-rolling putt if you give it a firm stroke.

The golfer who plays for maximum break by aiming outside the cup (No. 2) must carefully judge the force of his stroke or else the ball will fall below or stay above the hole. He, in effect, adds another factor—stroke force—to the short putting. The golfer who aims inside the cup need not be so concerned with this element.

Beaten Orioles Still Well Up

By RON RAPOPORT
Associated Press Sports Writer

BALTIMORE Orioles are in a bit of a slump but it will be a miracle if Detroit Tigers or Cleveland Indians can take advantage of it.

Both clubs picked up a game on the Orioles Wednesday, the Indians with a 10-4 victory over them, but with less than 40 games to go Baltimore could hardly be blamed for not taking its three - game losing streak seriously.

Baltimore is 11½ games up on the second-place Tigers and 13 ahead of the Indians, who are in third.

Unaffected by the dip in his team's fortunes is Frank Robinson who raised his league-leading homer total to 40 Wednesday with two shots in the losing effort.

That's one more than Frank's best previous output, attained with Cincinnati Reds in 1962.

In other American League action, Detroit beat Chicago white and 6-5, California Angels edged New York Yankees 2-1, Washington Senators squeezed by Minnesota Twins 4-3 in 11 innings and Kansas City Athletics took both games of a doubleheader 4-3 and 8-5 from Boston Red Sox.

The big Cleveland bats were young by Joe Azcue, who belted three runs batted in, and Rico Carty and Vic Davalillo, with two apiece. Robinson's three RBI raised his total for the season to 96, just two behind the league leader, teammate Boog Powell.

Bill Freehan's homer started a four-run second inning for the Tigers, Willie Horton also homered and Mickey Lolich, with a little help from Orlando Pena, won his 13th game of the season.

A pitching duel between Fred Talbot of the Yankees and Fred Newman of the Angels came to an end in the sixth inning when Ed Kirkpatrick sent a two-run homer, the sixth hit off Talbot, into the stands. Joe Pepitone hit his 28th homer in the bottom of the inning, the sixth Yankee hit.

The Twins and Senators took turns leading in their game and an 11th inning error by Zoilo Versalles paved the way for the Washington triumph.

With one out and two on, a grounder went through the Minnesota shortstop's legs allowing the tying run to score. Ken McMullen then singled in the winning one.

Roger Repoz' three run homer in the opener and two-run blasts by Ed Charles and Jim Gosger in the nightcap sent the Athletics to their victory.

Whips Latta 15-3

Shannonville Wins First

Dave Lewis's pitching and battery-mate Rod Hill's big bat carried Shannonville by the Lee-opening 15-3 triumph over Latta here last night.

Lewis stopped Latta on three hits while Hill cracked two three-run homers to give Shannonville first blood in the four-of-seven South Hastings Baseball League finals.

Second game of the set is scheduled for Sunday at 2:00 All games are at the Belleville Fairgrounds.

Latta led 3-2 until Hill's first three-ply blast helped the winners net five in the fifth. He crashed another homer with two mates aboard in the eighth.

Latta shrank out 17 batters and walked but one while getting perfect support afield.

Lorne Cartwright and Bob Smith in the sixth buried for Latta. They gave up 11 hits, fanned four and walked three. The club had six miscues.

Aiding Hill in the hit department was Bill Butterworth with a triple, double and single. Bob Detlor had a triple and single. Wayne Segger a double, Carl Boomhower, Jack Hughes and Dave Lewis a single each.

Doug Chisholm let a two-run homer, Larry Mavety and Doug Robins, single each in defeat.

How They're Biting

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The fishing across Ontario this week was as varied as the weather, except that where the weather was worst the fishing was best.

The exception was in the southern section of the province, where the department of lands and forests station for Lake Simcoe reported both weather and fishing good.

Best catch reported by the 22 districts of the department was a 32-pound muskellunge taken in the Wahnabeese area of Georgian Bay in the Lake Simcoe district.

The district reports:

SOUTH

Lake Simcoe — Angling success very good in Georgian Bay area, poor at Six Mile Lake and Gloucester Pool. Severn River fair for pike, bass and panfish. Lake Simcoe, bass fair to good, lake trout fair. Sparrow Lake, pickerel and bass poor, panfish fair to good.

EAST

Kemptville — Fishing for all species fair to poor. Pickerel good in the Upper Rideau and at the lighthouse at Kars. A few big muskellunge taken from the Rideau River east of Merrickville.

Lindsay — In the northern area, bass and panfish good, lake trout, speckled trout, muskellunge and pickerel poor to fair. In the Kawartha Lakes, panfish excellent, bass and muskellunge good, pickerel fair. In Rice Lake, bass and muskellunge fair, pickerel poor. In the lower Trent, panfish good, pike good in Bradley Bay, bass and pickerel fair to good, muskellunge poor to fair.

Tweed—Lake trout and speckled trout fair to good in the Dacre division, poor elsewhere. Rainbow trout good in Mosquito and Garnite lakes, poor elsewhere. Pickerel good in Cashe, Crosa, Buckshot, Robs, Crowe, Moira, Beaver and Marion areas, fair in the Ottawa River. Pike good in Wolfers Bay and Southbay of Lake Ontario, fair in eastern and western lakes. Bass excellent to good. Muskellunge fair to good; panfish good.

WEST

Lake Huron — Bass poor throughout the district. Pike fair to good in Stokes Bay area. Speckled trout fair to good in Bruce County, poor elsewhere. Rainbow trout poor.

Lake Erie—Muskellunge good and improving on Lake St. Clair. Pickerel fair to good and smallmouth bass good in southern Lake Huron and Long Point Bay areas. Panfish poor throughout the district. Bass good in St. Clair River.

Champs Winners In Tennis

BROOKLINE, Mass. (AP)—Defending champions Roy Emerson and Fred Stolle were an easy victory Wednesday, but two other top - seeded teams were given stiff tests before reaching the second round of U.S. national doubles tennis tournament.

The Australians put down David Cross of Rockport, Mass., and Woody Goldbaum of Weston, Mass., 6-3, 6-2, 6-1.

Tony Roche and John Newcombe of Australia, the No. 3 seeds, also won, eliminating John Pickens of Tuscaloosa, Ala., and Bill Fraser of Fort Collins, 6-1, 6-3, 6-4.

But Manuel Santana of Spain, who has just been seeded No. 1 in the national singles at Forest Hills next month, and Luis Garcia of Mexico were pushed to 17-all in the seconnet before going on to win 8-6, 9-7, 6-4 over Mike Sprengelmeyer, of Spencer, Iowa, and Jose Villarete, the Philippines.

The top U.S. team of Dennis Ralston and Clark Graebner were extended to defeating another U.S. pair, Jerry Cromwell and James Osborne, 7-9, 6-4, 6-4, 13-11.

Keith Carpenter of Montreal teamed with James McManus of Berkeley, Calif., to defeat the U.S. team of Steve Aruyer and Jim Rombeau 6-4, 7-5, 6-2, 6-4.

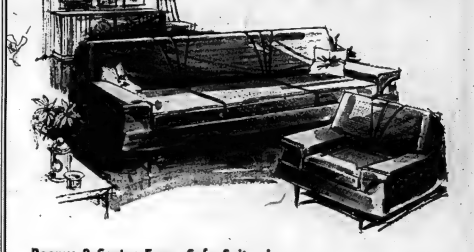
In women's play, Vicki Berner of Vancouver and Faye Urban of Windsor, Ont., defeated Cecila Martinez of San Francisco and Elena Subirats, Mexico, 6-2, 6-3.

Grey Cup Parade On Friday

VANCOUVER (CP)—The 1966 Grey Cup parade here will be held on a Friday night—for the first time in the history of the annual event.

The parade, scheduled for Nov. 25, has always been held on Saturday with a view to coding the Canadian football classic, played each November here or in Toronto.

City officials hope rescheduling the parade will alleviate policing of Vancouver's annual Friday night pre-game blowout —still this year a regular feature of West Coast edition of the Grey Cup.



WILL START TALKS

MONTREAL (CP)—A spokesman for Hydro - Quebec said Wednesday that negotiations will begin with Ontario Hydro to avoid a possible shortage of electric power in Quebec during the winter of 1966-69.

The Trots

TORONTO (CP) — Armbro Highland, two-year-old pacing filly owned by M. J. Webster of Bramford, won the $7,500 added Canadian Standardbred Horse Society Futurity Wednesday night at Greenwood Raceway.

Brian Webster drove Armbro Highland to a two-length victory over Leslie Fay. Phylis Gold was third. The time for the mile was 2:12 1-5 and Armbro Highland paid $5.20, $3.20 and $2.20.

Ron Fagan of Goderich, Ont., posted his 120th victory of the season with Attorney's Bob, owned by G. H. Fung of Goshen, N.Y., in the seventh race.

OTTAWA (CP) — Check8, driven by Ken McElroy, won the featured $700 ninth race at Rideau Carleton raceway Wednesday night and paid $45.30 for his sixth victory of the year.

BATAVIA, N.Y. (CP)—Nellie Grey, owned by two western New Yorkers, stopped Billy Hal C., the favorite, by 1¼ lengths in the $600 feature at Batavia Downs Wednesday night.

Billy is owned by John and Marion Sled of Alba Crest, Ont.

Willie Champ, owned by Connie and Maurice Munroe of Otisiwa, won the fifth, paying $7.60.

Three Playgrounds Transform 'Grey' District in Montreal

By Joanned Zeerbrikhan

MONTREAL (CP)—The petitions addressed to Montreal city council demanded that a car dump, a refuse dump and St. Louis Square be transformed into fiesta areas and playgrounds for the neighborhood kids. More than 1,000 signatures were appended.

City council responded immediately.

Now, in Montreal's "grey" or [illegible] deprived zone, bordered by Lajoie, Lawrence, Sherbrooke, St. Denis and Mount Royal Streets in the east-central area, music and a festival atmosphere have replaced the nocturnal wails of crying tots and the confused sing-songs of drunk inhabitants staggering through the poorly-lit streets.

"We were ourselves amazed and encouraged by the response of these people," said Hector Ouellet, University Settlement representative and initiator of this social revolution project. "Just look at the turnout. Marvellous."

Adults, teens and tots were packed into the muddy little playground on Hotel de Ville Street, in the heart of the diseased area, surrounded by 50-year - old apartment houses. Rusty pieces of steel heaped in one corner lay as vestiges of the car dump that once was there.

Light bulbs dangled overhead from wires fitted for the occasion. A local group was performing on an improvised platform of soap-boxes and wooden planks. Everybody was dancing.

PARENTS PLEASED

The people were celebrating a victory made possible through community effort: Their children now had a playground and would not have to play in the streets. The parents looked on and smiled.

"The project was born out of the eloquence of certain statistics," said Mr. Ouellet.

On the basis of the 1951 census, University Settlement, a Red Feather organization with which both McGill University and the University of Montreal are collaborating, found that the region had a density of 22,000 people per square mile, one of the highest in North America, as compared with New York's 19,000.

Average income was $2,700 compared to Montreal's average of $4,000. Some 90 per cent of the inhabitants lived as tenants in apartment houses built as early as 1920. More than 40 per cent of the population was below 20 years of age.

"And there is a high percentage of female wage-earners and crime incidence is high too," Mr. Ouellet added.

"In fact it is a region of very high social pathology. Montreal's 'grey zone'." Dr. J. V. Fiset, director of University Settlement, said in an interview.

In this predominantly French-speaking region increasingly inhabited by immigrants, the people have taken refuge in a sort of stoical individualism noxious to the solution of their own problems. The primary establishment has to stimulate the population into participation in movements for their material and social betterment.

KIDS REPLACE BUMS

"We are happy at the success in obtaining playgrounds for the kids," Dr. Fiset said. "We now have tremendous hopes for the redevelopment of the sector."

But behind the drafting and presentation of the petitions worked les Travailleurs Etudiants du Quebec (TEQ), Quebec's version of the Company of Young Canadians. Working in conjunction with Dr. Fiset's organization, TEQ made this one of its 32 projects currently under way throughout the province.

TEQ's four - member team went around talking to local inhabitants in restaurants, barber shops, pubs and private apartments with the aim of sounding the people's attitudes.

"We saw that they wanted to do something about the situation," said TEQ's Gilles Huot, 24, University of Montreal architecture student. "So we suggested ideas in most pressing cases and local leaders organized everything themselves."

"And St. Louis Square no more is the haunt of bums," remarked Father Jacques Pilon, 32, Sherbrooke University social science student. "It now has become the kingdom of kids."

"But this is only the beginning," said Mr. Ouellet. "We have to organize and create a vigorous community spirit which will make these people involved in efforts to improve their own lot."

Dr. Fiset mentioned similar work being carried out in Winnipeg and Vancouver.

"But I think we have barely started. We still have a long way to go."

The Tracks

FORT ERIE, Ont. (CP)—Royal Tara, top filly in Canadian racing last season, showed class Wednesday by upsetting favorite Coogan in the featured $11,175 Dutchess Stakes at Fort Erie race track.

Royal Tara held off Cologne to win by a neck in its four-furlong stakes victory of the season. Royal Tara paid $10.50, $3.20 and $2.60.

The daily double paid $73.70 as Aberlyte won the first at $22.40 and Lois Scawd the second at $4.90.

PLAN SERIES

NEW YORK (AP)—The best tennis players of the United States and Australia will meet next month in six-match series in six different cities which might well be a preview of the December Davis Cup challenge round. Bob Malaga of Cleveland announced plans for his unprecedented road show at the draw Wednesday for the national championships Sept. 1-11 at the West Side Tennis Club at Forest Hills, N.Y.

Champions Declared In Sailing

PORT CARLING, Ont. (CP)—John Wright of Toronto Wednesday was declared winner of the Junior Canadian sailing promotional championships for boys and girls 16 and under.

Eric Lye, also of Toronto, who had a big lead at the close of racing, was disqualified in one of his best runs for a breach of the rules.

Winners were chosen by points on the basis of their best five of six races which began Monday on Lake Rousseau.

Wright, with crew Colin Babcock, finished the first two days with 3814 points. He came on to win with a final total of 5714.

Lye finished the first two days with 5094 points. That was lodged his final total at the end of racing, good enough for third place.

In second place was Ron Blakeney of Halifax with 5414 points. Simon Bruce-Lockhart of Godbury was fourth with 70 and Charles Gilbert, Lake Clark, Que., fifth with 72.

TORONTO (CP)—Rob Black, 17, of the Royal Vancouver Yacht Club, won the Canadian Yachting Association pre-centennial O. K. Dinghy junior single-handed sailing championship Wednesday.

In second place was Malcolm Cassiday, 20, and in third place Peter McDougal, 17, both of the Royal St. Lawrence Yacht Club, Montreal.

New Uproar Over Jets Could Force W. Germany Into a Cabinet Shuffle

By PETER BUCKLEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The new uproar in West Germany about the Luftwaffe's hard-luck Starfighter jet could force Chancellor Ludwig Erhard into a cabinet shuffle at a time when his political fortunes are at a low ebb.

The suspension of Luftwaffe General Werner Panitzki, after his outspoken criticism of the defence ministry has taken some of the pressure off Defence Minister Kai-Uwe von Hassel, but demands for von Hassel's resignation have not subsided in the German press.

As successor to the fiery Franz-Joseph Strauss in the exceptionally touchy defence portfolio, von Hassel inherited an air force committed to buy 700 of the American-designed Starfighters.

CAPABILITIES ALTERED

Defence experts say modifications and extra equipment ordered for the plane have altered capabilities. And the fact that many of the technicians charged with Starfighter maintenance are draftees, whose 18-month compulsory service is barely long enough for safe-of-quate training, is said to aggravate the situation.

Sixty-one Starfighter crashes in the last five years, with the loss of 35 pilots, have brought increasing demands from the West German people and opposition for a shakeup in the defence ministry. Inevitably, Erhard has been under pressure to begin the shakeup at the top, with von Hassel.

Erhard has had to face a crushing series of problems since becoming chancellor, beginning with the outspoken contempt in which he was held by former chancellor Konrad Adenauer.

CAUSED ALARM

And a resurgence of support for the opposition Social Democrats under West Berlin Mayor Willy Brandt has caused further alarm in the ranks of Erhard's Christian Democratic party.

Recent public opinion polls indicate the Christian Democrats no longer enjoy the support of the majority of West German voters and there are convincing signs that Erhard has lost much of the party's confidence.

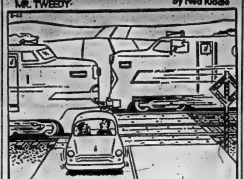
A man given to the velvet-glove approach and compromise, Erhard now is presented with the type of situation he has been least adept at handling.

If the dismissal von Hassel to appease the defence minister's critics, he stands a good chance of alienating some of the strong support von Hassel enjoys in North Germany.

But to keep von Hassel on is to invite still further criticism in an area of politics—defence—that has become the most sensitive in post-war Germany.

SEEMS SECURE

For all the criticism within Germany of Erhard's leadership, his position seems relatively secure.



No figure has yet emerged within the Christian Democratic party with support enough to challenge him. In any event, there are few ways under the constitution that he could be forced to step down.

Although the Christian Democrats need the support of the minority Free Democrats to control Bonn's lower house, the round, cigar-smoking chancellor is likely to be able to head the government at least until the next federal elections in 1965.

By then, the Starfighter nightmare may have faded from view.

Algeria's Riches Are Burden, Economy Geared to Wealthy Must Now Serve Impoverished

Algeria's riches are becoming an embarrassment. The country's economy prior to independence was geared to the rich French market and affluent French colonials. Now it must meet the demands of a largely impoverished population. A Canadian Press reporter who visited the country describes its dilemma.

By PETER BUCKLEY

ALGIERS (CP) — Algeria ceases to independence with a treasure-chest of riches beyond the dreams of the fierce Barbary Coast pirates who once pillaged Mediterranean shipping from the shelter of Algeri...s ports.

But by an unexpectedly bitter irony, that wealth has become a burden to the distraught leaders of the North African nation now that the colonists have fled with their skills and expensive tastes.

Acres of modern port facilities in the beautiful harbor of Algiers and in its counterparts at Oran and Annaba must be maintained, although seagoing traffic is only a fraction of what it was when Algeria was an integrated "department" of France.

Factories which turned out consumer and luxury goods for the former colonists cannot be left to rot, although Algerian purchasing power is low and the market for such goods has shrivelled.

The sophisticated transportation network—smooth highways, fast modern trains and numerous air routes—would be a blessing, had not both freight and passenger traffic fallen off with a consequent drop in transport revenue.

An economy designed primarily to feed the rich market in France—when it was not catering to the colonists' own sophisticated tastes—has been inherited by Algerians whose average income is less than $300 a year and who are still largely illiterate.

It is champagne for people who need milk.

FRENCH DEPART

Trained personnel who could be used to produce the bare necessities have to be diverted into sustaining an economic and technical superstructure which may not be needed again for decades.

Ninety per cent of the estimated 1,500,000 French and other Europeans who once called Algeria home have emigrated since the country gained independence from France in 1962.

They left behind skyscraper cities, fashionable shops, chic sachets, prosperous farm estates and the basic infrastructure of Western life.

They took with them their capital, skills, experience and purchasing power.

There have been frenzied attempts to bring up new administrators, technicians and other skilled and semi-skilled workers. A glddying flood of trained personnel has swept in from France, Egypt, Eastern Europe and other friendly sources.

But Algeria still generally lacks the right man for the right job.

Those workers and managers who are competent—and many could stand the competition in any economy—tend to be snowed under by the work the others can't or won't handle.

BEGAN AT BOTTOM

"In effect, we were not prepared for anything before independence," a young government official said.

"It was not only that we lacked the senior staff, the engineers, the doctors, the technicians. That is the same in all the former colonies.

"But we even lacked typists, bus drivers, auto mechanics, telephone operators and clerks. If these jobs were too lowly for the French bourgeois, they were filled by the Corsicans, the Spanish, the Sicilians . . .

"And the uneducated Europeans have also gone. We have had to learn everything."

The government of Col. Houari Boumedienne, which ousted the high - flying Ben Bella regime a year ago, has tried to quell some of the economic anarchy which characterized the first years after independence and to substitute a more moderate brand of socialism.

Among its new measures is an attempt to restore sanity to government finances. Special economic courts have been set up and the death penalty instituted for serious "economic crimes." Boumedienne has cracked down on bribery and corruption, which he has publicly denounced as "leading to become a social plague."

For the hundreds of thousands of Algerians who moved happily into vacant colonial homes and offices, regular rental is a sad fact of life now. So is a confiscatory rate of income tax.

TUNED TO SOCIALISM

The economic situation in Algeria is complicated by the almost belligerent socialism of the country's leadership. There has been considerable private investment in oil recovery and the government is building a series of food and other factories, but many potential investors have been frightened off.

Farms, factories, transport, power supply, hotels, shops, banks, insurance companies and other business activities have been nationalized or otherwise taken under the wing of the state, despite Boumedienne's pleas of administrators.

While Boumedienne has insisted that Algeria will never stray from socialism, he has imported a series of American, Russian, French and other advisers despite protests from his left that he is turning the country over to the neo-colonialists.

Economic teams from the United States and from the World Bank, as well as from the Soviet Union, are all reported to have drafted long-term plans for development of the Algerian economy.

Yet "revolutionary socialism" Algeria is still without a consistent set of five-year plans which are standard documents on civil service desks in the neighboring "bourgeois" states of Morocco and Tunisia.

Foreign observers of every political stripe in Algiers tend to shake their heads dolefully as to the future Algeria's prospects.

MANY JOBLESS

Crippling unemployment and under-employment tend to affect tax revenues, production and the whole complexion of the economy, they say.

Out of a population of about 12,000,000 in a country larger than all three Canadian Prairie provinces combined, Algeria has some 5,000,000 men capable of working. Of these, only about 1,000,000 are estimated to have full-time jobs and another 1,000,000 have part-time work.

One of the truest sources of revenue for the country remains the estimated 400,000 Algerians now working in France and sending money back to support their families.

And although the vast Sahara region has natural resources which are the envy of most of Algeria's underdeveloped neighbors—some of the world's richest deposits of oil and natural gas, plus such minerals as lead, zinc and iron—they are not likely to create many new jobs in the immediate future.

Because she has insisted on higher prices for oil, gas and wine than her competitors, Algeria has so far failed to attract the customers who would allow full development of her resources.

Only 10 per cent of her vast natural gas reserves are estimated to have been supplied, for example.

More and more, Algeria looks like the poor little rich girl of song and fable, drowned in diamonds but woefully unhappy.

Winnipeg Dancer Apprentice In Moscow's Bolshoi Ballet

By JOHN BEST

MOSCOW (CP) — William Martin - Vicount is investing $8,000 to $10,000 and a year of his life to learn how to jump better.

In slightly over - simplified terms, that's the current story of the Canadian ballet dancer, one of the three male leads of the Royal Winnipeg Ballet and the only native Winnipeger in the trio.

Martin-Vicount — who was Bill Martin before a theatre-loving name change here — arrived in January on leave of absence to train at Moscow's world-famous Bolshoi Theatre. Briefly, he wanted to perfect his jumping.

"They excel in jumping," says the classically-handsome dancer. "Already, this part of my dancing has improved a great deal. The instructors spend 25 per cent of their time teaching you how to jump. He's also practising high-jumping for five hours a day."

TEACHER SUFFERED

"He told me he didn't realize that dancers were so well trained in Canada," said Bill, who is five - foot - seven and weighs 150 pounds, in a relaxed moment following a rehearsal one day of practice at the Bolshoi.

His dance partner is Russian girl named Meela Martinen whom he describes as a "real pro" and who her name is a member of guest appearances with the Bolshoi troupe.

Meela is tight and attractive, as a ballerina should be. She has been studying in Russia for five years—including four years at the Kirov in Leningrad—and will probably return to Cuba as that country's prima ballerina.

Bill's own leave of absence from the Royal Winnipeg has not been exactly a honeymoon experience. After long efforts, he finally arranged with the Soviet authority to study here through the Canadian embassy here—to join the Bolshoi as an "apprentice" member for one year.

He didn't expect to have to pay fees. "Nobody pays, and there are many foreigners here like me. But they are mostly from the socialist countries."

GOT BAD NEWS

However, while in Ottawa on his way to Moscow he learned that he would have to pay for his training and was immediately assailed by doubts as to whether he should go through with it.

"Financially, I couldn't afford it."

Since he had received pledges amounting to $5,000 from citizens' organizations and individuals in Canada to help with his expenses, he decided to go ahead.

He subsequently found the year, if he is able to complete it, will cost between $8,000 and $10,000. It's that low only because he haggled the Russians down to $4,000 for instructions, from an original figure of $7,000. His contributed funds ran out in June and he's been living and training on his own savings since.

Life of a Catch Phrase Said Mercifully Short

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—The life of a catch phrase, whether it be the long departed "Wanna buy a duck?" or the contemporary "Holy wonder boy" is mercifully short.

Two of them, which swept the U.S. on a television tide, should be about in their final stages now, worn out from overuse. But at this moment, it is hard to have a gas tank filled without hearing the attendant ask, "Would you believe 10 gallons?" Or to witness a minor mishap, like a clouded cup of coffee, without having the spiller exclaim, "Sorry about that."

Nothing delights an advertiser more than having his commercials become the subject of comment. And nothing pleases a television producer or star more than when his show's trademark is caught up by the public. Last season, NBC's Get Smart popularized both of these now trite lines, unsatisfactorily for a attempted imitation of star Don Adams's flipped nasal twang.

The show's writers have two favorite Smartisms warming up; "I hope I'm not out of line," and "Missed it by that much." Neither looks irresistible in cold print, but nobody really can predict what odd phrase will be picked up by the public.

WONCE FOOL AROUND

The secret agent spoof was such a hit last season that nobody is interested in fooling around with the show's format in its second season. It will continue to abound with communications gimmicks, a new one being a telephone disguised as a farming log in a fireplace plus the usual radios in finger rings. TV sets in brief cases and peace-pipe cameras. In lieu with the current story of the Canadian ballet dancer, one of the three male leads of the Royal Winnipeg Ballet and the only native Winnipeger in the trio.

Martin-Vicount — who was Bill Martin before a theatre-loving name change here — arrived in January on leave of absence to train at Moscow's world-famous Bolshoi Theatre. Briefly, he wanted to perfect his jumping.

Ivan Toro Convinced Man And Beast Can Coexist

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Ivan Toro, the Budapest-born movie maker, would like nothing more than to achieve the success with family audiences that Walt Disney enjoys, but he's doing mighty fine as van Toro. Look at his activities:

Two high-priced television specials, "Pigpen, and Diabetes."

Three movies for the summer.

3rd season—Around The World Under The Sea, Birds Do It, Nasm, the Killer Whale plus another shooting in Africa and Italy preparation.

A four-stage studio in Miami and an underwater studio in The Bahamas, where the Toro team filmed the wet scenes of Thunderball.

Africa, U.S.A., where 200 wild animals are trained for movie work.

The difference between Disney and Toro seems to be that while Walt works with animals that are cartoonest or automated (as in the Disneyland exhibits), Toro prefers the real thing.

THOUGHT WAS FISH

"It all began when I was making 'Sea Hunt,'" said the producer-director a few years ago. "In filming we were exposed to sharks, killer whales and all kinds of carnivorous underwater fish. But the only real encounter was when a barracuda bumped against a man's chest. The man was wearing a St. Christopher's medal which the barracuda apparently considered a type of."

Toro was intrigued by the apparent willingness of the sea denizens to tolerate the presence

SCOHARIE — Mrs. Claude Hurst, Reg. N. of Orillia spent a recent weekend with her mother, Mrs. Harry Hicks. Mrs. Hicks has sold her home and most of her household effects and will be leaving soon to make her home with her daughter in Orillia.

Miss Kathy Foster, Big Island, spent a few days last week with her grandmother, Mrs. Harry Foster.

Mr. and Mrs. David White and Robin of Elmira spent the weekend with her grandmother, Mrs. Ben Payne and visited Mr. Payne at Rest Haven, Picton.

On Tuesday evening, a dozen neighbors gathered at the home of Mrs. Ben Payne to celebrate her birthday. Two birthday cakes and a basket of fruit were presented to Mrs. Payne.

Mr. and Mrs. Garfield Pearsall and Gerald were guests at a birthday party for Glen Storring on Sunday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Storring, Milford.

Sincere sympathy is extended Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred Simpson and family who received word on Tuesday of the death of his father, Arthur Porcupine, Mr. Simpson and his sister Susan, who had been visiting here, left for South Porcupine, Tuesday night.

Mr. and Mrs. Blaine Foster, Darlene and Carol enjoyed camping at Dr. Scott's resort on Lake Ont over the weekend.

PRICE GOES UP

OTTAWA (CP) — A $515,000 contract to build an underground garage tunnel brings to $6,500,000 the total of contracts for the National Arts Centre awarded so far. The centre, originally projected only as a opera theatre, is to be the federal government's monumental project to mark Canada's centennial next year.

Card Party Proceeds Add To Organ Funds

TYENDINAGA RESERVE — With the proceeds from the card party held Tuesday night added to the funds previously raised, the Organ Fund committee of Christ Church has come over the top, and no more card parties will be held until after the fair, September 17. The committee is headed by the wardens, Garnet Marsden and Thomas Tinney. The organ is in need of repairs which will cost at least $500.

Tuesday's card party was held in the Guild Hall which is part of the Donald House, with players at the 12 tables having a pleasant evening and at the same time helping Christ Church. Mrs. Sarah Marsden won first prize for the ladies, and Mrs. Bert Brant the second. The consolation prize went to Miss Winnifred Sero.

Albert L. Marsden was the first prize winner among the men, and Thos. Whalen came second. David Marsden won the consolation prize. The lone hand prize went to Mrs. Clayton John and the door prize to Mrs. Jimmy Bell.

There were three draws. The first draw, for a pottery jardiniere, was won by William Miller of Deseronto. A lady's tote bag went to Neil Brant, and Shirley Marsden won the draw for dinners for two at a Belleville motel.

Plan Official Opening for County Hospital

NAPANEE — Plans are being completed for the official opening September 10 of the Lennox and Addington County General Hospital. Although the hospital has been treating patients since late March, this will be the official opening.

The Hon. Earl Rowe, LL. Gov., of Ontario, has accepted the invitation to officiate.

Invitations have been sent to the official heads of the Ontario Hospital Services, the Ontario Hospital Association, nearby hospital administrators, provincial and municipal officials, county officials, service clubs and hospital boards and those whose donations have furnished a room.

Chairman of the committee in charge of arrangements is Dr. R. W. Macpherson, a director, and chairman of the public affairs committee in the Hospital Association responsible for building the hospital. Among those on his committee are Directors, Col. H. L. Armstrong, Lloyd Woolsey, Godfrey Barr, and Col. H. L. Babcock, each with his own type of responsibility.

Several supporters who are not members of the Board of Directors are assisting with certain phases of the ceremonies, among them J. Earl Morrison, Jack Brett, and Wayne McLean, principally in connection with publicity.

Clean-up Day Will Be Held At New Park

DESERONTO — The Centennial Park Committee met in special session Tuesday to complete the plans for the big day Saturday. Every citizen of the town is invited to a real old-time get-together at the park for both work and play.

The land must be cleared of the stones which were unfortunately brought in with the top soil. These must be removed by hand, most of them, and everybody is given the chance to participate in this step in bringing into being a beautiful park.

A great deal of volunteer work has already been done, but most of it has been too heavy for children, women and old folk. The committee feels that this is the one opportunity for everybody to play an active role and by so doing to feel that the park belongs to him, because he worked for it.

Hand bills were distributed from door to door Wednesday, each with its special invitation, and the promise of hot dogs and refreshments at the office of the activities.

Work will begin at 1.30, Jack Layfield, secretary of the Park Committee reports, and will continue until 3.30 when refreshments will be ready. Ladies representing every denomination in town are planning this part of the program, and will carry it through.

The teenage members of the Deseronto Sports Organization with head up teams and they will be keen rivalry to see which team can have the 12 best piles of stones ready for the trucks to cart away later.

If the weather man cooperates it should be a big day in the history of Centennial Park in Deseronto.

THEY'RE IN DARK

QUEBEC (CP)—Fernand Lafontaine, public works minister, said Wednesday his department is in the dark about the location of a statue of former Union Nationale Premier Maurice Duplessis. The statue, which was made in Europe, was delivered to Quebec after the Liberal government of Jean Lesage came to power in 1960 and was put into storage.

Drilling Permit Suspended in Public Interest

SOMERA, Ont. (CP) — A prouty sougstruss who heads a company called Positive Mental Attitude—PMA for short — is getting some negative reactions from a local member of the legislature.

Toni Carroll, of St. Clair, Mich., a featured singer at a local tent, says her firm, PMA Oil Exploration Ltd., has put $5,000 into drilling for natural gas on Fawn Island in the St. Clair River about 25 miles south of Sarnia, with plans to spend $20,000 more to bring to a gusher.

But Ralph Knox, of Sarnia, Progressive Conservative member for Lambton West, announced Tuesday that Miss Carroll's permit to drill had been suspended "in the public interest."

Mr. Knox claims the permit suspension is to "prevent political gain."

In Toronto, Dennis Sharp, superior of drilling for the department of energy resources management, said Mr. Knox's announcement was "premature."

PERMIT IS LEGAL

He said the permit to drill, issued to Miss Carroll July 12, was perfectly legal, and before being cancelled it would have to be reviewed by Energy and Resources Minister John R. Simonett.

The drilling site on Fawn Island is owned by a Loudon, Ont., law firm. Miss Carroll says the site was chosen by a friend, Marion Isbey, of New York, a geologist and practitioner of extra-sensory perception.

Miss Carroll's partner, Chairman driller Frank Hawkings said that if the drilling permit is suspended, losses will amount to $200 a day.

Mr. Hawkings said he expected natural gas would be struck 200 feet below the ground.

A ban of off-shore drilling is in effect in all the Great Lakes waterways except Lake Erie.

Dispute Will Be Settled In Court

OTTAWA (CP) — A dispute among three girls, two of them sisters, over who really owns the automobile won Monday in the Central Canada Exhibition's daily car draw will be decided in court.

Monday's winning ticket was held by Mrs. Andre Leduc, 18, of Hull, Que., and the car was claimed by her husband.

But two other Hull girls, Mrs. Leduc's 16-year-old sister Gisella Lapointe and 12-year-old Micheline Lapointe, have also appealed the winner to the fair, say the value of the car should be split three ways.

Both paid Mrs. Leduc, who bought the ticket, the entrance fee of 50 cents, but neglected to collect their ticket subs from her.

Hull lawyer Gerard Giroard said Wednesday he will sue next month on behalf of Gisella and Micheline.

Ginette's brother-in-law, a 24-year-old grocery clerk, said he had hired his own lawyer to fight the suit.

"My wife bought the tickets and she would automatically get the car," that night she carried the winning number, said Mr. Leduc.

Rawdon

RAWDON — Mr. and Mrs. Allen Reid, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Scott of Mount Pleasant, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Rowe of Seymour and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Smith of Rawdon attended the Scott-Twiddy wedding and reception in Salem United Church on Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Mcdonald and grandson, Jimmie Watson, Miss Annie Holmes, Mrs. Frank Fitzgerald and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hall attended the centennial supper and program at Cooper United Church. Special invitations were sent to all those who had attended public school in that area.

Mr. Max Sharp is exhibiting several Holstein cattle at Belleville fair this week. Mr. Kenneth McConnell is in charge at the Fair Grounds.

Mr. and Mrs. R. R. Benished of Oakville and Mrs. H. S. Montgomery of Toronto have been spending time with Mr. and Mrs. Raymond McConnell.

Mrs. Frank Fitzgerald of Carrying Place spent a few days last week with Miss Annie Holmes.

A family dinner party was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Slollery, English Bicknell, in honor of Mrs. Fred's father, Mr. Charles Watson, Belleville, whose birthday was observing his 81st birthday. The guests included Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Watson and family of Mount Pleasant, and Mr. and Mrs. Harry Danford and family of Belleville.

BRIDAL SHOWER

Miss Sally McAdam, a August bride-to-be, was entertained at a miscellaneous shower and the women of William's school section. The bridal shower, Mrs. Archie Bailey was in charge of the program and Mrs. Gordon Bailey and Mrs. Wynn conducted a sing-song. Suzanne Bailey and Mrs. B. Bailey played piano duets. Carol Merrick played a piano solo and Kathy Sharpe sang a solo. Miss Isabel C. Bickrel read an address and Mrs. Ira Reid made a presentation.

Mountain View

MOUNTAIN VIEW — A large number of friends gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Elias Kerhewen on Saturday evening to honor their son Harold and his wife, who were recently married in London, Ont.

After everyone had gathered an address was read by Mrs. Willis Barber and Harold and Margaret were presented with a gift. They were also presented with a white leather Bible by Mr. Bob Barber from Mountain View Sunday School which Harold had attended.

The couple returned to their home in London on Sunday.

Mrs. Clark Spring attended the trousseau tea in honor of Miss Linda Mae Jean Doxsee.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Burkitt and children spent a few days recently with Mr. and Mrs. W. Burkitt and Mr. and Mrs. G. Mumford and family.

Mrs. Ken Mosley entertained Mountain View Women's Institute at her home August meeting at her cottage at Consecon Lake. A short business session was held after which a pot luck dinner was enjoyed.

Miss Betty Ellen Sprague announced her sister Mrs. H. McCachie and children to her home in Calgary and will spend a short holiday there.

Mr. Lawrence Post accompanied by several friends spent Saturday attending the C.N.E.

Mrs. Alfred Poste and Mrs. Fred Jeffery of Melrose accompanied Mrs. Val Kennedy of Burr's to Wesquoe on Thursday. They also visited the Rose House which has recently been converted into Marysburgh Museum.

Mrs. and Mrs. Alfred Poste have recently returned from visiting their daughter, Mrs. Ralph McCarter, Mrs. Mosley and granddaughter Allison of Sarnia.

Miss Lillian Anderson spent Sunday with friends in Bethany.

Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Barber have been entertaining friends from Florida this past week.

HARD TO FIND

QUEBEC (CP)—Justice Minister Jean-Jacques Bertrand said Wednesday it is difficult to find lawyers willing to become permanent prosecutors. He was replying to allegations made by former justice minister Lucien Cardin that 38 Crown prosecutors have been dismissed by the Union Nationale government.

MIGRAINE SICK HEAD-ACHE

New Brazilian Hydro Project Is Largest Outside of Russia

IO DE JANEIRO (Reuters) — ...zil is going ahead with one ... the biggest hydroelectric ...ojects in the western world— ...a Urubupunga on the great ...razos River, between the ...ates of Sao Paulo and Mato ...osso.

The total capacity of its two power plants at Jupia, already more than half completed, and Ilha Solteira (Spinster Island), where President Humberto Castello Branco inaugurated construction work in April, will be 4,400,000 kilowatts, or about as much as the total output of all other plants now operating in Brazil.

This means that the Urubupunga—an Indian name which literally means "the place of vultures droppings"—project is among the four largest of its type in the world. The other three are all in the Soviet Union: Krasnoyarsk, which produces 6,000,000 kilowatts, and Bratsk and Sukhovo-Tabra, each with 4,500,000 kilowatts in installed capacity.

Taken alone, the Ilha Solteira plant, about 35 miles upstream from Jupia, with an installed capacity of 3,200,000 kilowatts, will be fac and way the biggest of its kind in Latin America.

The Urubupunga project, estimated to cost more than $800,000, will begin serving a seven-state area of south central Brazil, including the industrial concentrations of Sao Paulo, Minas Gerais and Guanabara (Rio de Janeiro City) in 1970s.

This rich area accounts for some 80 per cent of the present Brazilian demand for light and power.

Apart from its significance in terms of electric power, Urubupunga also will mark another big step towards opening up Brazil's vast interior.

Two navigation locks will greatly improve the facilities of the Parana as an internal waterway, and the artificial lakes formed by dams at Jupia and Ilha Solteira could produce an estimated 400,000 tons of fish a year.

Jupia, with as installed capacity of 1,400,000 kilowatts, should begin commercial production early in 1968. The much larger Ilha Solteira plant, with 3,200,000 kilowatts of installed capacity, is scheduled to begin producing in 1972.

Astrological Forecasts

By SYDNEY OMARR

For Aug. 26, 1966

ARIES (Mar. 21—Apr. 19): Money discussion could prove beneficial. If you attempt to guess or "fly blind" you lose ground. Means check facts to clear air of suspicion. Take initiative. Be frank and stand tall!

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Good lunar aspect highlights journeys of the mind. You can now reach out for added knowledge. Be philosophical and attentive. Key is patience, understanding.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Study Aries message. Financial matters highlighted. Be versatile. Don't fall into rut. Check. Think. Experiment. Add to knowledge through reading, asking questions.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): Check proposals. Be considerate of allies, mate, partner. Public interest in your work is indicated. Think out your plans. Be on best behavior!

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): You may now be inclined to talk to much. Means others could pump you for information. Hold back. Be a gentle, perceptive observer. Then tables are turned on one who would trick you.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Recent times have been hectic. Now review future prospects. Don't repeat mistakes. Apologize to person who may have been offended. Highlight love, creative endeavors.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): Check security requirements. Be sure you are receiving full benefits. Applies especially to real estate, property holdings. Don't be careless with business matters.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Friends may provide constructive diversion. Enter into spirit of fun, good will. Be considerate of in-laws. Older individual could come up with good advice. Listen!

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Money decision may depend upon one who is afar. Realize this and plan accordingly. Study Libra message. Take nothing for granted. Finish important project.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): Day definitely calls for initiative. Start things. Shake off lethargy. Outline plans, ideas ... then act on beliefs. Today can be a step up the ladder.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Consider individual who has original ideas. It could lead to breakthrough to success. Refuse to fear the unknown. Take positive steps forward with initiative.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Friends could be overly optimistic. Be realistic in views. This applies especially to contracts. Check validity of claims. You could be in for surprise. Be realistic.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY... you are intense, seldom do things halfway. Would be successful organizer ... are capable of setting things in order — of making sense out of chaos.

* * *

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Cycle high for Capricorn, Aquarius, Pisces. Special word to Virgo: Guard for peace of mind. Very necessary to your sense of well-being.

Kidnapped Girl, Bound Hands and Feet, Found Alive

BERLIN (Reuters)—A four-year-old Canadian girl, Audrey Klewer, was found alive and apparently well today after a four-day police hunt following her kidnapping from her wealthy grandfather's home here early Monday.

The girl's mother, Regina Klewer, 28, a German who lives in Montreal, wept with joy as she embraced her young daughter at the end of the ordeal.

Audrey was found by a Berlin man with her hands and feet bound by a rope in a small hut in a garden in the West Berlin district of Spandau.

Police said she appeared sleepy and they presumed the kidnapper, so far unidentified, gave her drugs.

After a medical check, the child was taken under police guard to her grandfather's villa on the fashionable suburb of Wannsee.

Meanwhile, the West Berlin police, working on their first kidnap-for-ransom case since the Second World War, continued their hunt for the kidnapper, who has apparently been in touch with the Klewer family several times.

CAME FOR REUNION

Regina Klewer arrived here with her daughter Sunday for a reunion with her family.

Police said the details of the case — Audrey was snatched from her grandfather's home early Monday morning after her mother was chloroformed by an intruder—indicated the kidnapper was familiar with the Klewer family.

She was found alone in the hut at about 8 a.m. by a man who was asked to look after the small garden by its owners.

The man immediately called police, who took Audrey to a police station. She sat on a chair half asleep

Earlier today, they lifted a four - day ban on news reports of the kidnapping and called on the public to help find the girl, snatched from her grandfather's home at gunpoint Monday.

Audrey and her mother were alone when a masked gunman entered the house of wealthy antique dealer, Herbert Klewer, 73.

He bound Regina and later chloroformed her. In a note he demanded a ransom of 30,000 marks ($8,000).

The kidnapper also threatened Audrey's life should the Klewer family inform the press or police.

The child's mother, personal secretary to Maj. Kurt Oberback, head of the West German logistics depot in Montreal.

Pipeline Project Killed

By RONALD LESEL

OTTAWA (CP)—A project for a $212,000,000 east-west gas pipeline was killed by the federal cabinet Thursday because it involved a short-cut through the United States.

Prime Minister Pearson announced the decision Thursday night, saying the American section of the line would not be in Canada's best interest.

The national energy board in hearings last March, conditionally approved the U.S.-Canada route favored by Trans-Canada Pipe Lines Ltd., but the cabinet decided otherwise.

"The government," Mr. Pearson said in a press statement, "was guided by basic considerations of national policy, and not by reason of any technical defects or shortcomings in the application or in the board's treatment of it."

Trans-Canada applied to the energy board for permission to build a 36-inch-diameter pipeline from the Alberta gas fields to Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., Toronto, Montreal and on to the Quebec-Vermont border to connect

Drop Napalm By Error on Own Troops

SAIGON (AP)—Two U.S. Air Force Superabre jet fighters today dropped fiery napalm by error on soldiers of the U.S. 1st Infantry Division fighting a savage jungle battle against 500 Viet Cong only 20 miles north of Saigon.

Some reports said seven Americans were killed and more than 20 wounded.

Maj.-Gen. William E. De Puy, division commander, flew to Saigon to give correspondents an account of the bombing.

De Puy absolved the air force of blame for what he called "this unfortunate napalming of our own troops."

He said the infantrymen called in air strikes "very close" to their own positions, but "we did not ask for napalm on our own troops."

De Gaulle Greeted By Riot

From AP-Reuters

DJIBOUTI (CP)—French police today buried tear gas grenades into a mob shouting for independence as President Charles de Gaulle toured this French Somaliland capital.

Pro- and anti-French factions among the African residents of this steaming Red Sea port exchanged volleys of rocks and broken bottles. Troop reinforcements, holding their guns at the ready, formed a line across one side of the main square of the city.

A huge mob gathered around the body of a youth laid out on a litter in the main square of the African quarter. He had a head wound and it seemed he had been beaten to death.

Some Somalis said he had been killed by police. Others said he died in a clash between opposing African political parties.

The crowd shouted abuse at soldiers and police. Neither side advanced or retreated. Hundreds of troops were at action stations throughout the city.

De Gaulle was met by thousands of demonstrators when he toured the working class quarter of the city.

THE WEATHER

Synopsis: Some warming is expected over most of Ontario today. A weak ridge of high pressure will bring considerable sunshine to southern and central regions today and Saturday. A few showers are likely further north today but skies will clear Saturday. Afternoon temperatures should recover into the 70s in southern Ontario today and in Northern Ontario Saturday.

Hold Report on Landreville To Ponder Certain Issues

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Pearson and his two law officers in the cabinet are wrestling with "legal and constitutional" questions arising out of the Rand inquiry findings on financial dealings of Mr. Justice Leo Ladreville of the Ontario Supreme Court.

That is why the government has been sitting on the long-awaited report for four days without making it public, the prime minister said Thursday. He indicated it may be known today when it will be released —not later than Monday in any case.

At a press conference Mr. Pearson offered no explanation of the "legal and constitutional" questions that are causing delay. He did not indicate what action—if any —the government might be taking after the report has been study in the midst of an onrushing rail crisis pointed to something that would require acceptance of the report.

The findings of Commissioner Lou S. Rand, according to informants, hit hard at Mr. Justice Landreville for his acceptance in 1957, while he was on the bench, of 7,500 shares in Northern Ontario Natural Gas Co. The company the year before had obtained a municipal gas franchise at Sudbury which Mr. Justice Landreville was mayor of that Northern Ontario city.

The inquiry by Mr. Rand, 52, a retired justice of the Supreme Court of Canada, was directed after the governing body of the Law Society of Upper Canada (Ontario) asked the government for the judge's removal.

All information available to the press as well as the removal would involve passage of a resolution by both houses of Parliament, due to convene Monday. This would be a precedent for Canada.

Before deciding on a course of action, the government asked Mr. Rand to investigate and render an opinion on the judge's duties to continue on the bench.

The report is very strong that I'm afraid the government has no choice but to bring in the

Postal Strike Possible

OTTAWA (CP)—Another labor problem loomed for the federal government Thursday with the announcement that Canada's postal workers may strike to back up demands for a wage hike of about 50 per cent.

The government already faces a nation-wide railway strike set for noon, regional standard times, today.

The announcement of the possible postal strike was made here by the Canadian Union of Postal Workers which represents about 18,000 workers across Canada.

Postal workers currently earn between $1.81 and $2.60 an hour. The union said raises ranging from $2.41-$3.16 an hour are its "minimum demands."

Union President William Kay said the estimated cost to the government of $30,000,000 "can easily be absorbed by the post office."

DEFICIT A SUBSIDY'

A deficit last year of some $30,000,000 on one-class mail alone was due mainly to mailing of newspapers, he said. Another union official labelled this "a subsidy."

Richard Otto, executive vice-president of the union, said "of course we don't look at the total price tag" in determining wage demands. "That is the employer's responsibility, he said.

"Why be inhibited by the total cost?" He said he could consider that as a taxpayer "later on."

The press conference was held the union's demands will be backed with the threat of an immediate strike if members agree. Ballots seeking authority for the union leaders to order the strike are to be mailed to members within 10 days.

Last summer several CUPW workers walked off their jobs in a wildcat strike that tied up mail in several areas of the country. Salary increases of $535 a year were authorized after a mediator appointed by the government looked into the wage demands.

That raise brought salaries for postal clerks to between $4,165 and $5,215 annually, for mail handlers to between $3,760 and $4,530 and for dispatchers to between $4,980 and $5,460.

In addition, the wage decreases

No Railway Settlement Likely Until New Law Tabled for Parliament

OTTAWA (CP) — An 11th-hour attempt to settle the thorny railway wage dispute without a strike floundered today as union and management negotiators resumed face-to-face bargaining for the first time in five months.

It put the final stamp of certainty on the country-wide walkout at noon regional standard times.

"There is no settlement," R. C. Smith, head of the international non-operating unions, told reporters after a one-hour session with railway representatives in Labor Minister Nicholson's office.

Mr. Smith's was the first of four union negotiating groups scheduled to meet the management side at today's desperate bid for a settlement.

SESSION MONDAY

"We would look now as though we'll have to wait until Monday when the railways get a look at the new railway legislation the government is going to introduce," he reported.

This legislation, which probably will lift the 1959 freight rate freeze, will give the railways an indication of the added revenues they can expect.

Mr. Smith said there were no plans for further talks involving his group which represents 55,000 workers. But the non-operating unions would remain on call during the weekend in case of new developments.

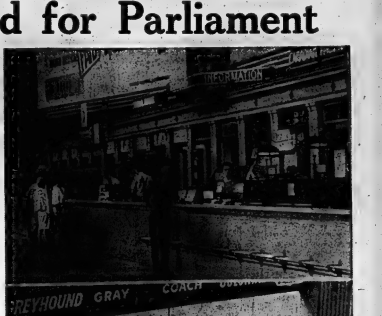
Duncan McNeill, a vice-president of the CPR, said he and his CPR counterpart, W. M. Wilson, also would remain on call. But he appeared to rule out any chance of new negotiations before Monday.

A resumption of the labor-management talks Monday probably would stall introduction of legislation imposing a wage settlement on the two parties.

WOULD HOLD BACK

Government spokesmen have said the strike-ending bill will be held back as long as a chance of voluntary agreement exists.

Today's talks are under the chairmanship of Labor Minister Nicholson and Bernard Wilson, the government's top labor relations expert.



Some of the 116,000 railway workers involved will already be walking picket lines in Newfoundland and the other Atlantic provinces before the round of talks is completed.

WILL TALKS CONTINUE?

The big question was whether the talks would continue over the weekend in hopes of getting a negotiated agreement before Parliament steps in to impose one with strike - ending legislation.

Although Parliament reopened Monday to handle the strike crisis, government spokesmen have said the legislation will be held back as long as a chance

Companies, Individuals Brace For Onset of Railway Strike Which Opened at Noon Today

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Rail transportation in Canada stops today at noon, regional standard times, as 118,000 employees of the CNR, CPR and five other railways launch a strike that Prime Minister Pearson has described as potentially disastrous for the country.

In Ottawa, new legislation involved are seeking wage increases averaging 30 per cent.

Although talks between railway and union negotiators were scheduled to open at 9 a.m., only hours before the strikes deadline.

Government mediator Bernard Wilson said he had no plans for talks beyond this morning. "We'll have to see what develops first."

If the railways and the unions are unable to reach a negotiated settlement on the weekend the problem will come before a special session of Parliament opening Monday.

Elsewhere in Canada, companies and individuals were embracing for the onset of the strike.

Key industries dependent on rail transportation were predicting heavy layoffs if the walkout lasts as long as one week. Airlines and trucking firms were also covering their bases, with cargo backlogs building up.

Rail commuters—42,000 in Montreal area alone — had to find alternate ways of getting to and from work. Car pools were formed, and extra buses laid on.

In Charlottetown, Premier Alex Campbell hopes for a continuing ferry link with the New Brunswick mainland were dashed Thursday night when ferry members of the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway, Transport and General Workers voted unanimously to strike.

The CNR ferries operated by the CBRT members provide the only transportation link with the mainland but there are two fo-vehicle ferries not affected by the strike, operating between Wood Islands, P.E.I., and Caribou, N.S.

Will Operate Trains When Food Runs Low

WINNIPEG (CP) — Assurance that emergency train service will be provided when needed despite a strike of railway workers was given Thursday by Bill Matthew, a spokesman of the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway, Transport and General Workers.

"We won't see people starve," he said in an interview. "If it goes long enough to require provisions, we will supply them. We have an agreement with the railways covering this."

Mr. Matthew, a district strike leader for northwestern Ontario and Manitoba, added that essential services provided by the railways to isolated communities will be provided. For example, railway-owned groceries will continue to supply electricity to the tiny community of Gilam, 450 miles north of Winnipeg.

A spokesman for the CNR said it would have to be a real emergency before the Unions would agree to take in supplies.

A CPR spokesman said, however, that if a northern community was threatened with a supply shortage "unions and railways forget their differences and co-operate."

'Great Flight' Made by Apollo Spaceship

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) —"It was a great flight and we're looking forward to flying on the vehicle ourselves on Apollo 1." Speaking, in a joint statement, were the U.S. astronauts who may be circling the globe next Christmas in a three-man Apollo moonship.

The three are Lt.-Col. Virgil I. Grissom, who travelled into space in both the Mercury and Gemini programs; Lt.-Col. Edward H. White II, the first U.S. space walker, and Lieut. Roger B. Chaffee.

A mammoth Saturn I rocket, the most powerful in the U.S., hurled an unmanned Apollo moonship over a blistering orbital course that carried it three - quarters of the way around the world Thursday in a safe parachute landing in the Pacific Ocean.

The flight was intended to qualify the spacecraft and the Saturn I for launching the Astronauts into earth orbit.

Before they go into space, two more two-man Gemini flights, in September and October, will conclude that second - generation program.

Suspect Held After Five Persons Slain, 2 Wounded

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP)—Five persons were killed and two wounded early today, police said, when a man whose first-listed had left him entered her mother's home with a carbine and began firing.

After leaving dead and dying a nearly every room of the six-room apartment of Mrs. Mary DeClease, the man walked unhurriedly out the door and drove off.

Hours later, state police in Newark, N.J., reported the arrest of a man believed to be brother Davis, 37, of New Haven—the man for whom a multi-state alarm had been issued in connection with the slayings.

A woman who had watched from her window as the killer left the apartment where the killings occurred said he wore a cowboy hat and seemed in no hurry to get away.

"He just walked along, swinging that gun with one hand," said Mrs. Mary Menchacha.

PLEASE HELP!"

Moments later, she said, a boy who had survived the bloodbath ran from the apartment screaming: "Somebody please help me! Please help me! They're all dead."

The shootings occurred in a city-run housing project in the Negro section of New Haven. Of those involved were Negroes, police said.

Besides Mrs. McClease, 51, those slain were all friends of her family: Nell White, 36, of Dover, N.H.; Richard Leathers, 37, of New Haven, and Mrs. Caroline Davis, 36, and her son Michael, 5, also of New Haven.

One of Mrs. McClease's daughters, 14, suffered a stomach wound and was reported in critical condition. Trey Parker, 4, son of Mrs. Davis, was wounded in the chin but was reported in satisfactory condition.

No Railway

remains of getting agreement between the two sides.

If no concessions come today, a collapse of the mediation effort would quickly follow.

Bernard Wilson, who is an assistant deputy labor minister, stated the situation clearly Thursday night when he emerged from a final probing session with the railway executives.

"If anybody wants to lay anything on the table, this will be their last chance. . . . Tomorrow will tell the tale," he told reporters.

MAY BE POINTLESS

Unless the two sides were prepared to bargain directly or give the mediators something to work with, there would be no point in going on, he added.

"Perhaps the parties will want to keep on talking and that will be fine with me."

Union leaders scoffed Thursday at reports that the government will impose a wage settlement of 18 per cent over two years, the figure recommended by three different conciliation boards. All three were rejected by union votes.

They predicted that most of the strikers would refuse a back-to-work order based on the 18-per-cent formula. The railways demanded for the four groups average 30 per cent and the union negotiators maintain this line, publicly at least, that this is the only acceptable figure.

Privately, some have said that a settlement in the range between 21 and 24 per cent would probably be the best they could offer a week or strike ended.

PREDICT CHANCES GOOD

Earlier Thursday spokesmen for three of the labor groups predicted a good chance of weekend negotiations.

"It appears it may be possible to make some progress," said Ed Smith, president of the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway, Transport and General Workers, said after a two-hour meeting with the mediator.

"We'll keep going 24 hours a week and if things start working well," W. P. Kelly of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen reported.

"There has been some progress . . . things are coming into focus."

R. C. Smith, head of the international non - operating group, said he expected some improvement in the deadlock.

But Tom Read, spokesman for the shopcraft unions, said the impasse was as bad as ever. His group threatened to bolt the mediation proceedings unless Mr. Nicholson made a personal appeal to them. They finally agreed to stay for today's session.

COUNTY HEALTH UNIT HEAD — Dr. C. R. Lenk, and Mrs. Jean Hyatt, director of nursing, check on organizational details with view of September 1st commencement of operations. New Hastings County Health Unit will serve both Hastings county and the city of Belleville.

Still Aim For September 1 As Opening Date of New Hastings Health Unit

Sights are still aimed at a September 1st date for commencement of operations by the recently organized Hastings County Health Unit, but more public health nurses and sanitary inspectors are needed.

Dr. C. R. Lenk, Director, and Medical Officer of Health for the county health unit, said today that only nine of the 15 public health nurses needed have been hired, while at least four more sanitary inspectors were needed.

The new Hastings County Health Unit will serve both the County of Hastings and the city of Belleville. The combined population of the county and the city is approximately 75,000 persons.

CITY UNIT CEASES

Plans are for the county health unit to operate from present quarters of the Belleville Health Department on Pinnacle Street. When the health unit goes into operation, the city health department, and all municipal health departments in the county will cease to function.

A personnel of approximately 25 is expected to be required for the efficient operation of the unit.

This includes Dr. Lenk as the director, Mrs. Jean Hyatt as director of nursing, Mrs. Lloyd Ellenton as chief public health inspector; 15 public health nurses, and seven sanitary inspectors and two clerical staff.

INSPECTOR TO TRANSFER

Three of the present nursing staff with the Belleville Health Department have been hired to work with the new county health unit, while Belleville sanitary inspector Robert Westlake is also transferring to the county unit.

For personal reasons other nurses with the present city health department did not choose to join the county unit.

Dr. Lenk as the medical officer of health for the county unit came to Belleville as of first of August. A resident of Canada for the past 15 years, Dr. Lenk was with the Peterborough health service in Saskatchewan for eight years and with the Peterborough provincial government health service for the past eight years.

He had previously served as medical officer in the British Colonial Service in Northern Rhodesia and was also in Scotland for a year.

P.E. COUNTY NATIVE

Mrs. Hyatt is a native of Prince Edward County but comes to Belleville from Hiram county where for the past six years she had been director of nurses in the county health three. She had previously been supervisor of nurses in the Prince Edward County Health Unit.

The chief sanitary inspector for the Hastings unit, Lloyd Ellenton, comes to Belleville from Wellington county where for the past six years she had been director of nurses in the county health unit. She had previously been supervisor of nurses in the Brighton Colonial Service in Northern Rhodesia and was also in Scotland for a year.

Two Advance As Hospital Administrators

Two local men on the administration staff at Belleville General Hospital have been recommended for advancement while in the American College of Hospital Administrators it was announced in Chicago yesterday.

Recommended for advancement within the college is Stanley J. Johnston, local hospital administrator, while Charles E. Plummer on the local administration staff, has been accepted by the college.

PUC to 'Resist' Alyea's Move for Leave to Appeal

the only major airline serving the province, announced two extra flights a day to ease the traffic load. The independent ferry company said it would make two extra trips today.

There was no danger of a food shortage, as the inland province of 109,000 has an agrarian economy. Food is brought in by ocean-going tankers.

Canada's other inland province, Newfoundland, was assured continued operation of the ferry William Carson between Port aux Basques on the island and North Sydney, N.S. CNR employees in North Sydney voted Thursday night to maintain service for passengers and vehicles, but not cargo.

Ontario and Alberta eased up on truck licensing regulations to help handle the transportation emergency.

An Ontario government official said temporary permits to commercial vehicle licences will be issued to help fruit and vegetable growers get produce to market. In Alberta, holders of truck licences which permit delivery in a 150-mile radius such as urban area will be able to travel anywhere in the province and beyond it if they obtain a temporary permit.

LABOUR BILLS MEET .

In Ottawa, Prime Pearson told a press conference Thursday that the House leaders of all four parties in the Commons will meet as soon as they all return to Ottawa, to discuss procedures to deal with the rail strike.

The government hoped that opposition parties would give unanimous consent Monday to allow the government to introduce and pass pieces of legislation immediately.

One bill would be "strike legislation" aimed at ordering the strikers back to work, and the other would be a "very controversial" bill to amend the Canada Labour Relations Board to revising the Railway Act and several other statutes.

The 150 - page transportation bill is expected to give the railways greater freedom to set freight rates in competition with other forms of transportation, and to end many money-losing lines and services.

Without such legislation or massive government subsidies, the railways say they have no way of meeting union pay demands.

The four union groups involved are the CBRT with its 22,000 members; the associated shop craft unions representing 20,000 members; the "non-operational" union group with 9,000 members, and the 20,000-member Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen.

MOST ARE NON-OPS

The trainmen make up the only group involved in the actual running of the trains. The other groups represent non-operating railway personnel including clerks, office employees, ticket agents and section hands.

While the non-ops have been pressing demands for the most part, the trainmen have come out for a reduction of working hours.

The non-ops now earn an average of $2.40 an hour, and are seeking increases ranging between 55 cents and $1.25 hourly. The trainmen's wage increase sought is 30 cents.

There was published speculation Thursday that the government will seek to impose a wage settlement of 18 per cent, a figure suggested by three of the four conciliation boards that studied the disputes.

All four union groups rejected the conciliation reports.

The other railways, apart from the CNR and CNR, involved in the strike are the Algoma Central and Hudson Bay, the Ontario Northland, the Toronto, Hamilton and Buffalo, the Quebec Central Co. of Manitoba and the Sydney and Louisburg division of the Cumberland Railway Co. in Nova Scotia.

WOULD END DEPARTMENT

TORONTO (CP)—Abolition of the federal department of indian affairs is suggested in a pamphlet released by the Ontario New Democratic Party. The pamphlet written by the party's assistant secretary, Desmond Morton, and by Edward G. Fraser, NDP member of the legislature for Fort William, says the Indian affairs branch has become the symbol of a kind of bureaucracy which many Indians have come to detest.

PUC Accepts Tender, OMB Must Approve

TRENTON — The Trenton Public Utilities Commission voted yesterday to accept the tender of Albert Gaetano to install a watermain on Henry Street at the asking price of $33,621.67. The commission will hinge on a public hearing here on Sept. 7 before an Ontario Municipal Board representative, to decide on the east end of Henry Street objected to paying their share of the cost of installation, as the new main will replace the present main. Residents shared in the cost of the original, smaller main. The hearing will also decide if the board has to offer resistance before the judge.

Nevertheless, the commission will consider tenders for the installation of a watermain on the east side of Dufferin Avenue, from Thursday afternoon, from the corner of Dufferin and St. Peter's Church, Trenton on Saturday, September 7.

Interment in Mount Pleasant Cemetery.

IN MEMORIAM

GODDFELLOW, Carrie E. — In loving memory of Carrie Goddfellow who passed away suddenly August 30th, 1967.
Sadly we would give it we could Hold her back
Hold her close and say,
To hear your voice, see your smile,
Just for one more day.
Not a day goes by, a month, a year,
Without a thought of her we love dear.
Christ has her with Him in the heavenly home.
Till we meet.
Sadly her vacant chair.
Inserted by daughter Joyce, son-in-law Sam and grandson Allen.

$100,000 Cash Bail Set
LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP)—George Lemay, 41, and his wife, Lisa, 36, were arraigned in court Thursday on Florida bail fire warrants. They appeared grim when Judge Edwin Potter set bail at $100,000 on each $200,000 property bail apiece.
Lemay was nabbed by FBI agents last week as he left the women's room of the western-atmosphere Golden Nugget casino here. He gained notoriety when his picture, issued by the FBI, was broadcast via Early Bird and he was subsequently seen and arrested in Florida.

EDITING NEWS COPY—Cameroun student Emmanuel Moudjih edits news copy in CJBQ's newsroom. Emmanuel, a student in Radio and Television Arts at Ryerson Polytechnical Institute, has been working for CJBQ the past three weeks.

Stress Put on Weather Here Surprises Cameroun Student

It's a long way to Tipperary alright, but it's even longer to Yaounde, Cameroun.

That's exactly how far Emmanuel Moudjih, 24, has come to attend school in Canada. He is working until the end of the month in the news department at CJBQ.

CJBQ is Emmanuel's third stop this summer. He a l s o worked one month at both CHRC Quebec City, and CJAD, Montreal. He will enter his second year in Radio and Television Arts at Ryerson in September.

Cameroun is an independent Republic in west central Africa near Nigeria. Population is about five million.

When Emmanuel came to Canada last September, he was not used to cold weather and really had no idea what snow looked like.

"My primitive conception of snow was something like ice blocks. I didn't actually see snow falling the first time because when I woke up in the morning it was there. I took pictures of it and sent them home."

He said he was surprised that weather is such an important topic of conversation in Canada. "We don't give much prominence to weather in our newspapers or on radio, perhaps because in Afr ica here, our weather is pretty predictable."

Cameroun is situated 10 degrees above the equator. It has two basic seasons, dry and rainy. The dry season, from mid October through mid March has temperatures in the mid 70's and 80's, and during the rainy season, though it sometimes is a bit cooler, it rarely goes below 55 degrees. Some areas of the country have a great deal of rain. Dibuncha, on the west coast of West Cameroun, has an average yearly rainfall of 235 inches, second highest in the world.

MONTREAL TOO HOT

He said that although it gets warm in his home in Cameroun, the humidity isn't as high. "I was in Montreal during that long hot spell earlier this summer, and I lost my appetite for a week. The humidity really bothered me."

Cameroun is a federation of two states, West Cameroun (formerly British Cameroons) and East Cameroun (formerly French Cameroun). The west became independent from British rule October 1, 1961, and the east from French rule January 1960.

The official languages are French, English in that order. Two thirds of the population are French-speaking and one-third English speaking. The official currency is French francs.

There are over 300 tribes in the country, plus many tribes within tribes, speaking different dialects. Some of the major tribes are Bamileke, Bamoun, Douala, Fulbes, Bakweri, Bakossi, Bafaws, Bayangi and Bafias. Emmanuel is a member of the Bafia tribe.

Emmanuel said he was surprised that Canadians use the telephone as much as they do. "At home, hardly anyone has a telephone, just government officials and some businessmen. I think it is exaggerated here. We don't hold the telephone in such high esteem, we would rather talk with a person face-to-face."

LIKES CASUAL ATTITUDE

He said that one thing he likes very much about Canada is the casual attitude people have towards other people. "I could never address my boss by his first name as people do here," he said. "We use a more strained and formal system.

"I think it's good to be casual with people. It makes you feel freer."

Emmanuel was educated in Roman Catholic primary and secondary schools. He came to Canada on the Colombo Plan and his summer activity is arranged by his country's external affairs department in cooperation with the Canadian Association of Broadcasters.

"For the first few months, I was nervous about eating in a restaurant because I thought I might get something I didn't want. For example, I thought hot dogs were made from dog meat at first. We don't have hot dogs, nor do we have hamburgers."

About 50 percent of the population of Cameroun is Roman Catholic and the rest are mostly either Protestants or Moslems.

There is no television there, though the country plans to have a television outlet by 1968. Radio is government operated, and there is a government press agency, but no government newspapers.

USE REPUBLICAN SYSTEM

The federal government, like France and the U.S., uses the Republican system. The president, Ahmadou Ahidjo, comes from the French speaking sector. The constitution states the president and vice-president can not come from the same sector, so at the moment, the vice-president is from West Cameroun.

There is a federal cabinet of 12 ministers. The House of Assembly has 50 deputies, 10 from the west and 40 from the east. Cabinet ministers are chosen by the President and are not necessarily members of parliament. Elections are held every five years.

Politically, the country is divided into regions, and each region sends one or two delegates, based on population to the national assembly. Northern regions of the country send tribal chiefs and in the southern regions the delegates are chosen by a vote.

Cameroun is the commercial capital of French speaking Africa.

Two Injured In Car Crash Near Ivanhoe

An elderly West Huntingdon couple are in Belleville General Hospital this morning after suffering lacerations and abrasions in a one - car accident on Highway 62 near Ivanhoe yesterday afternoon.

Mr. John Holden, 70, and his wife Ada, 69 were travelling northbound on the highway some two miles south, of Ivanhoe, when the mishap occurred. Extensive damage was done to their car, which went off the highway and finished in the ditch. The Holdens were towing a trailer behind their car at the time of the incident.

City Ambulance Service of Belleville took the couple to hospital. The accident is being investigated by the Madoc detachment of the O.P.P.

Mrs. G. Brooks Holds Perfect Cribbage Hand

George "Brooks, 20A, Highland Drive, last night his wife, Daisy, to play cribbage some 35 years ago.

She paid him for the favor by coming up with a rare "29" perfect hand, in one of their many games.

The perfect hand helped Mrs. Brooks avoid a skunking, however, as Mr. Brooks said, "and she went on to beat me by 15 points".

Mrs. Brooks held the jack of spades and the fives of hearts, clubs and diamonds when bobby gave her the perfect cut. She is 57 years of age.

"I have been playing for 50 years or more and in all that time have only had one perfect hand, about four years ago," said Mr. Brooks, who was as happy with his wife's good luck as she.

"We play almost every day and over the years I have seen a number of 28 hands but that old 29 is quite a thrill, even when it costs you the game," he chuckled.

Accused Given Three Months On Theft Count

Bud Wayne Britton, 20, of no fixed address was sentenced to three months in the county jail in city magistrate's court this morning on a charge of breaking and theft.

Britton had previously pleaded guilty to the charge which was laid by city police following strong-arm robbery of $275 August 13 from the Dixie Lee Chicken establishment on Coleman Street. The accused told the court, however, that the bag of cash receipts that he took from the premises on the day in question contained $175. The youth has been in custody since his arrest.

Magistrate T. Y. Wills told Britton that, under the circumstances, his sentence was a lenient one, and that he hoped the youth would benefit from the punishment.

So-Called 'Pearson Formula' Sweeps into Wage Negotiations

By DENNIS ORCHARD

OTTAWA (CP) — Government and management are watching unhappily as a so-called "Pearson formula" creeps into wage negotiations across the country.

Union leaders are demanding 3 per - cent wage increases. They say fair precedents were set by the cabinet when it took a hand in ending a longshoremen's strike in Quebec and a dispute on the St. Lawrence Seaway.

They note that negotiations in the strike at Quebec ports had already arrived at an understanding about wages when the key differences over size of dock crews proved insoluble.

In early July the cabinet stepped in and won the approval of shippers and unions to end the strike, to increase wages as already agreed by both sides and to submit the issue of crew reductions to an inquiry into technological changes on the waterfront.

NOT THE AUTHORS

But government sources say the fact remains that the prime minister and his cabinet were not authors of the 36-cent hourly increase won by the longshoremen.

On the other hand, the settlement for 1,200 seaway workers won fast cabinet approval in mid-July after it was worked out by Senator Norman MacKenzie, federal mediator.

The government insisted that the special issue in this case was the pay scale applying to American seaway workers who performed their jobs almost side-by-side with the Canadian men.

The seaway settlement also achieved wage parity but in most cases Canadian industry says it cannot afford parity between American and Canadian wages.

With a national rail strike on the way Frank Hall, veteran negotiator for non - operating railway workers, said the "Pearson standard" is "what we want and what we're going to get or we don't work."

Ian Sinclair, CPR president, said the two settlements applied to seasonal workers and must be considered isolated situations.

He said it is unfortunate that union positions on the demand have become rigid. Even though such increases would have "tremendously bad effects on Canada," they are being set up by unions as fixed criteria for future settlements, he said.

An Ottawa economist outside the government said any government - engineered settlement would create a specific authority to the terms and that's "the best argument for keeping out of negotiations."

CPR and CNR Give Wage Scale Paid to Employees

MONTREAL (CP)—The CPR Thursday gave figures on the wages it says are paid to various categories of the work force which is threatening to strike today against Canadian Pacific.

A CPR spokesman said: the rates are identical for employees of both his company and the CNR which also would be involved in a strike by 138,000 employees across the country.

Non-operating employees are divided into two categories, those paid by the hour and those paid by the month.

The highest of the monthly paid workers are train dispatchers.

The CPR said they now make $610.32 a month. A 30-per-cent increase in pay, as is being asked for by the strike-threatening unions would mean an increase of this figure to $804.54, said the CPR spokesman.

The lowest of the monthly-paid non-ops are first-term office boys who receive $320.08 and would, under the union demand, receive $390.30, the railway official said.

Other figures released by the CPR regarding non-ops' wages:

Highest hourly - paid non-op: maintenance of way machine operator-present wage $2.51 an hour, which would become $3.26 with union-demanded increase.

Lowest hourly-paid non - op: first - term apprentice - currently $1.60, union demanding $2.08.

Average hourly earnings of non-ops: $2.23.

The highest - paid shopcraft workers at CPR are tradesmen Class A who now receive $2.46 an hour, says the railway.

"A 30-per-cent raise, together with the value of their shopcraft union demands for workers in their category, would mean a raise for this class of tradesmen to $3.84 an hour," the railway spokesman said.

He said the lowest-paid of the shopcraft workers is the apprentice who now receives $1.58 and would go up to $2.35 if the union wage demand were implemented.

Among the tradesmen, also threatening to strike, the highest paid is a passenger conductor who the railway says makes $3.78 an hour.

The railway said union demands for the tradesmen came to 15 per cent over present levels. The conductor's wage under such an agreement would rise to $4.38, said the CPR.

It added that the union wants a reduction to six from eight hours as a conductor's working day and that such would mean the conductor's wage under the union plan would be the equivalent of $4.60.

Lowest paid of the tradesmen are switch tenders. The CPR said they now make $2.35 an hour and would rise to $3.05 under union wage demands.

Six Killed In Collision Near Regina

REGINA (CP)—Six persons died after the car in which they were riding slammed into a gasoline-laden transport truck early Thursday 30 miles east of here on the Trans-Canada Highway.

Killed in the crash were Peter Kenneth Ulbrich, 25, of Calgary, Jennifer Geraldine Flora Ulbrich, and two of their children, Cora, 3, and Peter James, less than a year.

A third child, Roxanne, 4, died about 12 hours later in hospital.

Rodger Chester of St. Norbert, Man., driver of the car Ulbrichs were travelling in, was charged with dangerous driving.

The truck driver, Ernest Ulbrich, also died in the crash.

Talk on Labor Will Be Given Rotary Club

Francis Eady, executive assistant to the president of the Canadian Union of Public Employees, will address Belleville Rotarians on Monday.

A native of England, Mr. Eady was associated with the labor movement in that country. He worked in the Research and Economics department of the British Trade Union Congress, and subsequently in the Secretariat of the International Confederation of Free Trade Unions with headquarters in Brussels. He also spent a year in Sweden studying the labor movement there.

Mr. Eady, who came to Canada in 1953, will speak on the theme: Thoughts on Labor Management Relationships in 1967, a survey of labor-management relationships in Canada as they stand on the eve of Centennial Year.

Family Friction

One of the most disturbing elements in modern society is the tension that manifests itself in the beating of small children — what has come to be identified with the so-called battered-child syndrome.

Such brutality often involves older people as well, but generally speaking it is small children in the hands of young parents (who may be under some degree of pressure) and occasionally teenagers who suffer in this respect.

Where teenagers are concerned many may feel there is a lack of discipline in their lives, and this is as much the fault of the "anything-goes" society in which we live, as of parents who must try and strike some sort of happy balance in this regard.

Obviously, there is no excuse for the brutal beating a Toronto father handed his 17-year-old daughter recently. The girl told Magistrate Crawford Guest that her father whipped her with a leather belt and an electric cord as punishment for staying out late. She said she had quit going to school and was unhappy most days at home because of her father's rigid disciplines.

The father, who was placed on a year's probation, had demanded that the girl be home by midnight when he allowed her to go out. If this seems a reasonable enough curfew for a 17-year-old girl, there is also the suggestion that the father did not let her out too often, so that her unhappiness is understandable.

And when home life is so tense that a young person wants only to leave, as in this case, then there is something wrong. Probably the one vital element missing here was a happy relationship between parents and children, a relationship in which love and trust should play a large part — but which, unhappily, all too often are missing.

Where the Action Is

The Christian Science Monitor is one of the world's great newspapers. Within its pages may be found a wide range of material on the issues of the day, as well as features on the arts and the humanities.

Contributions by writers around the world, features on family life in different countries, reproductions of contemporary and period art as well as other material, make the Monitor one of the finest journals of our time.

Elsewhere on this page is an extract from the speech of Louis W. Cabot, president of a Boston chemicals manufacturing company, which was spoken of in last issue of the Monitor. Awarded the Harvard Business School Association's first Business Statesman Award, Mr. Cabot in his acceptance address, spoke on "A business career — the chance for leadership."

The Boston manufacturer called for new ethics, an awakened social conscience in business, and made the point that contrary to what some of the younger generation may think, business is "where the action is."

The article is a challenging one for any young person considering a career in business, or in any other professional sphere, in which case Mr. Cabot's observations afford a useful comparison.

P.E.I. and the Strike

Canada's youngest provincial leader, Premier Alex. Campbell of Prince Edward Island is facing squarely the possibility of strike action involving the island's ferries.

With the rail strike scheduled for today, not only would but the CNR's ferry service between the island and the mainland will come to a halt.

The Emergency Measures Act gives the provincial government power to deal with any disturbance arising from the strike. So long as the Government has said that if necessary it will take over operation of at least one of the three ferries on the run from Bordon P.E.I. to Cape Tormentine, N.B.

Mr. Campbell has shown he can act swiftly in this, his first big test, one which involves the well-being of the island's 109,000 people. The CNR service, he noted, is the lifeline of the population.

Inventive British

What will they think of next? The inventive British, that is.

Professor Richard Oldfield is director of the Medical Research Council's Psychollngustics Unit at Oxford, and he has devised a machine which he says will measure how much human beings talk. The computer envisages it being used for psychiatric research.

Well, we are all familiar with compulsive talkers, so Professor Oldfield is probably on the right track when he says the invention "may help us find mental patients."

Another British invention of the moment is a miniature television set which can fit into the palm of the hand? Developed by a small firm in Cambridge (not to be outdone by Professor Oldfield in Oxford), the set has a two-inch screen.

If it goes into general production, this "walkie people" (as one newspaper calls it) will undoubtedly replace the portable transistor radio fad. And we suspect that on the strength of potential sales more optometrists may look forward to retiring to Florida.

Chronic Osteomyelitis Is Difficult to Cure

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: Can you explain me on osteomyelitis? I am a woman of 56, was operated on for this bone disease 25 years ago, and it has never healed. Although there is no pain, it is discharging constantly on the opening. — Mrs. C.W.

Osteomyelitis in three words, is infection of bone.

Any number of things can cause it. It may be injury. A compound fracture has to be treated carefully because of this danger. Or there may be an unknown injury, but the infection settles in the bone, migrating from a focus of infection elsewhere. Infected tonsils is a classic example. Tuberculosis is a number, but the original infection may focus anywhere and be of any germ type.

In recent years, the disorder is less frequently a serious problem for several reasons. We are more alert to subdue focal infections. We have antibiotics which help do this. The antibiotics are also very helpful, of course, in attacking osteomyelitis directly. Finally the importance of treating this disease early and adequately is recognized much more clearly now. These cases which linger on year after year illustrate why prompt treatment is important.

Surgery is usually necessary. In the past it was not uncommon to have multiple operations. If all of the diseased bone was not removed, the result was a chronic, smoldering site of infection and continuing drainage.

Hence today every effort is made to be sure that all of the diseased bone is removed at the first time. However, this depends on which bone is involved and the location of the infection.

Once the chronic condition develops, it can be difficult indeed to root. One basic problem is that blood supply to the area is such that drugs do not get to the site of the infection and for that reason even the modern antibiotics are not always effective. But if the tuberculosis germ is causing the infection, the moderately recent anti-TB medication (isoniazid by mouth or paraminosalicylic acid) may be effective.

If a further operation can remove the remainder of infected bone, then there is hope of recovery, but frankly, there is no quick and certain method of eliminating the infection once it has become chronic.

Dear Dr. Molner: What do you recommend for rinsing a thermometer? I usually rinse it in soapy water, but this antiseptic to prevent passing germs from one member of the family to another? — M. H.

Ordinary soap and water, and then dipping it or letting it stand in alcohol will make it perfectly safe.

Dear Dr. Molner: Six months ago my son, 17, had a 10 percent collapse of his left lung and stayed in the hospital for a week. now he has the same thing in the right lung and the doctor put him in bed for a week. Should I take my son to Baltimore for further examination? My doctor says it is just one of those things, and there is no treatment. — Mrs. A. A.

What we call "spontaneous pneumothorax" occurs occasionally without detectable trigger or reason. A small bleb breaks in the lung and the organ, like a balloon with a hole in it collapses. Then the small hole heals and the lung resumes normal activity. As a rule it is not dangerous but requires rest while the lung heals. It may or may not ever happen again. I see nothing to be gained by further examination.

Strictly Personal

The Age of Specialization

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

An eminent architect of my acquaintance was complaining one day to invite me to a luncheon at which the guests would get to see several hundred photographs of modern American buildings.

"I'm asking a lot of friends," he said, "but no architects. They all look too much alike. Architecture as it is. This is a show for people outside the field."

I accepted the invitation, not only because I am interested in the new trends in building but also because I think it is important to encourage this sort of idea.

One of the dismal results of our age of specialization is a lack of mutual intercourse among other fields in contemporary living. The doctors talk to doctors, the lawyers to lawyers, the architects to architects—but very little intelligible conversation is possible across the no man's land of mutual ignorance.

Past ages, whatever their defects, at least aimed at turning out well-rounded personalities who were more or less at home in several fields.

We have achieved deep knowledge in our specialties, but at the expense of general cultivation. A man who is fairly a genius in one area may sound like a blooming idiot in another.

And America, which has raised specialization to a fine art, is guiltier than most other countries. By the time a professional man is finished with his research, his papers, his "keeping up" with new developments, he is too fatigued to take more than a perfunctory interest in anything beyond the headlines or the comic pages.

Not only does this narrowness make him a dull dog in general conversation, but, more significantly, it allows the experts to have their own way without being adequately questioned or checked by intelligent laymen.

Each field runs the peril of becoming too ingrown, of being hypnotized by its own voice, of confusing its dictates with the ordained word of God. Almost every professional society is, by its very nature, immensely conservative, self-defensive and smug.

Without a general body of cultivated opinion, which can ask shrewd and disturbing questions, the specialists have little incentive to stand back from their work and evaluate it in a broad long-range perspective. When public is intimidated through ignorance, the experts can compound their mistakes to the point of disaster.

Society in the 20th century is not only vast and complex, but is also tightly inter-related. Each part affects every other part, and each man has an obligation to know more than the mere mechanics of making a living.

Sweet Scent Sends Them!

Notice a "femme fatale" ode about your local bus lately?

Several Midwest cities are spicing up unsavly diesel exhaust with perfume — half as much in the tank each day seems to keep oily odors away.

Des Moines, Detroit, and Cleveland have all tried it. And now the Bloomington, Ind., transit company is doing it. Not with perfume (That's "a little too far out," confesses one official). They go instead for something that smells mighty soapy — like a detergent.

"You can get right down behind the tail-pipe and it doesn't bother you," marvels the official.

Where the Action Is

Address by Louis W. Cabot, Winner of Harvard's Business Statesman Award

. . . The February, 1956, issue of Fortune magazine contained a most interesting article entitled "The Private World of the Class of '36." It reported on the attitudes of today's college students toward business as a personal career. It confirmed in a striking way how little many well - informed people really understand about the world of business in 1956.

Young men and women who have been exposed to the most perceptive minds in our land are concluding that "business is just not where the action is."

One student commented: "I've had comfort and security all my life and I know what it's like—it's dull."

Another put it this way: "I'm concerned with doing something significant. I'd like to say I've made a change in the world, small, in the United States, Africa, somewhere."

Do these views square with what you and I think about our careers? Are they right, by any chance? How do they look to us who have been at it awhile?

One of the lessons of history is that man is at his greatest when faced with great challenge. In earlier times, the fight for survival was such a challenge. Those who prevailed were those every ounce of energy and talent they had to get there. Those who didn't there were less willing. The strong always led the pack and to become one of them was a worthy ambition. . . .

Even into the Industrial Revolution and into present-day businessmen could quite accept ably have one central objective— the personal satisfaction and business success—with hardly anyone's questioning his right to do so, or its legitimacy as the way of the world. . . .

But things do change. And they have changed for us.

Where most people once were independent, self - sufficient members of small isolated groups, not much concerned with things far away, now they belong to vast organizations. They have become specialized and dependent on others. Even the barriers of geography and distance are gone.

Today everything each of us does can push out a widening wake. Our business actions can touch others there were but dimly aware of. Our personal lives reach great distances in exploding diversity and complexity.

A particular feature of our modern industrial world is the force of public opinion. The world of ideas is now available to everyone.

We are planning and working and acting in glass houses, glass houses that can be seen through.

Now, for the first time in history to any important degree, men feel that they can be self-servingly successful just doesn't get by. . . . Making money as an end in itself is a fraud, not a virtue. Young ideals are running somewhat wary.

Yet the hard fact is that business — private-enterprise business — is the central stream of our society. Eighty-five percent of our gross national product is produced by business and industry. That means it is in business where the largest part of our national energies are channeled. We can't ignore business or leave it to others. Business is where the action is.

The Slippery Slope of Inflation

Financial Times

In Europe everybody talks about "an incomes policy" to restrain inflation. In Britain Mr. Wilson's incomes policy has failed and he is driven to attempt "a wages and prices freeze." In the United States they have "anti-inflationary guidelines" — flexible or otherwise. In Canada the Economic Council is making a study.

To judge by results elsewhere, none of the attempts to restrain wages and prices by government exhortation work very well. In a new look at U.S. inflation (which has just been published by the American Enterprise Institute) Dr. Gottfried Haberler, of Harvard, says that incomes policy has not worked anywhere, apart from one partial and temporary success in Holland.

He is just as sure that the U.S. guidelines will fail.

In the face of such discouraging evidence, the Economic Council of Canada (whose report is promised for next month) is not likely to give us an original incomes policy strong enough to turn back the flood of wage demands and rising costs.

With flabby governments staggering from one crisis to the next, the chief hope of the Canadian opinion have been able to arouse any general public awareness of the disastrous slope we are descending.

This, at least, cannot be said of the Economic Council's proclaimed an incomes policy, however disappointing its results may be. The question is how much worse the results would have been if their governments had not been engaged in informing the public mind that higher incomes can only come out of higher productivity.

We hope, therefore, that the Economic Council's study will not be too negative. It cannot produce a magic wand or a big stick. But it could insist on government's responsibility to set a standard of economic behavior and to live up to it with all the means at its disposal.

Preaching is necessary. But preaching is not enough. Where incomes policies and presidential guidelines have failed, a large part of the cause has been that the governments did not practise what they preached or set up standards for others which they did not apply themselves.

The problem, then, is to proclaim the challenge in terms that do inspire, to point up the ideas and update the stated goals of business as they, too, have changed with the times.

Any critic of this mechanism should think long and hard before advocating any policy of lessening the pressure and vigor of competition. I don't believe any other system can keep things sorted out in the complexity of our world. Who else will have the wisdom can if we are not up to snuff?

Annual Service At Adolphustown

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

Each year you have very graciously published a brief article announcing the annual pilgrimage to be held at the Loyalist Bay Church, Adolphustown. This has been greatly appreciated by the Board of Trustees of this historic church.

This is the 174th anniversary of the building of this United Loyalist Church in the year 1792, and the service will be held on Sunday, August 28 at 3 p.m. The Rev. J. W. Davidson, president of the Bay of Quinte Conference will be the guest speaker. Mr. Davidson is the minister of Sydenham United Church, Kingston.

Visitors come to the historic church during July and August and they are welcomed by the two occupants of the cottage next to the church on the same property.

Next Sunday, hundreds will join us in our annual service. A public address system will be used to assist those who cannot get into church.

Three members of the Board of Trustees are living in Belleville: His Honor Judge Anderson, Mr. Arnold Campbell and the Rev. Oscar Wagar.

We shall appreciate anything you can do for us in your widely-read and valuable paper.

Rev. Harold B. Neal, D.D.
Chairman of the Board of Trustees,
Hay Bay Church.

Disrespect . . . Ad Nauseam

James Morris in the

Saturday Evening Post

There are many people around with no respect. I am one. I have a good deal of them myself, and I daresay you are too. Petulant playwrights, illmannered novelists and counterfeit painters—none of them has any respect for the public they serve. Disrespect per se is one of the silliest phenomena of the age, foolishly encouraged by those who, in their determination to be "with it," lack the guts or the taste to object.

"Let's take the family out in the country where it's quiet."

TORONTO STOCKS TODAY

TORONTO (CP) — Trans-Canada Pipe Line plunged 3¼ to a low of 27 in the first hour of trading today, pacing the industrial index to its lowest level since April 2, 1964.

The drop in Trans - Canada followed a federal government rejection of the company's bid to build a new east-west pipe line with a section passing north of the Great Lakes.

The industrial index, an indicator of how key stocks move, tumbled 1.77 to 147.01, one of its heaviest hourly losses in many years.

Issues that fell to lows for the year included General Motors off 2 to 77, Massey-Ferguson 1¼ to 27¾ despite a sharp increase in the company's nine-month earnings, and CPR ¼ to 25¾.

Inco and Pine Point dropped 2 each to 98 and 54 in base metals. Normads slipped ¼ to 43¼ and Denison ¼ to 25⅛.

On locket, golds were off 2.56 to 172.55, base metals .04 to 97.02, western oils 1.37 to 99.57 and the TSE 1.68 to 140.28. Volume at 11 a.m. was 694,000 shares compared with 895,000 at the same time Thursday.

The industrial index tumbled .85 to 148.78. It was up .09 at mid-afternoon.

A total of 2,486,000 shares changed hands compared with 2,264,000 Wednesday.

Industrial losses went to Ford of Canada off 2¼ to 128¼, International Minerals 2 to a low of 62 and Bank of Montreal 1 to 53.

Massey-Ferguson slid ¼ to 29¾ despite an increase in the company's nine-month earnings. CPR dropped ¼ to 25¾ as the company faces a rail strike.

Among base metals, Inco fell 1¼ to 97, Hudson Bay, Pine Point and Comineo 1 each to 72, 55 and 33½ respectively.

Giant Yellowknife dipped ¼ to 11¼ in golds.

On locket, golds were off 1.47 to 174.11, base metals .76 to 97.36 and the TSE .80 to 141.02. Western oils showed up .41 to 100.71.

M. Hanley and P. Ackerman Share Playgrounds Award

By GEORGE CAMPBELL
Supervisor of Playgrounds

Yesterday was talent and awards day on the city's playgrounds. This was the final special event of the year as all the playgrounds will close today.

The afternoon was climaxed with the presentation of the Playground Leader Award. This is awarded annually to the playground leader contributing most to the playground program. This year the award was given jointly to Mary Hanley and Peggy Ackerman of Bayview School playground and OSD playgrounds respectively.

Other awards were given to Sir Winston Churchill girls and OSD boys for winning the annual playground field day.

Volunteer leader awards were given to 43 children for helping the leaders throughout the summer. Awards were also given to those children who had met the required standards in track and field.

The Belleville Kinsmen Pool donated tickets to its annual water show and these were given to the winners of the talent contest.

Msgr. J. A. Carley officiated at the marriage in St. Joseph's Church on August 30, 1968, of Patricia Carroll, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Fahey of Belleville and John Michael Bonn, son of Mr. and Mrs. John J. Bonn of Trenton. Gary Fitzgibbon was organist and Kathleen O'Connor was soloist.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a full-length white silk faille Empire - waisted gown accented with lace and pearls. A full train fell from the waist. Her veil of pure silk illusion was bouffant to the shoulder and fell in a single tier to the ground. It was held with a headdress of pearl encrusted faille flowers, and she carried a bouquet of stephanotis and one white orchid.

Miss Gail Kelly, maid of honor, wore a two-piece, full-length, A-line dress with melon colored crepe skirt and bodice of Guipure lace. Her match i n g headpiece was of pearl-trimmed flowers and tulle veiling. Miss Stella Fahey, sister of the bride and Miss Janet Bonn, sister of the bridegroom, as bridesmaids were dressed identically to the matron of honor. Miss Joanne Fahey, sister of the bride, as junior bridesmaid, and Miss Lorre Cain, as flower girl, wore one-piece Empire - line dresses similar to those of the other attendants. All carried semi-cascade bouquets of white carnations.

Jack Chambers was the bridegroom's attendant and James Bonn and George Bonn were ushers. The bride's brother, Peter Fahey, was ring bearer.

For the reception at the Knights of Columbus Hall, the bride's mother chose a two-piece, A-line ensemble in Persian pink, with matching pillbox hat and a white orchid corsage. The bridegroom's mother wore an Empire waisted turquoise crepe dress with matching accessories and a pink orchid corsage.

The bride's travelling costume for her wedding trip to the northern United States was a light weight green tweed suit with green and brown accessories, and a white orchid corsage.

On their return, the couple will live at 92 Gore Street, Apartment 2, Kingston.

MR. AND MRS. GEORGE JOSEPH FLYNN

Flynn – Lee

Rev. T. J. Boyle performed the double-ring ceremony in the Church of St. Michael the Archangel, Belleville on Saturday, August 20, 1966 at 11 a.m., when Mary Donna Lee, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Lee, Belleville and Florida, became the bride of George Joseph Flynn son of Mr. and Mrs. James Flynn of Marysville. Miss Dorothy Grant was organist who played traditional wedding music and accompanied the soloist Mr. William Mann.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a semi-fitted A-line gown of white satin backed crepe in Empire style with bodice featuring scooped neckline and elbow length sleeves and enhanced with Alencon lace trim. A cathedral length train bordered with matching lace fell gracefully from the shoulders. A waist - length veil was held in place by an Alencon lace headdress and she carried a cascade bouquet of white glamelias with fern.

Miss Elizabeth Lee, sister of the bride as maid of honor and the bridesmaids Miss Lenore Morrell and Mrs. Gerald Gervais were similarly attired in floor-length Empire styled gowns of blue floral satin print highlighted with flowing panels at back. They wore matching wedding ring headdresses and each carried a colonial bouquet of white and blue tinted 'mums. The little flower girl was Miss Rose Hanley, cousin of the bridegroom who wore a floor-length Empire styled gown of blue floral material with matching headdress. She carried a basket of white and blue 'mums.

Mr. Terrance Flynn attended his brother, while Mr. Gerald Dirocco, Mr. Joseph Lee, brother of the bride, and Mr. Patrick Flynn, brother of the bridegroom were the ushers.

A reception dinner was held at the Sun Valley Motor Inn, Belleville where the bride's mother greeted the guests wearing a turquoise blue silk shantung A-line dress with matching jacket and accessories and a pink orchid corsage. The bridegroom's mother, who assisted, wore a floor length crepe dress with lace bodice, matching accessories and an orchid corsage.

Leaving on a wedding trip to the Maritime Provinces and Eastern United States the bride chose an ivory colored worsted suit, white feathered Breton hat, black patent accessories and an orchid corsage.

Upon return Mr. and Mrs. Flynn will reside at 30 Highland Avenue, Belleville.

MR. AND MRS. KEITH CONNOR

Connor – Belch

St. John's United Church, Tweed, was the scene on Saturday, August 31, 1968, of the marriage of Margaret Ruth, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Belch of Tweed and Keith Alexander Connor, son of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Connor of Madoc. Rev. H. Y. Kennedy was the officiating clergyman. Mr. Fred Forster of Tweed played the wedding music and Mr. Kenneth Bronson was soloist.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a floor-length gown of white satin peau de soie with controlled skirt. The skirt and bodice were embroidered with seed pearls and the long sleeves came to lily-points at the wrists. A chapel train was attached at the waist, and she carried a cascade bouquet of pink roses and white Shasta mums. Included in her costume was a piece of handmade Brussels lace from her grandmother's wedding dress.

The bride's sister, Mrs. W. Sandrick of Loudon, Ontario was matron of honor. She wore a floor-length, Empire - style gown of sage organza over taffeta with bodice and train embroidered with white silk. Her headdress was a short veil topped with flowers and seed pearls and she carried a nosegay of small 'mums and roses in matching shades. The bridesmaids were Miss Mary Quinn, Miss Barbara Tufts and Miss Sheila Quinn. They were gowns similar to that of the matron of honor, one to the same color and the other two in a rose shade.

Mr. Glenn Sinclair of Sault Ste. Marie Falls and Calgary was groomsman and the ushers were Mr. Douglas May of Toronto, Mr. Roger Hiemstra of Toronto and Mr. Dwight Bloch of Madoc.

At the reception held at St. John's Church Hall, Mr. Clarke Rawson of Actinolite was master of ceremonies. To receive the guests the bride's mother was dressed in a blue lace ensemble of dress and matching coat, blue accessories and a corsage of pink roses. The bridegroom's mother, who assisted, wore a navy blue shantung coat dress with matching accessories and a corsage of pink roses.

For her wedding trip to Algonquin Park the bride chose a green tweed-effect two - piece woollen suit with black accessories and a corsage of roses.

On their return, the couple will live at 602 Charlotte Street, Peterborough.

FUN-TO-DO EXERCISES — Actress Marta Kristen may be "Lost In Space," but she knows how to do those trim exercises to contour bust and arms.

Have a Ball Slimming By Bouncy Streamliners

By REBA AND BONNIE CHURCHILL

These breezy, bounce-along streamliners are as much fun as they appear. Whether performed in or outdoors, you literally have a ball as you slim the figure. For instance, lifting a beach-ball overhead, then swinging it around until it touches the thighs, isn't an exerting routine! Yet, when performed correctly it brings slenderizing rewards. Check the action. Holding the ball sky - high, notice how rib cage is elevated, torso stretched, and shoulders squared! Now bend forward, without letting stomach muscles relax and whee out trying to touch the toes! Feel the back muscles elongate, waist nip in and thighs tighten? Repeat four times.

Next, to insure a smooth torso and a slim waist, try this bend 'n' press-workout. Stand with feet 18 to 20 inches apart and ball tucked under right arm. Then, lift left arm overhead and gently push in the right in a series of short, staccato movements. As actress Marta Kristen of the CBS-TV series "Lost in Space" discovered, the pressure of the ball against the side helps keep rib cage from slumping onto waist. Alternate sides; practice eight times.

Finally, to contour bust and arms, follow the exercise command, "Take a breath!" Place ball behind back, sp it rests against buttocks. Now, inhale through nose, as you simultaneously swing ball way over head, bringing arms down on tiptoes. Hold extended pose five seconds. Exhale through the mouth, and return to easy position. Begin slowly with two repetitions. Gradually build up to eight sessions.

WEDDING

TREVERTON — JONES

MARMORA — The wedding was solemnized in St. Andrew's United Church, Marmora, on Saturday, August 31 at 2 p.m., when Gloria Dawn Nodes, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Nodes of Marmora became the bride of Ronald Edward Treverton, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Treverton of Roc. Rev. J. M. D. McLeod of Bedlersville, formerly of Marmora, performed the double ring ceremony.

Wedding music was rendered by the church organist Mrs. J. M. D. McLeod who also accompanied the soloist Mrs. Glen Maiver.

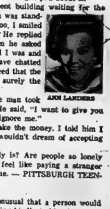
The bride, given in marriage by her father chose a floor length gown of white satin peau de soie with the bodice featuring a boat shaped neckline accented with sequin seed pearl adorned appliques and long illusion sleeves. The full bell skirt extended into a chapel train. A four-tier veil of silk illusion floated from a tiara of aurora borealis stones and seed pearls. She carried a bouquet of golden chalice roses.

Attending the bride were her four sisters, Karen Anne as maid of honor, Judith and Gayle as bridesmaids and Trudy as junior bridesmaid. They were identical floor-length gowns of crystal charm in seafoam shade, fashioned with boat neckline, short puff sleeves and bell skirts. All wore matching veiled headdresses and each carried a bouquet of white and blue tinted 'mums.

Miss Lori Maynes were the flower girls dressed in floor-length dresses of white terylene satin. The waistlines were accented with sea foam shade ribbon and streamers and their headdresses were bows of seafoam colored ribbon. Both carried baskets of white 'mums.

Master Dwayne Adams, cousin of the bride as ring-bearer carried the rings on a white satin cushion. John Treverton attended his brother and the ushers were Keith Drevolin of Madoc, Douglas Nobes of St. Catharines and James Nobes of Marmora, brothers of the bride.

The reception was held in St. Andrew's Church hall where the bride's mother received wearing a sheath dress of pecan blue Guipure lace with matching coat, while accessories and a corsage of pink Sweetheart roses with white feathered carnations. The bridegroom's mother assisted wearing a two-piece blue brocade ensemble with feathered hat, matching accessories and a corsage of pink feathered carnations.



For the wedding trip to points in Eastern Canada, the bride chose an aqua linen suit, white and black accessories and a corsage of pink Sweetheart roses centred with a camelia.

Ann Landers

Girl Is Offered $5 For Being Pleasant

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am a 18-year-old girl who experienced a very strange thing and I want to ask you about it.

Yesterday I was in an apartment building waiting for the elevator and a nice looking old man was standing there waiting for the elevator, too, I smiled at him and said, "Good afternoon." He replied with a very friendly smile and then he asked me where I went to school, how old I was and a few other questions. We rode up and chatted about five minutes and we both agreed that the elevator we were waiting for was surely the slow est one in the whole world.

ANN LANDERS

Just as the elevator arrived the man took out his wallet and handed me $5. He said, "I want to give you this for being so nice. Most people ignore me."

I was shocked and refused to take the money. I told him I enjoyed talking to him and that I wouldn't dream of accepting payfor it.

Is this the way the world really is? Are people so lonely for a kind word that they actually feel like paying a stranger for just being pleasant? Please tell me. — PITTSBURGH TEENAGER.

DEAR TEEN-AGER: It is unusual that a person would offer to pay a stranger for speaking kindly to him, but I can tell you, my dear, that millions of folks are unbelievably lonely — starved for a pleasant word.

You must be a truly lovely girl to have been so sweet to the elderly gentleman. Your life is sure to be filled with sunshine because you have the ability to bring joy to others. It is a rare gift. Use it well.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: At an informal Saturday morning breakfast club, a friend used to stop in each week to greet members. Even though he never joined us to eat we were happy to see him.

A few weeks ago someone mentioned baseball and mildly ribbed the man because his favorite team, once a mighty winner, was in the tenth place.

This affable and jolly fellow turned livid. His lips trembled and he stomped out of the place in a huff. We haven't seen him since. Is such voleanic anger proper conduct for a grown man? We are all disappointed and would appreciate your views. — MR. BANANA — ONE OF THE BUNCH.

DEAR BUNCH: Of course such lack of control is childish. But today's bunns are tomorrow's heroes, so don't count the man out forever. When his team looks better he'll be back. (Would you believe five years from now.)

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am bored with your repeated knocks at the friendly cocktail. I know your type. You probably drink alone.

I enjoy a cocktail or two — or even three when I feel like it — and I resent your continued sniping at social drinkers. Also, I recently proved that liquor can be a friend.

I got smashed at a party the other night and fell over the dog. I was so relaxed I wasn't even bruised. H-I hadn't been drinking I might have broken my neck. What do you say to that, Ann Landers? — MARY.

DEAR MARY: I say if you hadn't gotten smashed you might have seen the dog and not fallen at all.

WEDDING

PETTEY — REID

Grace Chapel, Stirling was the scene of the double-ring ceremony on Saturday, August 20, 1966, when Kathleen Anne Reid, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Percy M. Reid, Campbellford, R.R. 2 was united in marriage to Donald Ross Pettey of Niagara Falls, Ontario, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ray G. Pettey of Campbellford.

Mr. W. E. Beken of Belleville officiated at the ceremony and wedding music was provided by Mr. Dwight Bennett of Toronto, who also accompanied the soloist Mrs. Nick Unitt of Barrie.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a floor-length gown of white peau de soie featuring a Chantilly lace overlay on the bodice which had long lily-point sleeves. A detachable chapel train was accented at the waist with a bow. Her headdress was a wedding ring headband of white lace from which extended a chapel length silk illusion veil. She carried a white Bible created with red rosebuds, stephanotis and 'mums.

Mrs. Bill Cook of Scarborough as matron of honor and the bridesmaids Miss Joyce Cooney of Stirling, Miss Ann Whittaker of Kingston, and Mrs. John Vice of Odessa were identically attired in floor-length avocado green peau de soie gowns featuring white Chantilly lace bodices with scoop necklines and short sleeves. All wore matching wedding ring headdresses and each carried a bouquet of yellow 'mums. Miss Kathy Reid of Stirling, cousin of the bride, as flower girl wore a yellow peau de soie, floor-length gown with the fitted bodice accented at the waistline with a yellow velvet ribbon. She wore a yellow headband and carried a nosegay of yellow and white 'mums.

Mr. Bill Cook of Scarborough was groomsman, while Mr. John Vice of Odessa, Mr. Ted Reid of Ryletone, brother of the bride, and Mr. Nick Unitt of Barrie were the ushers.

A reception was held at the I.O.O.F. Hall, Stirling, where the bride's mother received the guests wearing an ivory two-piece silk knit suit with mint green and brown accessories and a bronze cymbidium orchid corsage. Assisting was the bridegroom's mother who wore a two-piece Chantilly lace over taffeta dress in jewel blue with matching hat and navy accessories with an ivory cymbidium orchid corsage.

For the wedding trip to Cape Cod and points along the eastern coast of the United States, the bride chose a coral silk dress with A-line skimmey coat, lemon shade accessories, and a corsage of green cymbidium orchids.

Upon return from the honeymoon the couple will reside at 2531 Drummond Rd., Niagara Falls, Ontario.

Small Lemon Meringue Pie

QUESTION:

Would you please give the amounts for making a small lemon meringue pie — say for a 7 or 7½" pie plate? There are only 3 of us. Maggie G.

ANSWER:

Gladly.

SMALL LEMON MERINGUE PIE (for a 7 or 7½" pie plate — serves 3 or 4):

PASTRY:

⅔ cup unsifted all-purpose flour
1/3 tsp. salt
⅓ cup shortening
1 tbsp. butter
4 tsps. cold water

FILLING:

4 tsps. flour
8 tsps. cornstarch shake of salt
⅓ cup sugar
1 cup boiling water
2 eggs, yolks and whites separated
4 tsps. butter
2 tsps. grated lemon rind
⅓ cup lemon juice
⅓ tsp. sugar

To make Pastry cut the shortening and butter into the flour and salt until size of peas. Drizzle in water until dough will shape into ball. Roll out to fit a 7 or 7½" pie plate and line pan and flute edge. Prick with fork. Bake at 425 deg. F. for about 12 min. or until tinged with gold. To make Filling combine in heavy saucepan the flour, cornstarch, salt and sugar. When mixed stir in water and cook stirring until thick. Remove from heat and beat in egg yolks. Return to heat and stir for 1 min. Add butter and lemon rind and stir until cooled to warm. Now stir in lemon juice. Pour into baked pie shell. Cover completely with meringue made by whipping together until stiff, two egg whites and the ¼ cup sugar. Bake at 350 deg. F. until meringue is rich gold.

FRIDAY
Dinner Menu
by Mary Moore

Mushroom Consomme; Cold Salad Plate: Cold Boiled or Canned Salmon with Mayonnaise, Deviled Eggs (see Thurs.), Sliced Large Tomatoes; Lettuce; Apple Strudel (see Tues.); Coffee.

QUESTION:

Not long ago you printed two recipes for using oil instead of butter or shortening in baking. Have you mislaid them? Would appreciate very much if they were printed again. Your "Silent Friend".

ANSWER:

Please include your name and address preferably on a stamped envelope next time. I could have mailed this recent release directly to you. Since you are interested in using oil in your baking see also "Dumb Good," Thursday, September 1/66, and "Tennis Butter Tarts," September 8/65.

OIL PASTRY (no roll) June 17/66:

1½ cups sifted all-purpose flour
1½ tsps. sugar
½ tsp. salt
½ cup corn oil
2 tbsps. cold milk

Sift flour, sugar and salt directly into pie plate. Combine oil and milk in measuring cup. Beat with fork until creamy; pour all at once over flour. Mix with fork until flour is completely dampened. Push and press evenly with fingers to uniform thickness — lining bottom and sides of pie plate. Pinch edges with fingers to flute. Prick entire surface with fork. Bake at 425 deg. F. for 12 to 15 min.

TEA BISCUITS (made with oil):

2 cups unsifted all-purpose flour
2 tsps. single-acting baking powder
1 tsp. salt
1/3 cup corn oil
2/3 cup milk

Sift together the flour, baking powder and salt. Add corn oil and milk—Stir with a fork only until all the ingredients are moistened. Turn onto a floured board. Knead lightly six to eight times. Pat or roll out the dough to ½" to ¾" thickness. Cut out with floured cutter. Place on baking sheet, close together for soft-sided biscuits, about 1 inch apart for crusty biscuits. Bake at 450 deg. F. 12 to 15 min. or until golden brown.

Variation: Cheese Biscuits: Add ½ cup grated Cheddar cheese to flour mixture.

Successful Living

Son Objects to Levy Of $15 a Week Board

DEAR DORIS — What should a son pay for room and board and washings at home? He is 22, has been working for four years. Average wage $2.40 an hour. Owns his own car, and a nice little bank account.

DORIS CLARK

His earnings are higher than his father's. He has been paying $10 a week. We have suggested $15 a week now since everything is up in price, but he thinks this is terrible. There are things he could do around to help his father but he doesn't. — WANTING TO BE FAIR TO BOTH.

DEAR WANTING — A few weeks of boarding out in the hard, cruel world and he'd change his tune! Why should he pile up a bank account at your expense?

Figures talk. Total up all the costs of keeping things going. Include rent or taxes and mortgage payments, food, replacements like towels, all other incidentals. Include an amount for laundry, and for maid service (unless he cleans his own room.) Something for emergencies, insurance, and your own savings should go in here.

Divide the total into thirds. My guess is that the true figure would come to a good deal more than $15. a week. 'Nuff said!

DEAR DORIS — I was the oldest and had to help my mother with a lot of things. Now I am married. She is separated from our father, and she seems to have just let a lot of the responsibility fall on the older girls' shoulders at home.

I feel that now that my father's gone it is up to her to be more strict and more responsible. She is the opposite.

How can I tell her without hurting her feelings? She resents it when I say anything. — THE OLDEST GIRL.

DEAR OLDEST — Can you dream up how it must feel to have a load lifted? Or the relief of no longer coping with a partner who means misery instead of joy? Your mother is probably slap-happy.

She gave you responsibility. Did you suffer for it? Let your sisters turn in and help. You be—the one to bring a light, cheery touch. Big Sister can change all the "rules" — if she's a mind to.

DEAR DORIS — My two brothers are usually up until 10.00 or 11.00 p.m. when my parents come home anyway. They are 11 and 12. Do they need a babysitter? — HOMEBOUND AT TWENTY-TWO.

DEAR HOMEBOUND — Some do, some don't. When a mother asks me this, I ask her to imagine what would happen in an emergency — fire, or floor, or break-in. Would her 13-year-old be able to cope?

There are sub-teens completely in control; others far younger in experience and confidence. Most provinces require that no child under ten be left alone. Beyond that — better talk it over.

(Providing a good neighbor who would pop over at the sound of an S.O.S. is a good idea, if you can find one.)

DEAR DORIS — Could you please send me your leaflet entitled "Don't Be Shy"? I'm enclosing 25c and 3c stamp.

I'm so shy I can't look up from my desk at school — afraid of the teacher. It's getting ridiculous. I blush something awful. It's hampering me in my studies, I know.

My best friend is the quiet type too, but I can crack all kinds of jokes when we talk and I'm quite at ease with her. The other kids, the "loud", extroverted types simply won't accept me in their activities, no matter how hard I try to fit in. — TOO SELF-CONSCIOUS.

DEAR TOO — James Morgan, famous salesman and author, says self-consciousness is "others consciousness". You are too painfully anxious about what people are going to think.

He cured himself by remembering how comfortable he felt when he was eating with Pa and Ma. Then he would imagine or pretend that he was walking into Ma's dining-room when he was actually approaching a formal banquet table.

Next time you feel the old familiar anxiety coming on, try out your imagination on the idea that you are merely talking with your best friend. Make it work for you. The leaflet is on its way, with some helpful ideas.

MR. AND MRS. RAYMOND B. SQUIRRELL

Squirrell — Whibbs

Elizabeth Anne, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Whibbs of Belleville and Raymond Bennet Squirrell of Ottawa, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Robert Squirrell, were united in marriage by Msgr. J. P. Sullivan in the Church of St. Michael the Archangel on August 20, 1966, at 10 a.m. Miss D. R. Grant was organist and Adrian Vogt was soloist.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of white silk organza over taffeta, styled on Empire lines. The bodice and teacup sleeves were appliqued with embossed flowers made of Alencon lace. The same appliques appeared on the A-line skirt which fell in a full-length chapel train. Her shoulder-length veil of silk illusion was held with a pillbox of appliqued lace outlined with seed pearls and she carried a crescent bouquet of pink delight roses and fern.

Miss Helen Whibbs, of Peterborough, cousin of the bride, and Miss Belinda Whibbs, sister of the bride, were bridesmaids. They were dressed alike in floor-length gowns of silk chiffon over taffeta. White bodices topped the Empire line berry pink skirts, and embroidered flowers of the same color as the skirts were appliqued on the fronts of their gowns. Their headpieces were pillboxes of the same material and color as their gowns and they carried cascades bouquets of white and pink-tinted 'mums.

The flower girl was Miss Debbie Charlebois, who wore a white organza over taffeta dress with short puffed sleeves, a full skirt and a pink velvet sash. Her headpiece was a crown of the same color as her dress and she carried a cascade bouquet of pink and white 'mums.

Frank Lemoine of Ottawa attended the bridegroom and the ushers were Paul and Frederick Whibbs, brothers of the bride.

At the reception, held at the Knights of Columbus Hall, the bride's mother received the guests, wearing a beige lace over taffeta dress with Chantilly lace jacket, pink and bone-colored accessories and a corsage of pink carnations.

For her wedding trip to Nova Scotia the bride chose a three-piece tailored walking suit of blue, white and grey tweed with bone-colored accessories and a corsage of ice blue carnations.

On their return the couple will live in Ottawa.

HALF IS TWICE AS GOOD

Dear Susanne: Just couldn't chose between two shampoos. Number one left my hair softer and better behaved while number two gave it more shine and curl. (This is not a commercial!)

When the indecision became too much for me I mixed them, half and half, and did my hair ever respond! Should have done it long ago.

Apparently I have hit upon a way to get the best out of both. Ext-ce manifique? Mais oui! — Teresa

SNUGGLY SLEEPERS

Moscow Silences Professor Who Criticizes USSR Too

MOSCOW (AP) — Soviet author Andrei Sinyavsky broke up a press conference by U.S. Prof. Stephen Sosnak and he soon banished from the scene.

Sosnak, of the University of California at Berkeley, has been a persistent critic of U.S. policy in Viet Nam and had been subpoenaed to appear before the U.S. House Committee on Un-American activities. He had been expected to limit today's conference to a further denunciation of the United States in Viet Nam.

Instead he lashed out on the Soviet Union as well.

He said he has found Soviet intellectuals disconnected over internal conditions here without having any means of expression.

DEALS WITH WAR

Sosnak called a press conference to answer questions by a North Vietnamese correspondent about his attitude toward the Viet Nam war.

Sosnak termed U.S. actions in Viet Nam horrible and brutal but added the Soviet intervention in Hungary in 1956 also had been brutal.

A Soviet woman appeared to break up the press conference with an urgent request for Sosnak to talk with an official of the International Congress of Mathematicians, which is to be in session here. Sosnak, 36, received one of his awards for his work on outstanding young mathematicians.

Later two Soviet men, who acted like policemen, escorted Sosnak from the meeting to a car. With Sosnak were correspondents following, it went to Novosti, a Soviet news and publicity agency.

Start Pouring Cement on Skyway Bridge

PICTON (STAFF) — Cement is now being poured on the new Quinte Skyway bridge. The firm of Steed and Evans is now pouring for the abutments at both ends of the bridge. The contract for the cement work on the $6 million bridge was awarded to the Maple, Ontario construction Co., on July 13 this year. The firm's tended bid was $407,425.00.

The contractors hope to begin work on the bridge itself this week if weather permits and they hope to have it finished by June 1967.

The Quinte Skyway bridge links Deseronto in Hastings County with Green's Point in Prince Edward County.

The actual pouring of the cement will be divided into five sections, each section taking three pours for a total of 15 pours. The two towers that the shores will be poured first.

The contractor hopes to have the work all completed finished by November when they will suspend operations for the winter. If weather permits the firm will begin work again in March 1967 and have the bridge ready for opening during the summer.

County Farmers Will Prepare Brief to Govt.

PICTON (STAFF) — At the Baxter Canning Company Hall tonight county farmers from all branches of agriculture will have the opportunity to get their problems and suggested solutions down in black and white for presentation next week to federal Minister of Agriculture J. J. Greene.

Mr. Greene has promised an audience to a delegation from Prince Edward County some time next week. The exact date is not yet known and will be announced later. The meeting was arranged by a local resident who took up Ontario Minister Stewart's request that farm assistance is usually initiated by the federal government with the provincial lending.

Those who feel some form of assistance is necessary, whether they be dairy farmers, can crop producers, fruit farmers or whatever are invited to take advantage of this opportunity. If his schedule permits Mr. Donald Baxter has assured that their this meeting at 8 p.m. and also accompany any delegates to Ottawa.

Kidnapped

The kidnapping took place early Monday morning while the mother and her daughter were sleeping alone in the Kilwer home.

The father, a wealthy antique dealer, went for a pre - arranged rendezvous with the kidnapper Tuesday but police said the man was scared off by television cameramen watching the proceedings.

Kilwer was ordered to the spot by a telephone call from a man who said he was the kidnapper, but he found only a crumpled note on the sidewalk ordering him to another rendezvous in Hanover.

The child's mother had a series of mystery telephone calls Thursday night but police efforts, which included closing off and searching a 150-mile stretch of highway into West Germany, produced no results.

Andrey was born in Ottawa.

Red Cross Parley Here Bilingual

Stanley Albert College in Belleville has turned bilingual all this week with sessions of the National Junior Red Cross conference being conducted both in English and French.

More than 50 per cent of the 70 delegates attending the national conference in Belleville are bilingual. About 35 of the delegates are from the provinces of Quebec.

So out of consideration to the 15 delegates from Quebec the conference sessions are being held partly in English and partly in French. The speaker talks in English for a few minutes, then switches to French.

"It all works out very well," Ted G. Davis, conference director, told The Intelligencer yesterday.

"Those who are fast bilingual get filled in through a whispering campaign with fellow delegates while the speaker progresses."

resolution unions have resigns and "a lot" an informant close to the cabinet said.

Before the inquiry was launched, Mr. Justice Lawlie, 56, had turned down a debatably-worded inquiry from Justice Minister Cardin as to whether he was thinking of resigning.

Mr. Pearson revealed Thursday that the cabinet had been "in touch" with the judge again —like time through Solicitor-General Fennell — before the Rand report was received.

GAVE NO DETAILS

The prime minister refused to disclose what was said. All he would say was: "This was quite proper and that the report was about his conduct."

Earlier, at a press conference held by himself and Mr. Cardin, Mr. Pennell had refused to admit even that he talked to the judge.

At all events, the report and its fallout have been occupying the Ottawa scene and cabinet brainpower in the light of an impending rail strike and MPs hustling to Ottawa to deal with strike - ending legislation.

The cabinet had the report Thursday, and Thursday the justice minister and solicitor-general called on the prime minister with their "legal and constitutional" problem. They are to see him again today—at 10 a.m. when the strike is starting—and Mr. Pearson appeared hopeful this would clear the air about publication of the report.

Canadian Junior Red Cross Delegates Holding Seminar And Workshop in the City

More than 70 members of the Canadian Junior Red Cross from Newfoundland to British Columbia are in Belleville this week attending a national leaders' study seminar and staff workshop.

Purpose of the conference is to formulate plans for the Canadian Red Cross Youth Centennial program next year with emphasis on discussion of how best to eliminate poverty, sickness and need in the world.

The conference sessions are being held at Albert College where the approximately 80 delegates are being both housed and fed. It is the first such national conference ever held by Canadian Red Cross Youth.

One of the main conference speakers is Ralph E. Wenderborn, national director of the Canadian Red Cross Youth whose key address was on how best to help others to help themselves.

LONG PROGRAM NEEDED

Mr. Wendeborn said that poverty, sickness and need was overwhelming in many parts of the world where he had visited.

"However, raising money for food, clothing and medical supplies was only part of the answer," he said.

Some of this should be done by all international welfare organizations, and it must be done. But, at the same time, education increases, the greatest need is for a program that will help the next 25 years would wipe out the causes of hunger and illness.

Mr. Wendeborn said the bill need for developing countries was technical know-how.

"If we can teach them to grow and preserve their own food; if we can provide them with the initial material requirements to make their land productive; if we can interest them in health education, then and only then will they be on the way to a happy, healthy world," he said.

CHARITY RESENTED

He went on to say that we must get out of our minds that in the accepted sense of the word assistance means charity.

Acceptance in the form of charity is resented by the receiver and rightly so. A handout was claimed to be degrading to a degree that only an empty belly can tolerate.

The new philosophy, Mr. Wendeborn said, must be based on the importance of encouraging young people to help themselves.

The speaker cited two instances where in the past two years pilot projects had been undertaken to point the way. One of these was a school garden project in the Sudan undertaken as a co-operative effort between the Food and Agricultural Organization of the United Nations, the Sudan Government and the Canadian Junior Red Cross.

TELLS OF EXPERIENCE

Then in 1964-65 a Red Cross field supervisor from Alberta Miss Mickalita Kowalski, had been loaned to the Pakistan Red Cross for the purpose of setting up a Red Cross youth program.

Back in Canada since October of last year, Miss Kowalski was on hand at the conference yesterday to tell first hand of her experiences in West Pakistan where in the frontier areas she said the problems of sanitation were unbelievable.

The lack of pure drinking water was said particularly acute with water mainly derived from simple dug-out wells, from which the people took drinking and cooking water. They also washed, bathed and even urinated in the same wells.

"They have always done this, and don't realize that they are doing anything wrong," she said.

SHORT LIFE EXPECTANCY

Lack of sanitation and resulting ill-health make for a very short life expectancy in the frontier areas of West Pakistan where the average life span is but 35 years.

But any organization seeking to introduce a change must move slowly.

"They have always done things a certain way and any suggestion of changes meets with antagonism.

Miss Kowalski said she was stationed at Lahore, a city of more than one and a half millions where eight Pakistani field workers were trained.

After training these workers were sent out into the field where Junior Red Cross programs were set up in 40 schools.

BIG PROBLEM

In a sub-tropical climate where summer temperatures ranged as high as 120 degrees, Miss Kowalski said that preservation of food was a big problem.

To make matters worse there is no attempt at garbage removal and spoiled food remains right where it is discarded.

But despite the difficulties experienced, Miss Kowalski said the results of the pilot program in Pakistan were encouraging.

Next year Red Cross workers from all over the world are being invited to "Rendezvous 67" being staged in Canada as a Centennial year project.

The Junior Red Cross delegates have been in Belleville since Sunday with the conference program getting underway Monday morning.

It will conclude this evening with a closing banquet with Major-General A. E. Wrinch, national commissioner of the Canadian Red Cross Society as the guest speaker.

Pipeline

nect with a Vermont pipeline.

The project aroused strong opposition in Northern Ontario because Trans-Canada proposed to build a section south of the Great Lakes through Minnesota, Wisconsin and Michigan.

The 360 - mile U.S. section would have linked Emerson, Man., and Sarnia and enabled Trans-Canada to ship gas to American consumers along the lakes. Congressman was stated to begin this year.

Mr. Pearson's statement elicited general support as he support the cabinet decision:

It was not in Canada's best interests to build pipelines to the Eastern Canada to depend on a pipeline regulated by the U.S. government, which is not concerned with protecting the American interest.

—Trans-Canada's plan to sell 97,600,000 cubic feet of gas daily to the U.S. subsidiary and import American gas at Sarnia would adversely affect Canada's balance of payments.

The U.S. loop almost inevitably would have prevented Trans-Canada's main pipeline, relegating the existing 30 - inch Northern Ontario line to a secondary position and killing hopes for a twinning of the Ontario line. Also, it would thus lose a large capital investment.

—A Trans-Canada main line cutting across U.S. territory would result in the cost of the pipeline act passed by Parliament 10 years ago in a historic and violent debate. The act requires the main line to be built exclusively within Canada.

IMPORTANT TO CANADA

"The gas transmission industry is a public utility on a large scale, and is important to Canadian national well-being." Mr. Pearson at present said. "The development of its main links between West and East should, we believe, be built mainly under Canadian jurisdiction."

Trans-Canada argued that the U.S. short-cut would save $12,000,000 in distribution costs over the 20-year period, resulting in lower gas prices in Eastern Canada. The energy board said it saw no reason to the cabinet that this estimate was too high.

The company also argued that a second pipeline across the northwest Ontario wilderness would be difficult to finance because of the lack of consumers along the way.

Trans-Canada estimated that Alberta gas producers and the provincial government would have earned an extra $400,000,000 during the next 25 years by feeding gas into the new west-east pipeline.

The new line was to have been supplied by eight gas fields in the Morrin Hills area northeast of Edmonton and 18 fields in central Alberta.

If the name attached to Sunday's Senior tournament is a true indication, you had better wear your sun glasses when driving past the Bay of Quinte Golf and Country Club.

They are calling it the "Silver Tee" Tournament.

It has all the earmarks of becoming an annual affair — and a good one.

Club pro George Balazs, one of the organizers of the tournament along with Robert Miekand, said yesterday that interest in the tourney, the club's first all-senior affair, is running high.

"We have 47 entries right now and expect a great deal more," he said. George also pointed out that post entries are being accepted so you are not too late to get in on the fun.

There are certain stipulations however. You must be a member of the Club — and most important — you must admit to fifty years of age or over.

The tournament's top trophy will go to the low net winner. There will be three divisions, for golfers in the 50 to 55 years age bracket, for 56 to 60 and for 61 and over.

While play itself is for "senior" seniors, club members 21 years old and over are being asked to caddy for the "Silver Tees." Caddy arrangements are being looked after by Mr. Frank Geerkens and members wishing to lend a hand in this capacity are asked to contact him.

And while some fine scores are expected, golfers and caddies alike are expected to have a most enjoyable day with no one taking the matter as seriously as he might the World Series of Golf.

The draw will be made Saturday night and, as was mentioned before, post entries will be accepted. You can call the pro shop to check on your tee-off time.

A buffet luncheon will be served, followed by entertainment.

All in all, it should be a great day for the "Silver Tees."

Tweed's Jim Halpenny, who handles tickets in this area for Ottawa Roughriders, says he expects quite a turnout for the Hamilton-at-Ottawa battle coming up on September 10.

Buses and cars will be making the trip and apparently Ottawa's "Red" O'Quinn, a frequent visitor out Tweed way, is making arrangements to have some of his players join the local area for a small get-to-gether following the game. Halpenny says he has 200 tickets for the game and does not expect this will handle the demand.

The 'Riders, now the only undefeated team in the CFL, have quite a following around Belleville and district. However, our money is still on those Ti-Cats but we are kind of glad that the boseman wasn't around to rub in that Wednesday-night defeat.

What the heck, even the best has to lose once in a while.

Tradeau Game Postponed Until Tonight

Tradeau Motors and Peterborough will have another try at playing their OASA intermediate "A" playdown contest at Alemite Park tonight. The game is scheduled for 8.30.

Rain forced a postponement last night at the end of the first inning. It was a scoreless contest when the slight drizzle, following when the game started, increased its tempo. Pat Maracle was pitching for Trudeau, Ernie Killins for Peterborough.

Trudeau lead the two-of-three series after winning 3-2 in Peterborough Tuesday. If rained out again tonight, they will play at the Alemite tomorrow, at 8.30.

Peterborough won the flip for the site of a third game, if it is necessary, and it will be played either Saturday night or Sunday.

Elsewhere on the local OASA scene, Madoc and Point Anne in Junior "C", will play their third game in Stirling Saturday afternoon, at 4.30.

The Bobcats travel to Kingston after losing their flip for the third and deciding game of the Senior "B" set, at 8.00 p.m. Saturday.

The field for Sunday's bantam game between Belleville SACO and Scarborough, has been changed from the Alemite to the CNR, at 2.30.

Saturday, Belleville Belch's and Oshawa clash in their second peewee tilt, at the Alemite, at 2.00 p.m. Belleville won the opener.

Tonight, Belleville Ellis' open their second - round midget set in Oshawa, at 8.00.

Shatter Three World Swim Records

★★★★★ Adds Third Mark

By DON MacLACHLAN

VANCOUVER (CP) — A 22-year-old South African girl easily one of three swimmers to shatter world records Thursday at the British Columbia centennial swim meet.

Karen Muir of Kimberley, South Africa, holder of the world 110 - yard and 200 - metre backstroke marks, added the 220-yard backstroke title with a time of 2:28.2 in a final event.

The other world marks were set by Australian Jon Jones, of Palo Alto, Calif., was timed at 1:18.3 in a 100-yard breaststroke heat and Zac Zorn, 19, of Los Angeles at 32.8 in the men's 110-yard freestyle.

Miss Muir cut half a second off the 2:28.2 mark held by Satako Tanaka of Japan and Linda Ludgrove of England.

Miss Jones swimming in a head for the powerful Santa Clara, Calif., club, clipped nine-tenths of a second from the record shared by Karen Beyer of Long Beach, Calif., and Diane Harris of England.

TOPS WIEGAND'S MARK

And Zorn, of Dayton, Ohio, finished in front of second from the standard set last September in Berlin by Frank Wiegand of Germany. Zorn was swimming in the final.

The three records are subject to ratification by Fina, the international amateur swimming federation.

Miss Muir, who set her record in a heat, was two seconds ahead of the current rival Canadian champion Elaine Tanner, Vancouver, in the final of the backstroke.

Miss Jones, setting her first world record, was 3.7 seconds ahead of Shirley Van Der Poel of Johannesburg. Her time clipped 1:18.4 in the final, six - tenths ahead of Miss Van Der Poel.

Zorn's new 1.8 seconds ahead of Greg Charlton of Los Angeles.

WAS BEST CANADIAN

Best Canadian finish was by national champion Ralph Hutton of Ocean Falls, B.C., who won the 220-yard backstroke in 2:18.3, some 4.8 seconds behind his record and 6.3 off the world mark.

Ken Merten, 21, of Dallas, swimming out of Los Angeles, broke his own Canadian open record with 1:09.9 in the 110 breaststroke final. He set the open mark of 1:10.3 about five hours earlier.

Pokey Watson, 17, of Santa Clara, won the women's 110-yard freestyle in 1:01.8 and teammates Sharon Finneran, 20 holder of the world 800-metre freestyle mark, the 440 individual medley.

Charlton led Phil Houser of Los Angeles by 4.2 seconds to win the men 440 medley in 4:36.5. American champion Shirley Temples of Monrovia, Calif., won the three - metre springboard event with 439.2 points.

Diane Hughes of Vancouver managed a second place with 5:36.2 to Miss Finneran. Hutton in the medley, Canada's Kerr of Montreal in the 110 freestyle and Kathy McDonald of Vancouver in the 440 placed third.

The meet ends Saturday.

Group Buys AFL Chargers

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP)—A group of businessmen headed by officers of National General Corp. bought San Diego Chargers football team Thursday for a record $10,000,000.

Barron Hilton, founder and president of the Chargers, announced the sale, the largest financial transaction in the history of the American Football League.

Sid Gillman will continue as general manager and head coach.

Cementmen Go Game Up On City

Trailing 3-0, the Point Anne Cementmen rebounded for five late runs and a 5-3 victory over City Hotel, at the Point last night, despite the damp weather.

Point Anne grabbed a 3-1 lead in their four-of-seven Commercial Softball League semi-finals with the decision. They clash again Monday, at the Alemite, at 8.00.

Three runs in the bottom of the fifth turned the Ox-Point-er's winning trick and they sewed it up with a pair in the sixth.

An error opened the door for the deciding rally and after two were out, Akey singled, Horwood tripled and G. Maracle singled in the game, the Cementmen ahead. E. Maher's double, a walk and error netted the clinchers.

Jimmy Hunter, with Ron Maracle coming on in the fifth, pitched six-hit ballwon the winners' rubber. Murray Sefferton put three and walked one. Hunter neither fanned nor walked a batter.

Dave Feeney gave up seven safeties for the Hotelmen in a route-going effort. He claimed two on strikes and passed but one.

David Akey led the victors' hit parade with three one-baggers. Jim Horwood tripled, Eric Maher doubled, Gerry Maher and Glen Maracle added singles.

Larry Potter clouted a solo home run for City Hotel, in the fifth, while Moe Hawkins ranged a brace of base hits. Billy McGuire, Doug Morean and Dave Feeney also hit safely.

City Hotel	000 1100 - 2 6 3
Point Anne	000 032 x - 5 7 4

Cookie Selling Slowly

DENVER, Colo. (AP)—Little appears to be cooking in the Denver Broncos' efforts to peddle their one - time fullback, Cookie Gilchrist, to other American Football League teams.

Bronco officials said Thursday they had another discussion with Oakland but no trade has been made. The Raiders are the only ones to have indicated publicly any interest in Gilchrist, who refused to report to the Broncos this season after receiving one year of a two-year contract.

Gilchrist showed up eight days late at the training camp but pulled out only minutes after signing up. He blasted the team's management and left for Toronto, where he was last reported by Denver friends.

Coach Mac Speedie said he isn't going to trade Gilchrist for just anybody. At $42,500 per season, plus another $5,000 for off-season duties, Gilchrist was the highest paid veteran player in the AFL last season.

Denver's loss of Gilchrist is apt to be felt most severely in pass protection. Fellow players have rated Gilchrist among the best blockers in the league.

NHL Rule Change Will Allow Major Replacements

TORONTO (CP)—Scotty Morrison, referee-in-chief of the National Hockey League, announced only one major rule change after he met with officials met team coaches and general managers Thursday.

The change, Morrison said, will allow players sitting out major penalties to be replaced. However, teams will continue to play shorthanded during minor penalties.

"We want to avoid a repetition of what happened in that game last season when three players on each team drew double majors," Morrison said. "A double major of course also meant an automatic misconduct penalty, so the teams played two men short for a minimum of nine minutes."

In NHL business today, Sam Pollock, general manager of Montreal Canadiens will introduce a formula for a draft procedure to add the owners of six new NHL franchises in stocking their teams.

Owners of the six new clubs—located in San Francisco, Los Angeles, Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, St. Louis and Minneapolis—have each paid $2,000,000 for a franchise. The price includes the right to 20 players, drafted from the reserves of the established NHL teams. The expanded league opens in 1968.

No more moving . . .

Clarence Campbell, NHL president, said in an interview that no more money will be allotted to league hockey players by the professional teams as a result of last week's agreement with the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association.

Profits from hockey money now will be channelled into the CAHA treasury, he said.

"There will be no more scholarships, no more free education, no more big bonuses, no more free rides."

He said that if the plan doesn't work "we're prepared to push a backup plan, worked through the CAHA of course. We can never go back to individual sponsorship, because the 12 NHL teams wouldn't be able to agree to areas of control and plan."

"But we could have collective sponsorship. It would cost a minimum of $200,000 over what it did cost, but we would run it ourselves and the money would not be piddled away.

"For instance, there would be no $10,000 payments to fathers of outstanding youngsters, such as there have been."

Stamps Hurt Most

Injuries Force WFC Juggling

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Injuries to key players are forcing the coaches for four Western Football Conference teams to juggle their lineups for weekend games.

Calgary Stampeders play the Eskimos in Edmonton Saturday night and Saskatchewan Roughriders meet the British Columbia Lions in Vancouver Sunday.

The Saturday game will be televised nationally by the CBC with Edmonton blacked out. Sunday's game will be seen on the CTV western network.

The Stampeders, who lost Ted Woods, Lovell Coleman and Bill Gaskins through torn achilles tendons, are in the worst shape. In addition, general manager Roger Leheve, the club is "tired mentally and physically" from learning new positions and preparing for their fifth game in 18 days.

Woods and Coleman were the club's two top runners.

Punter Jim Furlong is also out with an injury and quarterback Eagle Day, the back-up punter, has been benched in favor of Pete Liske.

The Eskimos may be without linebacker Mickey Bitsko who injured an ankle.

Larry Eilmes will come off the Lions' injury reserve list and start at fullback for Bill Munsey who has an ankle injury.

Defensive halfback Steve Shafer went on the 30-day injured list after an operation on a torn knee cartilage.

Saskatchewan half back Ed Buchanan underwent a similar operation Wednesday and will be out at least six weeks.

Dick Schoell, a veteran lineman dropped before the season opened, is expected to play middle guard should Ron Atchison's injury keep him off the roughrider bench.

Allan Ford will replace Buchanan at left half.

Tom Maclean, a 200-pound defensive tackle cut by Edmonton, will take the pressure off some of the Saskatchewan lineman playing with injuries.

A Saskatchewan victory would pull them even with Winnipeg Blue Bombers at the top of the Interprovincial Rugby Union third place, two points behind Roughriders. B.C. and Calgary are tied for the leagues cellar with one win each.

Departmental Softball

The Fire Department and City Hall failed to solve a thing in a hard-hitting see-saw battle last night, playing to a 13-13 stalemate.

City Hall leads the three-of-five Departmental Softball League semi - final two games to one. They meet again at Hillcrest Monday, at 6.00, with another slated for Tuesday, if necessary.

Larry Reid allowed 13 hits on the Firemen's pitching mound while Carly Reid gave up 14 hits on the City rubber.

Fire Department got 8-0 in the third inning but City Hall pulled ahead 13-9 and forced their opponents to plate three in the bottom of the final frame to get the tie.

Rick Donovan, given permission to play the game by Fireman coach Ed Wood, slammed two home runs and a double for City Hall. Bill Ferguson and Gary Reid each had a pair of base hooks.

Al Ryan hit a home run and a double for the boys in red and Eugene McGrath had three singles, Grant Parks and Brian Smith collected two hits each.

The series winner meets The Intelligencer for the league championship.

Ontario Dominates Junior Golf

Turner Wins Pair

By BOB PERKINS

BRANDON (CP—Tom Morrison of Vancouver advanced Thursday to today's quarter-final round in the Canadian junior golf championships as the only non - Ontario golfer among eight to pass the third round of match play.

The powerful Ontario contingent, led by qualifying medalist Peter Turner of Toronto, got seven of their original 32 man delegation into the quarter - final with consistently steady golf over the Brandon Golf and Country Club course.

Turner, whose 70-74—144 for medallist honors led Ontario to its second straight interprovincial team title Thursday, recorded 4-and-3 victories over both his opponents Thursday.

He began the morning round by taking the first four holes from Ritchie Downey of Vancouver, then coasted back for par golf that eventually left Downey too far back to recover.

In the afternoon his game was broken against Alec Lockington of Dundas, Ont., but Lockington failed to take advantage, dropping three of the first five holes and winning only two before Turner ended the match on the 15th.

Elsewhere, the giant - killing mantle that Chris Seaver of Halifax claimed by eliminating the defending champion Bob Thomas of London, Ont., went to Mick Wright of Toronto, who beat Seaver 5-and-4.

But Wright didn't wear it long as Morrison downed him in the afternoon round 7-and-6 and against Fred Schmidt of London, Ont.

Schmidt squeezed by Ontario champion Gar Hamilton, Jr., of Toronto 1 up and then trounced Larry LaFleur of St. Boniface, Man., 6 and 5.

Ken Trowbridge of Brampton, Ont., whose 35th-hole morning victory over Bob Wynne of Ancaster, Ont., was the longest of the tournament, gained the quarter-finals by downing Bob Smith, Kamloops, B.C., 4 and 2.

Wayne McDonald of Oakville, Ont., defeated Saskatchewan champion Rick Maguire 4 and 2 to move on against Trowbridge today.

Ron Lalar of Brantford, Ont., started the day with a 2-and-1 victory over Glenn Wynn of Leslie and defeated Dave Hill of Winnipeg 2 up in the afternoon 18 holes.

Turner's quarter-final opponent will be Don Missere of Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., who struggled to identical 1-up victories over Doug Stewart of Stouffville, Ont., and Brian McLean of Lorraine, Que.

Lalar meets Miles Saunders of Pembroke, Ont., who stopped Jan Warshawski on the 17th in the morning round and moved out Jim Hillsborough of Victoria 1 up in the afternoon.

Build National Soccer Team

By LASZLO BUSTYNOVSZKY

WINNIPEG (CP) — Canada's top amateur soccer players will meet in an all-star tournament here starting Sunday as a first step towards creation of a national team to compete in top international events.

At stake during the week-long tournament will be the Canadian senior soccer championship and a chance for 32 players to try out for the national team.

Six provinces will face off in the two - group tournament. In Group A, British Columbia will go against Manitoba and Ontario while Saskatchewan, Alberta and Quebec meet in Group B.

Each team will play two games against each of the other two teams in its group. On the last day of the tournament—Sept. 3—the winner of Group A will meet the winner of Group B in the final match. On the same day the runner - up team in each group will square off to decide third and fourth spots.

Following the tournament, Canadian soccer officials will select 25 players to try out for a national team that will be entered at the 1967 Pan - American Games here July 23-Aug. 7.

George Gutteridge of Montreal, secretary of the Canadian Soccer Football Association, says Canada has enough soccer talent to make a good showing on international level.

CUT TO 18

Once the select group is reduced to 18 players, soccer will join Canada's national - team concept now employed in hockey and skiing.

"We plan to enter the national team in the Pan - Am Games next year and the Summer Olympic Games in Mexico Games in Mexico City the following year," Anderson said.

"We're also looking to the future—the 1970 World Cup competition and the Mexico City. We're optimistic but I am confident that the team we select will put on a good showing."

He said the team would also meet visiting international teams.

Because most of the soccer players are of European background, a player selected for the national team must be eligible for Canadian citizenship by next spring.

Anderson says the selection committee will also look for players who have never played professional soccer and who are 26 years old or younger.

Owners Settle Problem

CHICAGO (AP)—The M ajor leagues apparently have settled the problem of paying the annual $50,000 salary of Marvin Miller, new executive director of the Major League Players Association.

The owners voted Thursday to relieve the players of a $2-a-day contribution to the pension fund, now totalling $30,000,000, with the thought that this money could be diverted to paying Miller.

They also voted to increase the players' pension fund share by 55 per cent, or $4,000,000 annually, from television receipts from the World Series and All-Star games in 1967 and 1968.

Meanwhile, club owners jokingly marked time on changing the college signing agreement which enables big leagues to sign collegians after their sophomore year. They are tentatively agreed on major league exhibitions in Japan every other year with no league representation more than three times in succession and no club more than once in six years.

They ruled that a major league player can participate in winter baseball provided he has not been in the majors more than four years, that no more than one player on the disabled list 60 days or longer during the regular season will be permitted to play winter baseball, and prohibited Cuban players permission to compete in winter in any Latin American country of their choice.

The American League gave unanimous approval of Vernon Stouffer, 66, restaurant magnate, as new majority stockholder of Cleveland Indians. The action confirmed a deal by Stouffer Aug. 4 of which controlling the club from William R. Daley and Gabe Paul, who remains club president and general manager.

Cobourg Man Captures Title

VANDALIA, Ohio (AP)—Karl Rothbrust of Vanderbilt, Mo., won the preliminary handicap championship of the Grand American trapshoot.

Hillebrand, who broke 99 of 100 clays from the 23-yard line, outlasted three rivals in shoot-off tie-breaking and picked up $2,000 in winnings.

Fred Kramer of Coburg, Ont., won the professional crown with 96 from 21 yards.

Whitey Ford Has Surgery On Shoulder

HOUSTON (AP)—New York Yankee pitcher Whitey Ford underwent surgery Thursday for a blocked vessel in the left shoulder.

Dr. Denton Cooley said the operation was "eminently successful."

A sixth-inch section of vein was removed from a leg and grafted above and below the affected section of the shoulder artery.

Ford had been placed on the disabled list earlier this week after complaining of cramps in his pitching hand.

McLain Has 2-Hitter; Pirates Beaten

By RON RAPOPORT
Associated Press Sports Writer

The next time former Indian shortstop Lou Boudreau subjects son-in-law Denny McLain to films of the 1948 playoff game for the pennant between Cleveland and Boston Red Sox, Tigers' pitcher Tigers' hurler can produce a few reels of his own and demand equal time.

There are a couple of one-hitters McLain pitched in May and a pair of two-hitters, also from earlier in the season. But the Academy Award winner is Wednesday's two-hit, 8-0, Tiger victory over Chicago White Sox.

At the All-Star break McLain was 13-4, tops in the American League. But it took Denny five tries to win his 14th and five more before he got number 15 Wednesday. The fact that it was the first game after performance has to give the Tigers hope that McLain is ready to resume leading-man status.

Only Ken Berry, with a double in the fourth, and Jerry Adair, who made it a single in the eighth, managed hits for Chicago. The Tigers got three runs in the first inning, two in the second and three on a Dick McAuliffe homer in the fifth.

McLain, who walked Tommy Agee and Jim Landis with two outs in the eighth, managed hits for Chicago. The Tigers got three runs in the first inning, two in the second and three on a Dick McAuliffe homer in the fifth.

Jackie Brandt drove in two runs with a single and double as the Phillies downed Pittsburgh behind Jim Bunning's eight-hitter. The defeat dropped the Pirates into second place in the National League, one loss game behind idle San Francisco Giants.

John Boccabella and Byron Browne slammed home runs for the Cubs who defeated Philadelphia for New York.

Minor Baseball Results

Fountain Park took advantage of eight walks to whip Bad Boys 8-1 last night, in their second game of the best-of-five preview playoffs. The win gave the Park a 2-0 lead in the series. Bolders Little Giants outlasted Deadline Construction 16-12 to tie their best-of-five byke series at 1-1, and in tadpole play Rockets edged the Jets 4-3. Rockets lead their three-game series 1-0.

In pepper, both teams managed only two hits, but the losers walked eight men to Fountain Park's two.

Dennis Cone and Stan Brooks fanned 12 in their winning effort, while Bad Boy pitchers Dan Cousins and Dave Smith got six on third strikes.

Jim Richardson and Paul Wolfe singled for the Park, while Brian Cousins and Steve Longbeard had base hits for Bad Boys.

In the tyke tilt, a last-inning Deadlile rally fell short by two runs.

Robin Guest and Jed Forster gave up 12 hits and struck out six for the losers. On the loser's mound, Peter Rissi gave up 10 hits and struck out 10, while issuing 4 walks.

Jed Forster led the Little Giants' attack with a triple, double and single. Chris Cobb and Cliff Redbourne had a pair of singles each, while Robin Guest, Jim Hinman and Jim Atkins had lone singles.

Tom Coughlan slammed a homer, triple and single for Deadlile's. Andy Ricketts stroked a double and two singles, Mike Wise a single, and Peter Crawford, Steve Kirby and Peter Rissi one single each.

Neil Hinman and Scott Bowes combined with a three-hit effort for the Rockets. They struck out nine and walked six. Paul Weeks and Steve Coates allowed seven hits fanned 10 and handed out four walks.

Randy DeGroote banged out two doubles, and Scott Bowes a triple and single, for the Rockets. Jerry Fortin, Brad Porter and Scott Old had singles.

Mike Burke, Paul Weeks and Roger Lapp hit for the losers.

'Sad Sam' Leads Jets; Leafs Win

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

By the end of the 1967 baseball season Sad Sam Jones had chewed his way through millions of toothpicks and struck out 580 major league batters.

Nine years later the right-hander still digests pounds of spruce annually as he fosters entries on each batter he faces, but the ageless Jones, who says he's "not going on 80," hasn't lost his strikeout touch.

Sad Sam demonstrated his lasting ability Thursday night, striking out 11 batters in five innings of relief work to lead Columbus Jets to a 4-3, 10-inning victory over Buffalo Bisons.

Elsewhere, Syracuse Chiefs defeated Richmond Braves 4-1, Jacksonville Suns drowned Rochester Red Wings 7-3, and Toronto Maple Leafs edged Toledo Mud Hens 3-2.

YIELDS ONE SINGLE

Jones yielded one single, while Don Rudolph, Manny Sanguillen, Dave Wickersham and Bob Borch decided the issue with successive singles in the 10th inning.

Choo Choo Coleman, with two homers, and Gary Kolb with another powered the Suns to their victory. Larry Miller pitched seven-hit ball for the Suns for 8⅔ innings, but Dave Ellers finished up.

Pascual Herrera and Jackie Moore hit fourth-inning homers in the Chief's victory over the Braves. Herrera's clout accounted for three runs.

A walk followed by singles by Jose Ryan of Chiefs, Mickey Slaks and Stan Johnson erased a 4-3 Toledo lead in the eighth inning and gave Toronto the victory. Sinks, the second of two relief pitchers, retired nine successive batters before yielding a single in the ninth.

Ranked Teams Advance In U.S. Tennis Doubles

BROOKLINE, Mass. (AP)—Two unseeded Americans upset fifth-seeded Manuel Santana and Luis Garcia but all other ranked teams advanced to the quarter-finals Thursday in the U. S. doubles tennis championships.

Joaquin Loyo-Mayo and Marcelo Lara upset Santana of Spain and Garcia of Mexico 12-10, 24-22, 11-9, 3-6, 6-2 in one of the longest matches ever played at Longwood Cricket Club.

Defending champions Roy Emerson and Fred Stolle of Australia dropped one set, but snapped back for a service break in the fourth game of the next in beating Americans Dick Leach and Sherwood Stewart 6-4, 8-9, 10-12, 8-6.

The top American team of Dennis Ralston and Clark Graebner put down Keith Carpenter of Montreal and American Jim McManus 8-6, 12-10, 6-4.

In women's second - round play, Vicki Berner of Vancouver and Faye Urban of Winnetka, Ont., defeated Peggy Moore and Carol Loop of the U.S. 8-7, 6-3.

Organized Crime Biggest Business in United States

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Organized crime, with an estimated take of $47,000,000,000 a year, is the biggest business in the United States.

It is bigger than all the automobile companies put together and on any day does nearly the same business as the New York Stock Exchange — about $300,000,000.

That was the opening statement Thursday night of NBC's American White Paper: Organized Crime in the United States.

For 3½ hours, the program documented the syndicate operation: from nickel-a-day numbers players to the institutes supporting heroin habits, to legitimate businesses, including banks and hotels in which syndicate leaders have muscled or bought their way.

It was an impressive—and depressing—display of statistics, testimony and illustration.

Chapters were devoted to syndicate structure, gambling, narcotics, loan sharks, murder and terror, with a final footnote on combatting crime. Each portion was separated by public service commercials and, interestingly, not one sponsor's message.

During the long program, we saw a procession of police, judges, attorneys, investigators and victims describing the enormous power of Crime Inc.

Names were named and sums of money noted.

Some persons testified with their faces concealed and, in some cases, their testimony was given as an NBC man so there could be no identification. Others were found to be reporters/sons from the program, although very little that was new to the general public was revealed.

But the careful assembly of the material and the first-person testimony added up to an important contribution.

We heard about gambling flourishing at legitimate and subterban communities with the full knowledge of police. One illegal bookie told how he'd family decorated a meeting with a police lieutenant who was donning him for protection money.

Narrator Frank McGee, estimating that gambling alone brings organized crime $20,000,000,000 a year, quoted a justice department official that half of the group's need to buy protection from law officials.

Big Crosby Impresses Cast of "Stagecoach"

The entire cast and crew of "Stagecoach" became as greatly impressed Bing Crosby as a father and family man as they were with him as an actor. For half of the recent location filming of the classic Western near, Boulder, Colorado, Bing had his seven-year-old son, Harry, with him. And for the other half he had his five-year-old daughter, Mary Frances.

The famous singer, who does not even bum a note in "Stagecoach," took one of the children with him every day to the movie set to see the rushes. His devotion to the kids was obvious.

He had young son, Harry decked out in a flashy cowboy outfit complete with a potent-sounding pop gun.

Crosby is much quicker to talk about his wife than to discuss himself or his career.

"Nearly everybody thought it was a publicity gag when Kathy took up nursing", he said.

Even the nursing superintendent at the hospital thought so. She was pretty rough on Kathy at first. But after two years the woman decided Kathy was serious about her work, and they got to be good friends.

Bing also talked proudly about Kathy's tireless efforts in health and education activities in the local community. "The Las Cruces near which the Crosby's have a home.

Finally getting around to himself and his role in "Stagecoach", Crosby said: "This is an easy role (The alcoholic doctor). He's more of a convivial drunk. He drinks because he likes the taste of it. I took the dramatic role because it sounded straight and true. That's the only kind of part I take now.

Minor Softball Results

The Shopping Plaza Rams won the city championship of the squirt division last night with an 18-10 win over Peacock Cardinals. The Rams took the best-of-three series in two straight games.

Bruce Sutherland spun a three hitter on the victor's mound and helped win his own ball game with a home run.

David McCallum Has No Plans to Abandon Series

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—David McCallum did not seem like a man who had just been sued for divorce. He remained calm and not at all bitter, but then, that's the type of chap he is: Highly unflappable.

Actress Jill Ireland charged extreme mental cruelty in the divorce suit.

The charge of marital status is not the only alteration in McCallum's life. He has also been having talks with MGM concerning his contract status.

Don't worry, Illya fans, he has no plans to abandon The Man From U.N.C.L.E.

"Oh, I wouldn't give that up," he mused. "After all, it's a pleasant little game between the studio on one side and Bob McCallum on the other.

INJURIES TAKE TOLL

"The purpose of the game is to see how much I can survive. Last month I destroyed my rib cage it was injured in a motorcycle accident and had a hand burned when he grasped an exhaust pipe."

But McCallum's humor concedes that he enjoys this "game," he has his own ideas about how it should be played. This has been the subject of his negotiations with MGM.

"I would be instantly certain whether," he explained, "one of them concerns my relationship on The Girl From U.N.C.L.E.' The studio wanted me to be in the new series before I knew about it, but I had some reluctance about overdoing the U.N.C.L.E. identification.

"We came to an agreement that I would have script approval and I would be happy to wait and see what the public acceptance is."

Still unresolved is McCallum's contract commitment on feature films. So far he has done two during this summer vacations, Around The World Under The Sea and Three Bites of the Apple.

"My contract was confused because I was brought over here by George Stevens to appear in The Greatest Story Ever Told .Then he sold part of my contract to MGM," said the Scottish-born actor. "I want to find out to whom I belong and when. I also want to know what the policy will be concerning the U.N.C.L.E. features."

Canadian Champion Floored

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Jesus Pimentel knocked out Canadian bantamweight champion Irish Patsy Burke of Moncton, N. B., in the fourth round at the Olympic Auditorium Thursday night.

Using his left hook, the sharp Mexican batter floored Burke for an eight count, followed up with a right to the chin for another eight - count knockdown, then fired a crisp right to the jaw that finished him.

For Pimentel it was the 50th win in a bout in 59 professional fights. He has lost two decisions.

A 5-1 favorite, Pimentel left no doubt in the first three rounds about who was in command. Two left hooks in the opening round shook Burke, and Pimentel maintained the aggressive attack until the knockout.

Rookie Has Lead Over Big Names

WHITEMARSH, Pa. (AP)—Rookie Tom Weiskopf, 23, using a mallet-head putter, fired a one-putt greens Thursday as he scored a six-under-par 66 for a two-stroke lead in the first round of the $110,000 Philadelphia golf tournament.

While the long ball hitter turned to finesse in conquering the tight fairways of Whitemarsh Valley Country Club's 6,706-yard layout, U.S. open champion Billy Casper, Masters king Jack Nicklaus and Arnold Palmer struggled behind him.

Casper, who has won four tournaments this year, equalled par 72 as did Nicklaus, seeking to become the third golfer ever to win the same tournament three straight years. Palmer cut one stroke off regulation with a 35-36—71.

George Knudson of Toronto fired 36-35 for a 71.

PLAN WHERE MISSED SHOTS WILL FINISH

Though I really hate to inject negative thinking into golf, sometimes it pays to be realistic. The truth is that even a great golfer can't honestly expect to hit more than a few very good shots during a round of play.

The golfer should develop the type of thinking that allows a good player to plan future shots in advance. Every time you step up to a full shot, you should determine where you want your ball to finish if you should miss the shot.

In the illustration we see a golfer hitting down the fairway. Let's assume that you are this golfer and that you have a tendency to slice shots.

If you are wise, you will aim to the left side of the fairway (solid line). Even if the ball slices, you will still have a shot to the green. However, if you aim for the pin and slice (dotted line), you will be in trouble.

Realize your shortcoming workwise and minimize its adverse effect by looking ahead for best position for your next shot.

Name Acting AHL President; End Overtime

TORONTO (CP) — Jack Butterfield, chairman of the American Hockey League board of governors, was named acting AHL president at a league meeting Thursday.

Butterfield, also general manager of Springfield Indians of the AHL, will handle duties given by former president Jack Riley, who quit to become general manager of the new Philadelphia team in the expanded National Hockey League.

In other business, AHL officials decided to discontinue overtime in a regular league game this season.

The Trots

TORONTO (CP)—Bruce Pick took to the sloppy footing at Greenwood Raceway Thursday night to detest his six older rivals in the second race.

Bruce Pick, owned by Ken and Doreen Kavanagh of St. Catharines, was the lone two-year-old in the mile pace.

Overlooked in the wagering at 4 to 1, the horse raced under the wire 2½ lengths in front of Roda, a 2-to-1 pick.

Bruce Pick rewarded his backers with a $10 payoff and clicked with Kim North in the first race for a $37.00 daily double.

Mrs. Jean Sharp's Ambrose Abbe, from Oshawa, set up the lead end of a $19.80 exactor in the sixth race with a half-length victory over runner-up Colonel C. Vole.

Says Dyson
Javelin Star For Canada

GUELPH (CP)—Canada will soon have a javelin thrower equal to the best in the world, Geoffrey Dyson, director of the Royal Canadian Legion's track and field training program, predicted Thursday.

At the fifth annual track and field coaches' clinic ended here, Dyson said in an interview Canadian javelin thrower Zenon Andruszyshyn will soon reach 280 feet, a mark that would put him among the world's top half dozen throwers.

The 19-year-old Oakville Track Club athlete, among the clinic's final-day demonstrators, recorded a toss of 250 feet. It unofficially broke the Canadian javelin record of 236 feet.

Oakville coach Willis McKay credited the Legion training clinic for his athlete's progress.

STARTED AT CLINIC

"It wasn't until I came here three years ago that I became interested in the javelin myself and then I started working on Zenon. He threw 174 feet his first year, 207 his second and his best competitive mark is 236."

Dyson, returning to England in mid-after completing a five-year contract as sports director for the Legion, said this year's clinic was the best of five.

"The effects of the clinic are just now being felt, but it will be another five years before the full impact is reached."

Dyson said he expects to return to Canada annually to direct the coaches' clinic.

World's Greatest Need

By CLARENCE W. CRANFORD

What is the greatest need in the world today? Some might answer, "Peace." Others would say, "Love." When several hundred people were asked this question in a survey, the majority answered, "Honesty."

This is a revealing answer. It is a recognition of the widespread dishonesty in the world. It is also a recognition that trust and security rest on honesty and moral integrity.

There is an unbelievable amount of dishonesty and disregard for the people's property and rights in the world. Almost everything has to be kept under lock and key. Stealing is on the increase in almost every community. The amount of shoplifting done in the stores, even by those who do not need to steal, it is utterly shocking. Cheating is widespread. Almost every congressional investigation reveals a vast subterranean strata of corruption and deceit in politics, industry, and labor. So many people lie on their income tax returns even though what they give to their church that the Internal Revenue Bureau frequently checks these statements against church records of giving.

NOT EVERYONE DISHONEST

Of course, it needs to be said there is also an amazing amount of honesty in the world. The most ingredible thing is not that so many people cheat on their income tax returns, but that so many do not, not that so many lie, but that so many tell the truth not that so many are guilty of shoplifting, but that so many are honest even when they are left alone in a store.

Not all stealing is done at the point of a gun. Amos thundered against dishonest business practices, against those who "make the ephah small and the shekel great, and deal deceitfully with false balances." (Amos 8:5 RSV) People joke about the butcher who weighs his thumb with the meat, but many things are done to deceive the customer.

The Uniform Sunday School lesson for August 28: "Honesty in all Things," Exodus 20:15; Amos 5:21-24; 8:4-5; Mark 12:38-40; Luke 19:1-10; Titus 2:7-10.

Even religious leaders can be tempted to let greed dict a te their ethics. Jesus spoke sternly against those who took advantage of the weak, and, to express the church coffers, managed to get possession of widow's property. (Mark 12:40)

Honesty is not only the best policy, it is the only policy if men are to make real progress. During the geo-physical year, scientists on both sides of the iron curtain cooperated in a world-wide study of weather. The success of this experiment depended on two things: the accuracy of scientific measurements, and the honesty of the scientists. Business depends on both efficient methods and honest businessmen. Soldier and politician need to do all they work to make thw rold safe. The world is safest when people treat each other with mutual respect and integrity.

HONESTY - JUSTICE TOGETHER

Honest need depend on a recognition of the rights of others and on a sense of economic justice. The man who has money in his pocket is not so apt to be tempted to steal. The person who feels respected is not so apt to stoop to anti-social behaviour to get revenge or attention.

A deep religious faith can do much to instill a sense of honesty and integrity. Moses recognized that stealing is a moral problem when he said, "You shall not steal." (ex. 20:15; RSV) Zaccheus was a fraudulent tax collector until he met Jesus, then he offered to pay back fourfold any money he might have taken by fraud. (Luke 19:8) Starr Daily was a thief till he had a religious experience. Then he became a Christian leader urging honesty with God and man.

Fear is not always easy to be honest even with God. "Will a man rob God?" asks the book of Malachi. (Malachi 3:8) The answer is yes. Men steal from God that which rightfully belongs to Him when they refuse to give Him of their time, talents, and treasure.

For a beginning to end, the Bible teaches integrity in dealing with others and their property. Whether it is John the Baptist telling tax collectors to collect only a just amount (Luke 3:13) or telling soldiers not to steal from the people, but to be content with their wages (Luke 3:14), or Titus telling slaves not to pilfer (Titus 2:10), the message is the same. Devotion to God means honesty in dealing with other men and their property. Honesty is the best policy it is easy to talk about human rights. It is not so easy to talk about responsibility. But the responsibility every man bears toward his neighbor is to respect both him and what he owns.

Report Given Of S.A. Camp At Roblin Lake

NAPANEE — The Napanee Salvation Army Corps in Bridge Street is back to normal with the return of Auxiliary Captains. Mr. and Mrs. Frank Phelps, silver an absence of six weeks. Three weeks of that time they were on holidays, and the rest of the time they spend assisting with the Salvation Army Fresh Air camp at Roblin's Lake near Ameliasburg.

This large, well-equipped camp has been busy all summer, with members of the Home League spending five days there, 175 young people journeing to play all home instruments during music week, one week each for Brownies and Girl Guides, and for Cubs and Scouts, and since that, camps of a week's duration for groups of underprivileged boys and girls.

Captains and Mrs. Phelps were in charge of the two girls' camps early in August, and Captain and Mrs. Jones stayed on the third week to act as caretaker for the boys' camp.

From the 7th to the 14th, 70 girls attended from the area which extends from Whitby on the west to Cornwall on the east, and to Lindsay and Fenelon Falls on the north. There were 47 girls in the second week. The third week saw 77 boys and this week 32, having the holiday that the Salvation Army made possible.

The Rotary Club sponsored the three children who went from the Napanee-Deseronto area. Deseronto is an outpost of the Napanee corps.

Rotarians Hear Of Club's Early Years

NAPANEE — At the regular weekly luncheon meeting of the Napanee Rotary Club, George Tustin gave what the members describe as an "outstanding" address on the early days of the club, which came into being November 23, 1926 with a membership of 18. Mark Graham, for some years club invalid is the only living charter member. Mr. Tustin and Douglas Mayhew joined two years later.

Mr. Tustin, a former mayor of Napanee and for 22 years member of the federal house for Prince Edward-Lennox, revealed that by the time the club celebrates its 40th birthday, it will have spent $300,000 in community work. He dwelt on the work done for crippled children during the early days and especially during the depression. In the first 21 years of its existence the club cared for 400 crippled children at a cost of approximately $40,000.

Mr. Tustin has been president on two years, Doug Mayhew, also a past president, is also a past governor of District 706. He is a director, three political areas, embracing parts of Ontario, Quebec and Northern New York State.

MISS FIREFIGHTERS CONTEST

NAPANEE — Maurice Rankin, reports that there are 16 entries in the Miss Firefighters contest, to be decided at Friday night's Teen-Age dance. Unless arrangements can be made, it will be the last for the season.

Mr. Rankin is chairman of the committee arranging the contest. Prizes are piled high in the dance hall, he states, such things as dresses, hair dryers, sweaters and blouses, and one with first certificates for hair styling. The Firefighters Association is offering three cash prizes, $25, $15, and $10. A tiara and a bouquet await the winner.

Judges are to be Marie Knuth, who operates a dress shop; Hazel Gordon, secretary of the beauty shop; Mayor Lorne A. Smart; Councillor Donald Holmes, chairman of the town fire, water and light committee; and Ken Lasher, president of the Lions Club.

Judging will be at 10.00 a.m., during intermission and girls who wish to see the judging will be admitted free for that period.

START SCHOOL ADDITION

Last Tuesday saw the first activity on the site of the $1,600,000 addition to the Napanee District Secondary School, when it was moved in to erect the sheds which will house the office and the tools. Half a dozen men have been hired for this work through the National Employment Office here, and the superintendent states that things will be full-steam ahead throughout. The A. Weller Construction Co. Don Mills is the contractor, and completion date 26. A formality has delayed the beginning of the work, but the trouble is expected to be ironed out Friday after a second special meeting between representatives of the County Council and the N.D.S.S. Board. The contractors expect to move their heavy machinery Monday.

Ecumenical Development Will Be Encouraged by Archbishop Of Canterbury in Canada Tour

By CARL MOLLINS

LONDON (CP) — Most Rev. Michael Ramsey, Archbishop of Canterbury, will be on the lookout for the ecumenical and the outlandish during a month-long tour of Canada starting Tuesday.

The spiritual head of the Church of England was in an adventurous mood about both the ecumenical and eightseeing prospects of the trip during an interview with The Canadian Press.

"I want to see something of —and encourage — ecumenical developments in Canada," the archbishop said. "I have been interested in the progress towards unity between Anglicans and the United Church of Canada.

"I am very interested in signs of improved relations with Catholics. I am particularly glad that the prelate, who visited the Vatican last March for a discussion on Christian unity with Pope Paul. "I hope to meet Roman Catholic leaders in Canada and I hope that will be arranged."

Of the travel schedule that will take Archbishop and Mrs. Ramsey through every province but Prince Edward Island, he said: "I have always wanted to see Canadian life away from the cities—that is the outlandish, the red Indians, the mountains, the prairies."

WILL ATTEND BARBECUE

Ramsey visited Sydney City when he was Archbishop of York in 1959 and was in Toronto for the World Anglican Congress three years ago. This 23-day tour, starting with a stopover Tuesday in Montreal on his way to Fredericton, will include a Croatian barbecue at Hamilton, Ont., lunch with the RCMP in Regina and a day at Banff and Lake Louise in the Kootenays of British Columbia.

His host in British Columbia will be Rt. Rev. Ralph S. Dean, Bishop of Caribou and Cariboo based executive officer of the World Anglican Communion, who returned to Canada this week ahead of the archbishop.

The 61-year-old prelate has displayed a flair for theological adventure, while rejecting the existentialist outlook. It has has surprised some of his colleagues in a church with strong traditions of worship and a position as the state religion of England.

He was renowned primarily among church scholars as a brilliant theologian before his election as 100th Archbishop of Canterbury five years ago. He had made his name as a professor at Cambridge University, as a scholar-bishop at Durham and through such learned treatises as The Holy Bible: its Authority and Message.

CONFERS WITH OTHERS

He has travelled in every continent but South America, meeting many of the 400,000,000 members of 19 national churches that make up the Anglican communion. He has conferred with leaders of other denominations—the Old Catholic fathers in Holland; patriarchs of Eastern Orthodox in Moscow, Bucharest, Athens and Istanbul; Lutherans in Sweden; German Evangelicals; West Germany, and Roman Catholic scholars at the University of Louvain in Belgium in 1963 for the first lecture by an archbishop of Canterbury to a Roman Catholic university.

He has stirred up controversy by pronouncing on a political issue. Two weeks before the white-minority regime in Rhodesia declared its independence of Britain last fall, Ramsey told the British Council of Churches that non - pacifist Christians should back the British government in preventing such action, even if force should be needed.

"Again and again, if we don't speak out on an important issue, the church is criticized for not giving a lead," the archbishop says in recalling the controversy over Rhodesia. "Then, when we offer a lead, we are criticized. Since I am criticized in either case, I just have to use my own judgment.

"In view of what has happened since I spoke about Rhodesia, I believe the things I said have proved to be soundly based."

Ramsey says the fact that the church is established in England and bishops sit in the House of Lords "encourages the church to think of the good of the nation and the community."

HAS DISADVANTAGES

But he believes the establishment of the Church of England as a state church has disadvantages in seeking Christian unity.

"Some modifications in the establishment are going to be absolutely necessary," he says. "Both Methodists and Anglicans are discussing union in Britain) agree on this. If it were established that Methodists would accept bishops nominated by the state, for example."

Further, he says, the church must regain from Parliament the power to reform its own methods of worship.

Ramsey says he considers moves to reform Anglican methods of worship and his meeting with Pope Paul the most important developments in his first five years as archbishop.

"Both these developments must be pursued vigorously," he says. "The results for the church would be tremendous."

All But Two Of Pickets From Out of Town

KINGSTON (CP) — Members of Teamsters union Local 91 were reported to have gone on strike at Taggart Services Ltd., here Thursday, but all but two of a dozen men on the picket line were from out of town.

"The men in Kingston are brainwashed and don't know whether they are coming or going," said Ray Edmonds, business representative of Local 938 in Toronto.

"That's why we have brought men from Brockville to give them some support."

Two of the pickets were from Kingston, the remainder from Brockville.

Donald Taka, terminal manager for the company, said only two employees had gone on strike.

"The other men say they do not want any part of it."

Murray Roody, a company employee still on the job, said the men and the others are satisfied with their pay and do not see any reason for seeking any changes.

Teamsters union locals in a number of Ontario cities are on strike in an attempt to gain a first contract with Taggart, but he company continues to operate in most places.

Newfoundland Strikers Imprison Ferry Users

HALIFAX (CP) — An estimated 500 strikers lifted their roadblock at the CNR ferry terminal in Port aux Basques, Nfld., at 11:15 a.m. ADT today and permitted more than 200 passengers in 71 vehicles to leave the wharf where they had been confined since the William Carson docked at 6:30 a.m.

John Ford, assistant port superintendent at the western Newfoundland terminal, said the strikers immediately reformed their picket lines and reconstructed a barrier of railway ties to prevent more than 30 cars from entering the terminal area.

There was no indication why the union members decided to lift the barricade. A spokesman said earlier no passengers, except those on foot, would be permitted to leave the wharf until the strikers received a guarantee the 2,400-ton William Carson would discontinue her service between Port aux Basques and North Sydney, N.S., for the duration of the country-wide rail strike.

Several cars remained inside the terminal after their occupants surveyed the situation and decided to return to the mainland aboard the Carson. Five cars bound for North Sydney were in line before the barrier was erected behind them this morning.

However, the ferry did not depart at her regular sailing time of 10:25 a.m. ADT and there was no immediate word on whether she would resume her 175-mile, seven-hour run across Cabot Strait.

RCMP WATCHES

The four-man RCMP detachment at Port aux Basques was watching the situation, but a spokesman said no orders had been received from headquarters at Corner Brook to attempt to reopen the terminal.

He said: "There's about a thousand people down there now, strikers and sympathizers, and there's only four of us."

Two other ferries, the Leif Eriksson and Patrick Morris, which also borders French Somaliland, would like to take possession of the last outpost of the French empire in Africa.

Discussing the independence demonstrations Friday with local officials at the French governor's palace in Djibouti, de Gaulle said:

"The territory of Somaliland decided in 1958 to have a status as a French territory. France respects this status and there is no reason for it to stop respecting it.

"The destiny of countries is not decided by placards."

Selassie Welcomes De Gaulle

By DENNIS NEELD

ADDIS ABABA, Ethiopia (AP)—President de Gaulle of France arrived today from Djibouti, French Somaliland, where his visit was marked by bloody fighting between crowds demanding independence and French troops and police.

Emperor Haile Selassie was at the flag-bedecked airport to greet him.

The European capital, 8,000 feet above sea level, offered a respite from the 108-degree heat of Djibouti, a port on the Gulf of Aden.

A flight of Ethiopian jet fighters escorted de Gaulle's plane on the last leg of the flight to the capital and a 21-gun salute boomed as it touched down.

Several thousand people had gathered at the roadside in town to watch the president and the emperor change from their limousine to a horse-drawn state carriage, in which they rode the rest of the way to Haile Selassie's Jubilee Palace.

There was only a sprinkling of people lining the four-mile route from the airport to town.

De Gaulle appeared unflustered by two days of anti-French rioting in Djibouti. He smiled and waved to acknowledge cheers of the airport crowd.

TWO WERE KILLED

In Djibouti two persons were reported killed and scores injured Friday as authorities used clubs, tear gas and concussion grenades to clear a square before the French president arrived to make a speech.

De Gaulle cancelled the public speech and spoke briefly with the territorial assembly.

Ethiopia, which shares with her international economic interests through Djibouti, and Somalia, which also borders French Somaliland, would like to take possession of the last outpost of the French empire in Africa.

Discussing the independence demonstrations Friday with local officials at the French governor's palace in Djibouti, de Gaulle said:

"The territory of Somaliland decided in 1958 to have a status as a French territory. France respects this status and there is no reason for it to stop respecting it.

"The destiny of countries is not decided by placards."

Air Raids Heaviest On Record

SAIGON (AP) — American warplanes made their heaviest raids of the war over North Viet Nam Friday, the U.S. military command announced today.

It said U.S. pilots, hitting fuel depots and other military targets, flew a record 256 missions, 10 above the previous high that was reached last Wednesday. U.S. planes hammered the north with 133 missions Thursday.

In Friday's record assault, more than 300 transportation vehicles and water craft were attacked by navy pilots who flew 73 of the missions.

Spokesman said air force jet attacks touched off more than 25 secondary explosions and 26 fires in strikes on supply storage areas, convoy staging points and fuel dumps in the southern panhandle of North Viet Nam.

Aground, U.S. marines beat off an attack Friday by hordes of suicide troops south of the demilitarized zone. The marines fought the enemy hand-to-hand from tents and sandbag emplacements around their camp. KILL ABOUT 50

Reports from the field indicated the marines killed possibly 50 of the North Vietnamese while taking light casualties in a three-hour battle at Cam Lo.

The marines said the attackers all had explosives strapped to their bodies. Some ripped off their trousers to tie back barbed wire, as they came screaming at the marines.

RAISES MINIMUM

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. Senate passed a bill Friday night that would raise the $1.25-an-hour minimum wage to $1.40 in 1968 and bring an additional 7,000,000 workers under the Wages and Hours Act. The rail-cost was $7 to 17.

Agree On Contract At Stelco

TORONTO (CP) — For the second time in 10 days, negotiators for the Steel Co. of Canada Ltd. and local 1005 of the United Steelworkers of America have reached an agreement on a new contract for 11,000 union members at the company's Hamilton plant.

The new agreement, announced Friday night by the Ontario labor department, follows the rejection Monday of the first agreement by a union membership vote of 4,494 to 3,837.

A statement issued by the labor department Friday night said "an improved and amended collective agreement was arrived at by the two parties as a result pre-conciliation talks as a result of recommendations by W. H. Dickie, director of conciliation services for the department."

Terms of the new agreement were not announced, and a labor department spokesman said no date has been set for the ratification vote.

The previous agreement would have given the steelworkers an estimated 66.7 cents an hour wage and benefits increase over three years. This included a 23-cent wage increase which would have brought the total to $2.82 an hour by Aug. 1, 1967, a cent above the rate for steelworkers in the United States.

The U.S. workers open negotiations for a contract of their own next year.

The rejected agreement also included a non-contributory pension plan which would have provided pensions ranging from $95 a month for an employee retiring at 65 after 10 years' service to $333 a month after 40 years' service.

WERE CLOSED

Stelco's Hamilton operations were closed down for five days by a violent wildcat walkout prior to the first agreement which came on Aug. 17. The wildcat strikers were protesting the slowness of earlier negotiations.

THREE SIDES TO THE STRIKE — First day of Canada's national rail strike, which now involves 118,000 workers coast to coast, leaves Toronto's bus terminal (top) seething with rerouted passengers while Union Station (middle) stands deserted after all members of non-operating unions walked off their jobs at noon EDT Friday. Special session of Parliament set for Monday is expected to introduce measures for ending the work stoppage if a negotiated settlement has not been reached beforehand. (CP Wirephoto)

Railroads and Unions Both Waiting to See Two Government Bills

By RONALD LEBEL

OTTAWA (CP) — All eyes are on Parliament today as 118,000 railway workers enter the second day of the far-reaching national strike.

collapsed in Ottawa as the collapsed in Ottawa as the walkout began Friday. Both the railways and the unions are waiting to see government legislation on transportation before resuming hard bargaining.

Parliament opens emergency sittings at 2.30 p.m. EDT Monday to deal with the crisis. The government plans to introduce two major transportation bills Monday.

The first measure would order the workers back to work and grant them an 18-per-cent wage increase over the next two years, dating from Jan. 1.

The 37 rail unions involved in the massive tieup are seeking wages boosts of 50 per cent to 50 per cent. Some labor leaders warn privately that the strikers would ignore returning-to-work legislation embodying an 18-per-cent increase.

REVAMP RAIL ACT

The second bill would revamp the Railway Act and relate statutes along the lines recommended in 1961 by a royal commission on transportation.

The commission recommended that railways be freed to set freight rates at competitive levels, drop money-losing branch lines and passenger services and generally operate without close federal regulation.

Prime Minister Pearson has said that this second bill is comprehensive, running to 120 pages, and that it will improve the railways' earnings position.

This led Opposition Leader Diefenbaker to comment Friday that a removal of freight rate regulation would hurt shippers, especially in the Maritime and Prairie provinces.

He told a press conference that if the new transportation bill is similar to one introduced in 1964, it will lead to higher shipping costs in the Maritimes and Prairies.

He warned that any attempt to abolish the low Crowsnest Pass freight rates on wheat exports would be fought all the way by the Conservative opposition. These rates were set in the 1890s to protect wheat farmers and have remained unchanged ever since.

All freight rates have been frozen since 1959 when the Diefenbaker government blocked a transport board decision to increase them by 17 per cent. The railways have been compensated by special federal subsidies, which total about $100,000,000 in the current fiscal year.

Union and railway negotiators met for 4½ hours here Friday, then adjourned their talks until after the transportation bills are introduced Monday.

Labor Minister Nicholson told reporters he still hopes the negotiators can reach an agreement before Parliament has to impose one, but the outlook was gloomy. Some union leaders talked about a strike lasting at least 30 days.

Mr. Pearson, Mr. Diefenbaker and railway executives all have predicted that the strike will have disastrous effects on the economy.

About 800 CNR workers walked off the job in Belleville at noon yesterday, as trains ground to a halt across the nation.

Pickets were set up on Station St. almost immediately and still remain on watch.

About 100 men and women, supervisory staff, remained working in the Riddeau Area offices here. Engineers and firemen are not on strike but cannot work because of it.

Harry J. Fast, Rideau Area Manager said strike headquarters were set up in the yard office, and 24-hour patrols by supervisory staff and railroad police will be conducted from there: Belleville is the Central Strike Committee centre for the Rideau area, and the principal points in the area have subcommittees.

"Good" grouped at all principal points are being protected against theft," he said. "Our concern about patrolling is more with certain elements of the public than with the employees. I don't think the employees would do anything, but some other people may think this is a good time to take advantage of the situation.

"Our relationship with the men is very good. Everything here is peaceful.

"We have an agreement with the unions that perishable goods in cars at various points can be protected and essential services can be maintained."

"Also, in case of fire, the union men would assist in putting it out."

He said that all supervisory staff have been issued with identification passes and the union has agreed to let them pass through the picket lines without any trouble.

EXPECT NO TROUBLE

"We don't expect any trouble here," he said. "In Toronto say, and Montreal. It's a bit different. It's a big and impersonal fight here, everybody knows everybody, and we have a very good understanding with the unions."

Supervisory staff spent part of the afternoon yesterday storing batteries, lanterns and other equipment in the yard office for use in night patrols. They were issued with radio-phone sets.

Strike leader Harry Fast, 51, who is also president of CB of RT and GW, Local 126, chaired a union meeting in Cobb Cavan yesterday afternoon.

Mr. Hall heads a four - man strike committee. Other members are J. H. Morey, H. J. Fulcher and C. A. Tupper, secretary.

Mr. Hall said, "We don't expect any problems with our men. We went about this in an orderly fashion."

He said the meeting was called to "decide picket hours and other strike duties." Men will picket daily from 8 a.m. until 4 p.m. railroad time.

He had no comment at this stage about how long he thinks the strike may last. However, he did say, "I want to get it over as soon as possible. Nobody wants to see it last a long time."

Airlines, Bus Firms Report Big Business Due to Strike

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Airlines and bus firms reported increased business today as the trucking industry was booming today as the rail strike went into its first full day.

The effects were felt across the nation, but in isolated cases have been felt for several days.

A grocer in Transcona, Man., Peter Tychonick, said he has been feeling this for the last three or four days, ever since people knew there would be a strike. Also, they're buying food, but they are tightening up and only get the most necessary things."

Transcona is the site of the largest CNR repair shops in the West.

Across the Prairies and in British Columbia, trains are tied up. Bus lines have added extra vehicles, even chartering city transit buses in some instances. Truckers are searching for every available unit to handle the surge in freight.

Postal service continued but the post office had barely recovered from the effects of the U.S. airline strike when it was faced with the rail strike.

British Columbia's coastal shipping was not affected, except for the CPR's Vancouver-Nanaimo ferry. The vessel was taken out of service when it arrived in Vancouver Friday after the non-operating unions withdrew an earlier offer to keep it running.

Both major railways operate coastal shipping.

In Alberta, the government has issued special permits to truckers and bus operators permitting them to operate outside their normal limits.

Bus companies were taking advantage of the easing in regulations and were operating anywhere and everywhere. One bus firm borrowed buses from the Brewster Transport Co., which normally operates only within Banff and Jasper national parks, and put them to work hauling passengers 250 miles from Edmonton to Jasper.

Truckers, using all available units, were still being forced to turn away business because of lack of equipment.

But the picture across most of the prairies was one of quiet.

In Calgary, Red Deer, Moose Jaw, Saskatoon, Regina and Transcona workers quietly left their jobs, set up picket lines, then patrolled until quitting time. Then they stopped for the night, to return today.

Skull Found In Burrow Of Groundhog

KITCHENER (CP)—A human skull with a quarter-inch hole over the right eye and other human bones found in a Waterloo Township farm were sent Friday to the attorney - general's laboratory in Toronto for examination.

Oscar Fisher, 13, and his brother, Harvey, 15, of Camp Petawawa, Ont., told police they saw the bones protruding from a groundhog hole on a farm about 25 miles east of here.

THE WEATHER

Synopsis: Cooler air is edging slowly southward across the upper Great Lakes. Skies will clear in most northern areas later today and temperatures will climb a little. Temperatures are expected to reach 80 in most southern localities. A disturbance moving eastward from the Prairies will bring cloudiness and showers in Northern Ontario Sunday. Pleasant warm weather will continue in the south.

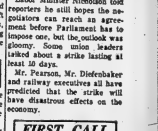
Soviet Union Lodges Protest Against Peking 'Hooliganism'

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union lodged "an emphatic protest" with China's embassy here, charging hooliganism outside the Soviet Embassy in Peking and demanding effective measures to protect Soviet diplomats in the Chinese capital, Tass said today.



The official Soviet news agency said the note listed incidents of Chinese provocations "exciting for hatred and violence against Soviet people."

The Soviet note was given Friday at the foreign ministry here to a diplomat from the Chinese Embassy.

Among incidents cited by Tass were stone-throwing at a Soviet official in Peking and the slogan-ing of a Soviet Embassy car by a crowd, preventing a diplomat from attending an official function.

"These outrages are being committed before the eyes of Chinese policemen who do not take any steps," Tass said.

MRS. MERTON CUMMINGS

Deseronto

DESERONTO — After years of poor health, Mrs. Merton Cummings of Thomas Street, Deseronto, died on Tuesday in the Lennox and Addington County General Hospital. She was in her 66th year.

Eva Irene Cummings was born in Picton, the daughter of the late William Solmes and his late wife, who was Addie Mortiestia prior to her marriage. She was educated there, and after her marriage to Merton Cummings in 1933, lived at Senneterre, Que., where he was a prospector, and then at Northbrook and Centreville, where he was with the Ontario Hydro Commission, until coming to Deseronto ten years ago.

Mrs. Cummings was a member of the Deseronto United Church and attended regularly when her health permitted. Her church and what it stood for meant much to her. Her neighbors describe her as a quiet, unassuming woman, kindly and patient in her suffering, although regretting her enforced inactivity.

She has spent much of her time since December of hospital because of a heart condition, two periods in the Kingston General Hospital, some Good Friday for three weeks, when she was admitted to the hospital for observation, before she died.

She is survived by her husband and her son Wayne, at home; by her brother and half-brothers, Arthur Sedore of Actinolite, and Alex and James Sgrovig of Picton; and sisters, Mrs. Donald Wilson of London, Mrs. Hilda La Salle of Niagara Falls, N.Y., Mrs. Rose Hubbard (Cora) of Cobourg; and was predeceased by her sisters, Mrs. Florence Bird and Mrs. Ella Langman.

The funeral service was held in the White and Morris Funeral Home on Saturday, the Rev. T. S. Townsend officiating with the assistance of the pastor, John McEwen. Gaynor Reodell sang "The Old Rugged Cross" and "Abide With Me."

The bearers were members of the Fire Department, of which Mrs. Cummings' brother, Fire Chief Al Fraser and Don Kimmett, Don Dubble, Ralph Kimmett, Ken Kinsey and Michael Roebuck.

Interment was in Deseronto Cemetery.

MRS. JEANNETTE McGRATH

MARMORA — Funeral of Mrs. James McGrath, of 225 MacLaren Street, Ottawa, formerly of Marmora, took place from the McCoy Brothers-Shields Funeral Home, Ottawa, to Cassidy Funeral Home, Marmora, on Wednesday, August 24. Requiem mass was held by Reverend Father F. J. Spence at Sacred Heart Church.

After a short illness, Mrs. McGrath died on Sunday, August 21 in an Ottawa hospital. Age 57, she was a daughter of the late Edouard Gauthier and the late Mr. Gauthier, and was born and educated at Marmora. For many years she was a member of Sacred Heart Parish choir, and the Catholic Women's League in Marmora.

She is survived by her husband, James McGrath, 4 her mother and two brothers, Joseph and Romeo, both of Kevlin, and five sisters, Mrs. Lorraine Falcontine of Hollycombe, Ont., Mrs. Loretta Bizzo of Mesa, Calif., Mrs. Gerry Lacoursa and Mrs. Lenore Armstrong, both of Ottawa and Mrs. John Bouchard of Kapuskasing, Ont.

Interment was at Sacred Heart Cemetery and bearers were: Wilfrid Shea and Mr. Charles Crawford, Forrest Dennis, Thomas O'Connor, William Booker and Joseph Murray.

Theatre Guild Will Sponsor Course Here

Belleville Theatre Guild, in cooperation with the Eastern Ontario Drama League and the Community Programs Division of the Department of Education, is sponsoring a course for actors and actresses to be held in the Top Motel Hotel during the weekend of September 10-11 and three subsequent weekends concluding October 2.

The course is designed for actors and directors at all levels of experience with a view to broadening their knowledge of the theatre and of the techniques of acting and character-ization. There is a close bond between the amateur and professional theatre in Canada, and the latter is turning more and more to the little theatres and drama groups across the country for its talent. Designers, lighting technicians and others whose interests lie backstage will also benefit form the workshop.

The first two weekends will be spent in consideration of the media available to an actor and director, such as body, voice and mind. The remainder of the course will be set aside for practical application of the skills learned, using as a vehicle William Saroyan's play "Subway Circus."

Returning to Belleville as instructor for the course is John Faulkner, who has had a long association with amateur theatre. Mr. Faulkner has won awards for design and direction at drama festivals in Northwestern Ontario, and is currently technical director for Toronto Workshop Productions. He is also active as a member of the cast of the Toronto group's plays.

The course is being held at the following times: Saturday, 9.30 a.m. to 12.30 p.m., 1.30 p.m. to 5 p.m., and 8 p.m. to 10.30 p.m. Sunday—10 a.m. to 12.30 p.m., and 1.30 p.m. to 5 p.m.

There are still a few places left for people interested in taking the course.

GETS THREE YEARS

Collins Bay Guard Drowns When Car Runs Into Trent

FRANKFORD — A 35-year-old Odessa man was drowned early this morning near the dam here off Highway 33, when his compact car snapped off guard rails and plunged into the Trent River late about eight feet of water.

Dead is Clifford Johnson, a guard at Collins Bay Penitentiary.

A Branch 387, Frankford, Legion member said Mr. Johnson had been helping Legion members with the Friday night street dance at Frankford. Mark Joly said "the deceased man had been sitting at a table in the Legion at 3 a.m. this morning and was believed to have left shortly after."

Mr. Albert Johnson, mother of the deceased, said her son was supposed to have been home in Frankford after the dance.

O.P.P. said the exact time of the accident was not known but a passing motorist called them at about 6.30 a.m. The car ended up on its roof in the river.

Rushnell Ambulance were called to the scene.

Coroner Dr. Nugent Brock of Trenton attended.

Mr. Johnston leaves his wife, Jean, 33, and one daughter, Kim, 8. Legion members said Mr. Johnson was planning to retire very possibly as a guard at Warkworth.

Judge Landreville Hopes To Clear Name in House

TORONTO (CP)—Mr. Justice Leo Landreville, of the Ontario Supreme Court, reported to be criticized by a federal commission report for his behavior in a natural gas pipeline stock deal, said Friday he hopes to clear his name in an appearance before a multi-party committee of the Commons and Senate.

The report of Ivan C. Rand, a retired Supreme Court of Canada justice, is in the hands of Justice Minister Lucien Cardin.

Nothing official has been said about its contents, but the report is believed to be critical of Mr. Landreville.

The commission inquiry dealt with Mr. Landreville's acceptance of free stock in Northern Ontario Natural Gas Co. shortly after he left the mayoralty of Sudbury and went to the Ontario bench.

HOPES FOR HEARING

"It is my hope that I will be given the opportunity of appearing before a committee of Parliament and the Senate to give a defence of my conduct before my countrymen," he said in an interview at his home here.

"I would accept that this would be granted. I don't think Parliament would act on the basis of a single report without giving me full opportunity to say what I have to say."

He said he had a copy of the report with him "but I've promised Mr. Cardin that I would not discuss it until it is made public. Then I'll have something to say."

HASN'T DECIDED

Asked whether he will still refuse to resign and force the government to ask him to, a resolution of both houses if a multi-party parliamentary committee supports MR. Rand's findings, he said:

"I haven't decided what I will do. I will give it to the truth but not to gossip or insinuations. I maintain today what I said five years ago. I am innocent of wrongdoing. If I had any feelings of guilt I would have resigned long ago."

He said Mr. Cardin had not told him that the government would agree to a request for a committee hearing, but he said he believed it would be granted.

He denied that Mr. Cardin asked for his resignation. He said that during a meeting with Mr. Cardin in Ottawa, the report was not discussed nor was there any mention of resignation.

It still is not known when the government will make public the report, but it appears that it might be held up for tabling at the sittings of parliament, opening Monday.

Warn Strikers They Must Not Use Violence

MONTREAL (CP) — Striking railwaymen have been warned that there must be no violence associated with the country-wide strike.

The order went out Friday within hours after the workers left their jobs.

Nelson Lewis, local chairman of conductors and brakemen in the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen, issued the warning at a closed meeting of 200 strikers.

"We want to make it a clean, legal, strike," Mr. Levis told reporters. "There is to be no violence and no goon activity."

To cut down on potential violence, the union has ordered that only ticket holders be set up—"just to show we are represented."

Say Consumers Not Paying Too Much for Beef

TORONTO (CP)—The Ontario Food Council said Friday a test on supermarket profit margins shows that consumers are not paying too much for beef.

The council said it examined Canadian and U.S. written material on price spreads and the markup on beef by six Toronto chain stores.

The markup averaged 22 per cent of the retail price, according to a survey done by the Ontario government's farm economics branch. For the six stores, the markups ranged between 20 and 26 per cent.

The farm economics branch said the 22 per cent average was not excessive. The food council agreed. The study quoted retailers as saying beef is the most costly meat to handle.

The council reported that no one segment of the food industry is taking excessive profits from beef sales.

The study was undertaken by the council at the request of Agriculture Minister William Stewart following complaints about high beef prices.

The council said its conclusions are tentative but it believes beef prices are not too high in relation to current wages.

Consumer complaints about beef prices may arise from comparing present prices with those of many years ago without realizing how wages also have risen, the council said.

The council was set up in 1963 by the government with power to investigate, subpoena and compel any action in any branch of the Ontario food industry.

Peaches, Corn Eagerly Sought In Local Mart

N.E. Workers Walk Off Jobs At London

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—More than 900 production workers and 200 maintenance workers at Massey-Ferguson Co. Ltd. plant walked off their Jobs Friday in a wildcat strike, the International Union said Saturday the slow pace at which the Northern Electric Employees Association is negotiating a new contract.

They are also demonstrating against what they called a "poor offer from the company."

The striking workers voted to stay off the job until a meeting Sunday to discuss the company offer.

The company and the employees association have been negotiating a new contract since mid-winter. The old contract expired in February.

Tom Ellens, the association's branch representative, said the latest company offer included increases ranging from 22 cents to 34 cents an hour by March 1, 1967, for the company's 1,000 production workers. Hourly rates for the workers now range from $2.52 to $2.96.

The plant's 160 tradesmen now receive $2.41 to $2.96, an hour. They were offered increases ranging from 28 cents to 71 cents an hour by March 1.

OSLAND — In memory of Percy C. Osland, who died August 27, years ago today.

Sweet memories of purity calm him, Sadly we here for him.

Lovely is our home without him, Help us, Lord, to meet again.

Lovingly remembered by wife and family.

FERGUSSON — In fond and loving memory of our dear husband Robert John (Curly) who passed away August 27, 1965.

Sad was the hour set for me to part,
Wet with the tears of sadness not the sadness caused by death and Heart.

And in my heart I bear the cause
why?
Why did death come to rest so near to you and I,
Why he stole my love, my tears, my all.
To be with one land in chase away my Why one life take this time in life to call
The time! Not yet but many years away.
When we have shared the many years we may,
And then, and much, much closer to your God.
But then he had come and God has called him above,
Home to that place above we know and love.
And I am left to tread the path
alone,
Until God calls me to my home still,
My eyes are wet, you never said
good-by,
My eyes are wet, so still I question
why?
But God knows what is best for you and I,
Although with Him, sometimes we cannot see,
Every life a plan God has laid out,
And only God is Master over all.
Remembered with love and sadness
by missed by Keitha.

FERGUSSON — In fond and loving memory of our dear father and grandfather Robert John (Curly) who passed away August 28, 1965.

Dear father, you left us one day,
We were called, so suddenly to pray.
And left us with memories of love
the ones who loved you best,
The vacant chair, the empty bed
will always come to mind,
Because you left a memory of self
You left to take your normal trip to be at the heavenly of the Lord.
Never to know that you would be back again to see us once more,
Your steps were numbered and your hours spent, we will never know.
For they are just as dear today as
First step was not too far from Heaven, where one of us like both
And has travelled on your merry way.
Everyone remembers you as very friends, we needn't mention names.
For those of yours dear Daddy,
you could count them all.
They loved you too, like all of us,
And God for your memory.
Sad to say that they pass and
and what we have to say,
Your next step, was one of kindness and love.
Your memory of this house most everyday.
And to a lady old and dear you brought a smile for the day,
Then, dear, it is our desire, you have
You headed home, back home to God above.
God saw you walking on your way,
And He knew you were tired and needed rest.
And decided He needed you up
there.
To do deeds in heaven, and prayer
to God.
Dear Daddy, we'll meet you smile, your dear face,
There's no one on earth, who can ever take your place,
Not your wife, not your children,
not your friends,
But we have to go onward, with a smile and tears.
—Lovingly remembered and sadly missed by Wife Ethel, Daughter Jean, Son Bill, Bette and Jim and the grandchildren.

CARDS OF THANKS

I wish to take this opportunity to express sincere thanks and appreciation for the many kindnesses shown by neighbors and friends and those who assisted me during the illness and passing away of my husband, Frederick Albert Tolten and father. To those for the many gifts and flowers, messages of sympathy and floral arrangements. Also to Rev. Father Spence, Rev. Father Hayes, Rev. Father Walter Tolten and Peter Scott, nurses in the Intensive Care Unit, Rev. Ray Martin and Rev. Jim for his comforting words and Mr. Ken Thompson for the lovely music. Also to Mr. Allan Eckroft and Bennett Mason.

Mrs. Tolten

I wish to take this opportunity to extend my sincere thanks to Rev. Father Spence, Rev. Father Hayes, Rev. Father Walter Tolten and Rev. Ray Martin, our relatives and friends for their kindness and visits while I received. Also the nurses, ward aides and staff of Intensive Care Unit for their many kindnesses. Also for their visits while I was a patient in Belleville Hospital.

EMPLOYMENT NEWS

By R. T. Vost,
Supervisor, Special Services

This week we would like to call attention to two excellent employment opportunities.

The first is with the National Employment Service. We need employment service officers and opportunities for advancement in this work are very good.

University graduation, particularly if these courses include personnel administration, economics, political science, public administration or psychology, would be a decided asset but this does not exclude those who have at least one year beyond matriculation and have held responsible positions with experience relative to the above courses.

Persons are also qualified to education, if they have a background, regardless of formal ground in personnel administration, employment, staff training, industrial relations or similar work experience.

A knowledge of the English language is required. For some positions a knowledge of both English and French will be an asset.

The second employment opportunity is for young men who are graduates from Grade 12.

This is a career opportunity with a large organization for vacancies in its head office in Toronto. The work will be of a clerical nature with scope for advancement. This company offers very favorable fringe benefits and first class working conditions. Further educational opportunities are also offered and generous re-imbursements are made to those who will avail themselves of such opportunities.

Any interested in either of these career opportunities should contact the National Employment Service office for further details or, better still, call in and discuss them with one of the employment officers.

Having made mention of career opportunities may we ask, if you are an employer, to consider those people who are physically handicapped, but not vocationally handicapped.

At present we have two young people who are most anxiously seeking employment, both of whom have clerical training.

One is a young man who is confined to a wheel chair, and is able to negotiate one step up and down. He has been trained in clerical work such as bookkeeping and business practices at Variety Village and is highly regarded by his teachers.

The other person is a young lady, who is able to negotiate stairs, etc. and is able to get around on crutches. This young lady is a graduate from Grade 12 Commercial.

Both these young people have pleasant, happy dispositions and would be an asset and an attribute to any suitable office situation.

We feel sure that any employer who is looking for reliable, stable and conscientious workers, could not go wrong in hiring these young people.

Once again we would like to emphasize, neither of these young people is handicapped when it comes to work.

If you can in any way help in placing these two young stars, please call the National Employment Service, 324 Church Street, Belleville.

They are not looking for charity but for a chance to prove themselves.

Trenton Main Assembly Point For Planes in CNE Air Show

TRENTON — CFB Trenton will be the departure base for most of the 35 Armed Forces' aircraft that will participate in the Canadian International Air Show at the CNE on Sept. 2 and 3.

Wing Commander Tom Benson of Air Transport Command Headquarters, Trenton, is the Armed Forces Task Force Commander this year and will direct and coordinate the armed forces aircraft at their 46 minute flying display.

Thirty-five aircraft will participate in the RCAF portion of the Air Show over the waterfront at Toronto.

Spectators will be able to see nearly all aircraft now used by the Canadian Armed Forces from the little Tutor jet trainers to the giant 130-passenger Yukon transports.

Air Defence Command will open the show with eight supersonic fighters; four CF101 Voodoo interceptors and four CF104 Starfighters, Canada's 1,400 m.p.h. strike aircraft used by the RCAF's 1 Air Division in Europe. They will be followed by Tutors from Training Command demonstrating formation and aerobatic flying.

Next, the long-range submarine hunter-killers of Maritime Command will demonstrate their capabilities over the waterfront. Both the huge Argus and the smaller Tracker aircraft will participate.

Air Transport Command is next in view with its turboprop transports, the huge Yukon, a three plane Cosmopolitan formation and three heavyweight Hercules demonstrating their capabilities.

Four Navy Trackers will display their manoeuvreability and sub-hunting equipment in a four minute presentation.

The Army too will demonstrate three of their Sycamore helicopters.

Representing Air Defence Command once again, four CF101 supersonic Voodoos, followed by four CF104 Starfighters will zoom over the waterfront.

Three RCAF para-rescue jumpers will parachute into the cold waters of Lake Ontario and be picked up; one by Albatross aircraft, one by helicopter and one by RCAF rescue launch. Following the pick up, the Albatross amphibian will take off from the lake, using JATO (jet assisted take-off).

Again this year Training Command's Red Knight will put his scarlet painted T33 Silver Star jet trainer through its paces in a spectacular solo aerobatic display.

The Armed Forces finale will be a high speed flypast by supersonic Starfighters.

Squadron Leader J. C. Stacey Fair, C.D. (RCAF retired) is shown receiving the Gold Medal and Long Service Certificate for over twenty-five years continuous service in the Department of National Defence. Making the presentation is Wing Commander N. A. M. Rutherford, C.D., Commanding Officer of Training Standards Establishment, Canadian Forces Base Trenton.

Gold Medal Presented For 25 Years' Service

S/L J. C. Stacey Fair (retired) was presented recently with the gold medal and certificate for over 25 years service with the Department of National Defence. S/L Fair was honored at a dinner at Canadian Forces Base, Trenton.

Squadron Leader Fair was born in Athens, Ont. and received his early education there. He received his Bachelor of Arts degree from Trinity College and his teacher training at the College of Education, both in the University of Toronto. Prior to the war he taught in Central Technical School, Toronto, Lisgar Collegiate in Ottawa and B.C.I.V.S. in Belleville.

In 1940 Mr. Fair was commissioned in the Royal Canadian Air Force, served as mathematics instructor in Toronto and Victoriaville, later assuming command of the Academic Training School in Aylmer, Ont. The majority of his military career was spent as a Staff Officer at Training Command Headquarters, Trenton and at Air Force Headquarters, Ottawa.

On retirement from the Royal Canadian Air Force, S/L Fair continued to serve the Department of National Defence as Test Specialist for the Central Examination Board, an organization at Trenton which sets, marks and controls examinations and trade tests for the whole service. Besides military courses he has taken post-graduate courses at Carleton College, University of Toronto and Columbia University, New York.

In April 1945 S/L Fair was married by the late Air Commodore Cockram at Rockcliffe Chapel to Miss Lorena Brenf. For the past nine years they have lived at 386 Bridge Street East in Belleville where Mrs. Fair has gained a wide reputation for her roses, lawns and shrubs.

Firemen Will Resume Home Inspections

The program of home inspections commenced earlier this year by the Belleville Fire Department, and then discontinued during the summer holiday period, will be resumed on Monday according to Fire Chief Ted Poste.

The home inspection program was instituted by the fire department as a means of keeping on potential fire hazards in private residences. However, with the holiday season, visiting inspectors were finding so many families away that it was decided to discontinue inspections until later in the summer.

Fire Chief Poste said the inspections would resume Monday in the East Hill, where they left off a few weeks ago.

Flight Lieutenant George L. MacDonald of Belleville will serve as commentator for the Armed Forces display at the Canadian International Air Show Sept. 2 and 3. He formerly served as commentator for the Golden Hawks jet aerobatic team for two years.

Thousands of Ontario Workers Set Up Picket Lines as Strike Begins

TORONTO (CP) — Railways were silent throughout Ontario today except for a section of southwestern Ontario where two United States rail lines operate.

Thousands of Ontario workers joined Friday in a countrywide strike of non-operating railway employees and set up picket lines at most centres where there are railway facilities.

Rail movement continued from Windsor to St. Thomas, Welland, Fort Erie and intermediate stops, and from Sarnia to Erieau through Chatham and Wallaceburg.

The New York Central and Chesapeake and Ohio railways have 200 employees on their lines in this part of Ontario, all under a U.S. contract and unaffected by the Canadian dispute.

Picket lines were organized at Toronto, where about 11,000 workers walked off the job, Ottawa, Kingston, Sudbury and most other rail centres in the province.

In Toronto, Canadian National Railways police closed the doors of downtown Union Station to the public as the last worker left.

Al Cerilli, unions' strike coordinating committee at Toronto, said there had been no reports of violence.

Raymond Rouzall, a Toronto Canadian Brotherhood of Railway, Transport and General Workers representative, said union locals are setting up welfare committees to examine hardship cases.

However, he said, most officials do not expect the strike to last long enough to create severe hardship in view of the moves in Ottawa to end the dispute.

He added that the union would disapprove of any workers taking jobs during the strike.

The 370-mile Ontario Northland Railway was also strike-bound with 1,800 workers leaving their jobs. Picket lines were thrown up at CNR installations at North Bay where 1,000 workers of the system's total of 2,500 employees are stationed.

PLANS SERVICE

The railway is planning an emergency service to several isolated communities in the north, inaccessible except by rail, should the strike be prolonged. If supplies run short, the towns will be serviced by track-wheeled station wagons.

Capreol, a community of 3,000 about 20 miles north of Sudbury, has been described as a "ghost town". One-third of the population works for Canadian National Railways.

In Sudbury, where trucking companies report a boom, a spokesman for International Nickel Co. Canada said 12 mines will face layoffs if the strike lasts more than a week.

Inco is the world's largest nickel producer and Canada's largest copper producer.

And Ashibi Paper Co. Ltd. said in a statement that a strike of more than 10 days "will probably shut down most of our production."

In Belleville, headquarters for the CNR's Rideau region are leading from Dorval, Que., some 300 workers walked off the job.

John Sheridan, Stirling, Wins In Horse Classes

TORONTO (CP) — Mr. and Mrs. P. Gilligan of Queenston, Ont. won top honors for showing the best heavy harness horse at the national horse show at the Canadian National Exhibition Friday.

Placing second in the competition was a horse shown by E. F. Carson of Preston, Ont., who won first prize in heavy harness horse competition Monday Third was John Sheridan, of Stirling, Ont.

Sheridan placed first in the heavy harness horses pairs class Friday.

Rail Strike

Prime Minister Pearson made a telling point on the strike situation in his address to the nation the other night.

In doing so he stressed no more than the obvious — that the national interest is being compromised by one walkout after another — yet his words are worth repeating.

"Today the effect of strikes on the common good is becoming more serious, as more and more of them have national consequences," said Mr. Pearson. The damage caused to the whole of society by certain strikes — by postal and hospital workers, longshoremen, railway, transport workers and other key groups — is increasing."

The prime minister acknowledged the railwaymen's right to strike, but he also stressed the Government's responsibility to take whatever steps are necessary to place the public interest first. A prolonged strike, he reminded his audience, could be disastrous.

The Government itself has had plenty of warning of the possibility of a railway strike, but it is futile to attempt to attribute blame in any quarter for the fact that the strike is now with us.

The demands for higher wages by the non-operating railway employees will be difficult to refuse in the light of gains made by other sections of the labor force. But the spectre of inflation cannot be ignored. The recent upward spiral of prices and wages continues, without a commensurate rise in production, the closer is the threat of economic disaster.

The Government's new railway legislation, expected shortly, may offer some solution to the problem. Parliament reopens Monday to handle the crisis, but Government spokesmen have said the legislation will be held back as long as a chance remains of reaching a settlement. If no settlement emerges within a reasonable time, then it will be the Government's duty to ensure that essential communications are maintained.

Spirit of Anarchy

The spirit of anarchy, the Montreal Star notes, "scarcely below the surface in crowds everywhere today."

"Some trivial frustration is enough in most parts of the world, it seems, to turn a crowd, especially if it is young, into a mob."

But is this such a new phenomenon? Two thousand years ago another crowd in another place cried "Crucify Him", and He was crucified but rose again from the dead and as the Deity changed the course of history and the world.

Therein lies the difference between the mob and the individual, even allowing for the fact that Christ was an exceptional person. The mob, Irish author St. John Ervine has said, "is a weak and unthinking thing . . . and it changes for the better take place in the mind of the individual."

But far from deploring the spirit of anarchy, or condemning it out of hand, is it not in fact a comparatively rare thing in men's lives. It can lead to violence (the Negro riots in Los Angeles a year ago were a classic example of mob action), but it can also be a force for good by drawing attention to the kind of overcrowding, frustration and downright hopelessness that characterized the Watts district in August 1965. This year, there was a carnival atmosphere where before fear, terror, and death stalked the streets.

Destructive anarchy is one thing. . . and something to be deplored, but social improvement and progress in the world often—result from group pressure which is anarchy of a kind. It might be termed anarchy kept within proper bounds.

What of the individual in this context? North American society tends to produce conformists, groups and organizations who exert pressures of one kind or another — but few anarchists. Anarchy of a kind is seen in the various strike actions that have been taking place, the contempt shown for court injunctions and for the police, for example. But in these situations (few individuals stand out.

There may be a case for saying that individuals as such are so preoccupied with the problems of daily living that they have little time or energy for anarchy like Mr. Most men, said Thoreau, "lead lives of quiet desperation." Evangelist Dr. Billy Graham also views the latter-day scene in much the same light.

Men come out from their busy schedule around the world, Dr. Graham recently took an auto vacation across the United States, accompanied by his two sons. Everywhere, he relates, he found people yearning about the proverbial — the tired people, tense people, men and women in search of something, and all forever on the move.

People seem unable to relax in this fast-moving society. Not only do they appear tired and distraught, but much of the time they are just plain bored. Why is it when a big fire occurs, or there is an airplane crash people will drive for miles to be at the scene? Because they are bored, and when calamity strikes it affords a focal point for their morbid outlook. But what they need, perhaps, is a little bit of anarchy, properly controlled, to give their lives more meaning and purpose.

Uruguay gained its independence 138 years ago today—in 1828 — in a treaty signed between its two giant neighbors, Brazil and Argentina. The country, one of the last areas colonized in South America, was swept into the general Latin American fight for independence early in the 19th century. A fiery Spanish conquistador of Montevideo in 1726 brought new anti-colonial ideas. Four years later, Jose Gervasio Artigas, leader of the gauchos, the cowboys of the Uruguayan interior, began a nine-year struggle for independence by besieging the Spanish colonial garrison at Montevideo. He was driven out of exile in 1820, and the territory was in turn occupied by Portuguese, by a Brazilian and Argentine troops. But neither Brazil nor Argentina was able to annex the area; Uruguayan resistance was resumed in 1825 by Juan Antonio Lavalleja and his Treinta y Tres (Band of 33); and Britain mediated by suggesting the establishment of an independent buffer state. The Republic of Uruguay remains today the smallest independent state in South America.

To Your Good Health

Aneurysms Can Vary In Cause and Effect

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: My hubby died as a result of an aneurysm at the base of the skull. It was in an inoperable location.

My daughter has been caused by a congenital defect or can it be brought on by pressure and does this lead a very strenuous life.

He had complained of headaches, backache and a stiff neck. He had been to a doctor only a few days before and his trouble was diagnosed as muscular aches. I realize this ailment is her; to detect ahead of time. — Mrs. R. G.

There are times when resignation and a philosophical acceptance are more helpful than a medical adyice, and I think this is one of them.

An aneurysm is a bulging and weakening of a blood vessel. It may be dangerous or unimportant depending on its site and location. It may be readily apparent or may be most difficult to detect. It may be corrected surgically or may be in an impossible position and all that can be done is to hope that it will not rupture.

It may be a congenital defect, or the result of injury, or it may develop because of infection or some other disease process.

In your brother's case, due to its location, we can say it probably was of congenital origin, enlarging and finally rupturing spontaneously. The defect at that point is difficult to diagnose but it might have been detected by a special study called an arteriogram — introduction of a dye into the bloodstream, followed by X-ray. But there is a complex circle of arteries at the base of the brain and it is most doubtful that anything could have been done even if such a test had been made.

There are problems about which little can be done and we must accept as well as possible what Fate ordains.

Aneurysms in strategic ally located arteries are a serious matter. But to relieve anxiety of people who may have aneurysms, it is only fair to point out that some may not be extensive

"Foreigner"—a Bad Word

St. Thomas Times-Journal

A letter in The Rotarian on the question: "Is Foreigner a Bad Word?" has our strongest support. The writer of the letter, a man from Glenorchy, Tasmania, Australia, tells of his daughter, Jean, Rotary exchange student attending a school in Kingston, Pennsylvania. Her hosts were wonderful and Jean was a loyal advocate for the U.S.A.

What surprised and disappointed her father was to find the great resistance to the calls: "Foreign Girl Speaks to Rotary Club," "Foreigner Talks to School," etc. Even "Foreigner" — it is so distant, in some contexts it is almost evil. For example, in foreign industries, "foreign matter" is something which should not be in the finished article; it may be injurious to health or harmful in some way.

The writer says happily the word foreigner does not find much use in Tasmania. It is looked upon as anti-friendship. He feels that the sooner the U.S.A. drops its use, the quicker it is likely to get along better with other countries in the world.

Most, if not all, of us do not object to being called Canadian, but do object to being labeled a foreigner — as if, like the foreign material in food products, we shouldn't be there and are not welcome.

We remember the time we felt a bit of a disgrace with a tobacco grower in Elgin who had emigrated from Belgium. We called him a foreigner, he was indignant and said "I'm a naturalized Canadian." He had a right to be indignant, and we realized his right.

The truth is that those who come to live and work in Canada and are naturalized by the courts are Canadians. They may keep some of the customs, the songs and the dances of their country of origin, and Canada is richer for this, but they are Canadians and not "foreigners" and we should all guard against the use of the uniformly word.

No Cause For Pride

Hamilton Spectator

It happens to be a fact that Richard Franklin Speck, the man charged with murdering eight nurses in Chicago recently, has a tattoo on his arm which says "Born to Raise Hell". So much for that.

Now it is also a fact, according to tattoo artist Ray Facey, that at least 20 Hamiltonians have had the same inscription affixed to their arms since that staggering crime became known.

Hamilton has many things to be proud of. That fact is not one of them.

Spirit of Anarchy Abroad

Montreal Star

People today stand in no awe of the law. They seem, on the contrary, to have imbibed somewhere a contempt for it, which seems to us a sign of ignorance of what makes collective living endurable. Disorder is self-destructive, though the disorderly may not realize it in time.

The oddest note in the report of youthful hoodlumism one weekend recently in the village of Grand Bend, Ontario, was the comment of a local police officer quoted there. The trouble is a regular thing, it seems, explained by the fact that dance halls and drinking places close at about the same time on Saturday night, filling the street with people not yet ready to go home. The discontented group is not made up of residents of the village, it perhaps doesn't need in be pointed out, but of vacationers in the district.

There are two objectionable features to the situation. One is the spirit of anarchy that is regularly below the surface in many countries today. Some trivial frustration is enough in most parts of the world, it seems, to turn a crowd, especially if it is young, into a mob. The other, almost worse to be condemned, is the attitude, evident in the quotation, that if riots occur frequently enough, they lose their significance, and nothing need be done about them. There was no word of charging anyone with any offence in the Grand Bend affair.

Divorce Law Hypocrisy

Brockville Recorder and Times

Many of the world's churches have committees studying the question of divorce in the light of the demands for updating the laws. Some of these committees have already made preliminary reports on their recommendations. Most favor change.

Latest to take this position is the committee appointed by the Archbishop of Canterbury in England. And the recommendations are in line with those made earlier this year by a branch of the Anglican church in Canada. The Toronto Diocese suggested to the federal government that present divorce laws be extended to include such grounds as desertion, incurable mental illness, and, in the case of the wife, proof of adultery, rape and some forms of sexual deviation. These are now conditions in British divorce law.

The British committee would abolish the outdated concept that there is always one innocent and one guilty party in a broken marriage. It is the surprising lack of this myth that now forces couples to arrange for legal evidence of adultery. But under the British recommendation, both parties would have to prove their marital failure in court and neither would have to bear the stigma of the sinner. As the report notes, it would be easier to be more like an inquest and less like a trial.

All the churches seem anxious to rid our divorces laws of their hypocrisy. Canada lags sadly behind the rest of the world's major countries, we will have to take a giant step to get into this century but catching up. We should be anxious to get rid of the present situation which somehow is attached to our divorce laws.

TV. Coverage of Debates Considered By Commons

By GREG CONNOLLEY

From The Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Members of the House of Commons are giving at least tantalizing consideration to the broadcasting of proceedings via radio and television.

Opposition Leader John Diefenbaker is strongly in favor of the proposal and has suggested a committee to study how the broadcasts might be conducted.

Prime Minister Pearson has agreed to consider the plan, although he doesn't seem quite as enthusiastic as Mr. Diefenbaker.

Some of the more cynical Ottawa observers consider the Conservative leader is well aware that he would be the star-turn in a Commons broadcast, almost certainly over-shadowing the Prime Minister.

There have been earlier discussions about such broadcasts but they have come to nothing. All that is broadcast from Parliament Hill nowadays are the ceremonial events such as the opening of new parliaments.

There is some fear that introduction of broadcasting would bring out the ham in many of the MPs who would be conscious of a national audience and anxious to make an impression.

It is even considered that television and radio broadcasts would lengthen the sessions greatly as the members concentrated on self-promotion.

Even as it is now, the leaders, the cabinet ministers and ordinary MPs play to the Press Gallery when they make speeches and issue statements. There is even quite a bit of jockeying to time speeches so as to get good coverage on peak listening hours on radio and television.

No cameras or microphones are permitted in the Commons or at committees of the House. Reporters with tape-recorders may get the minister or MP outside the House.

DULL DEBATES

A small studio has been provided in the basement block of the Parliament Buildings when television interviews may be conducted.

Whether broadcasts of the Commons would attract a large listener rating is open to question. A good part of the time, the House is rather dull and not likely to enchant the audience.

Radio broadcasts are carried from the Saskatchewan legislature during the Throne Speech and budget debates. There has been no indication that citizens are wildly enthusiastic about this programming.

This question of additional extensive exposure for the politicians is linked with some startling suggestions by Hon. John Turner, minister without portfolio in the federal cabinet.

Mr. Turner says the immediacy of communications has increased the exposure of the "outs" as against the "ins."

And he believes that with a properly conceived campaign an absolute unknown could be propelled from obscurity to political leadership within six months.

His theory is particularly interesting in view of the fact that both Prime Minister Pearson and Mr. Diefenbaker are looking toward relinquishment of leadership in their parties.

There are obvious candidates for succession but as Mr. Turner sees it, some dark horses from the rear echelons of the left and Tory parties may win it all.

If broadcasting comes to Parliament Hill, it may be as Mr. Turner suggests, almost on a new relative unknown may become a household name in a matter of weeks.

This has been the experience in the United States where broadcast of committee sessions has catapulted senators and representatives into political prominence. We need only to recall the late Senator Estes Kefauver and his crime committee proceedings.

Should broadcasting be accepted in Ottawa, it seems that it could only be on a limited basis in the Commons.

There would seem to be more prospect of employment of the records in committees of the House where there is much more informality than in the Commons itself.

The matter of televising proceedings of Parliament is being widely discussed in Britain. It is pointed out that the practice now for the Prime Minister and leading ministers to use television for important speeches of political significance gives the same of course is true in Canada.

And this national exposure tends to strengthen the position of the prime minister and the executive leader in the opposition parties, soon but rarely if at all, languish without TV coverage.

The British feel strongly that if the institution of Parliament is to survive against the pressures of modern television, it must employ the medium to bring the Commons right to the people.

But there is the suspicion here that regular radio and television coverage of the House would quickly pall upon most viewers, in the absence of broadcasts of dramatic debates like those of the flag issue, and the periodic crises of parliamentary case, etc., would have appeal.

Many Canadians though would be ready to welcome the change because Parliament is not just a toy created for entertainment but the very heart of democracy. You don't let tinker with that kind of institution.

Farm Output Needs Boost

Ottawa Citizen

Higher productivity is as much needed by the farm as in the factory. Agricultural and industrial policies alike must aim at eliminating inefficient production, and at the investment of more capital in the most modern tools. To be sure these policies are understood and supported in Parliament. But are they sufficiently understood in the country as a whole? Are they sufficiently understood by the trade unions, by management, and by the farmers' organizations? The struggles over wages and prices would indicate that they are not.

Higher productivity, and the difficult human adjustments that must be made with the introduction of new tools, the discarding of old methods, constitute a challenge that every citizen must accept if Canada's economic health is to remain sound.

Successful Living

Relatives Continually Borrow And Keep Her Husband Worried

DEAR DORIS — My problem is my husband's family. All his working life (he's 40), his brothers and sisters have never stopped pestering him for money, and loading him with their worries and problems. Just lately it has been increasing. They seem to vie with each other to get to him first with the worst. Needless to say, he is paid and paid, all to no effect.

DORIS CLARE

What worries me is the emotional wear and tear they are putting him through. He is not a strong man, but very tender hearted and gets very "het up" at all their crises.

Naturally all this affects our married life. These family worries make him silent and morose. He has no money to spare for the little extras he deserves, and I go out to work rather than be another burden to him. — HELPLESS AND HOPELESS.

DEAR HELPLESS — Believe it or not, your husband's charity serves more to make tramps of his brothers and sisters than to rescue them. As they learn to lean — and he is teaching them this — they lose the drive and desire to stand on their own feet.

We all need the challenge of a person (or persons) to support. Earning our bread by the sweat of our brow is ancient wisdom.

Help him get the gumption to say "no" by adding up your own financial needs and plans. Be prepared for family ill-feelings by holding the thought that this is for their own good, which it is. Eventually they'll take hold and show him what they can do on their own.

DEAR DORIS — You have helped me before; I wonder if you can help me once more.

One Sunday afternoon last winter I heard Mr. Gordon Sinclair on T.V. say that you could invest five dollars in some stock or something. Could you please give me the name and address.

I don't care to get rich, but I do need security for later year. My husband is mentally sick; he tried to kill me twice. My daughter wrote to me and said if her father didn't treat me good she would take me away from him, but I don't want to impose on them if I can help it.

A while ago I wrote to you, and you told me how to make money at home. This is the money I have to invest. It isn't much but it's a start. — RAINY DAY.

DEAR RAINY DAY — I once heard of a gal who struck oil when she was digging in her basement to make a root cellar. Then there was the actuarialist who started a school with just $20. capital. The race track once in a while pays off tremendous odds on a long shot. So does the stock market.

For the many thousands who plunge into one or another get-rich scheme, there is a mere handful who don't lose their shirts. Your best five-dollar investment is in a good savings plan recommended by your bank manager. Then if you can add another five, and another, regularly, it will begin to mean something when interest piles up.

Ask him about this. Believe your daughter and get her help if you need her. (And tell us what at-home effort is netting you a profit.)

Print of Little Finger Seldom Taken by Police

By MARILYN ARGUE

OTTAWA (CP)— Your little finger is a shy type. Just watch the next time you pick up a book or a glass.

Chances are you've got your thumb and three fingers firmly wrapped around it and your little finger kind of sideways.

That's why the RCMP single-fingerprint section only keeps a record of the other eight fingerprints. Criminals are a lot like you, in some ways.

Wilma Parcher, a brown-eyed blonde in her late 30s, has checked incriminating fingerprints found on everything from dressing-table mirrors to pop bottles.

She is one of the nine members of the single-fingerprint section who process some 1,000 prints every year.

The prints, received from police departments across the country, belong to persons suspected of such crimes as auto theft, robbery, kidnapping, abduction or murder. Fingerprints found at the scene of the crime are sent in for identification with the 300,000 or file belonging to known offenders.

In the single-fingerprint section alone "we were able to identify about 10 per cent of the prints sent in last year," says Miss Parcher, "and that was a record."

CALLS FOR PATIENCE

A search can end successfully in 20 minutes, or it may mean checking the files for two weeks and coming up with nothing. "You need a lot of patience in this job."

Once a possible match has been located, it is compared with the sample under a high-powered magnifying glass. If the new arrival doesn't match anything in the files, it is kept for an extended period and every five months the act goes on again.

Prospective technicians for the single - fingerprint section take an intensive six - week course and usually spend a year or more in the main fingerprint section where the work is not quite so detailed.

There are 10 main types of prints, with names like ulnar loop and tented arch, and an infinite number of intricate individual patterns.

In her five years with the section, Miss Parcher has made identifications that have helped put several criminals behind bars, including one murderer. But she has never given evidence in court. The regular RCMP members who supervise and check the work take care of the testifying.

Seeing how it really is has put her off the detective novels she used to read. "Now I think they're kind of boring."

Most Designers Choose To Keep Skirts Above Knees

By PEGGY MASON

PARIS (Reuters) — The new Paris silhouette ranges from the forward-looking space age school and modern art to retro-spective styles harking back to the 1830s back to the 19th century and even to the middle ages.

But, whether backward or forward, no element of the Paris summer remains untouched, not even the length of skirts.

Hemlines swing from the briefest mini skirts, complete with lace edged "mini - petticoats," at Pierre Cardin, to Christian Dior's new mid-calf-length coats.

The question of lengths is a matter of choice and most designers choose to keep them above the knees.

REVIVING LENGTH

Marc Bohan of Dior retains the current conservative midkneecap length for street wear, in contrast to his ultra-long coats and "gulletine" hemlines for his fine-day wear.

Critics think Marc Bohan's timing for a return to long hemlines is premature. One professional summed it up like this: "Dropping the length of coats over short dresses is like putting on all the horses in the race."

At the precise moment when pop art appeared to be waning, Yves Saint Laurent replaced his brilliant mini-skirt, complete with lace edged "mini - petticoats," at Pierre Cardin, to Christian Dior's new mid-calf-length coats.

Thus, he exchanges the square line and bright, colorful patch of Mondrian for pleated panels representing the sun and crescent moon, or Miro's undulating lines.

LOOKS BACK

Saint Laurent looks back to produce 1925-vintage fashions reminiscent of Louisa May Alcott's Little Women and Little Lord Fauntleroy trouser suits for dining at home.

A more recent glance over the shoulder produces the blue-print fashions of the 1930s, seen in sumptuous crepe dresses for formal wear.

At the same time, modern "artists" like Paco Rabanne and Nguyen Khanh are designing inter-planetary fashions in futuristic unfired metals, such as aluminum sheeting and moulded breast-plates made of heavy metal.

Pierre Cardin combines the modern age while harking back to the middle ages with touches from the crusader's costume, armored coat-of-mail pembroidered and hoods that conceal the entire face except for peepholes for eyes and nose.

THEY'RE TIMELESS

Beside the extremes of modern and medieval stand a timeless, conservative group, headed by Chanel, Pierre Balmain, Nina Ricci, Castillo and Jeanne Lanvin, who recognize maturity as well as extreme youth.

The "nothing" dress, with studied lack of detail, is still the No. 1 silhouette everywhere.

The military look replaces last season's nautical effects in coats at Saint Laurent.

Formal silhouettes are slim and simple, featured in a new range of ice cream colors and lavish fabrics laden—and occasionally overladen — with embroidery. Spangles are everywhere, making the ubiquitous sheath in gold, silver, or shiny black.

Stencilling Once Popular Decor

By RALPH and TERRY KOVEL

Stencilled walls were popular in New England during the first half of the 19th century. Travelling itinerant artists went from town to town and decorated the walls and even the floors of many homes and taverns. The walls were stencilled to resemble wall paper. Floors were patterned to resemble woven carpet.

The simple-star-like pattern repeated over and over on the floor was popular during the first quarter of the 18th century. More formal and elaborate designs were used by the 1790-1840's.

This old method of decorating has gained in popularity during the past few years. Stencilled walls and floors are now used in the appropriate rooms.

Q. The Liberty Bell appears in the centre of my scalloped metal glass plate. The words "Declaration of Independence, 1776-1876" and "100 years ago" are impressed on the plate. There is also a list of the 13 colonies and their leaders. What is the history of this plate?

A. You own a piece of Liberty Bell pressed glass. The pattern was made by Gillinder and Sons of Philadelphia, Pa. The glass was sold at the centennial in 1876. A full set of Liberty Bell glass was made. It included plates, sauce dishes, serving dishes, sugar and creamer, salts, mugs, water pitchers, goblets, and toy miniature tea sets

Q. What should I use to clean my pewter? Is silver polish safe?

A. You can use any commercial metal polish. We prefer the types used for brass and other such metals. Silver polish will do no harm but is not the most satisfactory. Do not use scouring powder or steel wool.

Q. Would a spring tyne rocker be classified a Victorian? When were they made?

A. The patent or spring rocker is definitely Victorian. It was made about 1830.

Canning Season Here Again

QUESTION:

I wonder if you would have space in your columns soon to print a method of canning tomatoes? I am a new homemaker and do not have a canner or pressure cooker and our tomatoes are going to produce a bumper crop this year. Also a recipe for preserving pears please. Mrs. M. L.

ANSWER:

CANNED TOMATOES ((Cold Pack):

Blanch ripe tomatoes in boiling water for 1 minute. Remove at once, dip in cold water and peel and core. Drop into sterile jars, pressing down with sterile spoon. Add ½ tsp. salt to each pint. Leave ½" headspace. Seal. Process in oven on broiler pan without rack (no water) at 275 deg. F. for 35 min. Open oven door and let heat subside before attempting to handle jars. Do not touch the seal. Let cool. Wash very carefully and store in cool place.

CANNED PEARS (hot pack):

Wash, peel, halve or quarter; remove cores; use ripe but firm pears. Bartletts are best but ripe other varieties may be used. Drop in brine bath of 1 tsp. salt to 2 cups water. Drain. Bring to boil in hot very thin syrup in proportions of 1 cup sugar to 4 cups water or and simmer tender-fleshed varieties 3 min., firm-fleshed varieties 5 min. Pack hot in sterile jars, pouring over boiling syrup to within ½ inch of top. Seal. Process in hot water bath 15 min. for both pints and quarts.

QUESTION:

Will you kindly print a recipe for Cottage Potatoes? They are a little like Pan Rabanee toes au Gratin but a little different too — made with sliced cooked potatoes. I love your recipes. Thank you. Micky M.

ANSWER:

Thank you, and yes, but would you please include your name and address next time? The only "cottage" titled potato recipe I have is fried.

COTTAGE FRIED POTATOES:

In a large frying pan melt a small amount of butter or margarine or bacon fat to cover bottom. Add thinly sliced potatoes and fry gently until underside is brown. Cover for a few min. to steam. Uncover and turn over. Sprinkle with salt and pepper and brown other side.

New President of CAC Seeking More Members

By MARILYN ARGUE

OTTAWA (CP) — Gleora Pearce thinks everybody should join the Consumers Association of Canada. She's the president. But it isn't a dream of world domination that makes her want 15,000,000 members instead of 18,000. It's because "everybody — is a consumer, after all."

Miss Pearce, 41, has been in consumer information services for 18 years. For the last eight, she has travelled 40,000 miles a year around the Prairies for a wholesale co-operative.

She is leaving that job, though. "There comes a time when you must change. Now I hope to do free-lance consultant work."

A former head of the CAC problem committee, Miss Pearce, in the unpaid role of president, will co-ordinate this group with the study and Canadian Consumer magazine committees.

A friendly blue-eyed blonde, she wears copper - framed glasses and a gold-and-diamond engagement ring. The prospective groom, Don Simmons of Winnipeg, works for the same company, and they plan to be married late this year. "But CAC has complicated that considerably."

Since her early June election she has spent much of her time on the road. From her home in Saskatoon, she flew to Toronto for the annual meeting, then back to Saskatoon, then to Quebec for a merchandising conference, then to Ottawa to become familiar with head office operations. She plans to continue travelling to local associations "as much as finances permit."

EVERYONE'S INVOLVED

She says the basic problem facing CAC is communication. "People don't know what we are. It's difficult to tell a public know that we're not a separate organization. They're part of us too, just because every-body is a consumer."

Right now the most interested in reaching the teenagers. "They say by 1970 half the population of Canada will be under 25. Do those young people know how to buy applicances, what credit really costs them, the kind of investments to make or insurance to buy?" She hopes to see courses in consumer information taught everywhere in high schools, as being done in Alberta. People just aren't aware of the information that is available. There is excellent material from government departments that they should be getting at the school level."

The association likes to hear from people who have trouble with anything from a snap-top baby bottle to a washing machine. "Having problems directed to us helps us to find out where the biggest difficulties lie. Then we can present resolutions or briefs to industry and government."

One of the resolutions at the CAC meeting dealt with stores which advertise by sending unsolicited credit cards to everyone in the phone book. "We wrote to the companies to find out if they really know how much the consumers object to this. If the card were lost somebody else might be able to run up quite a bill on it."

MR. AND MRS. JOHN K. FRANKLIN

Franklin — Kitchen

Rev. H. E. Wintemute officiated at the wedding ceremony in Fallingbrook Heights Baptist Church, Scarborough, when Susan Jane Kitchen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George L. Kitchen, Scarborough was united in marriage to Robert Ketchesond Franklin of Don Mills, son of Mr. and Mrs. Taylor K. Franklin of Belleville.

Mrs. Laura McKee, aunt of the bride was organist and played the wedding music. She also accompanied the soloist Mr. Don Havery.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a bridal gown of nylon organza over taffeta and featured a portrait neckline and elbow length sleeves. Appliques of Alencon lace trimmed the bodice and lower skirt edge, and a full cathedral train fell gracefully from the back waistline. An elbow length veil of pure silk illusion was held in place by a lace crown and she carried a cascade of white roses with pink miniature gladioli.

Miss Marjorie Kitchen, sister of the bride as maid of honor and the bridesmaids Mrs. Carolyn McNeil, twin sister of the bridegroom, Miss Beverley Ware, Miss Joan Sandbrook, cousin of the bride, and Mrs. Hillary Kitchen, sister-in-law of the bride were identically attired in floor-length gowns of midnight blue peau de soie highlighted with flowing back panels. The dresses were enhanced with empire waists, scooped necklines and short sleeves. All wore headdresses of double bows of matching material edged with pearls. Each carried a bouquet of pink and white miniature gladioli.

The bridegroom was attended by Dr. Stephen Sale of Oxford University, England and ushers were Mr. Doug Crews of Trenton, Mr. Cedric Anderson of Toronto, Mr. William McNeil of Waterloo, brother-in-law of the bridegroom and Mr. Fred Kitchen of Albany, N.Y. brother of the bride. A reception was held at the Inn on the Park, Toronto, where the bride's mother received the guest wearing a dress of gold and white lace with matching overdress, matching hat, gold and beige accessories and a corsage of golden rosebuds. Assisting was the bridegroom's mother, who wore a dress of shell pink crepe with cherry brocade coat, matching pillbox hat and shoes and a corsage of pink rosebuds.

Leaving on a wedding trip to Montreal and points east the bride donned a powder blue ensemble with matching accessories and a corsage of Talisman roses.

On return from the honeymoon the couple will reside at 109 Rowena Avenue, Apt. 505, Don Mills, Ontario. The bridegroom is a member of the Leaside Board of Education teaching staff.

MR. AND MRS. GARNET HAROLD BLAKELY

Blakely — Potter

Wesleyan Methodist Church, Belleville, was the scene of the marriage on August 20, 1966 at 12 noon, of Donna May Potter and Garnet Harold Blakely. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Willet Potter, R.R. 8, Picton and he is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold William Blakely, R.R. 3, Belleville. Rev. J. Spearman, assisted by Rev. E. LeRoy performed the ceremony. Miss Eudora Demlee played the wedding music and Miss Mary Spearman was soloist.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a white organza over taffeta gown with Empire waistline and bodice and long lily-point sleeves of Chantilly lace. The full skirt was appliqued with the same lace and ended in a chapel train flowed from the back waistline. Her headress was a cap of Esquire net with a large cascade of veil fan flowing out to a three-tier silk illusion shoulder-length veil. She carried a white Bible crested with red roses.

Mrs. Robert Waddell, cousin of the bride, was matron of honor. She wore a white cotton lace over turquoise taffeta floor-length gown with turquoise cummerbund and short sleeves. Miss Linda Blakely, sister of the bridegroom, as bridesmaid, wore a gown similar to the matron of honor's but in a soft pink color. Both attendants were lily-of-the-valley headpieces and shoulder-length veils in the same color as their gowns.

Mis Debbie Waddell, cousin of the bride, was flower girl. She wore a pink dress with white accessories and carried a basket of white poms and pink carnations.

Leslie Hall, cousin of the bridegroom, was groomsmen, and the ushers were Paul Hall, cousin of the bridegroom and Leslie Jewel, cousin of the bride. The bride's cousin, William Waddell, was ring-bearer.

The reception was held at Maple Inn, Bloomfield, where the bride's mother received the guests, wearing a beige jacket dress in rippled acrel with green and beige accessories and a corsage of apricot carnations. The bridegroom's mother was dressed in turquoise green crepe with matching jacket, white accessories and a corsage of pink carnations.

The bride's travelling costume for her wedding trip to the east coast and Portland, Maine, was a pale blue linen jacket dress with white accessories and a corsage of pale pink carnations.

On their return, the couple will live at the Melagien apartments, 835 Oxford Street, Oshawa.

MR. AND MRS. PETER N. COUVES

Couves — Townson

Holloway Street United Church, Belleville was the scene of a lovely summer wedding on Saturday, August 20, 1966 at 4 p.m., when Gloria June Townson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Townson, Belleville was united in marriage to Peter Newnham Couves, R.C.M.P., Toronto, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Couves, Edmonton, Alberta. Rev. W. Lamb, minister of the church officiated and wedding music was rendered by Mrs. E. M. Hubbs who also accompanied the soloist Mrs. V. Grey.

Given in marriage by her father ,the bride wore a floor-length white silk organza gown with Empire waistline and featuring an overlay lace bodice with rounded neckline and short, scalloped edged lace sleeves. The gown was highlighted at back with a flowing train edged with lace appliques. A three-tier elbow length tulle veil fell from a cluster of three organza roses with stephanotis. She carried a bouquet of yellow glamelias mingled with white stephanotis.

The matron of honor, Mrs. Wayne Price, sister of the bride , and the bridesmaids, Mrs. Paul Welsh of Oshawa, and Miss Eleanor Ruf of Saskatchewan were identically attired in yellow floor-length dresses in Empire style and embellished with flowing back trains at back. All wore wedding ring headdresses and each carried cascade bouquets of white 'mums.

Mr. Edwin Couves was the bridegroom's attendant and the ushers attired in colorful R.C.M.P. dress uniform were Mr. E. M. Bryden and Mr. R. MacGibbon.

For the reception in the Pinnacle Room at Holtz Quaal, the bride's mother greeted the guests wearing a mint green lace sheath dress with three-quarter length lace coat, cap shell accessories and a corsage of mint green tinted 'mums. She was assisted by the bridegroom's mother who wore a two-piece gold silk ensemble with an overlay of matching lace, white accessories and a corsage of white 'mums.

Upon departure for the wedding trip to points in Northern Ontario and around the Great Lakes to the United States, the bride donned beige silk featuring a suede front an orange and yellow turban hat, beige accessories and a corsage of bronze 'mums.

Mr. and Mrs. Couves will reside at 49 Blue Springs Road, Toronto.

PARENTS MUST PAY

CHATHAM, Ont. (CP)—Council endorsed a resolution here calling for legislation to force parents of juvenile vandals to pay up to $200 in compensation for destroyed property. "I don't think you can put any value on vandalism in Chatham," said Alderman Douglas Allin, adding that not all cases were reported.

Wed Jewel of a Man, So Why Does She Nag?

ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS — Seven years ago I married a man I thought I loved, but wouldn't work so I had to support both of us. I wanted a family and decided I would never have one if I stayed married to him, so we called it quits.

I swore if I ever found a good man I would be the best wife in the world. Well, I found a real jewel. The fact is, he is so wonderful it is difficult to describe him. We have a charming, pretty two lovely children and just about everything a person could want. You will you please tell me why my mouth is never shut? I nag constantly. I'm forever picking on this marvelous man and I'm so sick of listening to myself that I can't stand it. What is wrong with me and my way? I'm too ashamed to sign my name. Just call me—NUTTY MARIE.

DEAR MARIE — I'll bet your jewel is the quiet type. Most wives who nag figure a fight is better than being ignored.

Instead of criticizing or complaining, switch to words of mutual interest. Nagging like any other pattern of behaviour, can become a habit, and it can be broken if you work at it.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — Please help me. I am a 11-year-old boy who is considered a person in the whole world. I do something that is terrible and just can't stop no matter how hard I try. I wet the bed I have tried starving myself and going without water for days at a time but it doesn't help.

My mother took me to a doctor over a year since the result it was not serious and that I would outgrow it and not to worry. Ever since my mother knows I don't have a sickness she has been trying to disgrace me out of the habit by telling everybody that her 11-year-old baby boy still wets the bed. She even told my friend, and now they all know why I never sleep at their houses.

Please tell me what I can do about this awful thing. I promise to follow your advice no matter what it is. — UNHAPPIEST BOY.

DEAR BOY — It's too bad that the doctor didn't go a little further when he examined you. He would have that your bed-wetting was not caused by a physical sickness. He should have told your mother that many adolescents wet the bed right up through the teen years ,because they are insecure and unhappy.

I suggest that your mother take you to a doctor who can help you work out your emotional problems. Ask your school counsellor or your favorite teacher to recommend two or three such doctors so your mother can take her choice.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — My cousin had a rush wedding. She was pregnant and looked it. But that didn't stop her from wearing a white gown and having bridesmaids and all the trimmings. My sister went out and brought the bride an expensive present.

The baby was born last week and now my sister wants to buy another present. I think it is wrong to treat this girl like she is the Queen of Sheba. When people don't live right they should not enjoy special privileges. Am I right? — BELIEVEN IN DEMOCRACY.

DEAR B. — So only the Queen of Sheba should get a present? The girl probably suffered a great deal and I'm sure she is deeply appreciative of any kindness shown her. Your sister sounds like a fine person to me. Too bad you aren't more like her.

* * *

Unsure of yourself on date? What's right? What's wrong? Should you? Shouldn't you? Send for Ann Landers' booklet "Dating Do's and Don'ts, enclosing with your request 35c in coin and a long, self-addressed envelope.

Know Your Limits

By Dr. Stuart E. Rosenberg

The trees began to weep, the story goes, when they saw that iron had been created.

They feared the axes which would be made to destroy them. But a wise voice gave them consolation:

"Fear not, the iron cannot harm you unless you yourselves supply the wood for the axes' handles."

We have a colored fear of many more of which are of little substance. We forget today fretting about tomorrow. Frighted by our fancies we try to survive ancient yesterdays. We live with nightmares instead of dreams.

We don't trust ourselves. We set up imaginary enemies and shoot our missiles in every direction, seeking to destroy the enemy. We rant against the fates and are drowned by our tears and fears. But the thing we fear most is ourself.

And this happens to people who really don't know themselves. They have no great proficient in many of the arts and sciences but they are utterly ignorant of who and what they themselves are.

We're often so busy getting and storing knowledge about the world that we neglect to get to know ourselves.

Limitation is the first guide to self-knowledge, as it is with all knowledge. Any student who thinks he knows all there is to know, knows very little indeed. You begin by recognizing the boundaries of your field.

You learn a good deal about what you can do, when you've discovered what you can't do.

And so with every man. Know your borders, your own limits and limitations! Make peace with them and then take the next step — concentrate!

He knows his work best who knows the weakness, but also the greatness, of his borderline. It's what you do in the interior that helps defend the coast.

A Lift For Living

One Lovely Deed Worth All Thoughts, Theories

By REV. HAROLD E. KOEN

Nearly everyone, everywhere, fervently feels that all the beautiful thoughts and theories and well defined philosophies and creeds are less significant than one lovely deed. Themes that are separate from action, and religion that is detached from man's real needs, will never capture and hold the world's interest or allegiance.

Gertrude Stein is best known for her famous line, "A rose is a rose is a rose," which she claimed was poetry. She might have become a great doctor rather than an eccentric poet, for she was once a remarkably talented student at the Johns Hopkins medical school. There she showed rare competence in the dissection of corpses, but was refused a degree because she had absolutely no interest in living patients.

Much theory, philosophy and religion are like Gertrude Stein's interest in medicine, entirely detached from life. It does not deserve recognition, and it has little appeal. Candid one time said, "God Himself dare not appear to a hungry man except in the form of bread."

But when faith is practical, having a vital connection with everyday life, linked to the living patient and presenting itself to a hungry world in the form of bread, it is nearly irresistible. Such a faith graced the life of Sir Wilfred Grenfell, the medical missionary to Labrador. Born into the family of a clergyman who had descended from a long line of sea fighters, Grenfell combined in his nature a poet's found piety with a wild craving for adventure. Early in life he decided to be a doctor, a profession in which he could link his devotion to God, his love for man, and his natural romantic soneness.

While a young doctor in London, he was returning home one night from a patient when he was attracted by a big tent where Dwight L. Moody and Ira Sankey were holding a revival meeting. A large crowd there was leading the congregation in prayer; and he prayed on and on until Grenfell arose and was about to leave the tent. Just then Moody, a sensible sort of a man, called out, "Let us arise and sing a hymn while our brother finishes his prayer." Struck by such a practical solution to a delicate problem, Grenfell returned to his seat and listened to Moody's sermon. Later, recalling the incident, Grenfell said, "When I left it was with the determination to make religion a real effort or frankly to abandon it."

CENTRAL FIGURE

The young doctor carried out his resolution. He became the central figure of one of the most practical demonstrations of faith and service in the history of Christendom. In 1892 Dr. Grenfell sailed for Labrador to supervise the medical mission there. He lavishly spent his energies upon the fishfolk who were suffering from beriberi, scurvy, rickets, pneumonia and tuberculosis. He even won victory from necrosis of the jaw that resulted from unattended toothache, others had injuries that had turned gangrenous from lack of medical attention. Innumerable times he risked his life while racing across the treacherous sea - ice to save a native from almost certain death.

Moreover, the good doctor served his people in less spectacular ways. He persuaded them to open their own cooperative store for buying and selling merchandise. He introduced vegetable gardening, cattle, sheep and lumber mills to bolster their health and economy of the Weak North. Hospitals and orphanages were established under his guidance. Every practical application of Christianity caught Grenfell's interest, devotion. Labrador, Newfoundland and the whole world watched, encouraged, as one man demonstrated how Christianity could be woven into the daily lives of the natives of the North.

Religion constantly faces the temptation to substitute creeds for action and beautiful talk for loving deeds. The Bible warns against succumbing to the allure of high-sounding words and sweet sentiments that sometimes seem to be the essence of religion.

Thus, Dr. James Moffatt translated the eighteenth verse of the third chapter of the First Epistle of John to read, "Dear children, let us put our love not into words, or into talk, but into deeds, and make it real." Grenfell made love real by putting it into deeds the world has found unforgettable.

Stories of Famous Hymns

BY HORACE B. POWELL

Collections of hymns for young people usually include "Take Thou Our Minds, Dear Lord" which was produced by two American Presbyterian ministers in 1918.

The hymn-tune preceded the words. It was written by the Rev. Dr. Calvin W. Laufer, a church musician and poet, while he was attending a religious conference which met at the College of Emporia, Kansas. Later in the year Dr. Laufer wanted a devotional hymn for another conference . . . this time a meeting for youth. One day he met his friend, the Rev. William H. Foulkes, on the platform of the railroad station at Stony Brook, Long Island. Dr. Foulkes had a summer home in the area and was waiting for a train to take him to the city.

Humming the tune which he had created on the Emporia campus, Dr. Laufer told his friend: "We need a devotional hymn for the young people that will challenge their hearts and minds. It has occurred to me that you might be in a mood to write a few verses for such a hymn."

The two clergymen hummed Dr. Laufer's tune together while waiting for Dr Foulkes' train to arrive. They hummed it until Dr. Foulkes was familiar with the music, and as he traveled into town that morning he wrote the first three verses, according to his own report, "almost spontaneously." When he returned that evening he handed them to Dr. Laufer. Several years later at another conference Dr. Foulkes added his fourth stanza. He said: "His words came to my mind as a fitting summary for the other three."

Take Thou our minds dear Lord, we humbly pray;
Give us the mind of Christ each passing day;
Teach us to know the truth that sets us free;
Grant us in all our thoughts to honor Thee.

Take Thou our hearts, O Christ, they are Thine own;
Come Thou within our souls and claim Thy throne;
Help us to shed abroad Thy deathless love;
Use us to make the earth like Heaven above.

Take Thou our wills, Most High: Hold Thou full sway;
Have in our inmost souls Thy perfect way;
Guard Thou each sacred hour from selfish ease;
Guide Thou our ordered lives as Thou dost please.

Take Thou ourselves, O Lord, heart, mind and will;
Through our surrendered souls Thy plans fulfill;
We yield ourselves to Thee — time, talents, all;
We hear, and henceforth heed, Thy sovereign call.

Turn Away Many Visitors At Chartwell

LONDON (CP) — Thousands of visitors have been turned away from Chartwell, Sir Winston Churchill's country home, since it was opened to the public in June.

A spokesman for the National Trust, which owns the house and grounds in Kent, said, "So many people visit the house at weekends that it is impossible to accomodate them all.

"We can only explain that the number of visitors is limited because the house is not very large."

One of the Chartwell staff said: "We often get more than 4,000 people in the grounds but we can only accommodate about a third of them in the house."

Churchill bought Chartwell in 1922 an it was his favorite spot for the next 40 years. The house has been restored as it was in the 1920s and 30s.

WORK LESS IN PLANT

Nearly 30 per cent of working Canadian women were in factories in 1901, compared with 10 per cent in 1961.

Lighting the Way

By Walter S. Cross

LOVE ISN'T EVERYTHING

Willard R. Whittenberg, 19, of Danville, California, was in love. His girl's name was Linda. While visiting Mount Diablo State Park, Willard selected a huge rock upon which he engraved the words, "Ron and Linda." The only trouble was that a Park Ranger caught Ronald P. Calhon gave him two weekends to erase the evidence. He also fined the lad $36.

The lover was also out cost of the original can of paint, as well as a can of paint remover.

Love may be, as Henry Drummond says, "the greatest thing in the world." However, when this emotion is allowed to run wild, it can lead us into a lot of trouble, and make trouble for others. Over-indulgent parents are proving this every day in our juvenile courts. By all means, let us love . . . but let it be balanced by self-respect, and the exercise of good old-fashioned common sense.

Countrywide Railway Strike Sends Stock Prices Plunging

By LARRY DWORKIN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The countrywide railway strike Friday sent prices plunging on Canada's stock markets, depressing further already weak stock prices.

At Toronto, the industrial index, an indicator of key stocks movement, plummeted 3.38 to 346.87 on the week after touching 348.73, lowest since April 2, 1954.

Spokesmen for Canada's mining industry said the strike will cut out ore shipments to the United States.

Massey - Ferguson, maker of farm - machinery maker, said the strike will be a serious blow and could result in substantial losses due to the drop in export business to the U.S.

However, there wasn't any panic selling on the market as only 10,231,925 shares changed hands compared with 10,350,862 last week.

IN SIXTH MONTH

The skamp is well into its sixth month and analysts cite lack of leadership from the New York exchange, uncertainty about the international situation and higher interest rates as causes—with the rail strike an added factor.

A market analyst Wednesday was described as technical, resulting from an oversold position.

Analysts say there have been no recent developments to stimulate the market and many feel the situation could drag on for some time.

Trans - Canada Pipe - Lines tumbled 4% to 27¼. It touched a low of 26¾ following federal government approval of the company's bid to build an east-west pipe line with a section passing south of the Great Lakes through the U.S.

Massey-Ferguson lost 3¼ to a low of 18¾ following a sharp increase in the company's nine-month earnings. CPR dropped 2¼ to 55 and Ford of Canada 7¼ to 136¼.

HIT LOWS FOR YEAR

Issues that dropped to lows for the year included General Motors, off 4 to 77, Bank of Nova Scotia 3 to 63 and Toronto-Dominion Bank 1 to 56 after being down to 55½.

Gulfs suffered the largest drop on index, sliding 9.21 to 172.60. Dome declined 5½ to 49½, Canada Red Lake 2¾ to 25 and Giant Yellowknife ¾ to 15¾.

Among base metals, Ipco retreated 1¾ to a low of 85½, Rio-Algom ¼ to 23¾ and Hudson Bay ¾ to 74½. Most Mining companies rely on the railways to transport ore.

Scurry Rainbow pared the western oil group lower, driving it 5¾ to 21½. Pacific off 2 to 20, Banff ¾ to 14¼ and Dome ¼ to 13½.

In the index, base metals dropped 3.69 to 86.74, western oils 1.44 to 96.56 and the TSE 3.30 to 140.07.

At Montreal, industrials were down 3.32 to 145.50, utilities 2.16 to 120, banks 2.70 to 407.2 on and papers .92 to 109.22. Volume was 5,631,132 shares compared with 5,479,370 last week.

Nurse's Car Twice Damaged By Vandals

NAPANEE — A new car belonging to Miss Shirley Johnson, a nurse with the County Health Unit, has twice been maliciously damaged within a week. Last week the paint was badly scratched, as though with a nail or other sharp instrument, and the hood had been lifted and the wires disconnected.

Wednesday night her younger brother, as he neared the house, saw shadows near the car and suspected further vandalism. He was smart enough to walk by and approach the car from behind the house, but not quick enough to catch a man who was running away.

Both incidents were reported to the town police, who have since been on the watch. Police Chief Harry Ben believes it is a case of mistaken identity. One day as Miss Johnson was on the street, a woman passing asked, "How do you like working at the C.I.L.?" She was evidently when she answered the telephone a woman's voice asked the same question. Miss Johnson has no connection whatever with the explosives plant, and has no friends or relatives who work there.

Learn Signs For Centennial Farms Coming

NAPANEE — Markers for the Centennial Farms will soon be on the lawns and Addington Junior Farmers about September 30, the members learned at their meeting in North Fredericksburgh Township Hall Thursday night. They arranged to deliver them early in October, and, when the posts are set, will put the signs up.

Only 37 of the estimated 100 Centennial farm owners applied for the plaques, but extra ones are being set up and can be obtained by the remaining approximately 63 owners. "It will be a case of "first come, first served" president Wayne Parks warned.

Over-All Profit Picture Of Business Better Than '65

By KEN SMITH
Canadian Press Business Editor

TORONTO (CP)—The overall profit picture of big business in Canada is better so far this year than it was in 1965, despite frequently voiced worries about growing labor and other costs.

A survey of the mid-year earnings reports of 65 large corporations shows their net profits total almost $373,000,000 compared with $320,000,000 in the similar 1965 period.

An economist said, however, the 10-per-cent gain recorded by these corporate giants may not be indicative of Canadian business as a whole, since the large organizations are better able to meet the challenges of rising costs.

The increasing number of bankruptcies — e.g. small firms shows that they are feeling the pinch of tight money and increasing expenses, he added.

Of the 65 major companies, 50 reported lower earnings in the first half of this year compared with 1965. A similar percentage of the firms, however, had lower earnings last year compared with 1964, indicating that recent economic conditions may not be the decisive overall factor in the latest profit picture.

But the reports of most all the corporations, even those showing a profit increase, complained unfavorably on the effects of higher costs, including labor.

MINING HARDEST HIT

Hardest hit as a group were mining companies. Among some of the largest ones, lower earnings have been reported by International Nickel, Brunswick, Sherritt Gordon, Denison, Kerr-Addison and United Keno.

Inco, the world's largest nickel producer, showed profit down to $19,000,000 from $75,000,000, despite a $50,000,000 jump in sales to $277,000,000.

Its costs and expenses, however, rose $94,000,000 to $249,000,000. And chairman Hegry S. Bridgman predicted that the company's labor and associated costs will rise markedly."

Major miners having increased earnings so far this year include Falconbridge, Hudson Bay Mining and Smelting, Noranda and Campbell Red Lake.

Chemical companies as a group have experienced some difficulties, with three of six major ones showing reduced earnings. Chemcell, Union Carbide and Reichhold (Canada) indicated in preliminary financial reports that expansion and production costs, rather than labor, weighed heavily in reducing their first-half earnings.

PAPERS HIGHER

Among paper companies, many of which experienced a profit decline last year, higher earnings have been reported so far this year by Abitibi, Bathurst, MacMillan Bloedel, Crown Zellerbach (Canada) and Price Bros.

LBJ Celebrates 58th Birthday At Texas Ranch

JOHNSON CITY, Tex. (AP) President Johnson celebrates his 58th birthday today in family surroundings — Texas Hill country.

Johnson reached the LBJ Ranch Friday night after a brisk one-day tour of Idaho, Colorado and Oklahoma highlighted by an appeal to the Soviet Union to join with American efforts to end the danger of nuclear devastation.

Although the president also made speeches at Denver, Colo., and Pryor, Okla., he attracted the most attention at the nuclear reactor testing station at Arco, Idaho, where he called for the development of confidence between the United States and the Soviet Union.

His Denver appearance marked the beginning of construction of a space science research building named for him by a $1,000,000 National Aeronautics and Space Administration grant.

The president said earlier in the week he plans to spend today and Sunday relaxing on his ranch. Relatives and close friends were expected to arrive to help him celebrate his birthday.

No official explanation was given for rejection of the first contract, but many members of the local criticized union leaders for not taking stronger action over the dismissal or suspension of 400 railway workers as a result of the wildcat strike.

After the wildcat ended, the company announced it intended to take action against the 50 men for what it called "violence and sabotage" on the picket lines. At least 30 men were arrested following skirmishes that included a brawl with police, a mass sit-down and an attempt to stop a train.

BLOSSOM PRINCESS—Lorraine Adams is officially honored by County Warden Harold Bonter at Ameliasburg last night. She will represent the township in the judging for the Prince Edward County Centennial Queen title at the Picton Fair in September. In background is Mayor J. R. Ellis of Belleville.

Lorraine Adams Chosen Apple Blossom Princess Before Large Turnout

AMELIASBURG — Ameliasburg's first Apple Blossom Princess is a farmer's daughter from a native of the township.

Beautiful and talented Lorraine Adams, 16, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Laird Adams of R.R. 1 Consecon received the honor of judges' nod over Donna Rae Row, 17, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ross Row, RR Belleville. The climax brought tears to the eyes of the newly-crowned Princess as County Warden Harold Bonter placed the tiara on her head.

With the title Miss Adams carries the honor of representing the township in the contest for the Prince Edward County Centennial Queen to be judged at the Picton Fair on September 11.

Last night one of the largest turnouts of community-spirited people approved the judge's selection with a resounding ovation. The contestants were credited with points for appearance, public speaking ability and sportsmanship. The complete standings from a field of 10 entries gathered at the first annual Ameliasburg Apple Blossom Festival back in May.

Proceedings last night were organized by centennial sports committee chairman, Norman Post, under the sponsorship of the township apple growers, centennial committee and the Ontario Fruit and Vegetable Growers. The panel of judges included: Mrs. Morris Whitney, wife of the MPP; Mayor Jack Ellis of Belleville; Douglas Trumble, Mrs. Ricky Stoughton and Mrs. Paul Grue. Paul Flagler acted as master of ceremonies.

Pinch Hitting

By GARRY ALEXANDER

The National Hockey League took another step toward "protecting its image" the other day.

That has to be the reasoning behind the rule change on five-minute major penalties.

Any player now getting a major penalty will be replaced by a teammate on the ice. In other words a team will not be shorthanded during major penalties.

Referee-in-chief Scotty Morrison says the change in the rule was made to "avoid a repetition of what happened in that game last season when three players on each team drew double majors. A double major of course meant an automatic misconduct penalty, so the teams played two men short for a minimum of 10 minutes."

Well, isn't that just too bad.

If we remember correctly, the NHL bosses made a big stink following that incident about "such fights hurting hockey's image."

So what do they do now? Why they make it that much easier for third rate players, and every club has some, to play with murder in the ice.

Why not? After all, Sid Abel will be able to send Gordie Howe or Norm Ullman out to replace him.

The Canadian Press story on the rule switch stated: "However, teams still continue to play shorthanded during minor penalties."

My goodness, fellows, isn't that being pretty rough on the clubs, making them actually play shorthanded for a whole two minutes?

Oh well, perhaps by next season the NHL will just have its referees skate up and slap Teddy Green's wrist if he hits Bobby Rousseau over the head with his hockey stick.

The league moans about dirty players, refuses to let their fans even see replays of fights or brawls on TV.

National League governors howl about injured players and rough play.

They have rules put in the books which would curb a lot of it and would speed up the game.

Then they promptly raise cain and make it so tough for referees that they quit when the same officials attempt to rule by the book.

Regardless of what other countries and a lot of old time hockey fans say about today's game and its rules in Canada and the United States, it is still the greatest game in the world to watch.

And it would be just that much better if the written word was enforced.

Now, to top it off, the rules are being changed to make it better to commit a larger offence than a smaller one.

Hockey fans might complain a bit if one of their idols were penalized every time he grabbed or hooked Bellveau, Howe or Mahovlich.

But when the fans saw how much faster and better the game would be once the players discovered they had to abide by the rules, everyone would be happy.

Yes, even the team governors, if they had the guts to try it.

A three-horse pileup in Kingston this past Wednesday night has knocked a couple of drivers, well known here, out of harness racing notice for a bit.

George Dolly, Port Hope, and Vernie Hagbery, Norwood, were admitted to a Kingston hospital. Hagbery had possible head injuries and Dolly possible chest injuries. Both were listed as "satisfactory" on Thursday.

Dolly was driving Miss Happy Hal and Hagbery driving Ike's Favorite when the mishap occurred just as they left the starting gate. John Huntbeck, driving Debbie Dillon, also piled into them but he was uninjured.

Drivers in this area have had terrible luck this summer. Another Kingston driver, Donald Gallinger, is still in hospital there recovering from injuries received in an accident here on June 18. He was reported to have been unconscious for a month following the accident but is now in fair condition.

Let's hope there's no such rough luck for tonight's Quinte Riding and Driving card.

Koufax Blanks Giants 4-0; Bucs Win

Sandy Koufax pitched a 4-0 Los Angeles Dodger victory over San Francisco Friday that toppled the Giants from first place in the National League.

SANDY KOUFAX

The loss dropped the Giants one-half game behind Pittsburgh Pirates who defeated St. Louis Cardinals 7-4.

Koufax helped move the third-place Dodgers to within 1½ games of the top, pitching a four-hitter for his 21st victory against seven defeats.

Koufax walked only one batter. He has averaged less than two walks per game in the last six years. In his first six years he walked 3.5 batters a game.

The Dodger left-hander also had seven strikeouts. He leads the majors with 261 and easily should win his fourth strikeout crown in six years.

In becoming the winningest pitcher on the majors, Koufax reduced his major league-leading earned run average to 1.61 and consolidated his 31st game in 32 starts.

REDS TRIM PHILLIES

Elsewhere in the National League, Cincinnati Reds trimmed Philadelphia Phillies 3-2, Milwaukee Braves downed New York Mets 6-3 and Houston Astros defeated Chicago Cubs 7-4 after taking a 9-8 decision in the completion of a game suspended Aug. 21 after seven innings because of rain.

Wes Parker started the big Dodger eighth by drawing his second straight walk. He scored on Ron Fairly's single and a walk to Jim Lefebvre finished Giant pitcher Bob Bolin. John Rosboro then singled in a run, and the last two came on Lou Johnson's single off Koufax' sacrifice fly.

Rookie Clemente sparked Pittsburgh's 17-hit attack with three singles and a double. He scored two runs and drove in one. Gene Alley and Jim Pagliaroni each added three hits for the Pirates while Charlie Smith drove in all four St. Louis runs.

Vada Pinson knocked in a run with a sacrifice fly and another was scored on a two-base error by Jackie Brandt to give Cincinnati the nod over Philadelphia.

Joe Torre drove in three runs with two homers and Hank Aaron knocked in two with one as the Braves rolled past New York. The Braves' Ken Johnson scattered eight hits, including Ed Kranepool's homer.

Bob Aspromonte's a second inning home run of the season capped a six-run rally in which nine Houston batters participated. Brian Thompson scored four goals and Phil Clayton three to spark the Oshawa Green Gaels. Jones scored twice with Jim Higgs, John Clayton and Charlie Mathews adding one each.

PETERBOROUGH (CP) — Peterborough scored its first victory in the Ontario Lacrosse Association Senior A race Friday beating Brampton 12-2 Friday night.

Brampton leads the best-of-seven series 2-0.

Veteran Oy Coombs led the Peterborough offence, scoring three goals. Bill Armour, Ken Rostan, and Joe Todd scored two goals each. Jim Bishop, Roy Wood and John Davis got the other goals.

Don Arthurs and Jack Madett scored for Brampton.

BEGIN SEPT. 26

VICTORIA (CP) — Victoria Maple Leafs of the Western Hockey League will begin training here Sept. 26, manager Buck Houle announced Friday. The Leafs are expecting 11 forwards, including Eddie Shack, a 26-goal scorer with Toronto Maple Leafs last season, six defencemen and two goaltenders.

Doug Barkley Instructs Youngsters

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — Doug Barkley has no ill feeling toward hockey. In fact, right now he's bubbling over with enthusiasm.

Barkley, 39, lost the sight of his right eye after being struck by a hockey stick last year. He was a defenceman with Detroit Red Wings of the National Hockey League.

He is in Memphis assisting with Memphis Wings instructional school for youngsters who want to learn to skate and play hockey.

Though he was knocked out of the game as he was reaching his peak, Barkley holds no malice.

"It was just one of those things, and it happened to me. "If I had it to do over again, I'd still join a hockey team. It's a great game."

During the fall and winter Barkley will work with Red Wings coach Alf Pike and a trouble shooter for the farm teams. He'll also help instruct some of the younger players.

Red Wings Close Gap; Leafs Win

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

With the help of the lowly Richmond Braves and their own 12-1 victory over Syracuse Chiefs, Rochester Red Wings climbed a full game closer to the top of the International League baseball standings Friday night.

The Braves, languishing in fifth place, reached up to knock over league-leading Columbus Jets 8-4 in 10 innings to allow Rochester to close into 1st.

In other action, Toronto Maple Leafs clobbered Buffalo Bisons 10-5 while Toledo Mud Hens were blasting Jacksonville Suns 10-4.

In the only close game of the night, it took Tommy Aaron's two-run homer in the 10th to clinch the victory after Jose Martinez had tied the score 3-3 in the sixth, also on a two-run homer, and again in the eighth on a pair of singles and a sacrifice.

GET 17 HITS

The Maple Leafs exploded for 17 hits, including three runs by Reg Smith, Tony Horton, Jim Ruxton and Russ Gibson to give Galen Cisco his 13th win of the year. He won all the way, surviving a 10-hit Buffalo attack.

Petes Collect First Victory; Gaels Up Two

TORONTO (CP) — Oshawa Green Gaels took a 2-0 lead in the Ontario Hockey Association best-of-seven Junior A finals Friday night, defeating Toronto Monarchs 5-3.

Brian Thompson scored four goals and Phil Clayton three to spark the Oshawa victory. Mike Jones scored twice with Jim Higgs, John Clayton and Charlie Mathews adding one each.

City Peewees Oust Simcoe At Fire Exhibition

Holy Rosary of Belleville whipped Simcoe 15-9 in their first game of the CN Exhibition tournament, in Toronto.

The winners led 7-5 going into the fifth, when they notched five runs. Simcoe was unable to recover from that inning, and trailed the rest of the way.

Austin Wilson gave up seven hits, fanned nine and walked three, in hurling the Rosey victory.

Rick Yardley and John O'Donnell shared the loser's pitching chore. They allowed 13 hits and managed three strike outs.

John Mulvihill led the Belleville team at the plate with a total of triples and a single. Dan Lapenotte slammed a triple and single, and Brian Cousins, Rick Meagher and Gary Duggan had two base hits each. Barry Cultitis and Austin Wilson singled.

Rick Yardley and Ron Barr led the loser's attack.

Belleville plays Peterborough at 3.30 p.m. on Monday in their next tournament round.

The Jaycees won their semi-final tyke series against the CN Firemen two games to three, as they handed the Firemen a 5-3 defeat last night at the CNE.

Bobby Whelan and Ron Wood turned in a top notch pitching performance for the Jaycees. Whelan struck out 10 batters, only two hits while walking four.

The losers' pitching pair, Rick Bellis and Rick Sweet, allowed six hits and struck out five.

David Fiesch smashed a homer, and Tim Whelan a pair of singles for the Jaycees. Mike Sullivan, Mike Watt and Scott Shannon had base hits.

John O'Hara and Grant Goegan hit for the Firemen.

Great Bomber Halfback

Leo Lewis Ends Career

By WALTER KREVENCHUK

WINNIPEG (CP)—Leo Lewis retired from the Winnipeg Football Conference Friday, deciding his battered legs could no longer set the pace that made him a great halfback.

Bothered by a painful left knee, from which a cyst had been removed during the off-season, Lewis said he had been unable to play three 1966 games.

"It had to come to an end some time," he said Friday, after more than 10 years with Winnipeg Blue Bombers.

Lewis, 32, had an offensive yards—8,899 rushing, 4,251 with pass receptions, 5,333 on kickoff returns, 1,000 passing, 70 touchdowns and seven all-star selections.

THE BEST YET

Said coach Bud Grant: "He was the best running back that I've ever seen. He had speed, power, could catch, block and throw.

"Film highlights of our games are highlights of Leo Lewis. The other stuff is just fillers."

Lewis, 5-foot-10, came to the United States. He has a bachelor of science degree, is finishing towards a masters degree in education and plans to investigate a job opening in Columbia, Mo.

Born in Des Moines, Iowa, Lewis came to Winnipeg in 1958 from Hannali college in Lincoln, Mo. An ankle injury forced him to sit out the 1959 campaign, but he returned to stay in 1957.

He gained all - star recognition in 1958, 1960, 1961, 1962 and 1964.

Petes' Rally Dumps Trudeaus

Trudeau Motors made all the right moves, but at the wrong times, and it cost them a 6-4 setback at the hands of Peterborough Norm Bowler before a good crowd at the Alemite last night.

Peterborough's victory tied their two-of-three OAHA intermediate "A" series at one game each. The deciding game will be played in Peterborough tonight at 8.15.

Trudeaus led 3-0 in the first and had a 4-2 edge going into the eighth when the roof fell in for four Peterborough markers. That was the ball game.

Bowler handed a double to ignite the winning rally, Mc-Namara singled him to third and advanced on a wild pitch. A key error at short scored one run and Gary Brady's ground ball netted the equaliser. A force play and Killian's base hit kept Trudeaus in trouble.

The Belleville club gave Peterborough batter Bill Keating an intentional walk to load the bases. It cost them the ball game. Shortstop Ross Quigley followed with a solid, two-out double to chase home the final two runs, making it 6-4.

Fairlie Regains World Record

By DON MacLACHLAN

VANCOUVER (CP)—Florida's riverfront, explains coach Jack Bulley, keeps two leading South African women swimmers performing so well.

Ann Fairlie, 17, and Karen Muir, 19, Friday traded the world 110-yard backstroke record for the third time this year. Miss Fairlie took possession.

The Johannesburg girl was clocked at 2:19.9 in the first of the British Columbia centennial swim meet, a tenth of a second better than the mark she held by Miss Muir, of Klerksdorp, since February. Miss Muir finished second Friday.

It was the fifth world record set in the early stages of the meet and the second Friday. Greg Charlton, 18, of Los Angeles, steamed to a mark of 2:22.2 in the men's 440 - yard freestyle preliminaries.

Five Canadian open marks also fell Friday, two in 440-yard medley relay events.

KEEP CHANGING RECORD

The battle for the backstroke title has been going on for eight months. Miss Muir set a mark of 1:06.7 last year. Miss Fairlie had 1:06.6 in January. In February, Miss Muir cut it to 1:06.4.

Charlton clipped 2.3 seconds from the former world mark, established earlier this year by Robert Windle of Australia.

Sue Gross, of Santa Clara set a Canadian open record in the 220-yard breaststroke at 2:43.1, some 3.2 seconds better than the previous standard established by Cynthia Goyette of Detroit.

Ken Starten, 21, of Dallas, swimming for a Los Angeles club, set an open mark of 2:35.3 in the men's 220 breaststroke, 1.4 seconds better than the mark of Bill Mahoney of Vancouver. Jim Hines was also on the Canadian relative record.

The only Canadian to win a title Friday was Elaine Tanner, 15, of Vancouver. Her time of 2:32.5 in the 220-yard butterfly was 1.3 seconds behind the world and Canadian record.

CUP OPEN MARK

The Los Angeles Athletic Club relay cut the Canadian open mark in the 440-yard medley relay to 4:18 from 4:21.7. They defeated the Vancouver UMCA team which clocked the 4:21.7 as a native record.

The Santa Clara women's relay team set open mark of 4:44.4 in the 440 medley relay. They were beaten by South Africa but only a club, not a national team, takes the mark. The club standard was 4:44.7.

Dianne Lodorf of Johannesburg won the women's 440 free-style in 5:08.2, some 2.4 seconds ahead of Jane Hughes of Vancouver, former holder of the world 880-yard freestyle record.

Miss Stewart of Toronto, South Africa, won the men's 110-yard backstroke final, finishing in 1:04.4, a fifth of a second ahead of Canadian record holder Ralph Hutton of Ocean Falls, B.C.

Phil Hoover of Los Angeles won the men's 220-yard butterfly in 2:11.1 and Lida de Rivera of Mexico the three - metre springboard diving final with 518.85 points.

The meet ends today.

Outdoor Tips And Tricks

BY BOB BLAIND

Duck season opens Saturday, September 24th. Hunters from this district seem are combing the Bowrer ponds and lakes seeking a good spot to build a blind for opening day hunting.

Decoys are being painted and patched up and new cords and weights put on. Don't waste on getting a new coat of paint. Every hunter is preparing for the big day.

Some of the equipment needed for duck hunting is as follows: A shotgun, preferrably a 12 Ga. repeater, chest or hip waders, decoys, hunting coat and hat, maybe a boat and motor and a good duck call. If possible a good dog will get a lot of crippled ducks impossible to catch with waders or a boat. Last but not least your hunting licence and duck stamp.

Identification of ducks is a very important part in successful duck hunting. A very good booklet on this, which will so list you very much is "ducks at a distance", published by the Canadian Wildlife Service. This booklet may be obtained at a small fee from the Queen's Printer, Ottawa.

Be a safe and cautious hunter. Many lives are taken every year by someone who has no respect for the weapon he or she is carrying.

Fishing is still very good for pickerel in East, West, Consecon Lake and Muscle Lake.

Pike are being taken in good numbers in Smith Bay, South Bay, Walters Bay and Consecon Lake, mostly on large minnows.

Point Traverse is the hot spot for bass with limits, taken on minnows nearly every day.

The lake trout have slowed markie catches are down most of the good spots in 1. ings Country.

Next weekend is the last long weekend for trout fishing. Many parties are taking off for the park for a last fling at the grays. Lets hope the weather-man looks out for them.

Don't forget to enter your big fish in the several contests being run this year. You can't win if you don't enter.

Our best fishing is yet to come so don't hang up that outfit yet. September is the best month for fishing in the Quinte area. The bass seem to hit a lot better when the weather is a little cooler.

Leafs Lose Some Saturdays

TORONTO (CP)—There will still be a hockey night in Canada this winter, but it won't always be at Maple Leaf Gardens.

For the first time since the days when Foster Hewitt's radio voice filled the living rooms or kitchens of most Canadian homes, the Gardens has not been exclusively booked for Saturday night hockey games of Toronto Maple Leafs.

Gardens officials have agreed to let Ice Capades use Saturday night during a November visit in Toronto and a similar agreement may be made later with Ice Follies.

The Saturday dates vacated by the Gardens will be filled with television broadcasts of Montreal Canadiens.

Kingston Man Wins Sr. Title

KINGSTON (CP)—Jack Lillier, 38, of Kingston had to wait 19 years for reinstatement as an amateur golfer, but since regaining his card earlier this year he has been making up for lost time.

Lillier, who won the Canadian senior men's golf championship in July at Brantford, shot a three-over-par 73 Friday to capture the eastern Ontario senior's golf championship.

E. F. Mooers of Kingston and Glen Cassidy of Cobourg, Ont., tied for second with 75.

Hugh Borthwick, the Ontario seniors champion, and Paul Robert, both of Toronto, and Gord Tilley of Ottawa were tied for fourth place at 76.

Wheels Turn Slowly

Tax-Woes Stall NHL Meeting

TORONTO (CP)—A $1,000,000 tax problem stalled a special meeting Friday of the National Hockey League to deal with a player draft formula for the NHL's projected expansion to six teams in the 1967-68 season.

That's the estimated amount of money each team stands to lose—or gain—in gearing operations for maximum relief under federal and Canadian tax laws.

"There is no precedent for what we're trying to do," NHL president Clarence Campbell said after the meeting ended without a formula.

The problem was tossed back to the formula committee, headed by Stan Pollock, general manager of Montreal Canadiens, to provide recommendations for another meeting here Sept. 21.

WORK ON GUIDELINES

"We are working on general tax guidelines," said Campbell. "But there is no way you can determine in this situation what the tax result will be. You'll be either bankrupt or rich before you find out."

One problem is that the U.S. has a capital gains tax and Canada hasn't. Another is that five of the current six teams 'exempt' their players' pay as a lump-sum value on them—while the other team "capitalizes" its players to they have a tax depreciation value. The new teamsy can't decide which is best.

The six new entries are Pittsburgh, Philadelphia, St. Louis, San Francisco, Los Angeles and Minneapolis.

INVOLVES PLENTY

Involved in the expansion—for the new teams—is a total of $12,000,000 cash in franchises and $30,000,000 in capital expenditures.

Campbell also announced that the league has had "a positive approach" from a U.S. television network for purchasing the rights to games in the expanded league.

"The problem to be resolved is how much," said Campbell. He didn't elaborate.

NHC earlier turned down a league proposal for TV coverage in the U.S.

The new Los Angeles entry headed by Jack Kent Cooke, is to have a capital stake of $2,000,000 unable to operate in a proposed new arena before Jan. 1, 1968, as hoped.

An alternate arena is being considered, Campbell said.

Bowerman's 71 Good For Third Place

Gary Bowerman, former Belleville golfer and now an assistant pro with Toronto's Maple Downs course, fired a one-under par 71 to be the top leg of the Ontario Assistant Pros' Tournament.

Bowerman's 71 tied him with a fellow Maple Downs competitor, Wally Byers, for top spot in this third section, shot at Whitevale.

Overall, Bowerman scored 225, good for third place money of over $200.

Leon DeLatre, of Oakville, was the tournament winner with 218.

Wally Byers was second, with 220.

Pinch-Hits Homer

Mantle Returns With Bang; Birds Win

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Mickey Mantle, out of the lineup for 11 days with a pulled hamstring muscle, was called to bat Friday night with these instructions from New York Yankees manager Ralph Houk:

MICKEY MANTLE

"Don't run if you hit the ground. Just go for the pump."

The Yankees were down a run in the bottom of the ninth in their game with Detroit Tigers. Clete Boyer was on first base.

Mantle swung at the first pitch and missed spectacularly. He swung again and hit a home run. The Yanks won 2-1.

Tiger pitcher Earl Wilson had put Detroit ahead 1-0 with his two-run homer in the eighth.

In other American League games, Baltimore Orioles beat Boston 3-2 in 13 innings, Minnesota Twins took Chicago White Sox 7-4, Washington Senators shut out Cleveland Indians 1-0 and California Angels beat Kansas City Athletics 3-4.

Vic Roznovsky and Bobo Powell came off the bench in the ninth inning and clubbed a pair of homers for Orioles, tying the game at two. Then Russ Snyder drove in the winning run with a single in the 12th.

Earl Battey, Cesar Tovar and Jerry Zimmerman each drove in two runs for Minnesota. Jim Merritt went the distance for his third victory.

Mike McCormick allowed the Indians just five hits and sizzled in the winning run in the ninth. Only one Cleveland runner made it as far as second base.

Jay Johnstone's two - out homer in the ninth gave California its victory. Kansas City had tied the game with two in the ninth.

National Water Ski

Youngsters Capture Titles

SHERBROOKE, Que. (CP)—Anne Donahue of Sherbrooke and George Athans of Kelowna, B.C., both 14 - year - olds, won their respective classes of the 1966 national water ski championships Friday, opening day of the three-day event.

Miss Donahue, a water skier for seven years, won the junior girls' championship after scoring 2,850.09 points of a possible 3,000, including 1,000 for a perfect slalom.

She placed first in the tricks event giving her another 1,000. Her jump performance gave her the other 850.09 and third place in that category.

Athans was awarded the 1,000 points for perfect slalom even though his exact score was not immediately known due to mechanical failure in a tabulation machine.

SCORE'S PERFECT

He did score 850 points for placing first in the boys' slalom, placed second in tracks and third in jumps.

However the Kelowman's performance was judged so superior that he was declared the winner after consultation between officials of the Canadian Water Ski Association.

"He's got it, but we can't tell you by how much," said Clint Smith of Ithaca, New York, chairman of the tournament and the coach of Canada's water ski team.

Second place in the slalom went to Anne Lloyer of Hespler, Ont., with 756.09. Helen Gregoire of Hull, Que., was third with 707.31.

Janice Griffiths of Toronto, a member of the Canadian national team, will enter the women's finals today. She scored 1,000 points for a first-place finish Friday in the women's slalom-slalom run.

Vallia Hoggan of Brandon, Man., and Patsy Mulrhead of Winnipeg finished in a tie for second place with 828.57 and accompany Miss Griffiths to the finals.

George Athans of Kelowna, B.C., took the junior boys' slalom run, setting a Canadian record. He had a run of 34¼ buoys at 35 miles an hour with the rope shortened by 24 feet.

He started at 36 miles an hour and had perfect runs at speeds of 29, 30, 32 and 34 miles an hour with the rope shortened by six feet after each run. The total length of the rope was 75 feet.

Second place went to Robert Brisciope of London, Ont. Third was John Preston of Brantford.

Second in the over-all junior girls' standings was Helen Gregoire of Hull, Que., with 2,612.42 points and third was Lize Cloutier of Sherbrooke, with 2,077.09.

The women's, men's and senior men's competition begin today.

This weekend's championships, on the Mapog River at Jacques Cartier Park here, succeeds the world water ski tournament next year in this Eastern Townships community.

Ousts Turner

BY ROB PARKINS

BRANDON (CP) — British Columbia rookie eliminated Ontario veterans on the 19th hole Friday to move into the finals of the Canadian junior golf championship.

Tom Morgan, 16, of Port Hammond, B.C., in his first national championship, brought a 40-foot chip shot to within inches of the pin to eliminate Peter Turner, 16, of Toronto. Turner was Ontario champion in 1964.

That sent Morgan to today's 36-hole final against Wayne Kelly, Donald of Oakville, Ont., a two-time loser in national match play, who crushed Miles Sandercock of Pembroke, Ont., 5 and 3 in a semi-final which he highlighted with a hole-in-one.

The hole-in-one, McDonald's first in 12 years of golf, came on the par-three 165-yard sixth hole at the Brandon Golf and Country Club. His six-iron shot hit the green two feet to the right of the pin and spun in.

McDonald reached the semi-final with a 2 and 4 win over Ken Trowbridge of Brampton, Ont., in the morning's quarter-final round.

Turner made the semi-final by eliminating Dan Misners of Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., on the 20th hole when Misners three-putted from 40 feet.

Morgson's quarter - final opponent, Fred Schmidt of Lonsdale, Ont., lost 3 and 1.

Saunders had to go to the 20th hole to eliminate Ron Laitar of Brantford, Ont., in the quarter-final.

Three Tie As Rookie Falls Back

WHITEMARSH, Pa. (AP)—Dave Marr, Don January and Billy Maxwell fired 68s to be locked at the top Friday with six-under-par 136 after 36 holes of the $150,000 Philadelphia golf tournament.

Tommy Weiskopf, 25-year-old rookie who led by two strokes after the opening round, went over par on two of his last three holes to fall into a six-way tie for fourth place at 138.

Weiskopf was tied with Roberto Devicenzo, Al Geiberger, Dudley Wysong, Ed Charles and George Knudson, the Canadian pro from Toronto. The first - round runners-up, Bob Goalby and Dan Sikes, fell back.

Top Pacer Sells For Big Money

DETROIT AP — Bret Hanover, horse racing's top moneymaking pacer, has been sold to Ustalier Farms of Lexington, Ky., and will be retired after this season.

Former owner Richard Downing said he retained "a substantial interest in the horse." He said the "total consideration is," including his interest, was more than $2,000,000.

The announcement said Bret Hanover, which has won $880,-232 in less than three racing seasons, will enter stud service next year.

Bret Hanover, now at Batavia Downs, N.Y., has a record of 57 victories in 72 starts in 3 years of starts. This year, as a four-year-old, he became the only pacer to win the Founders Plate at Roosevelt Raceway.

Colts Top Cleveland; Vikings Win

CLEVELAND (AP) — Baltimore Colts stormed from behind to score two touchdowns and overtake Gary Cuozzo Friday night to beat Cleveland Browns 24-17 in the second half of a National Football League exhibition doubleheader before 83,418 fans.

The first game went to Minnesota Vikings 30-27 over Washington Redskins, thanks to Fred Cox who booted three field goals in the fourth quarter.

The Minnesota victory gives the Vikings 16 exhibition victories without a defeat. The Colts are 4-0, the Redskins 0-3 and Cleveland 3-2.

Zeno Karcz Through For Season

HAMILTON (CP) — A torn Achilles tendon suffered by Zeno Karcz of Hamilton Tiger-Cats is the fourth such injury to hit the Canadian Football League this year.

Karcz, injured in Hamilton's 16-8 Eastern Football Conference loss to Montreal Alouettes in Montreal Wednesday, faces an operation and a year out of football.

Calgary Stampeders of the Western Football Conference have been hit three times this season by the Achilles heel injury, losing Ted Woods, Lovell Coleman and Bill Gaskins.

No decision has been announced whether Karcz will continue his career, but the injury will definitely keep the 31-year-old linebacker out for the remainder of the 1966 campaign.

Leads CNE High Dive Competition

TORONTO (CP)—Barney Cipriana of Miami, Fla., led the Canadian National Exhibition's high diving championships Friday after two rounds.

Cipriani scored heavily on the day's dives from the 90- and 100-foot levels to bring his total after five dives to 975 points, 31 ahead of second-place Bill McGuire of Gary, Ind.

Al Gonsales, also of Gary, led the field going into Friday's competition but he slipped as he started his descent and wound up doing dive's activities in third place with 956 points. Bob Webb was the running for the $10,000 in cash prizes and David Casper of Chicago and John Deisinger of Seattle, Wash., tied for fourth spot.

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP)—Al Hobart of Marblehead, Mass., battled winds of 20 to 25 knots on Lake Ontario Friday to capture the North American championship Jolly-boat regatta. Canadian Harold Soal took sixth place with 131 points to lead a contingent of four Canadian entrants.

News From Ducks Unlimited

With the coming of summer, Ducks Unlimited (DU) launched its ambitious 1966 program designed to restore vital wild waterfowl nesting areas. Each year the international waterfowl conservation organization preserves and rehabilitates thousands of acres of prime waterfowl nesting habitat located in Canada's primary production areas, by building water control projects.

DU's extensive 1966 program is concentrated in Canada's "duck factory" provinces of Alberta, Saskatchewan and Manitoba, where more than 60 of every three ducks that are produced on the continent are hatched.

From now until the end of the year DU employees will be hard at work digging dams, levees, channels and controls which are so necessary for the preservation of valuable waterfowl nesting grounds. In all, DU has plans for the building of 41 projects, creating or salvaging over 300 acres of prime waterfowl habitat, with a total of 200 miles of productive shoreline.

The province of Alberta has the largest program with 20 projects underway at the present with 19, involving 3,000 acres of wetlands with 70 miles of shoreline.

NEW PROJECTS

Fifteen new projects are being constructed in the province of Saskatchewan covering 10,700 acres with 28 miles of prime shoreline. The largest of these projects is the 1,800 acre Hartwell Project, located some 12 miles southeast of St. Walburg.

Manitoba, while having only seven DU projects slated for the 1966 calendar, boasts the greatest size with a total of 24,230 acres and 223 miles of top-quality shoreline.

During the coming months, Ducks Unlimited will be conducting extensive biological surveys and inspections in preparation for construction projects to be initiated in the future. One area being investigated by DU's biologists and engineers is the 33,000 acre Silalip project area in the Saskatchewan River Delta. Also under consideration is the Athabasca region of northern Alberta where a 900,000 acre project is earmarked for possible construction.

Ducks Unlimited, Inc., which raises the funds for these valuable construction programs from concerned sportsmen and organizations in the United States and Canada, has allocated a record $700,000 for the 1966 work projects.

During 1966 Ducks Unlimited, Inc., is shooting at the goal of collecting over $1-million to finance the construction of these projects next year.

Failing Fuel Pump Boosts Engine Heat

By EUGENE B. HELMOE

If your engine loses power, heating and you just can't pinpoint the troublemaker, start thinking about the fuel pump. Maybe it's not delivering enough gas to the carburetor. This would lead to an over-lean fuel mixture, causing the engine to work harder and run hotter, especially when it's under load.

It also promotes vapor lock—the number one cause of summertime and restarting hard-to-start aches.

Weak pressure isn't always a case of a failing pump. It might be blameless. Looseness or stoppage through the inlet or outlet fitting could be the reason. If so some gas seepage will occur, you'll discover when the pump seems damp or wet.

Another possibility is the pump filter bowl. It's loose or loaded with dirt and - or water, efficient fuel flow is affected and the carburetor becomes gas - starved at higher speeds.

N.E. asks: "Isn't it true that tire life is largely dependent on the type of roads over which the car must usually travel?"

Absolutely! And this doesn't apply to rough roads only. Hilly or winding roads speed tread wear, too.

From H. D.: "Our '62 sedan sprung a leak at the oil pan and now the backyard concrete has a large black stain. What's the best way to remove this without discoloring the yard?"

Find out what your service station uses. There are several effective grease and oil absorbents on the market.

W. B. writes: "There's an ammeter on the '57 car I just bought. When the battery is strong and the generator is charging right, what reading should I get?"

A high charge reading upon first starting, then a very slight charge after a few moments—a discharge if lights, radio, etc. are on when the engine is off or idling.

O. D. asks: "What causes generator noise?"

Sometimes nothing more than loose mountings, bearings, commutator, brushes or pulley are to blame.

COMPANY FINED

BARRIE (CP)—British American Oil Co. Ltd. Friday was fined $100 on a charge laid following the explosion of a boiler in Cookstown, Ont. restaurant June 30, that injured nine persons. The oil company and the owners of the Argosy Restaurant were jointly charged with permitting the operation of a boiler without obtaining a certificate of inspection.

The Trots

BATAVIA, N.Y. (CP)—Bret Hanover raced to a 1:56.1 mile to set a track record at Batavia Downs Friday night.

The champion pacer came three wide at the half to take the lead and then disposed of Cardigan Bay by three lengths at the wire. He paid $2.40 with only win wagering permitted.

Veterans Governor G., property of Dave Hanover Jr. and John McIlwain of Stratford, won his second straight in the second.

TORONTO (CP) — Nancy Brook B., owned by Mrs. and John Graham of Lindsay, Ont., returned to Canada after three starts in the U.S. and captured the $3,000 feature race at Greenwood Raceway Friday night.

The six-year-old mare won in 2:04 1-5 to boost winnings to $27,050 for the year.

OTTAWA (CP) — Tarport Scotty started fast, then turned back all comers in a tight finish Friday night to win the featured mile pace in 2:05 1-5 at the Rideau Carleton Raceway.

Scotty, owned by D. L. McNeil, Ottawa, paid $7.30, $5.60 and $3.70 in beating Coppersmith.

FORT ERIE, Ont. (CP) — Brief Attire, owned by S. R. Libbey, was the fastest $10,000 seventh race at Fort Erie Jockey Track Friday.

The four-year-old brown filly finished 2½ lengths in front of Plain John and completed the mile furlongs in 1:12. Speedy Lad went was third. The winner paid $4.40, $3 and $2.70.

SUGGEST ROLE

LONDON (Reuters)—A tailoring trade magazine suggested Friday that Prince Charles, 17-year-old heir to the throne, should be a walking advertisement for the colorful Carnaby Street image of male fashion. An editorial in Tailor and Cutter says that since it was acceptable for Prince Albert, husband of Queen Victoria, to make popular a style of shoe, for Edward VII to launch Homburg hats, for the Duke of Windsor to fashionable the Windsor knot and spread colors, Prince Charles should be allowed to patronize Carnaby Street.

Two Canadian Trotters In Hambletonian

TORONTO (CP)—Two Canadian trotters, Governor Armbro, owned by the Armstrong brothers, Brampton, and Armbro Gazelle, owned by M. J. Webster, Brantford, are entered in the $132,000 Hambletonian race to be held in Du Quoin, Ill., Wednesday.

Governor Armbro was reaked fourth and Armbro Gazelle was ranked sixth in most recent calculations.

This the first time Canada has had two entries in the Hambletonian, hardess-racing's richest event for three-year-olds. Last year's Canadian entry, Armbro Flight, finished second.

Ontario Teams Score Wins

TORONTO (CP)—Last - inning rallies gave two Ontario baseball teams victories over their western counterparts in the Canadian Amateur Softball Association women's championship here Friday night.

Fort Erie exploded for seven unearned runs in the top of the seventh and final inning to defeat Edmonton 7-1 while Toronto squeezed across three unearned runs, also in the top of the seventh, to blank Saskatoon 3-0.

The winner of the six-team tournament — Vancouver and Winnipeg clash today—will represent Canada in the 1967 Pan-American Games.

Two losses means elimination for a team. The tournament which began Friday night, ends Sunday.

HITS WORKING MOTHERS

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — A speaker at the opening of the Christian Family Movement conference Friday night criticized society's ready acceptance of the working mother. Patrick J. Hunt, a social worker for the Catholic Children's Aid Society in Toronto, told the more than 200 delegates from all parts of Ontario and Quebec that in the interests of the children and the community, mothers should not work.

Broken Collarbone Mends Bob Dever's Marital Rift

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Bob Denver didn't look much like a man who had broken his marriage and his collarbone.

Despite rumors that they were divorcing, Denver's wife Dreama was in his dressing room at the Columbia ranch, where he is appearing in a feature, Who's Minding The Mint? Their domestic situation seems to have eased.

"We'll be all right unless she throws me out again," said he. "Those collarbones may have something to do with that. Maggie had spent the weekend nursing her husband after a motorcycle accident in which he suffered the fracture. His plight appealed to her sympathy.

MISSED WATUSI

Denver was also to report for the movie the following Monday. He wears a brace but doesn't intend to tense, except for a Watusi dance he had to forego.

"I was lucky," he admitted. "I could have landed on my head."

Lucky indeed is Bob Denver, who has scarcely been unemployed since deciding to become an actor. Following a run in Doble Gillis, he moved on to Gilligan's Island. The series is entering its third year despite sneers of the critics and time changes by CBS.

"We're being changed to another night again this season," said Denver. "That means we'll have to build our audience all over again. The network doesn't want to let the viewers know we have moved, so it takes time for them to find out. Besides we're up against two new shows, and people will want to watch them at first.

TEC TURNS TO FUN

Sebastian Cabot joins Brian Keith in a new CBS-TV comedy series called Family Affair in September.

Two Deliberate Bombshells Thrown by Rhodesia Govt.

By JOSEPH MacSWEEN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Rebel Premier Ian Smith's Rhodesians have thrown two deliberate bombshells in two days.

The all-white Rhodesian government published a bill Thursday designed to tighten the screw on the majority black population.

Friday, Internal Affairs Minister William Harper spoke in some of the toughest language yet heard of how government forces deal with "whole gangs of terrorists" moving into Rhodesia.

"I want to make this point—that we have shot whole gangs of these terrorists—not one surviving when they resisted arrest," he said.

"And I can say that if such people fall into the hands of the police, they will be dealt with as the criminals they are. And they should remember that the police do not close cases on such persons until they have achieved their objective."

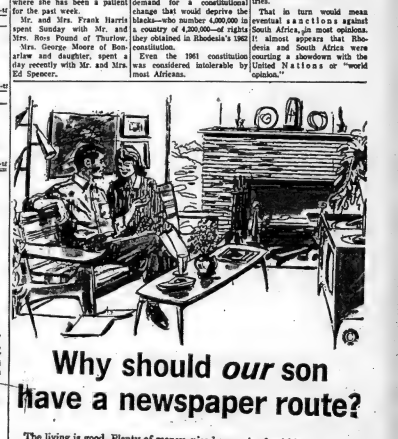
SMITH SUCCESSOR?

Harper has frequently been cited as one of the hardrock right-wingers who have pushed Smith into a more and more extreme position. He is seen as the possible successor to the Rhodesian Front party leadership if Smith falters.

The bill has shown anything but weakness in his new demand for a constitutional change that would deprive the blacks—who number 4,000,000 in a country of 4,200,000—of rights they obtained in Rhodesia's 1961 constitution.

Even the 1961 constitution was considered intolerable by most Africans.

The timing of the new bill appears to be a deliberate affront to the Commonwealth prime ministers scheduled to meet in London Sept. 6. It is most of all a slap in the face for Prime Minister Wilson—an almost contemptuous dismissal of the "talks about talks" that had been in progress in Salisbury.



There is apparently no evidence to suggest that the Smith government was forced by any menace—external or internal—to consolidate its illegal power with new constitutional measures.

Yet Smith seized this moment to harden his stance and move toward apartheid-type legislation that can please no country except South Africa.

MAY HELP WILSON

Some sources argue that, paradoxically, Smith's action will help Wilson in favor of his tougher sanctions against Rhodesia. That would mean a trip to the United Nations to make them mandatory on all countries.

That in turn would mean eventual sanctions against South Africa, in most opinions. It is hard to demand that Rhodesia and South Africa were counting a showdown with the United Nations or "world opinion."

Why should our son have a newspaper route?

The living is good. Plenty of money, nice home, nice furnishings, another salary raise in sight; we've never had it so good. Why should our son manage a newspaper route?

Most any educator or businessman will tell you why in three simple words: It builds character.

Oftentimes the youngster who grows up in comfortable circumstances and who gets his weekly "handout" from dad never realizes the value of money or the efforts required to make it and change it, until he's on his own. By then attitudes and habits are difficult to reverse.

But the newspaperboy quickly learns valuable lessons that stick. While making money on a newspaper route is important, the experience of getting-the-job-done-no-matter-what is more important. When through route management, responsibility and self-confidence are acquired at this early age, a newspaperboy has an advantage over other youngsters that no amount of money can buy.

If you're still wondering whether your son would benefit from newspaper route management, ask a community businessman or civic leader, or better still, write our Circulation Department.

WHEAT EXPORTS SET RECORD — Canada's wheat exports set a record for the crop year ending July 31, 1966, surpassing the 1963-64 crop year by almost 10,000,000 bushels. In the year just ended 226,-000,000 bushels were shipped to non-communist countries, compared with 221,000,000 bushels last year and 191,000,000 bushels in 1963-64. The USSR took 198,-000,000 bushels this year, compared with 9,000,000 in 1964-65 and 212,000,000 in 1963-64. China has taken much each year — 78,000,000 this year, 62,000,000 in 1964-65 and 41,000,000 in 1963-64. Other Communist countries took 44,000,000 bushels in the year just ended, compared with 78,000,000 in 1964-65 and, 93,-000,000 in 1963-64. (CP Newsmap).

High School Dropout Heads Western Construction Firm

EDMONTON (CP) — Sam Hashman of Calgary is a high school dropout who has made the big time.

At 38 he heads a multi-million-dollar construction group from executive suites in Edmonton, Calgary and Regina. Soon he hopes to open an office in Vancouver.

Interviewed at his swank office in the 55-storey CN Tower — a skyscraper one of his companies built—Mr. Hashman recalled his struggle to reach the top.

Quizzing school after Grade II, he had to find something to do.

"I was very uncertain about my future. I didn't know what exactly I wanted to do. So I accepted an opportunity to enter the business world."

In complete contrast, a 32-year-old buddy, the two opened a manufacturers' agency in Calgary. They ran it successfully for a time, enabling them to accumulate capital.

When Mr. Hashman married at 21, he sold out to his partner and started Hashman Construction Ltd. with $5,000 of his own and a $5,000 bank loan.

Though a shoe-string operation, the venture had a definite advantage, he said.

"If you don't have much, you can't lose much, and if you are young, you can start all over again."

But he didn't have to start over again. His first construction company started in 1950, now employs 300 people.

His holdings have mushroomed to include Sam Hashman and Co. Ltd., a construction company; Sam Hashman Management Co. Ltd., a development and investment company; Hashman Construction (Edmonton) Ltd.; Hashman Construction (Regina) Ltd., and Hashman Holdings Ltd.

Soon his group of companies with financial interests in 12 other Alberta companies will reach beyond the Prairies to include not only Vancouver but Ontario and Quebec. He said negotiations are under way in an attempt to establish a partnership in the Toronto-Montreal area.

Mr. Hashman is a dreamer whose creativity is not restricted to building skyscrapers.

NEW YORK (Reuters)—Actress Jane Fonda, charging she has been "emotionally ravaged" and the loss of property rights, filed a $10,000,000 civil damage suit Friday against Playboy magazine because of nude photos published in the August issue.

Mr. Meltzer on Real Estate
"What's Your Problem"

By BERNARD C. MELTZER

Excerpts from readers about real estate investments are numerous. The one question that recurs constantly is "What is the type of investment has the greatest potential for capital gain?"

Dear Mr. Meltzer: I keep hearing stories about fortunes that have been made in real estate and would like to get on the "gravy train." I'm a physician and have a considerable amount of surplus money in a bank.

I'd like to take a portion of these funds and invest it rather than invest. In other words, I'm inquiring as to what type of real estate usually shows the greatest capital growth. Also, could you briefly outline its advantages and disadvantages? — Mr. P. E.

ANSWER: The one type of real estate that historically has shown the greatest potential for capital growth is land. During the past decade, the price of urban land on the periphery of metropolitan areas has risen more rapidly than any other commodity except gold.

Accurate statistics are unavailable, but the best indications are that the price of commercial land has been in the lead, followed by industrial land and with residential land bringing up the rear. According to Fortune magazine, the value of developing urban land has risen over 200 percent more than the value of farm land, and has outrun the inflation factor by many times.

The chief disadvantage to land investment or speculation is that financing is unavailable from banks or conventional mortgage lenders. Therefore, it usually means paying a very high income and the owner must pay out of his own pocket for taxes, insurance, and other miscellaneous costs.

One great advantage of land investment is that it requires almost no management. All that is required, as a rule, is for the owner to sit and wait for favorable market. The problems of the tenant are the right of the owner and they are many, will be discussed in a subsequent article.

Dear Mr. Meltzer: I own and operate a small apartment house which is situated near a military installation, recently inspected my apartments. He found numerous violations of tidiness and upkeep. He stated that he would be glad to send me servicemen to live there whenever I had a vacancy, provided that the women kept clean and the lease. Just what is a military clause? — Mrs. S. O.

ANSWER: A military clause, in essence, states that when a serviceman is transferred by the service to a new duty station or city, he is not liable for the unexpired term of his lease. For example, if a man and his wife have signed a one year lease and are transferred after six months, then, the six months remaining on the lease are automatically cancelled.

Dear Mr. Meltzer: I should like to know why landlords don't so you will have to tell me. Twice within the year, I've had to paint the bathroom because they have chealed me out of rent.

I operate a rooming house and I am not allowed to have pets are students. During this year, I've had seven tenants skunked out of school and left owing me rent and with six months left on their lease. I was told there is nothing I can do because they are minors (under 21 in Ontario). Is there any advice you can give? — Mrs. H. L.

ANSWER: The criteria differentiating minors from adults is not based on height or weight, but on age.

Anyone renting to a minor faces a problem which seldom experienced by our correspondent. Knowledgeable real estate operators protect themselves simply by a simple expedient. As a condition for renting to a minor, they require a co-signer to sign the lease. With this simple act the barn door is closed, and the horse is in the getting out of the lease.

Dear Mr. Meltzer: I just remodeled my bathroom. The new tub is a shallow that I can't get enough water in it to cover my body. The plumber says that the tub is a standard size and it's me that is too big. Not everybody can be a shapely 110 pounds. What does a big ailing cattle 180 pounder like myself do? You know, we big girls like to take baths also. — Miss B.

ANSWER: A standard bathtub is 5-feet long, 30 inches wide and 16 inches deep. This is adequate for a 200 pound person myself. Sometimes in an effort to save (or cheat) a little, a plumber will install bathtubs only 15 inches deep and even as shallow as 12 inches. Tell the plumber that the trouble is caused not because you are too round, but because the tub is too flat.

Mr. Meltzer welcomes your letters and comments. Unfortunately he is unable to enter into personal correspondence with readers, but will attempt to answer as many letters as possible through his column.

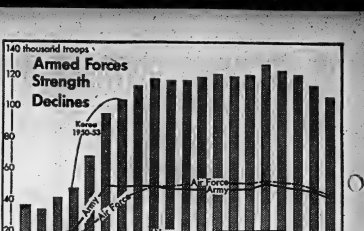
U Thant Will Give Decision On September 1

MEXICO CITY (Reuters)—U Thant, Secretary General of the United Nations said Friday night he had not yet decided whether he would continue in his job after his term of office expires Nov. 3.



The Burmese diplomat, who arrived here Wednesday on a week-long Latin American tour, said he would announce his decision to inform the UN of his decision when he returns to New York from Chile Sept. 1.

There have been repeated requests for U Thant to continue in office for another five - year term.

At the United Nations Friday, a 23-nation group comprising the states of Western Europe, Canada, New Zealand and New Zealand joined forces in an appeal to Thant to carry on.

Speaking for the Latin American delegation, all the UN's regional groups, as well as the great powers acting individually, have appealed to U Thant to stay on.

A usually reliable source at the UN said Wednesday Thant had made up his mind to quit, mainly because of his disappointment that greater use was not made of his impartial peace-making capability, particularly over Viet Nam.

ARMED FORCES STRENGTH DROPS—The armed services manpower total, which in 1962 reached its highest since the Second World War, has been slipping ever since. In June the combined strength was 106,186 troops, a loss of 920 servicemen in two months and 20,288 since 1962. Defence department officials say the decline is mainly attributed to the increasing number of war veterans who are reaching retirement age. In 1945 services strength was 761,041 troops. With demobilization, it slipped to a low of 34,762 in 1948. The ceiling strength was changed in 1952, 1953, 1955 and 1961. At June 30, 1966, individual strengths were 18,182 sailors, 43,330 soldiers and 44,674 airmen. (CP Newsmap)

Breathalyzer Can Aid Innocent As Well as Help Detect Guilty

By MAURICE SWITZER

"In vino, veritas est" — a ratio proverb meaning, more or less, that the more you drink, the more truth there is in what you say. Unfortunately for law enforcement agencies, there is little room for the application of pat maxims in dealing with drunk - impaired drivers. Police work in this day and age is taking on all the aspects of a science, and perhaps no other single piece of detection equipment is more indicative of this trend than the much-debated Breathalyzer.

The Breathalyzer is one of four commercially available types of apparatus which are used by police agencies to take samples of breath for the indirect analysis of alcohol in blood. It was developed some 15 years ago by an Indiana State police officer and has spawned several of similar devices, with others known by such self-explanatory trade names as Intoximeter and Intoximeter. The Breathalyzer has been in use in Ontario since 1954.

A certain ordered series of events must precede the utilization of the Breathalyzer. When a person is arrested and charged with drunk or impaired driving, the investigating officer may ask him if he is willing to take a Breathalyzer test. If the test is refused, the Canadian Criminal Code stipulates that no mention of the refusal may be made in court proceedings against an accused person. If the test is agreed to, the charged party is taken by a police officer to the nearest available machine, which in Belleville is at the O.P.P. station.

Once the suspect is in the station, he is taken to a room where the breathalyzer equipment is kept. Usually the operator of the machine and the driver taking the test are the only two persons in the room while the testing is in progress, although a matron is present if the suspect is female.

Constable Tom Hulme is at present the only active qualified breathalyzer operator at the Belleville detachment, but two other O.P.P. officers will be attending the seven-week training course later this year at the Attorney - Generals Laboratory in Toronto.

CITY TO GET ONE

The Belleville Police Department, however, will not be provided with one of the machines, will be receiving one in the near future, Inspector Harold Reid, and already have a qualified breathalyzer operator in Constable Barry Tilterson. The O.P.P. device has, in the past, been made available to city police when they requested its use to aid their investigations.

If an operator is not on duty, a sample of the suspect's breath can be taken in a special plastic bag and locked up in a sealed container until the sample can be tested on the breathalyzer. As a matter of practice, samples taken in this manner are analyzed within 48 hours, although there is no possibility of dissipation of the alcohol in the sealed bag.

After the operator warms up the machine and conducts a trial test on it with a solution containing a known percentage of alcohol, the Breathalyzer is flushed out to ensure that no alcohol contamination is present, and the first of two tests on the driver is performed. All the suspect is required to do to exhale a deep breath through a tube leading into the machine. A measured amount of air is captured.

During a 15-minute interval before the second confirmatory test, the operator fills out an "Alcohol Influence Report Form" on which he notes such features as the general appearance, speech, and attitude of the driver, and draws a conclusion as to the effects of consumed alcohol on the subject, also noting his probable ability to drive. To help him form his opinions of the state of the driver, the operator also asks the suspect at this time to perform several balance and coordination tests, including the picking up of coins and the familiar walking of a straight line. It is the combined results of these tests, the Breathalyzer test, and the assessment of the accused's condition by the arresting officer, that determines whether or not a charge of impaired driving is laid. Police spokesmen maintain that Breathalyzer tests are strictly corroborative, and that persons are arrested and charged for impaired driving principally on the basis of their physical condition and appearance at the time of arrest.

The Breathalyzer method of analysis is actually a fairly uncomplicated one. The device in first fed a known amount of deep-lung breath, which is heated to a measured temperature to prevent the breath from condensing and leaving particles of alcohol in the machine.

The breath sample is then bubbled through an ampoule containing a known quantity of alcohol-sensitive solution. A chemical reaction taking the form of a color loss occurs between any alcohol in the breath and the ampoule solution, the resultant loss is measured by the machine on a "reaction-by-reaction" basis, and the result is calibrated in terms of per cent of blood alcohol.

Because the Breathalyzer operates on the scientifically established premise that in any person who has been detained one cubic centimetre of arterial blood contains the same amount of alcohol as 2100 c.c's of deep-lung air.

Because no level of blood alcohol percentage is officially set as a standard by which cases suspected impaired drivers are measured, Breathalyzer evidence has remained of a corroborative nature. Nevertheless, the number of variables make it unlikely that any such figure will be established, and it is not a universally recognized impairment level. Such factors as the amount of food in one's stomach, as well as the natural body elimination process, can effect the amount of alcohol that reaches one's system. To this, add the fact that body weight and fatigue can affect one's tolerance to alcohol, and the dangers of setting up an "intoxication standard" become obvious. Most people would prefer the existing method of handling suspected cases of impairment. Even if a Breathalyzer test indicates that a driver has consumed an excessive amount of alcohol, if in the opinion of police officers that person does not show any apparent signs of physical impairment, he will not be charged.

TOLERANCES VARY

A 150-pound man who consumed six ounces of standard-proof liquor within an hour should show a blood alcohol reading of approximately one per thousand (.01 per cent) in a Breathalyzer test. Another 150-pound man who had recently consumed a large meal would not show as high a reading, and under considerations one 150-pound man could be impaired by this amount of alcohol, while another might drink three times as much without so much as slurring a word. In a phrase, some people can "hold it" better than others.

Aside from all of these allowances that must be made in the use of the Breathalyzer, many opponents of such police methods contend that there may be other shortcomings which have yet to come under enough scrutiny. For example, says Belleville barrister Robert Temple, if a person has consumed some alcohol, but not an amount sufficient to impair his ability, and that person becomes sick to his stomach, a deceptively high Breathalyzer reading could result due to particles of foreign, alcohol-contaminated matter lodged in his throat, in number of "other instances" like this are sufficient to make the general public wary about the entire concept of blood alcohol analysis via the breath.

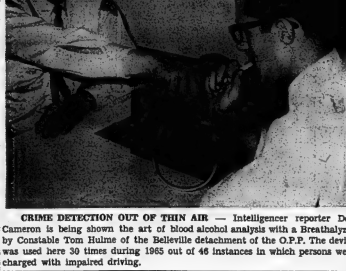
Despite the contentions that too much reliance could be placed on Breathalyzer evidence, there are authorities on the subject, police and otherwise, who feel that compulsory testing would be the proper antidote for the spread of impaired driveritis." There is no likelihood of this being brought about in the near future, in view of much contemporary debate over questions of "individual rights and liberties," particularly in matters connected with law enforcement. The concensus appears to be that making Breathalyzer testing compulsory would be a definite infringement on the basic rights of an individual.

WARY OF PROOF

The general public are either great believers in the accuracy of the Breathalyzer, testing, or have no faith in it whatsoever, as note the fact that only about one-third of impaired driving suspects volunteer to take the test.

Thirty tests were conducted on the Belleville O.P.P. machine last year; a higher than previous figure, considering that 46 impaired charges were laid. To give the public the benefit of the doubt, it is probable that a number of safeguards inherent in the set-up of Breathalyzer testing are not common knowledge.

Breathalyzer tests are conducted by police officers only, and both in the use of the machine and in the observation of impaired and sobered subjects. A Breathalyzer training course, it must be stressed, is not all theory and no practice. Some of the most valuable instruction is gained through controlled drinking of spirituous fluids. Rare is the case of an impaired driver escaping detection by an experienced breath analyser operator, or indeed, by any trained police officer. It is possible on occasion, however, for an operator or arresting officer to mistake a sober man for a drunk. Errors in the suspicion of impaired driving cases are suffering from diabetes, epilepsy, brain attack, shock, concussion, malaria, or even fatigue cannot help but find the Breathalyzer at work in their behalf, if, in fact, they have not consumed enough alcohol to be impaired.



There are a number of cases on police records of persons suffering from various maladies being arrested as impaired, while their condition of staggering or slurred speech etc. could be attributed to any of the above causes. As Constable Hulme says, "in most instances, one drink smells the same as a dozen. Breathalyzer tests could be useful in removing the possibilities of persons with physical ailments being thrown in jail as common drunks. If there is any doubt at all about a person's condition, offering him a test would be a safe idea." The Breathalyzer is a godsend to the man who really did have "only one or two drinks," and whose apparent symptoms of impairment are due to some other cause beyond his control.

The meticulous maintenance and checks made on the devices also ensure against grave margins of error. The flushing of the Breathalyzer before and after each test as well as the fact that each sample of breath two separate tests are intended for his protection, as well as for the sake of accuracy.

ACCURACY TESTED

Even the proven accuracy of the device must be considered by the person who is being tested before he will be convicted. It is a number of 1957 controlled drinking experiments, qualified operators, with the aid of Breathalyzer test results, were able to estimate within an accuracy how much alcohol had been consumed by about 90 per cent of the persons being tested.

The Breathalyzer has been above contention in a sideline that has been employed successfully by hospital staffs from time to time to detect whether children have swallowed poisonous methyl alcohol, since the device can differentiate between methyl and the consumable ethyl varieties.

CRIME DETECTION OUT OF THIN AIR — Intelligencer reporter Don Cameron is being shown the art of blood alcohol analysis with a Breathalyzer by Constable Tom Hulme of the Belleville detachment of the O.P.P. The device was used here 30 times during 1965 out of 46 instances in which persons were charged with impaired driving.

QUESTION: We are going out to Winnipeg, combining a bit of a holiday with business. We will be in Winnipeg for three or four days. Would you please list the main points of interest. Could you give us a few suggestions on what we should see? — T. and M. Smith.

ANSWER: Winnipeg, the capital of Manitoba, is the largest city in the province and holds fourth place among cities in Canada. Perhaps the city's most notable characteristics are, the spires of its many beautiful churches and its broad, well-lighted streets. Portage Avenue is the centre of the shopping district.

The fast-developing industrial city has attained its prominent position mainly because of its situation on the edge of the vast Canadian prairie agricultural area. One of the greatest grain markets in the world, it has the largest privately owned railway yards, a huge meatpacking industry and a major milling industry. It is headquarters of the Army's Prairie Command and the western headquarters of the CN and CP Railways. Winnipeg's first steam engine, the Countess de Dufferin, stands at the Canadian Pacific Railways depot.

The University of Manitoba is 5 miles south, between Hwy. 75 and the Red River.

The Grain Exchange, 167 Lombard Avenue, was built in 1906. A special visitors' gallery overlooks the trading room on the sixth floor. Trading takes place Monday through Friday, 9:30 to 1:15; hours are free.

The Legislative building, on 30 acres bordered by Broadway on the south, Osborne St. and the Assiniboine River, is of native limestone and reflects classic Greek design. The grand staircase, which consists of 70 Italian marble steps, is railed by fossil-marked stone and is guarded at its base by two bronze lions which are emblematic of the Province of Manitoba.

Atop the dome is the Golden Boy, the work of Charles Gardiet, Parisian sculptor. The Legislative building is open to the public Monday through Saturday 9 to 4.

Lower Fort Garry, 19 miles north on Hwy. 9, is the only original fort of the fur trade period still intact in Canada. The well-maintained buildings include residence, penitentiary, store and fur loft. A museum displays items of Red River settlement days. Open daily 9 to 9 mid-May to mid-Sept. Museum only open rest of year, 9 to 6, free.

Assiniboine Park on the Assiniboine River is 200 acres containing zoo, conservatory, rose garden and children's miniature steam engine ride.

St. James, Hargrave Ave., was the first post office in western Canada. Home of William Hall, it was built in 1854 of native log construction. Period furnishings and some Ross articles are displayed. Open June 1 to Sept. 15, Monday through Saturday 10 to 6, Sunday 1 to 6.

QUESTION: We thought of driving down to the site of the new Trent University at Peterborough next Sunday. Could you tell us where it is located in Peterborough? — B. P., Belleville.

ANSWER: This is a most interesting jaunt from Belleville. The construction, though not finished, is well advanced and a very good idea of the beauty of the site and the buildings.

If you are approaching Peterborough by Hwy. 7, continue on Hwy. 7 to Junction with Pt. Fallow Hwy. 28 North of the site of the college. A beautiful drive, providing an excellent view of the college, it to cross the bridge just south of the site and take the scenic River Road north to Lakefield and back to Peterborough on Hw-

A. Hamilton Favors More Asian Trade

BANFF, Alta. (CP)—A Progressive Conservative MP told the Banff conference on world affairs Thursday that Canada should trade more with the developing nations of Asia.

Alvin Hamilton, member of Parliament for Qu'appelle and former agriculture minister, said Canada has a lucrative potential market for her goods in Asia.

He noted there are 2,000,000,000 persons in Asia. Even if each person has limited purchasing power, the total purchasing power is great. Furthermore, a relatively small increase in purchasing power would be a major one over-all.

Trade, Mr. Hamilton said, is a major tool for improving the material wealth of the have-not nations. The gravest gap between the have and have-not nations must be closed in the interests of world stability.

Canada also must help the poorer nations find the money to buy Canadian goods.

And she must reduce such barriers as red tape and outdated trading customs which stand between her and expanded trade with Asia.

War Becomes Way of Life In Mekong Delta in Viet Nam

The Viet Cong began the military side of their campaign to take over South Viet Nam six years ago in the Mekong Delta, Associated Press photographer Horst Faas, who has visited the delta numerous times in the last four years, writes this account of the delta today.

By HORST FAAS

MY THO, South Viet Nam (AP) — The war in the Mekong Delta appears to have become a way of life.

The scene has changed so little over the years that you get the impression the war could go on forever.

And well it might, America advisers declared, unless U.S. troops invade the delta in force. This verdant region below Saigon is the only part of Viet Nam where no American troops operate.

The unchanging nature of the war becomes obvious driving down from Saigon past the endless paddyfields and through ruined, deserted villages.

There is a fleeting impression that things are changing for the better.

This feeling soon is dispelled. "The seminary," the nickname for the U.S. military advisory mission billet for the 7th Vietnamese Division, outside the Mekong River city of My Tho, is being rebuilt.

Viet Cong recollisse this fortified bar to the walls a few weeks ago.

MINES A HAZARD

Another deadly American advance, more are killed by road mines than anything else, another constant factor in the delta.

Even the statistics are virtually unchanged. In 1964 it was stated 20,000 Viet Cong lived among the 3,000,000 Mekong Delta dwellers. Now it is estimated 18,000, plus 14,400 full time guerrillas.

In 1964 the Viet Cong lost 10,000 killed in the delta, officials say. But these deaths apparently did not affect the size of the Viet Cong army.

The South Vietnamese Army has three full infantry divisions in the delta. But they don't seem to be winning. In fact, even though their American advisers are as enthusiastic as ever, the optimism of these advisers will tell you: "We know they are learning now. My boys are good boys. They can win."

You recall similar enthusiasm years ago.

A senior adviser to the 7th Division said in 1962 that the South Vietnamese Army was reluctant to engage the enemy, and that when an engagement began the government troops seemed to get away. That still applies.

PROGRAMS FAILED

Five pacification programs have been launched in the delta. Four of them have failed, the fifth is just getting under way.

The U.S. officers believe four U.S. divisions would be needed to handle the Mekong Delta. But Gen. Earle Wheeler recommiders the delta to be the major Viet Cong recruiting area and the center for enemy granary.

A Vietnamese general was quoted recently as saying: "I'm war bound in the delta. I'm end there."

The commander of the Vietnamese 4th Army Corps which covers the delta, Lt.-Gen. Dang Van Quang, has made known his opposition to having American troops in the delta. He believes that the foreign troops would be an ideal propaganda vehicle for the Viet Cong.

Despite the U.S. troops, the delta war might go on and on.

The 7th Division area south of Saigon is a typical delta region. It covers four provinces with a total population of 1,300,000 and stretches from the Cambodian border, through the Mekong River and over to the South China Sea.

U.S. advisers and Vietnamese division officials say 35 per cent of the division area is under government control, 35 per cent under Viet Cong control and the rest is no-man's land.

Each of the four provinces has a Viet Cong battalion, and the 10,000 hard-core troops in the 7th Division area.

Ranged against them are 40,000 government soldiers and police. The 7th Division has 12 infantry battalions and two regular battalions. But at best only five of these battalions are available for combat at any one time because of security commitments, guarding outposts or assisting in the pacification program.

The regular infantry had only 35 military operations in the first seven months of this year, each one an average of more than two days. The regular army rarely has a night operation, despite years of American training. At night only the Viet Cong and a few small militia men operate.

The kill ratio in the delta has remained constant — two Viet Cong dead to every government soldier. So far this year government forces in the 7th Division have lost 573 weapons and captured 727.

Government forces are beset by jealousies and rivalries. The Vietnamese armed groups, starting from the national police, the oldest institution of law in the delta, ranging through the regular army, the popular and regional forces known as roughs and puffs, the special forces battalion, the counter - terrorist groups and so on.

Any difference creates animosity. A counter-terrorist team raid of 4 makes 4,000 piastres (about $40) a month, a popular force soldier 1,500 piastres ($12.85).

The war continues to be fought mainly at the village level, with each area as well as by all opposition parties.

—Legislation to unify the three armed services into a single force, bitterly assailed by some retired generals and admirals as a of Conservative defence critics.

TWO REPORTS DUE

Other issues shaping up include inflation and the impending report on the Gordo Munsinger affair. Prime Minister Pearson said his government will introduce back-to-work legislation only as a last resort, to respect labor's right to free collective bargaining.

It is not clear whether Parliament will adjourn after disposing of transport bills or continue sittings right up to the Christmas break. This question will be clearer when the intentions of the five parties, probably Monday, .

Mr. Nolan left for home July 16 after a spurt of legislative work, they set Oct. 5 as the date for the resumption of the session. But Mr. Pearson announced the Commons and Senate committees would meet Ontario Monday at 2:30 p.m. EDT.

OTHER ISSUES PENDING

Other major issues are expected to confront legislators this fall, apart from the transportation bills. High on priority government bills include:

—The medical care insurance plan, estimated to cost Ontario $340,000,000 annually and criticized by several provinces that have introduced premium plans.

—A $30-a-month pension increase for old age pensioners and low income files to take effect a certain level. This proposal is strongly opposed by the provinces themselves, outside the Conservative area.

—Tuition level increases at Ontario universities, including the counter - terrorist groups and so on.

A recent captive from the Viet Cong 514th Battalion said he was one of three men who had survived in the battalion in the last two years. The survival rate is as low in some government ranger battalions. And the war goes on and on.

Parliamentary Notebook

By RONALD LESEE

OTTAWA (CP)—Political warfare is expected to rage anew in Parliament next week as the 1966 session resumes ahead of schedule to cope with the rail strike crisis.

All four opposition parties already have scored the government's handling of the railway dispute. Gingerly sparring that the Liberals waited too long before passing a mediator and summoning Parliament is expected.

Opposition Leader Diefenbaker is said to be preparing a non-confidence motion censuring the minority Pearson government for alleged inaction. Prime Minister Pearson has said his government will introduce back-to-work legislation only as a last resort, to respect labor's right to free collective bargaining.

Divers Rescue Five Afloat Off Consecon

TRENTON — Two Canadian Forces officers saved five Montreal residents from drowning in Lake Ontario Saturday afternoon when their outboard motor boat was swamped in a squall. The rescue took place at the resort area of Orchard Beach, seven miles southwest of Trenton, about 1:30 p.m.

Flying Officer Anthony Bendall of Uplands Base, Ottawa, a medical officer, and Lieutenant George Pumpel of Shearwater, Halifax, a naval pilot, were sunbathing in the area for several 500 pound bombs dropped in practice by the RCAF during World War II. They were about two miles offshore when they heard cries for help. With the aid of two Toronto men, R. J. Gordon and George Buchet, who were alerted by Peter Armstrong, the five people, who were floating in life jackets were picked up.

Mr. Bendall said that three of the five were in a semi-conscious condition and were exhausted when they were rescued. After getting them to shore Bendall treated and revived Mrs. Yolande Andre Dupuis, his brother Robert, 17, and Charles Villeneuve. Also rescued were Mrs. Villeneuve and Pierre Dupont, 18. The five Montrealers, were staying at a Consecon motel. At least three of them are civilian employees at No. 6 Repair Depot.

Mr. Dubois, relating his harrowing experience, said that the five of them had set out from Consecon before noon in their small boat for Consecon. On the way over they decided to use a surfboard when a sudden squall came up and five-foot waves swamped the boat. All of them took to the water with our life preservers but the wind kept blowing us away from the shoreline," he said.

Secrecy Shrouds Government Bills Aimed at Settling Railway Strike

By BEN WARD

OTTAWA (CP) — Parliament meets in an air of crisis today to receive the government's two-part formula for ending the crippling railway strike, now in its fourth day.

Little is known about the two legislative bills to be introduced in the Commons some time after 2:30 p.m. EDT. They will propose a plan for getting the trains running again and lay down legislation to free the railways from the financial strait-jacket in which they have struggled for the last seven years.

But the railways have been propped up by ever-increasing subsidies that hit $325,000,000 this year.

Together the bills are expected to set the stage for a renewal of negotiating between negotiators for the railways and four union groups that have demanded wage increases averaging 30 per cent over two years.

AWAIT DETAILS

Mediation broke off Friday afternoon to await details of the bills.

Two big question marks dominate the picture:

1. Will the government be able to get unanimous consent to introduce its measures without the 48-hour notice required by Commons rules? It could be defeated on the vote of just one maverick among the MPs, many of whom were airlifted here by the Liberal party Sunday night.

2. Will the 138,000 striking railway workers, more militant this year than ever before, obey a back-to-work order from Parliament if they consider its terms unreasonable?

There has been speculation that the government will enforce an allowance for increases of around nine per cent, outlaw the strike and order both sides back to the bargaining table to work out the rest of the settlement.

But some union leaders have already said they will submit the terms to a quick membership vote before doing a back-to-work call. A "no" vote could

THE WEATHER

Synoptic: Cloudy skies and thundershowers in the region of Lake Superior will spread to the remainder of Northern Ontario during the day. A following high pressure area will bring clearing skies Tuesday.

Ottawa and vicinity: Sunny day's forecast for southern Ontario. However, cooler air will move southeastward to the Ottawa valley and reach the lower lakes early Tuesday.

Scattered showers will mark the arrival of the cooler air and afternoon temperature readings "would" be 10 to 15 degrees lower.

Riots Fail To Shake De Gaulle

DJIBOUTI (AP) — Security was tightened today in restive French Somaliland to prevent recurrence of last week's bloody independence riots when President de Gaulle of France returns tonight en route to Cambodia.

Pierre Billotton, French secretary of state for overseas territories, broadcast an appeal for calm and reconciliation among dissident elements in France's last remaining African territory.

Billotton also conferred with Ahmed Idriss Moussa, leader of the Parti du Mouvement Populaire which sparked many of the independence demonstrations. They resulted in four dead and 70 injured.

Billotton, left behind to investigate the riots, accused the neighboring Somali Republic of exploiting unrest in the colony.

He said at a press conference he believes local malcontents chose de Gaulle's visit to publicize dissatisfaction with "the manner in which they were governed locally."

"Foreign elements coming from the Somali Republic exploited the discontent," he said. "Those foreign elements added an element of shock."

De Gaulle has stood fast against the independence demands. After the riots, he said change could come only under democratic conditions and not through violence.

Xo Gaulle recalled that in 1958 the territory chose to remain a French possession. He said his government will abide by that decision.

De Gaulle conferred in Ababa today with Ethiopian Emperor Haile Selassie on the future of French Somaliland, in which Ethiopia has a vital interest. The French president indicated earlier in the visit to Addis Ababa that Ethiopian interests in the colony will be protected.

During de Gaulle's visit, the Somali Embassy in Addis Ababa issued a statement charging that the 1959 election in French Somaliland were rigged and demanding independence for the colony.

The Somali Republic has laid claim to the territory, contending most of its 80,000 people are Somalis and should be part of a "Greater Somalia."

Christian Ethiopia, anxious to avoid being surrounded by Moslem states, has opposed the Somali Republic's efforts to bring French Somaliland under its control.

Ferry Service Still On

HALIFAX (CP) — The CNR ferry William Carson was making quick turn-arounds in an attempt to get back on schedule today in her now untroubled Cabot Strait runs between North Sydney, N.S., and Port aux Basques, Nfld., while Prince Edward Islanders awaited a union decision on a mainland ferry link disrupted by Friday's national rail strike.

The 8,200-ton Carson docked at Port aux Basques at 11:15 p.m. NDT Sunday and disembarked 622 passengers and 110 cars without incident. Only a few pickets were on hand at the terminal where 500 men barred the gate for several hours Saturday.

The Carson, the only ferry left on the 375-mile run, loaded 430 passengers and 335 cars before casting off at 2 a.m. today for the return trip of about seven hours.

G. D. McMillan, CNR area manager for Newfoundland, said Sunday night the railways had received firm assurances from the union that all non-commercial vehicles and passengers will be handled.

The Carson will turn around as quickly as possible at North Sydney, he said, and it is hoped the ferry will be back on schedule by tonight.

CNE Midway Ride Collapses, 21 Injured

TORONTO (CP) — A midway ride collapsed Saturday at the Canadian National Exhibition, injuring 21 persons in the first major mishap of its kind in the CNE's 89-year history.

The parents of seven boys seriously hurt in the incident have demanded a full investigation.

"I feel it's awful there should be a ride like this," said Mrs. John Ellis of Toronto. "Our son may be injured for years to come."

John Ellis, 33, is in hospital with a fractured spine and his brother, Gary, 11, has serious abdominal injuries. Another boy, John Gardiner, 10, of Toronto, has serious back injuries.

The ride, called the Trabant, is operated by Patty Conklin Shows which leases it from Hilbert McMurtrey of Riverside, Calif. It consists of a ring of seats which revolve on a platform. The platform is raised by a hydraulic apparatus which rotates it at a 40-degree angle.

Travelling Public Faces Day Without Rail Transportation, Industry Starting Layoffs

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Ottawa regains the spotlight in the nationwide rail strike today as Canadians await the government's formula for getting the trains running again.

The railways and their 118,000 striking employees, most of them idle since midnight on average 30 per-cent pay increases, are awaiting the legislation as a basis for renewed bargaining.

The text was promised by Prime Minister Pearson are to be introduced sometime after the special session of Parliament opens at 2:30 p.m. EDT. Their contents are unknown, but the prime minister has indicated that the first bill will be a measure aimed at getting the strikers back to work and the second a massive transportation bill intended to help the railways out of their financial difficulties.

Mediation talks are to resume as soon as both sides have had a chance to digest the contents of the legislation.

Elsewhere in Canada, the business community and the travelling public face another day, their fourth, without railway transportation and services.

A wide range of industries dependent on the railways have forecast heavy layoffs across the country, beginning as early as today.

Attention was also focused on the stock markets, where quotations dropped Friday. CPR shares slipped $1.12 to $55, their lowest level since 1964.

The confused ferry situation in the Maritime provinces showed some signs of clearing up as the weekend drew to a close.

The ferry William Carson disembarked 622 passengers and 41 cars in Port aux Basques, Nfld., without interference from strikers Sunday night, and took aboard 430 passengers and 113 cars for the return trip to North Sydney, N.S.

A CNR spokesmen said he had received firm assurances that all non-commercial vehicles and passengers would be handled. Passengers who arrived in Newfoundland aboard the 8,200-ton ferry Saturday were prevented from leaving the ferry terminal for five hours by picketers, and the return trip was also delayed.

The fate of the CNR ferries serving Prince Edward Island, however, was still uncertain. Ian Sinclair, secretary of the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway, Transport and General Workers issued a directive ordering its members to resume the service, but the union's strike leader in Borden, P.E.I., said Sunday he had received no such directive.

Premier Alex Campbell of P.E.I. has said his government will be forced to operate one of the CNR ferries if two smaller privately-owned ferries serving the island prove unable to handle the traffic load.

In British Columbia, the CPR's Vancouver — Nanaimo ferry was out of service after the unions withdrew an earlier order to keep it running.

In Toronto, workers representing all Toronto-area unions involved in the strike scheduled an afternoon rally in front of the downtown Union Station

U. S. Planes Sink Two Viet Cong Torpedo Boats

SAIGON (AP) — U.S. Navy planes caught four North Vietnamese torpedo boats in the Gulf of Tonkin today, sank two and damaged the other two, a spokesman said.

In South Viet Nam, the Viet Cong made two unsuccessful attempts to blast the chief shipping channel between Saigon and the sea.

One explosion near a U.S. Navy minesweeper caused no casualties and only minor damage to the ship. Sunday a Communist mine sank a small South Vietnamese minesweeper in the Long Tau channel but the ship went down near the river bank, leaving the waterway open to traffic.

Last Tuesday a Communist mine sank the American cargo ship Baton Rouge Victory in the same channel with a loss of seven lives.

U.S. and other ground forces engaged in only minor skirmishes with the enemy after a weekend of light fighting, but the South Vietnamese reported killing 73 Viet Cong in two engagements.

A company of about 100 South Vietnamese militiamen took quarters for the night in an inhabited area near the Cambodian border northeast of Saigon and said 34 Communists were killed.

For the third time in three months, the Viet Cong opened up with mortars on the Vinh Long airstrip 75 miles southwest of Saigon but inflicted little damage. The field serves transport planes and helicopters operating in the Mekong Delta.

The loss of a prop-driven Skyraider 35 miles south of Thanh Hoa Sunday raised the U.S. aircraft toll over the Communist north to three for the weekend and 246 for the air war. The navy flyer was rescued but two of the four other airmen aboard the plane Saturday were reported missing.

B-52 bombers from Guam hit two suspected Viet Cong strongholds near the Cambodian border Sunday.

The Vietnamese minesweeper sank 19 miles southeast of Saigon after hitting an electrically-detonated mine in the main shipping channel to the capital. One Vietnamese crew member was killed and three other persons were wounded, including a U.S. Navy adviser.

In a continuation of terrorism apparently aimed at undermining confidence in the government before the Sept. 11 elections, the Communists exploded a bomb in a newspaper stall only a block from Premier Nguyen Cao Ky's office in Saigon. Most wounded a Vietnamese cadet.

A little later, officials found a 25-pound anti-personnel fragmentation bomb with a delayed fuse in a parked car in Saigon.

Russian Embassy Guarded

By VERGIL BERGER

PEKING (Reuters) — Demonstrators paraded all day today in streets near the Russian Embassy in a rally against "revisionism" — China's name for Soviet communism.

No incidents were reported and the well-disciplined marchers at no time came closer to the embassy than 200 yards.

The embassy was guarded by about 200 Chinese troops and policemen. Foreign diplomats and correspondents, who received printed invitations to attend, moved freely among the marchers.

The main gates of the walled embassy compound remained closed, with soldiers and policemen lining a double row to guard them.

But those inside and out were subjected to day-long din, including shouted slogans from the marchers.

RENAME STREET

The demonstration began with a formal ceremony renaming the Street of Growing Prestige to Street of Struggle Against Revisionism.

The demonstration, planned to last two days, seemed to some observers here to be partly a defiant reply from the militant Red Guards to a Russian note last week complaining about their "hooligan attacks" outside the Russian Embassy.

Thousands, jammed into the street leading to the embassy, had their backs to the embassy entrance and faced a speaker's platform at the far end of the street.

About 100 Chinese troops formed a double line in front of the high wrought - iron grill gates of the embassy compound. The demonstrators, each car-

Russia Announces Sputnik Is in Orbit Around Moon

MOSCOW (Reuters) — Russia announced today Ru Luna XI spoutnik has become the third man-made satellite to go into orbit around the moon.

It did not say whether it would send back pictures as the U.S. lunar orbiter does.

If it does Luna XI will rival the achievement of the U.S. satellite, thrust into lunar orbit two weeks ago, and will help Soviet scientists find a suitable place for man to set foot on the barren rocks of a waterless lunar ocean.

The first man-made moon satellite was Russia's Luna X which sped into orbit April 3, just two months after Luna IX made history with the first soft-landing on the moon's surface and sent back pictures of a rocky, desolate surface. Luna X provided no cameras.

There was no immediate spaceflanation here for the long, but not unprecedented, delay in announcing the latest success.

Soviet scientists generally prefer to be sure that every thing has worked out correctly before issuing any statement.

Luna XIs success was announced that Luna X was in orbit.

Tass said communications with Luna XI are quite stable and pressure and temperature within the instrument package are within pre-set limits.

The news agency said the spoutnik's orbit was close to the planned one, ranging from 100 miles to 743 miles above the moon's rocky surface.

The director of the Jodrell Bank Observatory in Manchester, England, Sir Bernard Lovell, said Russia has clearly is picking up signals showing Luna XI was in orbit around the moon with an orbiting time of three hours.

Since it went into orbit scientists on earth have held 12 communications sessions with the spoutnik by telemetry, measurements and information on the functioning of scientific apparatus aboard the station designed for the study of space around the moon.

Farm Workers Given Chance To Join Union

DELANO, Calif. (AP)—What labor experts are calling a crucial point in the unionization of U.S. farm labor will take place Tuesday when Di Giorgio Corp. farm workers vote in a union representation election.

The election takes place near this San Joaquin Valley community and in San Diego.

The two labor organizations battling for the right to represent the state's 80,000 farm workers are two of the most powerful in the United States—the Teamsters union and the AFL-CIO.

Both have used every available medium to appeal for new members. Both organizations have sponsored fiestas and have held other gatherings to attract voters.

About 1,300 workers are eligible to vote in the election. National union organizers are signing them up.

Results of the vote are expected to be released Wednesday.

Obituaries

MRS. FRANK KEEGAN

In failing health for the past eight months, Mrs. Margaret Keegan of 76 Front Street died at home Sunday morning, August 28. She was in her 80th year.

A lifetime resident of Belleville, she was the daughter of the late Captain and Mrs. George Cousins.

A member of St. Thomas' Anglican Church, Mrs. Keegan was a life member of Belleville's Senior Citizens' Club.

Predeceased by her husband Frank in 1954, Mrs. Keegan is survived by a daughter Vera at home, and a son, Alderman Arthur Keegan of Belleville. She was predeceased by two sons, James and Ashley, and by a daughter, Maudie. Mrs. Keegan had seven grandchildren and 10 great-grandchildren.

The funeral will be held Tuesday afternoon, August 30, from the Pinkston and Luscombe Funeral Home to St. Thomas' Anglican Church. The funeral announcement appears elsewhere in this edition.

rying a red booklet of quotations from Mao's works, shouted slogans and in unison denouncing "Soviet revisionism."

Meanwhile, diplomatic sources reported that eight foreign nuns who operated a convent taken over by the youthful demonstrators last week were expelled Sunday night for "illegal espionage activities."

The sources said Western diplomats were told by the Chinese foreign ministry that the nuns left the capital by train and would cross into Hong Kong Wednesday.

Peking's Red Guard demonstrators, teen - agers who have swarmed through the city for more than a week rooting out everything they consider opposed to China's new "cultural revolution," took over the Roman Catholic Convent of the Sacred Heart Thursday.

There was no official word of the fate of the nuns—from Canada, Britain, Ireland, France, Italy, Poland, Switzerland and Portugal—but today, most of them are quite elderly and some have been in China since pre-Communist days. The Canadian was identified as Sister Duff. Her hometown was not known.

DENOUNCE RELIGION

Thursday, the guards plastered the convent—which has functioned as a college for some 200 children of diplomats—with posters denouncing religion and "foreign devils."

The nuns were accused of unseeking illegal espionage activities "in the cloak of religion and using the school as a cover."

They also were alleged to have distributed documents' and spread rumors.

A ministry official said all eight nuns were in good health when they left.

The takeover of the convent Wednesday follow a rally of the Red Guards' occupation Tuesday of the city's main Catholic centre, the Pei Tang Cathedral.

The city's single Protestant church was occupied the same day. It is the Church of Christ Enlightened and a larger-than-life white bust of Mao was set in the centre.

Around the 'Cat'

Mixed rink competition is becoming popular among the bowlers in the district and many clubs have staged tournaments with this in mind. On Wednesday last the Kingston Club held a tourney of this class and members of the Belleville and Trenton Clubs combined to win the Hotel Pizza trophy and accompanying prizes. Mr. and Mrs. Kay Fuller of Trenton with Mr. and Mrs. Goldie Fluginbuhl of Belleville had the three-high count of the twelve rinks that competed. Fluginbuhl's scored a seven-ender which is one short of a possible in a game during the play. To score a big end every bowler must throw at least two of their bowls which they are allowed nearest the "Cat". As usual the greens were at their best and the hospitality of the Kingston Club was never better. The bowling season is fast drawing to a close but there are a number of worthwhile tournaments coming up in September.

On Thursday last a rink of Mrs. Flossie Clarke, Trenton, of Edna Jackman with Mrs. Carm Mott as skip won the high count in the afternoon play-down of the women's section of the local club. A rink of Mrs. Reta Coleman, Mrs. Dot Gray, Mrs. Lil Masoro with Mrs. Thelma Fluginbuhn as skip won the league, Mrs. Laura Hyde was second prize. In the bridge first in points scored. Refreshments were served at the end of play and a social hour spent.

Next Monday one of the big tournaments of the district will be played at the local greens. The John Shee Memorial Trophy will be competed for and Orie Smith, chairman of this tournament since its inception, has plans to make this tourney the best ever. It is expected the largest entry of the year will be on hand and two draws will be necessary to accommodate those wishing to play. The prizes for this tournament are the best that can be procured and everything points to a big day.

ON TWO YEAR CRUISE — Bound for Trinidad Mr. and Mrs. Robert Marsh of Michigan stopped at Trenton before continuing on their 10,000 mile water adventure. Mr. Marsh took over to build the sturdy motor-sailer Geno II they are making the trip in.

Trent-Severn Canal System Highly Praised by Tourists Taking 10,000-Mile Jaunt

TRENTON — An American couple in their 50's on a boat trip that will take them 10,000 miles before they return in two years, stopped at the Trentway-Wanna during the weekend to make some flattering observations about the Trent-Severn canal system.

Robert and Eugenia Marsh aboard their 34-foot cutter Geno II took only Mr. Marsh's six years to build started off from Bay City, Michigan, on July 4. The occasion was marked by an unexpected display of fireworks when a bolt of lightning struck their sturdy motor-sailer and shook it from stem to stern. The Marshs fortunately were not hurt but the "thunderball" knocked out the ship's electronic equipment and caused considerable confusion until necessary repairs were made. Excepting for that incident, according to Mr. Marsh, the 2,000 miles covered so far have produced no further upheavals and no excitement.

For the next two years the Marshs intend cruising inland waters and never routes that will eventually carry them to the island of Trinidad. They are travelling at a leisurely pace plus extended stops and visits with relatives and friends on the way down to the Caribbean area. They look forward to spending Christmas ashore at Nassau in the Bahamas.

At the beginning of their voyage the Marshs planned to favorite places on Georgian Bay. Mr. Marsh had visited in 30 years as a summer sailor. "I wanted to take one more look at this beautiful part of Canada that holds many fond memories for me," he explained.

The Marshs are on hour a lifetime of adventure in two years (the Marshs with Geno II have also planned to return to Quiet waters. "In all my travels I have never found anything to compare with the trip from Port Severn to Trenton," he observed. We've found a special kind of friendliness from people and have continually gone out of their way to help. There is a lot to be said for them and the beautiful waterways, he asserted. He pointed out that they had been 'sold' on many points of interest on the waterways and that everyone asked them on route. "I think the government agencies are missing a bet if they don't send public relations people to the numerous yacht clubs in Eastern United States to promote the attraction," he said.

The Geno IIs designed to sail any waters in the world according to her builder Mr. Marsh. She is powered by sails and is stocked with supplies to be self-sustaining on the water for a 30-day period. The Marsh's share the skipper duties. Both of them are expert sailors and capable of contending with problems that may crop up on their long water journey.

The Marshs before retiring, was formerly employed by General Motors in a medical supervisory capacity.

Note: Another American who visited praise for Canadians and the Trent Waterways during the weekend was Rod Serling the TV producer of the "Twilight Zone" serie. He stopped at Trenton with his 33-foot cruiser for fuel and supplies before continuing to the Murray canal and across Lake Ontario.

57 Fatalities Across Canada Over Weekend

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

At least 57 persons died in accidents across Canada during the weekend.

A Canadian Press survey from 6 p.m. Friday to midnight Sunday, local times, showed 42 died in traffic accidents, 14 drowned and four died in other accidents.

Quebec reported 25 dead, including 20 traffic deaths, three drownings and two miscellaneous accidents.

Nine died in Ontario road accidents and one person drowned. In addition, a child suffocated in a plastic bag and a man broke his neck diving into a swimming pool.

There were four traffic deaths in Alberta, two each in Nova Scotia, Saskatchewan and British Columbia and one each in Prince Edward Island, New Brunswick and Manitoba.

Five persons drowned in British Columbia after a tug collided with a dispatch near Prince Rupert. Two perasons drowned in Newfoundland.

The survey does not include industrial or natural deaths, known suicides or slayings.

ESCAPED OLD TOMB

ABBOTSFORD, B.C. (CP) — George Strober, 57, and his son David, 26, were driving along a mountain road when the ground opened up and swallowed their car. They climbed out the window and scrambled 20 feet to the surface. Officials said an old mine shaft running under the road had collapsed.

Welcome Home New President Of Association

A large crowd of members of the Duke of Edinburgh Unit, Army, Navy and Air Force Veterans in Canada, Belleville, and their wives attended a reception in the Club auditorium to welcome Command. J. C. "Jack" Lindsay who had been unanimously elected for the third consecutive time as Dominion President of the Army, Navy, and Air Force Veterans. It is a rare honor not only to the club but also to the city of Belleville.

Comrade "Jamie" Boyle, President of the local club, who headed the convention delegates from Belleville, thanked all his members for their untiring efforts at the convention, with a special mention of Comrade George Christopher who, in addition to his other duties was chosen to lead the color party at the Memorial services. He then introduced Les Grills, local MP for Hastings South. Comrade Grills gave the official welcome to the Dominion President, and thanked him for his unique achievement.

Comrade Jack in his reply stated that, although he did not always agree with the honorable member, nevertheless when it came down to fundamentals for the good and welfare of the community, they had always worked together. He thanked President Boyle, the members and their committees for honoring his wife and him at this enthusiastic reception. Comrade "Gord" Thompson of Calgary, Provincial President of Alberta and his wife VI, were introduced.

Light refreshments were served and the orchestra provided music for dancing, bringing to a close a most delightful evening and the well deserved tributes to a native son, Comrade "Jack" Lindsay.

Inco Workers Reject Offer Of Company

SUDBURY (CP)—More than 4,000 members of Local 6500 of the United Steelworkers of America Sunday rejected Inco's 63½-cent hourly wage increase over three years, the union said in a statement issued by the International Nickel Co. of Canada Ltd.

The workers, attending a membership meeting, had been called for a strike vote Wednesday among the 16,000 union members in the 13 Inco plants.

A statement after the meeting, L. A. Soden, Local union president, said the membership supported the union bargaining committee's recommendation to a steward's meeting earlier Sunday that the offer be turned down.

"Our members believe that Inco's wage package is far short from adequate, particularly in the face of the high cost of living and the high profits in Sudbury," the statement said.

"We are concerned about larger wage increase in a shorter contract and about establishing a proper wage structure through a co-operative program of evaluating and classifying jobs."

ANNOUNCES OFFER

The company announced Saturday it offered wage increases averaging 63.9 cents an hour in the first year, 8.19 cents in the second year and 10.31 cents in the third. The contract also included incentive pay increases by an average of 15 per cent, new benefits and increased pension rates.

A conciliation board, headed by Judge J. C. Anderson of Belleville which dealt with the contract dispute, adjourned in Toronto Friday. The report of the board is to be forwarded today to Labor Minister Rowntree of Ontario.

The union may call a legal strike seven days after the minister of labor releases the report to interested parties.

The conciliation board was appointed after a 24-day wildcat strike which began July 15. The union's old contract expired July 10.

The 16,000 Sudbury strikers were joined by 1,600 union members at Inco's Port Colborne, Ont., refinery.

Union members have rejected a company offer of a 47-cent hourly wage increase over three years. It has been asking for a $1.30 hourly increase over two years.

The present rate for a miner is $2.93 an hour and surface workers now get $2.22 an hour.

Main Artery Of Arm Severed In Accident

TRENTON — Constable Roy Miller of the Trenton Police is in Trenton hospital suffering from injuries to his left arm, sustained in a boating accident Friday night. The constable was alone in an outboard motor boat, near Indian (Augur's) Island, and was trying to start the motor when the cord snapped back. The handle struck Constable Miller's arm, severing the main artery.

Emergency surgery was performed by Dr. W. A. L. McDonald after the constable was taken to the mainland by the RCAF men, who were cruising in the area.

He is reported to be in satisfactory condition at the hospital today, and should be out in a day or so. His arm will be in a cast for three weeks.

SOUTH ENJOY VISIT

Eight Boy Scouts from Ohio visited Trenton this weekend as the home of Mr. and Mrs. James Moon, Wrenge Street.

The boys are touring Ontario, fishing and sightseeing. They were presented with a "Trenton" scarf by Scoutmaster Bernard Fox, as a gesture of goodwill from the local Scout groups.

VIEW NEW BARN

Reeve Douglas McMaster of Murray Township, Mrs. McMaster and their family played host over the weekend to hundreds of friends and neighbors who had come to their invitation to view the new barn, erected by the McMasters following last December's fire which destroyed their former barn and around 60 farm animals.

After the fire, neighbors took up a collection to assist the popular reeve to rebuild his barn, and this weekend's party was the McMasters way of saying "thank you."

Brighton Police Had Busy Week

TRENTON — Brighton O.P.P. investigated 13 traffic accidents last week with one person killed and two injured. Several charges were laid in connection. Prov. Const. J. Martin assisted Chief Const. G. Blyth of Brighton in the investigation of an assault complaint in the village resulting in one man being stabbed in the back with a broken Coke bottle. One man has been charged with assault causing bodily harm and further charges are expected as the investigation continues. Officers investigated a report of breaking and entering and theft, and charges are expected as arrested one impaired driver, made five liquor seizures, investigated a drug arrest in a public place and answered 35 calls ranging from lost wallets to a boat in trouble on Lake Ontario.

Officers of Brighton detachment laid 27 charges under the highway traffic act, issued 11 warnings and checked 40 vehicles. They patrolled a total of 3,975 miles in Brighton detachment area which consists of Brighton, Murray and Cramahe Townships and Presqu'ile Provincial Park.

In the past week two complaints were received by Brighton Detachment of drug racing on Trenton Suburban Road No. 1, Wooler Road between Brighton and Wooler and two charges have been laid.

VISITING CROWDS emerge from service at historic Hay Bay Church on its 174th anniversary Sunday afternoon. Hay Bay Church, the birthplace of Methodism in Canada, was erected by United Empire Loyalists in 1792 and was the first Methodist Church in Canada. Close to 200 attended yesterday's service.

HISTORIC PLAQUE at Hay Bay Church is viewed by Judge Gerald F. Smith of Napanee and United Church ministers Rev. H. A. Mellow and Rev. Harold B. Neal, of Hamilton, former minister at Belleville.

174th Anniversary

200 UEL Descendants Gather at Hay Bay Church

Historic Hay Bay Church, the first Methodist Church built in Canada, held its 174th anniversary on Sunday.

Close to 200 Bay of Quinte residents with United Empire Loyalist ties made the annual pilgrimmage to the old Church on the shores of Hay Bay where their ancestors settled in the late 1800's.

The original church, 36 by 30 feet, was built in 1792 and about 40 years later, when the congregation outgrew the accommodation, was enlarged to its present dimensions.

Sunday afternoon Rev. J. A. Davidson, president of the Bay of Quinte Conference and minister of Sydenham United Church at Kingston, delivered the anniversary sermon, speaking on the topic "Into the New Age."

The officiating minister was Rev. Harold B. Neal of Hamilton, chairman of the board of trustees for Old Hay Bay Church and former minister at Belleville.

Also taking part in the service were Rev. H. A. Mellow and His Honour Judge Gerald F. Smith of Napanee.

The old Hay Bay Church is one of the few links remaining with the original settlement in Ontario and the birth of Methodism in Canada.

Most of the UEL pioneers had arrived from the United States in 1784 to settle on wilderness land which had been hastily surveyed only the year before.

COST 197 POUNDS

The church was built at an original cost of something like 197 pounds (Halifax currency) with the subscription list containing many of the names still common to the district. The church was built under the direction of William Lonse, the first regularly appointed itinerant Methodist preacher west of the Mattinees.

Actually the old church was used as a meeting place for the congregation for only about 70 years, when a new church on a different site was built. Still later a third church, the one in present use, was erected.

After construction of the second church the original Hay Bay edifice fell into a state of disrepair and, becoming privately owned at one time, was actually used as a farmer's warehouse.

In the words of Rev. Arthur G. Reynolds, United Church archivist and historian, the original Hay Bay Church has been preserved "as if by a miracle."

The first talk of preservation of the old Hay Bay Church apparently took place more than a 100 years ago and then again in 1855 when the minister of the Bath Circuit, Rev. Richard Duke, appalled at the condition of so historic a building, interviewed the owner with the hope of securing it for the Methodist Church.

The Bath minister of 1855 was unsuccessful in his effort to obtain the old building for Methodist Church, but he apparently started the movement for its reclamation.

PURCHASED IN 1919

Finally in 1910 the old church and three and a half acres of land, including the graveyard, were purchased for the Methodist Church from the Platt Estate for $300.

Following restoration "to preserve large sound timbers from decay" the restored church was officially re-opened in 1912.

Further work on old Church has gone on since 1912 and in '25 with Church Union, the old Church became the property of the United Church in Canada and has since been under the care of a board of trustees appointed by the Bay of Quinte Conference.

In 1950 H. J. McFarland of Picton donated a cottage which is used in the summer months by a custodian, who is available

Local Players Participating In Chess Open

KINGSTON (CP) — Andrew Pressburger of Toronto, a Class A player, Sunday played to a draw with Leslie Witt of Montreal, winner of the 1962 Canadian open chess championship.

The draw came in the second round of the sixth Canadian open championship in which 120 players are attempting to unseat defending champion Pal Benko of New York, international grand master who won the title in 1964.

Pressburger is staying with relatives at Belleville and is one of four players coming here daily from that city. The others are Terry Silsbury of Toronto, formerly of Belleville, Ivan Soetjella, Belleville club champion, and Rae Swansburg, Belleville club president.

Pressburger fared best of the quartet. Besides drawing with Witt, he defeated Gregory.

Silsbury had the misfortune to be drawn against Benko, the reigning champion, and lost, but he defeated Dr. Austen in his other match.

Soetjella drew with Dr. K. Winterton of Ottawa, one of the strongest players in Eastern Ontario, but lost to Murray of Montreal.

Swansburg dropped both his games to two Quebec players, Brodeau and Coudral.

Scoring in the open, played every other year, is based on one point for a win, a half point for a tie and no points for a loss.

Tournament officials considered Pressburger's draw an upset because it placed a player who won in 1962 with a perfect score, just point behind the other three masters in the Friday tournament which started Saturday.

Fifty - one matches were played Saturday, the first of which was completed in 27 minutes. Boris Ivkov of Yugoslavia, international grand master, won over Peter Alwyn of Toronto, a former Ontario open champion.

Besides Ivkov, the other grand masters are Benko and William Lombardy and Larry Evans, both of New York. There are approximately 40 grand masters in the world. Canada has only one. Abe Yanofsky of Toronto, who is also the only grand master in the British Commonwealth.

Junior participants in the championship matches are playing for a trip to Sweden. The Canadian player who finishes first will be declared the Canadian champion and will receive a trip in Europe, Soetjella is a junior.

Ferry

the ferry until the union's national headquarters convinced them of the validity of an agreement with the CNR to keep the service in operation.

Apparent communication breakdowns between locals and union headquarters in Ottawa also led to the disruption of the CNR ferry service between Borden, P.E.I., and Cape Tormentine, N.B.

Reports from Ottawa indicated the federal government was intending to use coast guard personnel to man at least two of the four idle ferries, but the CBSRT and GW's national executive Saturday ordered locals at Borden to restore service for non-railway traffic in compliance with a prior CNR-union agreement.

However, both local officials at Borden and Barry Hould of Moncton, national union representative for New Brunswick and P.E.I., said they had no knowledge of such an agreement before the directive from headquarters Saturday.

Mr. Heald said Sunday he was meeting with union officers in Borden today to announce the official directive from national headquarters and address a membership meeting at 4 p.m. ADT.

He declined to disclose the wording of the directive and said he could give no indication when the ferries would resume operations if employees at Borden and Cape Tormentine decided to return to work.

P.E.I. Premier Alex Campbell declared a state of emergency in his province last week when he could reach no agreement with the union to keep the ships running. He said the Borden - Cape Tormentine service was the island province's economic "lifeline," although a second service not affected by the strike plies between Wood Islands, P.E.I., and Caribou, N.S.

The two vessels there have been making extra crossings on the 13 mile trip across the Northumberland Strait since the strike started.

which officials said would show members of Parliament how the strikers feel about the dispute.

C. O. Goodman, general manager of the Ontario Automotive Transport Association, appealed to shippers to send only only essential goods.

"Because it is a state of emergency, the public will have to give up carrying non-essential goods," he said. "We've got to be realistic about this thing."

Mr. Goodman said off duty and holidaying drivers have returned to work and a considerable truck tractor is being prepared for long distance hauling.

Among the 118,000 railroaders on strike are 20,000 members of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, whose main demand is for a shorter work week.

The other 98,000 men are non-operating employees, those not involved in the actual running of the trains. They belong to 16 unions, largest of which is the Teamsters, and are seeking raises of between 25 cents and 40 cents hourly in their pay, which averaged $2.22 under their last contract with the railways.

Will Install Traffic Island At Intersection

Moira Street, West, at the intersection of Sidney Street will cease to be a through street when present construction of curbs and installation of a traffic island in that area is completed.

The work of constructing concrete curbs at the intersection was commenced last week while a traffic island will also be installed to channel traffic with the proposed changing of stop signs.

Under the proposed change, Moira Street, West, will become a stop street at Sidney Street while the north and south sections will become the through street continuing over the Sidney Street railway overpass.

City Engineer Wilbur Purcell said that the current work was laid over from last year when the by-law authorizing the change in stop signs was approved by council.

He said paving it is hoped that reconstruction of Sidney Street from Dundas Street north to Wilson Drive, will get underway. The actual starting date for the reconstruction will be dependent, however, on whether storm sewers can be installed this winter as a winter works project.

With the Belleville Fair now over for another year, Mr. Purcell said it was hoped that opening of Sidney Street through the fairgrounds could soon be gotten underway.

Only temporary work to open Sidney street through the fairgrounds will be undertaken this fall.

The idea will be to get the fairgrounds into a condition usable with the permanent roadway to wait for the overall street construction program next year.

Marathon Dance Will Be Held At Curling Club

Have you ever felt as if you could have danced all night?

Would you believe the next day too? And maybe the following night?

Then you'll have the chance to dance as long as you're able, and if you're the last one able, you'll win $100.

How?

By entering the first annual Belleville Marathon Dance starting Friday at 8 p.m. at the Belleville Curling Club.

The couple dancing the longest continuous non-stop wins $100 cash. The next three couples dancing the longest divide $125 in gifts. There are many other valuable door prizes, all donated by Belleville merchants.

Dave Charles of CJBQ will be on hand to kick the dance off.

Entry fee to the marathon is $1.50 per couple. For those who would like to watch it but cost only 25 cents.

Saturday will be to records.

A spokesman said, "If it goes over well this year, we have a sponsor who is interested in putting up a valuable trophy next year and making the marathon an annual event at the Belleville Fair.

"I hope the kids really get out and support it."

Oh yes, for those who don't quite feel like they own the world, the St. John Ambulance will be on duty.

Quinte Crusade for Christ Scheduled for October

An estimated 95 churches throughout the Bay of Quinte area are expected to support the forthcoming Quinte Crusade for Christ in the Memorial Arena at Belleville in October 7 to 16. The series of meetings will be conducted by Crusade Evangelism of Canada.

Crusade Evangelism is a specialized attempt by Canadians to reach Canada for Christ through evangelistic crusades. This is accomplished through the united efforts of pastors and people from all churches in any given area, to reach the greatest number of those without the gospel.

The formation of an active Canadian evangelistic association took place in Toronto in August 1960. An administrative board of Christian businessmen and pastors who shared this strong vision was formed.

Ten different denominations are represented on the board of directors with the following elected to office: ESHoit Stedelbauer, automobile executive, chairman; Thomas Wilson, industrial executive, vice - chairman; and Gordon Duke, insurance consultant, secretary treasurer.

Preparations for a campaign such as the Quinte Crusade are extensive. It is the conviction of Crusade Evangelism that thorough preparation, involving organization, prayer and promotion, must precede each crusade.

General chairman of the Quinte Crusade is Rev. G. Woodcock, minister of Victoria Avenue Baptist Church.

Three Injured In Collision

Three persons are listed in good condition today in Belleville General Hospital following a head-on two-car accident near Prospect Park at 10.20 last night.

Details of the accident are still sketchy, but at least five persons were taken to hospital in two ambulances.

In hospital here are Katherine Neal, 15, of Desmond, Greta Dixon, 17, of Toronto, and William Guerrie, 21, also of Toronto, and driver of one of the cars. Driver of the other car was James Farrow of Brighton.

At least two others were treated for minor injuries and released.

Brighton O.P.P. are investigating.

Car Misses Post and Steel Support

FRANKFORD — A local woman is in satisfactory condition at Trenton Memorial Hospital this morning after the car she was driving left the road on Highway 33 just south of here late last night. Mrs. Jack Madill, 38, was taken to hospital by Rushnell Ambulance.

An O.P.P. officer at the scene of the accident said that the car appeared to be no damage to the car, which veered across the highway and ran out of control for about 400 feet parallel to the road before coming to a halt. Passengers in the car, Mr. and Mrs. Holden Madill escaped serious injury.

Mr. Madill, father-in-law of the hospitalized woman, said, "As we were about to enter Frankford, Mrs. Madill suddenly slumped in the seat and the car went across the highway just missing a post and a steel support."

The occupants of the car were returning from a summer cottage at Shoal Beach.

PERMIT PACIFISM

ROME (AP)—A bill approved in the Chamber of Deputies would make it legal to be a conscientious objector in Italy during peace. The bill, now awaiting Senate approval, allows objectors to volunteer for a two-year unpaid job in non-European developing countries instead of entering the army.

CENTENNIAL SECONDARY SCHOOL
Principal: W. J. Musgrove

MOIRA SECONDARY SCHOOL
Principal L. D. Read

QUINTE SECONDARY SCHOOL
Principal F. F. Reid

All students will report to their respective schools at 9.00 a.m. Tuesday, September 6.

In order that pupils may obtain their textbooks and purchase supplies all school buses will return on regular schedules on opening day.

Students who have not already registered and those with irregular timetables should consult the Principal before opening day. Class lists of those students already registered are posted in the schools.

Check your car before you go,
The lights, the brakes, the steering,
The battery, plugs and tires, too,
No breakdown you'll be fearing.

If you feel drowsy at the wheel,
Pull off the road and sleep
It's better far to do it there
Than in a grave to sleep.

Need for Individuality

What do young people aspire to these days? Do they want to hang around with the crowd or do they want to make something of themselves, become individuals, follow a profession and become expert at it?

More than ever young Canadians are seeking to complete their education and make a success of their lives. And they are doing so despite the pressure of conformity that hangs over everything today.

But just as many others are slackers, potentially unemployable and worse, potential criminals. In the town of Aurora, north of Toronto, a bylaw has been introduced to prevent loitering. It stems from the antics of gangs of young people said to have been "creating havoc" in the main street.

Aurora's young toughs have their counterparts in cities, communities, and their problem basically is boredom. They lack outlets for youthful energies. But why should this be so? Most are in school or in jobs of one kind or another. Among other things school should teach them how not to be bored, even in the absence of recreational facilities provided by the community.

Is the street corner the best that some of our young people can aspire to in 1960? Or a room in Yorkville with the marijuana set? Or long hair and foppish clothes?

There is plenty of room for personal initiative these days. The tendency may be to follow the crowd and avoid being different, but a look at what some people are doing should convince the rising generation that adventure may still be found, as well as opportunities to enrich their lives as well as those of others.

Social work among underprivileged families is one such avenue of service, like that of University Settlement — a Red Feather organization in which both McGill University and the University of Montreal are collaborating. Students supervise playground and other activities in rundown sections of the city. Similar programs are being carried out in Winnipeg and Vancouver.

And there is the far north. Northern Affairs Minister Arthur Laing says the region requires people of pioneering spirit. Any young man with a thirst for adventure can find it aplenty in the north. And undoubtedly the Indian Affairs Department would be glad to meet young people of this calibre and appraise them of the opportunities there.

As for the young women of our day, how many are like the co-eds who will not turn out for track and basketball because (in the words of Carleton University physical-education teacher Sandra Bowes) "they don't want to mess their hair"?

Or must their daily conversation be of the "atmple-minded, small-talk" variety described by a young Torontonian, Yedi Zak, in an article in The Ottawa Journal, who drove her from from a typist's job and a comfortable apartment to a brief and disillusioning acquaintanceship with Yorkville. "Village" life was not for her, but at least it did broaden her outlook on life.

Far better that the modern young girls thirst for adventure is the experience which young people from all over the world find in travel, in Europe for example.

Boredom, the curse of our day, of the affluent society and of suburbia. It stems from the highest standard of living this country has ever known, and from having it too easy. But it need not be thus. The cure lies in personal initiative, in finding out and discovering how things that enterprising people are doing. This way life becomes no longer disillusioning, but positive and interesting.

The Menace of Speed

A Belleville man in his early twenties appeared in county magistrate's court last week on a charge of speeding.

This is a common enough offence these days, just as fatalities resulting from excessive speed occur all too often. But this young man had had five previous speeding convictions recorded against him.

On this occasion — his sixth appearance — the evidence against that he had been clocked at more than 80 miles per hour in front of the airbase at Trenton. There were three others with him in the car.

Needless to say he was convicted again and fined $125 and costs. How he was dealt with on his previous appearances was not stated, but a fine of this nature is scarcely sufficient to deter a youth of such derring-do. If he does not kill himself and others in the process it will be no surprise if he is nabbed again.

In this event it would be a salutary lesson to his kind if the court made an example of him. Speeders who are a threat to life and limb, when they are caught as regularly as this, should be given an opportunity to cool their heels for a time in jail.

To Your Good Health
Phlebitis Can Vary In Cause and Severity

BY JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: I was hospitalized for phlebitis in my leg. Now I am having blood tests twice a week and take medication according to the results.

Why do some people require tests and others don't?—D. M.

Why do you need it? Let's start at the beginning. Phlebitis is inflammation of a vein, and there may be formation of a thrombus or clot of coagulated blood.

This clot has to be gradually absorbed. Obviously you don't want pieces of it to break loose with the possibility of lodging somewhere else in a blood vessel and becoming the nucleus for another clot. This explains why phlebitis patients are kept quiet. Vigorous movement, or even nerves, an injury or massage, can cause trouble.

In addition, anticoagulant medicines are used to reduce the blood's capacity to coagulate, or form clots.

This is a two-edge weapon. Yes, the drugs reduce the risk of clots, but they also can cause excessive bleeding if the dose is too high.

The "prothrombin time" is a measure of the rate at which the blood will coagulate. This coagulation rate must be slow enough to prevent formation of clots in the blood vessels, but it must not be so high enough so that in event of any small wound, the bleeding will stop readily—even a bruise is a form of bleeding below the surface of the skin.

That is why repeated tests are made, and the amount of drug is regulated to keep the clotting speed of your blood within proper limits, neither too fast nor too slow.

Why do some people require the test and others don't? Because there are several varieties of phlebitis, from different causes and behaving in somewhat different ways. They vary greatly in severity, too. Thus time and being careful may be the principal element of treatment for one patient, while another may require elabor ate care.

The prothrombin time is important whenever anticoagulant drugs are used, but if very small amounts are given and the patient's blood remains dependably close to its normal clotting characteristics, tests need not be as frequent.

Dear Dr. Molner: My husband travels and only gets home every six weeks or so. Would there be any harm in taking birth control pills just the days he is home? — Mrs. S. L.

They won't work that way. No harm — but no good, either. They have to be taken exactly according to instructions to do what they are supposed to do.

Dear Dr. Molner: Could a pulse throbbing at the back of my head be caused by hardening of the arteries? My doctor diagnosed a pain lower down at the base of my skull, as tension and gave me tranquilizers. A few days later I noticed this throbbing. At times the hair seems almost to be moving.

I am near 50. Could these symptoms indicate a pre-stroke condition? The throbbing is brief and some days I do not notice it. I do not have high blood pressure. — Mrs. H. J.

This more likely is a twitching of muscles which can occur under conditions of tension or worry. The fact that it does not occur every day and does not last long, I think, indicates that no blood vessel disorder is involved and that it is not a sign of an approaching stroke.

Away From It All

Christian Science Monitor

As a means of taking townhood back to the country where they can hike leafy trails and smell the woods, the automobile is a boon. But it needs to be disciplined. It must not be allowed to destroy the primitive areas to which it gives access. And this it often does when it demands and gets hard-surfaced expressways through wilderness areas.

True, more persons see these areas when they are opened by motor routes, but at what cost? The wild creatures of the forests, the delicate meadow flowers disappear as the crowds bear down on wheels. Those inviting to enter the forests on foot can see very little of them.

The Bride and the Budget

Windsor Star

Observant customers at supermarkets these days will see some noteworthy shopping. These are young couples, newly married, on their first shopping expeditions together.

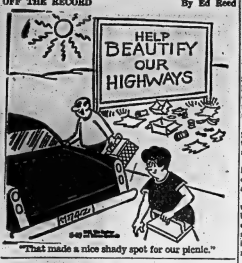
Doubtless the young woman and the young man each had done considerable shopping on their own. Now they were doing it as a team. We happened to be following such a couple the other day.

The young woman was displaying to her young husband her prudence in managing the family budget. She was comparing prices, refraining from buying the most highly priced meats and otherwise exercising judgment. But just at the point of the purchasing, they spotted a luxury item—and they splurged on it.

It's a few years go by and the husband will be content to let the wife do the shopping on her own — provided she doesn't over-extend the family budget, that is. But, in the meantime, they were gaining experience in working in domino harness.

One may ask how we know this was a young bride. Well, there is something about being a bride which brings out the bloom and the beauty in a young woman.

Herald-Tribune Closes Down



Montreal Gazette

The decision to close down the New York Herald - Tribune brings to an end one of the most historic papers in North America. It was actually the combination of two papers, each with a long history of its own.

Only recently the paper attempted to prolong its life by merging with two other New York papers — the Journal-American and the World-Telegram and Sun. But the new merger never had a chance. A strike closed it for more than two days of publication. The strike has lasted 114 days. The owners of the merged papers decided that "the inexorable rise in costs and the recurring strikes have wrought their toll." It would be hopeless to think of ever resuming publication.

With the disappearance of a paper of the size of the Herald-Tribune hundreds of jobs have disappeared also. Its closing down follows the closing down last year of the New York Mirror, a paper whose immense circulation could not compensate for the rising costs that newspaper strikes had imposed upon it.

Over the years one paper after another has closed down, not only in New York itself, but in the surrounding area. One of the important results of the neighborhood was the historic New York Sun and the New Yorker

"That made a nice shady spot for our picnic."

Will Award Scholarship

TWEED — Tweed bowlers are making plans to present a $500 scholarship to a grade 12 or 13 student from the Tweed-Hungerford High School who goes on to higher education.

The money required for the scholarship will be raised by contributions from the bowling leagues, and from one week of open bowling, when all proceeds will be donated to the scholarship fund. Dates for the open bowling are from September 4 to 10.

Secrecy

lead to open defiance of Parliament.

One of them, President W. J. Smith of the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway, Transport and General Workers, has argued that Parliament should not interfere until a strike of seven to 10 days has built up the pressures needed on both sides to bring about a climate for settlement.

The bill setting out strike-ending proposals is to be introduced first and will get the major attention.

But the vital financial key to unlock the wage deadlock will be contained in the second bill, embodying some of the recommendations laid out originally in the MacPherson Royal Commission report five years ago.

Under the MacPherson plan, the railways would be freed of all but the most essential federal controls and thrown into door-die open competition with trucks, planes, ships and pipelines.

The freight-rate freeze of 1899, imposed while the MacPherson study was under way, would be lifted. The carriers would be allowed to adjust their rates at will, subject only to a provision that they cover costs and give a fair deal to captive shippers who have no alternate mode of transport available.

SUGGESTS TIME LIMIT

In addition, the railways would be given five years to abed unprofitable passenger services and 16 years to abandon money-losing branch liner, supported by a sliding subsidy as these steps were carried out.

The legislation may also include establishment of a national transportation policy that Transport Minister Pickersgill has hinted at repeatedly in recent months. This would set up a federal authority charged with supporting the bare out of the nation's complex transport system.

Sole aim of the authority would be to promote efficiency in transportation by merging old and new technologies, abandoning outmoded procedures and promoting lowe-cost techniques. Every basic of transport would be geared to the job it does best.

The legislation needed to bring about these changes is expected to run to almost 20,000 words. It could be the most controversial package ever presented to Parliament.

Two years ago, when the first MacPherson bill was attempted, a storm of protest arose from the Western provinces and the Maritimes. The West objected to the branch-line abandonment program which would uproot hundreds of miles of Prairie lines. Easterners feared adjustment of freight rates would penalize their shippers.

REWRITE SOME PARTS

Since then the government has rewritten large sections of the legislation to meet some of the complaints. But experts consider it almost impossible to draw up a bill satisfying all regional interests.

This leads to the problem of how soon the legislation can be passed. A concerted opposition attack could stall it for months in the various House and committee stages and perhaps even force through some amendments.

The government hopes the railways will make some wage offer to their unions based on the improved financial situation made possible under the new legislation.

But the railways may well refuse to put anything on the bargaining table until the legislation is passed. Informants say some railway officials fear that once the strike crisis is over Parliament may take the bill off the priority list and leave it hung up for months.

The bill has already been promised in four sessions of Parliament without getting off the ground.

H. McGeachy, Broadcaster, Reporter, Dies

TORONTO (CP)—J. B. (Hamish) McGeachy, 67, noted journalist and broadcaster, died in hospital Saturday night from complications arising from an attack of pneumonia.

During the Second World War Mr. McGeachy was chief correspondent for the BBC Overseas Service and became well-known for his daily talks to North America, Latin America, Australia and the Middle East.

He returned to Canada at the end of the war and joined the Toronto Globe and Mail as a member of the editorial board. He later became associate editor of the newspaper.

In 1956 he joined The Financial Post, where he served as associate editor until 1964 when he went into semi-retirement. He continued to write a weekly column for the publication.

A second camp for French - speaking members takes place July 17 to 30 at Camp Bouchard, near Montreal.

National Guard Bayonets Shield Civil Rights Marchers From Mob

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (AP)—Civil rights marchers, shielded by national guard bayonets from screaming and taunting throngs of whites, picketed in suburban Wauwatosa Sunday night for the 19th night in a row.

Meanwhile, in Waukegan, Ill., a homemade gasoline bomb smashed into an automobile Sunday night and burned six passengers during the peak of the third straight night of rioting in a Negro district. Sixty-three persons, most of them Negroes, were arrested.

The firebomb victims were in serious condition in hospital.

The fire department estinguished 10 blazes—set by firebombs—during the evening.

The rioting Sunday was said to have been triggered by two white men who walked into a Negro tavern. They were beaten and the tires of their car were punctured.

Soon after, bands of Negro youths began milling in the streets and the stoning and bottle-throwing began.

The Negro marches, who returned to Milwaukee with hundreds of guardsmen of all sides, planned to go back to the suburb again tonight. The tension there has produced no violence and only a handful of arrests.

Protests against membership by Judge Robert C. Cannon in the allegedly racially-restricted Fraternal Order of Eagles reached an emotional peak Sunday night — the 10th night of picketing in Cannon's tree-lined neighborhood of expensive brick and stone homes.

A national guard officer estimated that 2,000 to 3,500 persons jammed sidewalks and curbsides as the predominantly Negro band of 300 marchers walked five miles through downtown Milwaukee and into the neighborhood.

MOTHERS TAKE STAND

TOKYO (AP) — A campaigning against pornography, the mothers' association of Tokyo's Suginmo district has put a large trash basket in front of a railway station. The sign reads: "If you cannot help your child's matter yourself, at least dump it in this container after you're finished—instead of throwing it home where it can harm the morals of your children."

"Mutt" Show Sponsored By Humane Society Enjoyed by Large Crowd

"Flame" and "Fang" could be the names of a pair of ferocious man-eating tigers, but Saturday they were the names of two relatively harmless pooches who competed in the first Quinte Humane Society "Mutt" Show at Queen Elizabeth School grounds.

The show, which was open to practically every conceivable type or types of canine, drew more than 50 entries, and attracted a sizeable group of dog-lovers as spectators.

During the two-hour show, the dog-owners, the majority of whom were youngsters, learned the procedures of a professional show, as they entered the holding ring, and paraded their respective entries before a panel of judges.

"Cocoa", a miniature collie owned by Gordon Hale, was awarded the auspicious title of "best groomed dog in Belleville" in an award lodged by Inspector W. McDonald of the Humane Society. "Flame", shown by Paul James, and "Argy", shown by Norah Honeyman were the other prize winners in this class.

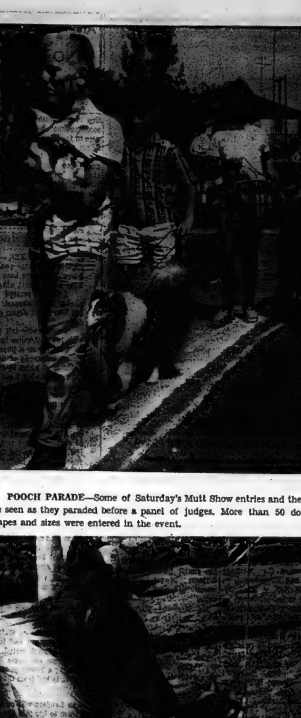
Top prize for obedience went to Rusty", owned by Barbara Tate, with second prize going to Julia Galbraith's "Brandy," and third to "Rusky", shown by Mike Driscoll.

DID PARLOR TRICKS

"Quenelle" cleverness at parlor tricks won owner Brenda Stanley first prize in this category. "Mickey", owned by Eddie Anderson, was next. "Lady", shown by Janice Blake, finished second and third respectively.

A special presentation of a plaque for "most appealing dog" of the show went to Conny Thomson and his dog "Butch."

Other prize-winners included "Tiger", owned by Mimi McAuley, for longest tail; "Lad", Molly Gordon, curliest tail or coat; "Penaia", shown by by Sally Taylor, shaggiest dog; and Sharon McCrystle's "Porky", as might be anticipated from its name, won the fattest dog class.



Judges for the competition were Mrs. H. Clough of Trenton, Norman Edwards, and Murray James. Kathleen James, Harry Clough and R. L. Brettingham served as ring stewards.

The show was opened by the president of the Quinte Humane Society, T. Rhonius, who expressed the society's appreciation to local merchants who donated prizes.

FORGOT TAX

CONCORD, N.H. (AP) — The New Hampshire legislature has been called back for a special session—because everyone forgot a one-cent gasoline tax dating back to 1851 expires July 1. Gov. John W. King called the session after an oil industry spokesman tipped one of King's aides. New Hampshire would lose about $2,000,000 annually if the tax were not renewed.

COMMITTEE ON THE HEALING ARTS

ONTARIO

NOTICE

The Committee on the Healing Arts has been appointed under an Order-in-Council, approved by His Honour the Lieutenant Governor of Ontario, dated July 14th, 1966, and pursuant to The Public Inquiries Act. It will inquire into and report upon all matters relating to the education and regulation relevant to the practice of the Healing Arts (professions and occupations in the health fields).

In its inquiries the Committee will consider such matters as:—

- entrance requirements, education, instruction and training for the practice of all the Healing Arts in Ontario.
- constitution, powers, duties, and regulation of any educational, licensing or disciplinary body having any relation to the Healing Arts.
- appropriate methods for the supervision, control, regulation, and discipline of all those practicing or professing to practice any of the Healing Arts in Ontario.
- existing or possible methods of examining, licensing or otherwise authorizing the carrying on by individuals of the practice of any methods relating to the Healing Arts, the standards prescribed and followed or proper to be established and followed.
- the merits of the services and practice of all the disciplines associated with the Healing Arts.
- the existing laws of Ontario in relation to the foregoing and their practical operation on any related matters.

The Committee wishes to benefit from the knowledge and experience of organizations and individuals who have facts and opinions to contribute to the field of this inquiry. An invitation for written submissions is hereby given to all who feel they can assist the Committee in its work and who would like their views to be known.

Submissions should be forwarded by December 1st, 1966, in order that they may be studied before the commencement of Public Hearings thereon.

The Committee will hold an inaugural public meeting on Monday, September 19th, 1966, at 11 a.m., at 135 St. Clair Avenue West, Toronto 7, (15th Floor). No submissions will be heard at this Meeting but the terms of reference of the Committee will be discussed and the proposed procedures of the Committee outlined.

It would be appreciated if you would notify the Committee of your intention to make a submission or to attend the inaugural meeting as soon as possible.

Samsonite breaks the cost barrier in lightweight luggage

Example: This handsome 21" case weighs only 5¼ pounds, costs only $25.95

Samsonite announces Debonair, a low priced luggage with a whole new range of high-price features!

An incredibly tough moulded shell is combined with the famous Samsonite aluminum frame to make this new luggage the lightest and most durable in its class.

Smartly styled Debonair comes in seven cases and six colours. The colours cannot crack or peel because they are fused to the case. Samsonite Debonair is beautifully lined—in colours that match or complement the exterior. A magnesium frame provides a tongue-and-groove seal to help keep out damp and dust. And Debonair's recessed locks keep these cases tightly closed—even in baggage pile-ups where other locks may click open accidentally.

Go happy! Go lightly! With new Samsonite Debonair—luxury luggage at economy prices!

DRY AUTUMN PLEASURES 'OR WINTER TREASURES

Let no one deny there are rasses and weeds for interest- ng dried winter centre pieces od bouquets.

Gourds are gorgeous.

But they shouldn't be picked till fully ripe and the vine oliage is withered and dry. Whether you buy them at the egetable and fruit market, or ut them down carefully your- elf, handle the ones destined for reserving with care.

Use only the perfect ones. Discard any with scratches or irritiers. Wash thoroughly in a trong household disinfectant at olution and lay out on a screen n a cool dim room for about two weeks. From time to time wipe off condensation of moist- ure that may form and always keep them from touching one nother.

As a preservative, shellac nd varnish are out. When the hell of the gourd is hard and firm, give it a lustrous long-last- ing finish by coating it complete- y with liquid wax.

Notice how this treatment emphasizes the positive?

Pick those baby bull-rushes now to lend character and grace of form to off-season centre pieces.

If you've had trouble with their mattress-filling heads drying out and bursting there's a simple preventative. Dip the heads only in white shellac (fruit juice cans are suggested for this procedure) and hang them upside down to dry. Warm attics and garages are just the places.

Autumn colored Indian corn can be made even more attractive by turning back the husks a little and allowing these husks to curl the rest of the way themselves. They will dry to a lovely almost transparent white.

Pine cones, of course, will dry when laid outside, with no trouble. Separate them well in a single layer in an open box. A gentle scrubbing with detergent suds first, will eliminate any stickiness.

Add a smattering of rough texture and odd shape to any centre piece with a scattering of beach nuts or any of the inedible varieties one finds in the country.

Wash and dry them as with pine cones and store in a jar with moth crystals till ready for use. This will prevent the inroad of insects and worms.

MR. AND MRS. EDWARD JOHN PLATA

Plata — Trudeau

White gladioli formed the setting recently in the Church of St. Michael the Archangel, Belleville when Cletus Mary Trudeau, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Joseph Trudeau became the bride of Edward John Plata of Sarnia and Belleville, son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Plata. Monsignor T. J. Sullivan performed the marriage ceremony and Monsignor J. A. Carley and Rev. T. E. Brieland were in the sanctuary.

Miss Dorothy Grant, organist provided the wedding music and accompanied the soloist, Mr. William Mann.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, Mr. John Joseph Trudeau wore an elegant ivory floor-length gown, fashioned from peau D'ange lace material. The dress was made on straight lines with a slightly raised bodice of fine silk peau de soie and the waist emphasized by a tiny bow of the same fabric. A delicate scalloped edged cape of peau D'ange lace material covered the shoulders and arms and fell gracefully into a cathedral train. Her headpiece was fashioned of the same peau D'ange lace mantleau ring design and held her veil of tinted pure silk illusion which completely covered her train. She carried a hand bouquet of white Starlight roses, mingled with leaves of lemon.

Mrs. David E. Dinan attended her sister as matron of honour, while Mrs. Yvon A. Loubert, Mrs. John B. Trudeau and Mrs. Rolland Bonneau, as bridesmaids were attired in floor-length gowns of pink crepe fashioned on the Empire line with straight skirts and having a panel which extended from the waist at the back. The round neck lines were enhanced by crystal beading which also bordered the open square necklines in the back. They were matching circlet headpieces carried crescent bouquets of white mums with deep green accents.

Mr. Raymond Plata attended his brother as groomsman, while Messrs. Walter Plata, Ernest Bodner and Ronald Murphy were ushers.

The reception was held in the Prince Edward Suite and the Pinnacle Room, Hotel Quinte, where the guests were received by the bride's mother, who was attired in a gown of pale aqua shade with beige trim, matching jacket, matching feather hat and corsage of pink Sweetheart roses. She was assisted in the receiving line by the bridegroom's mother, who wore a gown of pale pink shantung matching jacket, and matching flowered hat and a corsage of white roses.

For the wedding trip to the Eastern United States and then to Europe, the bride chose a light wool suit of pale blue with matching hat and mink stole and navy blue accessories and a white corsage.

After an extended tour of Europe the young couple will reside there for the next two years.

Ann Landers

No Licence Required To Give Information

ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS — A few nights ago we were sitting around with a group of extremely intelligent people and someone quoted you. As a rebuttal (and I'm sure in jest) one of the chaps said, "They ought to get her for practising without a licence."

I am not trying to be impertinent, but would you please explain how and why you can give advice on legal, medical and emotional problems? Is it sufficient to quote from the authorities?

Let me repeat, I do not mean to be arbitrary. I am merely inquisitive — NOSEY PARKER.

P.S. It was significant to me, at least, that every person in the room was a reader of your column.

DEAR PARKER — If it were possible to "get" me for anything, I assure you I would have been "got" long ago. I would not have been in this work for 11 years, nor would mine be the most widely syndicated column in the world.

I do not pretend to be what I am not. I despise the phoney and dishonest. Legally, I could use the title "Dr." but I wouldn't dream of doing so since it was an honorary degree.

I repeatedly tell my readers that although I consult with top authorities in almost every field imaginable, I am no a lawyer or a physician or a psychiatrist. Every week I send thousands of people to professionals and to welfare agencies — which in itself is an enormous service. And this is precisely what I am trying to do — offer service to those who ask for it. Why people write to a newspaper for help with personal problems is the subject for a book, but the fact is they do — approximately 1000 of them every day.

No one needs a license to listen. No one needs a license to provide a shoulder to cry on or to direct the troubled and the uninformed to service agencies, or to give a word of encouragement to the heavy-hearted, or a swift kick in the posterior to the arrogant. There's more to getting the job done than having a license — as any fisherman will tell you.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — Ever since those husbands wrote to complain about their wives undressing in the closet I have been watching the paper to see if a wife would write in about her husband doing the same thing. No letter from a wife has appeared so I guess I am the only woman in the whole country who is married to such a nut.

I've never seen Walter without a T-shirt although we have been married two years. He even swims in his T-shirt. Walter is a healthy, normal man in every respect except this one.

He prefers a plain black room for romance but then I don't think there's anything unusual about that and I would never try to change it. Please tell me what you think about a husband who will not take off his T-shirt in front of his wife. — B. WILDERED.

DEAR B. — Walter's fix is probably linked with his early childhood and it may be that even he doesn't know why or when it started.

There are worse things than a man whose hang-up is wearing a T-shirt at all times. For example: the moron who drives to and from the beach wearing only swimming trunks.

* * *

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped self-addressed envelope.

Must Discard Feelings Of Privacy Says Bishop

HAMILTON (CP) — The strength and external effectiveness of the Roman Catholic Church in this century will depend partly on the ability of its members to become actively involved in the world's problems, Most Rev. Thomas J. McCarthy said Sunday.

The Roman Catholic bishop of St. Catharines was addressing the opening session of the annual convention of the Catholic Women's League of Canada.

He said Christian history has resulted in religious individualism, a sense of "I and my God," and that Christians must discard this feeling of privacy. They must learn to act as members of a corporate body with a duty to become involved.

He said this was one of the lessons and problems of the second Vatican council.

"Precisely because religious manners are so deeply influenced by the Christian spirit, they are more impervious to change than are our social, economic and cultural ways of living.

"That will, in part, account for the phenomenon that confronted the second Vatican council, that is to say, a church striving to make the unchanging Gospel of Christ effective in this 20th century, yet frustrated and handicapped by a mentality and technique out of touch with the times, mainly because the concept of the church as a living, dynamic, spiritual society was having difficulty starting itself in the face of legal tradition and deep-seated religious individualism."

MR. AND MRS. JOHN V. TUEPAH

Tuepah — Matthews

Holy Rosary Church, Belleville, was the setting for the summer wedding recently when Brenda Ruth Matthews of Toronto, formerly of Harold, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert S. Matthews, was united in marriage to John Vincent Tuepah of Oshawa, son of Mr. and Mrs. Francis Tuepah. The Rev. R. Sweeney officiated at the double-ring ceremony.

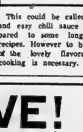
Mr. Ernest Reed, the organist provided traditional wedding music and accompanied his son Michael who was soloist.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a floor-length gown of silk organza which featured a fitted bodice and rounded neckline. Lace appliques and tiny satin bows enhanced the front of her gown and the edges of the three quarter length sleeves. The dress was highlighted at the back with a slight train. A silk organza rose held her bouffant bulle veil and she carried a cascade of red roses interspersed with stephanotis and trailing ivy.

The reception was held at Club Canara where the bride's mother received the guests wearing a blue linen sheath with a lace bodice. She wore white accessories and a corsage of white carnations and pink Sweetheart roses. She was assisted by the bridegroom's mother who wore a pink sheath with a matching jacket. She also wore white accessories and a corsage of blue tinted carnations.

For the wedding trip to the western provinces the bride donned a yellow sheath of chantilly lace with a matching three-quarter length jacket, white accessories and an orchid corsage.

Mr. and Mrs. Tuepah will reside at 178 Briarhill Avenue, Toronto, Ontario.



RECIPE FOR CHILI SAUCE

When one of our friends smelled and tasted our Chili Sauce he said, "Aren't you rushing the Fall season, Mary?"

I am, but foreminded readers write early asking for my chili sauce recipe. However chili sauce should be made when tomatoes are at the height of their season in your area, when they are red ripe and cheap.

MONDAY

Dinner Menu

by Mary Moore

Baked Meat Loaf Hawaiian, Cauliflower au Gratin, Shredded Beets, Tossed Greens with Roquefort Dressing, Blueberries and Cream, Spice Cake, Tea.

This could be called quick and easy chili sauce if compared to some long-cooking recipes. However to blend all of the lovely flavors, slow cooking is necessary.

F. G.'s CHILI SAUCE:

NOTE:

This is adapted from a recipe from my friend, Pearl Gilbert.

2 cups peeled ripe tomatoes cut in eighths
3 cups finely chopped inner celery
2 cups chopped onion
¼ cup pickling salt (not iodized table salt)
2 cups sugar
1 cup cider vinegar (or spirit vinegar)
½ oz. (2 tablespoons) mustard seed
1/16 tsp. cayenne pepper
1 medium green pepper chopped finely

one 6-oz. can tomato paste

Pour boiling water over about 2½ quarts tomatoes to blanch for 1 min. Drain. Peel and cut in eighths then measure 12 cups, well packed. (If you have a 1-quart measure fill it 2 times to the four-cup line.) Stir in the chopped celery and onion and sprinkle over the pickling salt and stir in and let stand overnight. In the morning drain through colander to drain off excess liquid but do not press it. Turn into large kettle (not enamel) and add sugar, vinegar, mustard seed and cayenne and boil for 45 min. or until celery is tender and tomatoes are cooked to a mush, stirring frequently. Now add finely chopped green pepper and the tomato paste and boil 15 to 20 min. longer or until green pepper is tender and all is of chili sauce consistency. Pour into sterile jars and seal.

Ellen Ballon, Noted Canadian Pianist, Agrees To Write Her Memoirs

By CAROL KENNEDY

LONDON (CP)—"You must write it all down, Ellen, my dear," American publisher Max Reinhardt told the celebrated Canadian pianist at a New York party.

Ellen Ballon has finally taken his advice and is starting—he, write her memoirs. The book is finished, but is about a year's time, it will portray a remarkable musical career and an even more remarkable array of celebrities who have been her friends—such historic figures as Sir Wilfrid Laurier, Toscanini and Somerset Maugham.

Its pages will distil the essence of a vanished style of living which this tiny, vivacious, black - haired woman still pursues with undiminished zest.

"I shall be going back to Montreal to start sorting through the family papers—such an enormous task! sometimes feel like giving the whole thing up," says the Montreal-born pianist, sipping a glass of Vichy water in her London apartment while regaling her guest to dispose of a heaped silver dish of caviar and a bottle of Bollinger champagne.

"I have a big bundle of the most wonderful letters from Sir Wilfrid Laurier—I was his proteges, you know.

Laurier, who died in 1919, was enchanted by the black-haired moppet who began playing by ear at the age of 3½ and gave her first public recital in Windsor Hall at Montreal a year later. One of a family of seven gifted musical children, Ellen and a sister and brother, all under eight, formed the "Ballon Trio."

ENCHANTED MAUGHAM

At six she moved to New York to begin a series of studies under great teachers —one of whom had been a pupil of Liszt.

Later she played at the White House for President William H. Taft, and succeeded Theodore Roosevelt in 1909. She was the youngest pianist, and the first Canadian pianist, ever to give a recital for a U.S. President.

In 1934 she again played at the White House, this time for President Franklin D. Roosevelt.

As Ellen Ballon, now in her mid-40s, talked in the fifth-floor apartment overlooking a leafy Knightsbridge square that she and husband Lt.-Col. Theodore (Ted) Bullock rented for the summer, the memories came welling up.

Somerset Maugham was captivated when Edna Ferber, author of Show Boat, introduced him to Ellen in Rochester, N.Y.

"That girl has candles behind her eyes," the writer told his host.

"As soon as I met Willie, (Maugham's nickname), I felt an immediate rapport between us," recalled Ellen. "All this horrid stuff that has been written about him lately —I knew nothing about that side," she continued, referring to the cruelly outspoken accounts of his homosexual relationships that have been recently published in Britain.

"I knew another side of Willie. I think he was different with me than he was with anyone else. He was very . . . tender," she said, searching for the right word.

"I think he felt safe with me. You know, he was a very lonely person and I have always been very lonely at heart, though perhaps you wouldn't think so."

MUST BE PERFECT

Maugham gave her the manuscript of The Colonel's Lady, inscribed to her, as well as a first edition of Liza of Lambeth, his first novel.

Dipping at random through the years, she recalled a sparkling European tour of 1923 when she gave private recitals for princesses, was presented to King George V and Queen Mary and dominated concert platforms in Vienna, Amsterdam and Berlin, swathed in dramatic cloaks like something out of a Goya portrait.

She has always relished brilliant clothes and demanded perfection in them as in everything else.

"Valentino, who used to design for me, called me The Duchess," laughed Ellen, her lustrous dark eyes sparkling as she sat in a brocaded chair in a striped silk ankle-length dress of vivid pink shades, topped by an embroidered yellow jacket.

Ellen, only four-feet-eleven, has the architect hands of any noted concert pianist in the world. They can barely stretch an octave, yet her playing has a tumultuous power and fire.

The late Jacob Epstein did a bust of her, with hands closed one above the other. She plans to lend it to Quebec House in London, where she will give a recital next May for 45 "special guests."

Ellen Bleeck's roots are in Quebec—husband Ted Bullock was also formerly of Horton Road, Que.—and although her "headquarters" now are in New York, she remains deeply attached to Canada and intensely proud of the doctor-ate the university gave her in 1954.

WON CAMPAIGN

She was a pupil of the McGill Conservatorium at five, starting to direct—a scholarship, and after the Second World War, when the Conservatorium seemed on the verge of closing, she began a 14-year-long campaign to whip up public interest in keeping it going.

Instituting a series of lectures by renowned figures in the musical world, she soon had almost everyone who came to McGill, giving their services for nothing.

Veteran opera star Lotte Lehmann came three times. She described Ellen Ballon as a "genius" — "and coming from so opera singer to a pianist, that was some tribute," chipped in Ted Bullock.

The McGill campaign culminated triumphantly—to the teeth of opposition from some powerful academics — in a huge, glittering benefit performance to launch a permanent endowment fund for Marriott Scholarships. The marriott bird is McGill's symbol.

Ellen and seven other pianists played at the benefit, and the whole project—held at Montreal's Ritz-Carlton Hotel was flung open to accommodate the 300 guests who each paid $100 and stayed until dawn.

But Ellen Ballon found the sweet taste of success soured by jealous reactions from some musicians and academics. She says the memoirs will not lack controversial disclosures.

AURA O FGLAMOR

Most of her musical friendships, however, have been richly rewarding. Villa-Lobos, the famous South American composer, wrote his first piano concerto for her and also gave its world premiere at Rio de Janeiro in 1946.

A great regret is that she never met Rachmaninoff—"the man I admire above all others." One of her most treasured possessions is a platinum and ruby bracelet fashioned like the opening bars of the score of Rachmaninoff's second piano concerto, given her by "an admirer."

Two like this that have been typical of her life. Everything she does is burnished with the style and glamour of bygone days. At the dinner parties for which she is famous, the flowers, food and wine are always exquisite, the name - cards are decorated with tiny hand-made scarlet birds and the matches—matchbooks with clusters of silk flowers.

The Bullocks spend their year at London and Montreal and at their palatial apartment on New York's East 67th Street with a drawing-room two storeys high.

People are apt to tell her, with a flash of envy, that her way of life is a thing of the past, that times have changed.

"My reply is—why should I change with them? It is important to hold to your standards, to be true to yourself. I am a perfectionist and a romantic, although I have always had to have my feet planted firmly on the ground, too."

She chuckled mischievously; "And like all Libra people, I am perhaps a little mad."

A REMINDER

Wedding forms for write-ups are available at The Intelligencer and should be completed and returned BEFORE the ceremony as a report can be published immediately after the wedding.

Pictures may be submitted by your photographer up to three days after the wedding. We cannot publish wedding write-ups submitted later than six days after the date of the ceremony.

Accounts of showers and entertainments in honour of the bride-to-be should with the wedding write-up, but should be sent in found lately after they are held, for publication separately.

Family Reunion

SPRACKETT - POUND CLAN

The 5th annual reunion of the descendants of the late George Spracksett and Maria Pound was held at the summer residence of Mr. and Mrs. James H. Spracksett on Wadsworth Lake, last weekend, when 81 relatives and friends were present from Ottawa, Toronto, Orangeville, Cannifton, Foxboro, Oshawa, Gilmour, Kingston and Belleville.

Mr. James Spracksett welcomed everyone and extended an invitation to the gathering to assemble at the same spot again next year.

After a bountiful picnic, the afternoon was spent with the adults exchanging family news accumulated over the past year. A sing-song was led by Miss Lillian Spracksett of Belleville, accompanied by Don, Terry and Frank Spracksett on their Spanish - electric guitar, ukele and violin, respectively.

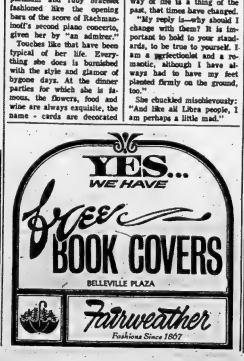
The young fry spent their day swimming, boating and climbing and participating in organized games. Winners of items of the sports events were:

Races: up to 5 years — Scott Wilson, Paul Loomberry and Michael Spracksett; 6-7-8 years — Cheryl Spracksett, Karen Anderson and Terry Wilson; 9-10-11 years — John Spracksett, Danny Spracksett and John Loomberry; open up to 14 years — Tony, Johnny and Danny Spracksett.

Running broad jump: up to 5 years — Scott Wilson, Paul Loomberry and Michael Spracksett; 6-7-8 years — Terry Anderson, Cheryl Spracksett and Kirsten Anderson; 10-11-12 years — John and Danny Spracksett and John Loomberry; open up to 14 years — Tony, John and Danny Spracksett.

Three-legged race: open to all ages (couples) — John and Kevin Loomberry, John Spracksett and Kurt Anderson, Tony and Danny Spracksett.

Prize for the person travelling the furthest distance to attend went to Mrs. Keith (Joan) Spracksett, Orangeville. Mr. Ernest Wilson again took the prize for being the oldest at 80 years of age; while 2 year-old Michael Spracksett of Toronto captured the prize for youngest present. The prize for the couple married longest went to Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Wilson (nee Eunice Spracksett), Belleville, who have been married 58 years; while Mr. and Mrs. Tracy King (nee Dianne McKenzie), Belleville copped the prize for most recently married.



The gathering voted to accept Mr. James Spracksett's invitation and promptly elected him president for the 6th annual reunion, which will be again held at Wadsworth Lake on the third Sunday in August, 1961. Other executive officers for the coming year are: Mrs. Terry Spracksett, secretary; and Mr. Ted Spracksett, treasurer.

Successful Living

Statuesque Girls Tell Giraffe To Stand Tall

DEAR DORIS — I know how this 15-year, five-feet ten girl ("Just a Giraffe") must feel, because I am in the same shoes, if not worse, for I am six feet. My sister is six feet two, another sister five feet eleven. We had troubles at school and at dances, and in buying clothes. But as you grow up you come to care less about that, for enough people like tall girls. I married a five feet nine husband, and don't want to give him up for anything in the world. Now I even wear heels and think it's very becoming.

Whatever you do, never walk stumping over. Keep your shoulders straight and head up!

DORIS CLARK

Sooner or later, nobody will call you names anymore, or find you too tall. Future years are of that, once your figure fills out more. So thumbs up! — SIX FEET TALL.

(Try turning your trouble into triumph by getting help from a trained social worker. Doris can put you on the right track.)

Wide Disagreement Exists Over Best Way to Prevent Toll of Traffic Accidents

By BOB MacKENZIE

OTTAWA (CP)—Almost everybody agrees that something must be done to curb the rising toll of traffic accidents. But agreement stops there.

Some think speed limits should be lowered. Some want them raised. Others want minimum speeds introduced.

"There is conflict of ideas on everything," says F. R. Thurston, director of a National Research Council study group on auto accidents.

But the fact that experts have individual suggestions and recommendations points up one vital missing ingredient—adequate research on which to base solid recommendations.

Mr. Thurston heads NRC's aeronautical establishment and the five-man motor vehicle accident study group set up within his own department. The group has not been able to initiate any research programs but has concentrated on examining the results of projects carried out in North America and Europe.

The group's first report—in a series of seven papers—makes several suggestions but cautions that further study is needed before drawing concrete conclusions.

EVIDENCE INCONCLUSIVE

For example, the report says there is no conclusive evidence to show that persons taking driver education courses have fewer accidents than those who do not. These courses could become valuable, however, if studies were made to base programs on scientifically evaluated research data.

Until the federal government gives the go-ahead, the study group is limited to comparing results of outside work in the field. One of its first recommendations after being set up late last year was for a Canadian motor vehicle research centre to conduct and co-ordinate accident research.

Industry Minister Drury has since told a Commons committee studying the problem that the cabinet is considering the proposal. A decision may be made this fall.

Lack of scientific data is not a new problem in the auto safety field and is already evident in present law. Mrs. Thurston said in an interview.

"Many of our regulations are based on the vociferousness of their advocates, rather than on technical need."

How does an aeronautical establishment fit into auto safety?

The two fields are really close together, Mr. Thurston says. Basic research into air accidents and their prevention—material fatigue, operator (pilot) performance, the effect of environment—are common to both fields.

A new area will open if the motor vehicle research centre is established, for several programs probably would be applicable to both fields.

Establishment of the centre is not that simple, however. It involves a sticky problem of federal-provincial jurisdiction in the auto safety field, a problem that could delay any decision by Mr. Drury.

Also, little if any automotive design work is carried out in Canada, so the federal government or any provincial government that tries to legislate about safety features in motor vehicle design might face a difficult task trying to influence the head offices of U.S. and European car makers.

This still leaves the big fields of highway design, driver training and licensing, and revision and/or enforcement of highway regulations.

No immediate solution is in the offing, Mr. Thurston adds, but he does see a brighter side of the problem.

"At least people are becoming conscious of auto and highway safety. This alone could go a long way to reducing accidents."

Pinch Hitting

By GARRY ALEXANDER
Staff Sportswriter

The wheels of progress in Belleville's senior hockey machinery are picking up speed day by day.

Season tickets, at $25 each for twenty home games, went on sale less than a week ago.

As of Saturday morning, over eighty had been sold, according to team business manager Ron Frick. "I feel that our season tickets will go good", said Fralick, "in fact I will not be surprised if there are 400 or more sold before the season opens."

"And don't forget", he added, "there are a lot of the old faithful fans who won't buy a season ticket but who will still attend every game and grab up their old spots in the ends."

Floyd Crawford, who has signed with the club as playing coach, nodded his agreement and turned to a hockey calendar hanging on a nearby wall. A picture of the Detroit Red Wings was displayed on the current month.

"There are our sweaters", he exclaimed, "we just decided on the pattern and color this week, very much like the Red Wings."

Floyd is one of four players now under contract with the club. Crawford will serve in the dual role of coach and player.

The others are well known city athletes, Ralph Plane, John "Shaker" Baker and Doug Murray.

"I want to point out to the fans that these three fellows have proven their hockey ability during the past few years playing with the Syracuse team", Crawford said.

"The fans will notice a big change in them from say four years ago. They have played against the leading Eastern teams and numerous other clubs in the Eastern, the International ,the OHA Senior"A" League and some pro clubs. They will be an asset to the club."

Syracuse Stars, an outlaw club piled up most impressive records for the past number of years in exhibitions, usually playing to packed arenas.

"We have contacted numerous other players, some excellent prospects in the import class, but I don't feel free to release their names until we either sign them in a contract or until training camp. We don't want to have them snapped up by someone else", Crawford said.

Fralick did mention the names of some other local players who will be trying out with the team. Included were Wayne "Weiner" Brown, "Moe" Hunter, Jack Hughes, Peter Weston, Stu Muirhead, Lionel Boily and Lou Sturko.

Muirhead, Weston and Dave Jones played with Kingston Aces in the senior loop last season.

Jones told Belleville recently that he had again signed with Kingston. Both Crawford and Fralick admitted that Jones would have been a welcome asset to the Belleville team. "But he said they had treated him real good in Kingston and I guess he just wanted to stay with them", said Fralick, "so all we could do was wish him luck."

A number of the city hopefuls are currently working out daily at the local "Y", under the watchful eye of coach Crawford.

Floyd, as the faithful will remember, works at the sport just as hard in practice as he does during a game. You can bet that players on Crawford's club will give all they've got, all the time, or else!

Along these lines is the present training system.

"We have arranged for Rick Locke, a well-conditioned physical education teacher to handle these workouts. He has arranged a program to get the boys in as good a shape as possible before the "on ice" training commences", Fralick said.

"And you should see some of our tongues hanging out when Rick gets through", laughed Crawford.

Invitations have been, or soon will be, sent to many other district players to attend the team's training camp, slated to open in Trenton in about a month's time.

Pre-season exhibition games are being arranged and player help has been promised from several places. Crawford hinted that he felt Belleville would have a strong defensive squad, leading one to believe that a goalie and perhaps a couple of defencemen were on the coaches' "shopping" list.

Fralick and Crawford are at least two men who feel Belleville will have a contending team, ready for action, when the ten-team league opens in the middle of October.

But if we don't, one gets the feeling that it won't be from a lack of trying.

Saskatchewan Shares Western Lead

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Oelfar-dwelling Calgary and British Columbia lost weekend decisions in the Western Football Conference — the Stampeders became the latest to mount an offensive and the Lions because things kept getting in the way.

Saskatchewan Roughriders edged the Lions 30-29 Sunday before 31,500 fans at Vancouver while the Eskimos defeated the Stampeders 26-5 Saturday in a rain-drenched game witnessed by 18,000 fans in Edmonton.

The Lions Bobbed two chances to beat Saskatchewan—the first when Sonny Homer, seemingly headed for a touchdown, slammed into the goalpost and the second when Bill McKinley's field-goal attempt in the closing seconds was knocked down by the Riders' Ron Lancaster.

Statistics told the story of the Eskimos - Stampeders game as the Calgary defence, suffering from the loss of four-way passer, was able to gain only 13 yards rushing and 63 passing.

Saskatchewan's victory moved them into a first-place tie with idle Winnipeg Blue Bombers, each with four wins. Winnipeg has a game in hand with only one loss this season against the Riders' two.

Hugh Campbell got two Rider touchdowns and Paul Dudley the other.

Jack Abendschan, whose field goal at 6:55 of the fourth quarter gave the Riders the 30-29 lead, had one other field goal and three converts. The other points came on a single and a safety touch.

Bill Munsey scored two touchdowns for the Lions and Willie Fleming and Dave Morton shared the others. Mitchell kicked four converts and the single.

The Stampeders, with Bill Gaskine, Ted Woods and Lovell Coleman out of action with hamstrings tendons, watched replacement Greg Palsmountain added to the injury list Saturday night with a dislocated shoulder. He will be out for several weeks.

Jim Thomas scored two touchdowns for Edmonton, Rendy Kerbow got the other major and added a single on a punt. Tommy - Joe Coffey converted twice and added another point when his field goal attempt went wide. Two safety touches in the third quarter rounded out the Eskimo scoring.

Larry Uteseau scored all Calgary's points on a field goal and two singles on wide field goal attempts.

Calgary Releases Eagle Day

EDMONTON (CP) — Calgary Stampeders of the Western Football Conference Saturday released quarterback Eagle Day after waiving him through the Canadian Football League.

Day has been replaced in the first - string quarterback job with the Stamps by Pete Liske.

Day broke into football with Winnipeg Blue Bombers in 1960. After being released by Winnipeg, he joined Washington Redskins of the National Football League, then came to Stampeders in September, 1961.

General manager Roger Lebrun said he delayed the move "as long as I could because I hoped something would happen to allow him to play."

Lebrun denied rumors the players had lost confidence in Day. —

"Our players had great respect for him. Everybody knows he is a good football player."

Day has a job with an oil company in Calgary, but Lebrun said: "He wants to play football."

British Rider Killed In Race

DOUGLAS, Isle of Man (AP) —Brian Duffy, 47-year-old British rider, was killed Sunday when his Yamaha motorcycle crashed on the last lap of the 250 c.c. Tourist Trophy race.

Duffy's motorcycle crashed near the highest part of the 226.35-mile course.

Mike Hailwood of Britain, riding a six - cylinder Japanese Honda, won the race, his eighth victory on the circuit.

Hailwood, 26, who had already clinched the 350 and 500 c.c. world titles for 1966, averaged 101.79 miles an hour for the 226.35-mile course.

15-Inning Thriller

Point Anne Ousts Madoc 1-0

A lone run in the bottom of the 15th inning ended a tremendous pitching duel in Sunday Saturday afternoon and gave Bill Shaw's Point Anne Cementmen a 1-0 triumph over Madoc.

Point Anne, underdogs going into the OASA Junior "C" playdowns, won two games, three set two games to one with Saturday's victory.

Ronnie Maracle, for the winners, and Larry Griffin, of Madoc, provided the fans with a superb pitching duel from the route.

The Cementmen finally got to Griffin in the 15th for the lone run to end it.

Larry Fraser, ninth man in the Pointers' batting order, opened the inning with a single to right. Mike Cook and Denny Maher followed with bunt singles to load the bases.

That brought David Akey to the plate, with none out, and the hard-hitting Maracle to follow. Maracle never got to the plate. Griffin hit Akey on the shoulder with a pitch. It forced home the run and left Griffin with a heart-breaking defeat.

Maracle stopped Madoc on six hits over the distance. He retired the first batter in the fourth until the 12th. The strong - armed right-hander struck out 12 and walked five.

Griffin gave up eight hits in all, three of them in the 15th, and had a two-hitter going into the ninth frame. He struck out 16 and walked four.

Maracle made a bid to win his own game in the sixth inning. With 3 mate on via a single, and with two out, he slammed a tremendous blast that veteran observers said travelled 300 feet to centre. Madoc's Ray LeSage, playing deep, went back fast and pulled it down with a great catch.

Mike Cook and Maracle accounted for half the winners' hits, each with two singles. Larry Fraser, Denny Maher, David Akey and Rick Rosebush got the others.

Brian Stewart singled twice and Harold Bailey hit a double on Madoc's behalf. George Allison, Hall Smith and Brian Gray hit singles. The club had a man on in each of the 12th, 13th and 15th innings, "but could not score," Maracle never allowed more than one hit per inning after only once. In the third, did Madoc manage two runners.

Four Golds, Two Records

Winnipeg Girl Star Of Meet

By DOUG MARTIN

RICHMOND, B.C. (CP) — Janet Madsin, 17, of Winnipeg won four gold medals Saturday and Sunday and turned the Canadian age class track and field championships into a one-girl show.

She also set two Canadian age class records and was voted the outstanding juvenile girl in the meet.

Thirteen other Canadian age class records fell during the two-day meet in this municipal suburb of Vancouver.

Miss Madsin set her records in the juvenile women's class of 440 yards—distances she started running in July when she won a berth on the Canadian British Empire Games team.

Her other gold medals came in the 100 yards and in the 880 relay, where she ran the anchor leg for the winning Manitoba team.

She turned in a 24.7 - second time in the 220 yards as she added a six-girl field all the way. The old mark was 24.8, set in 1964 by Marjorie Turner of Halifax.

LOWERS ABBY'S MARK

Miss Maddin's Canadian record time in the 440 Saturday was 56.4 seconds. The old mark of 56.6 was held by Abby Hoffman of Toronto.

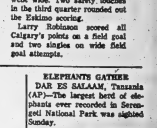
Other individual award winners were Mike Hoffman, outstanding junior girl; Dave Atkinson of Calgary, outstanding junior girl; Dave Atkinson of Calgary, outstanding juvenile boy; and Zenon Andrusyshyn of Oakville, Ont., outstanding junior boy. All three set Canadian records.

Miss Hoffman, making her first start since winning the 880 gold medal in the 1964 broke her existing Canadian record of 2:09.9 in the 880 with a 2:04.8. Her BEG time was 2:04.8.

Atkinson ran the two-mile in 9:05.2 to break the record of 9:17.2 set by Terry Dooley of Vancouver in 1965.

Andrusyshyn shattered the javelin mark with a toss of 242 feet 1½ inches. The old record was 218 feet, 5 inches, held by Alin Rooke of Toronto.

Both the men's and women's juvenile 880 records were also broken Sunday. Rick Storey of Windsor, Ont., won the men's event in 1:52.5, to break the mark of 1:53.2 set by John Reynolds of Galt, Ont., in 1963.



Roberta Picco of Toronto won the women's 880 in 2:11.8 to eclipse her own mark of 2:15.6, set in 1965.

Both the junior men's and juvenile men's pole vault records fell. Juvenile Bruce Wimpson of Scarborough, Ont., leaped 13 feet 1 inches to break a record of 13 feet 2¼ inches set in 1964 by Rick Burrows. And Burrows got himself junior record with a leap of 14 feet 4¾ inches to beat a mark of 14 feet 4 inches set in 1962 by Bob Yard of Trail, B.C.

Will Wedman of Vancouver set a junior men's high jump record with a jump of 6 feet, 5¾ inches to beat 6 feet 5 inches set by both John Hunter of Toronto and Grant Phillips of Vancouver in 1964.

Rick Riley, from Spokane, Wash., turned in a 13:57.6 in the three - mile to snip out a junior mark of 14:07.6 set by Bruce Kidd of Toronto in 1960.

Meet Oshawa Next

Trudeau's Eliminate Petes 2-1

Trudeau Motors rode a few key hits and strong clutch pitching by Bobby Green into the Belleville semi-finals of the intermediate "A" playdowns in Peterborough Sunday night.

Bobby picked Peterborough 2-1 in the third and decisiding game of the series. Both previous wins came in the Lift-lock City, with Green pitching, while the losers took the game in Belleville.

Trudeaus open their next series in Oshawa tomorrow (Tuesday) night, at 8.15, with the second tilt at the Alemite Park there Thursday. Game time is 8.30.

Five errors kept Green in hot water after Trudeaus built a 2-0 lead on lone runs in the second and fourth frames.

Ralph Plane slammed a solo homer in the second frame.

In the fourth, Larry Mavety belted a triple off the top of the right field fence. Seconds later Pete Weiser rapped a single through the right side for the 2-0 lead.

Peterborough got the one run back in the sixth, on a bunt single, an error and Allen's base hit over first base.

They threatened in the last two frames. In the eighth, the Petes got two on with none out and Weston's good play at short held a runner at third. Another error loaded the bases but Stu Muirhead pulled down a fly in right field and fired home for a big double play to end the inning.

Two ninth-inning bobbles gave the losers another chance but Green struck out a pinch-hitter to preserve his tight victory.

Green gave up five hits in all. The veteran lefty struck out nine and walked only one, surviving his club's five miscues.

Ernie Killins allowed six hits in defeat, striking out 12 and passing a pair.

Plane's homer, Mavety's triple and Weston's single were Trudeau's big blows. Bob Wannamaker singled twice and Roger Drake once.

Fred Murphy had a double, Bob Allen, Al Beatth, Ernie Killins and Ross Quigley a hit each in defeat.

'Cats, Kingston Play Tonight

Rain forced the postponement of Saturday night's OASA Senior "B" playdown game, between Belleville Bobcats and Kingston Indians, in Kingston.

The series is tied 1-1 and Kingston won the toss for the site of the third and deciding game.

Bobcat manager Ron Frick said that the game will be played tonight, at 8.15, in McGaffin Stadium.

"The club may have been a break for us, since we had several players unable to go Saturday. We expect a full turnout tonight," he added.

Texans Capture Little League World Series

WILLIAMSPORT, Pa. (AP)—Mike Robinette's strikeout pitching and the hitting of Steve Reeves led Houston, Tex., to an 8-2 victory over West New York, N.J., Saturday for the Little League baseball World Series championship.

The championship was the second for the power-hitting Texans, who last won in 1950.

The eight teams that played in the Little League World Series, including a Canadian club from Windsor, Ont., saw a big-league crowd of some 10,000 watch Senators vs. Cleveland Indians. While on a two-day tour of the U.S. capital, World see guests of the Senators ball club.

Seats Narrow, Prices High Says Smythe

TORONTO (CP)—The candor of Conn Smythe was on display at the Canadian National Exhibition sports day luncheon Saturday.

Smythe, for years owner of the National Hockey League's Toronto Maple Leafs, said that in a recent visit to Maple Leaf Gardens, he found:

"The new seats are so narrow that only a thin young man can squeeze into them and the prices so high that only fat, old men can afford them."

Several hundred seats have been added in recent months and ticket prices for the NHL games have been increased.

Pinch Hitting

By GARRY ALEXANDER
Staff Sportswriter

The wheels of progress in Belleville's senior hockey machinery are picking up speed day by day.

Season tickets, at $25 each for twenty home games, went on sale less than a week ago.

As of Saturday morning, over eighty had been sold, according to team business manager Ron Fralick. "I feel that our season tickets will go good", said Fralick, "in fact I will not be surprised if there are 400 or more sold before the season opens."

"And don't forget", he added, "there are a lot of the old faithful fans who won't buy a season ticket but who will still attend every game and grab up their old spots in the ends."

Floyd Crawford, who has signed with the club as playing coach, nodded his agreement and turned to a hockey calendar hanging on a nearby wall. A picture of the Detroit Red Wings was displayed on the current month.

"There are our sweaters", he exclaimed, "we just decided on the pattern and color this week, very much like the Red Wings."

Floyd is one of four players now under contract with the club. Crawford will serve in the dual role of coach and player.

The others are well known city athletes, Ralph Plane, John "Shaker" Baker and Doug Murray.

"I want to point out to the fans that these three fellows have proven their hockey ability during the past few years playing with the Syracuse team", Crawford said.

"The fans will notice a big change in them from say four years ago. They have played against the touring Russian team and numerous other clubs, the Eastern, the International ,the OHA Senior"A" Leagues and some pro clubs. They will be an asset to the club."

Syracuse Stars, an outlaw club piled up most impressive records for the past number of years in exhibitions, usually playing to packed arenas.

"We have been contacted numerous other players, some excellent prospects in the import class, but I don't feel free to release their names until we either sign them to a contract or until training camp. We don't want to have them snapped up by someone else", Crawford said.

Fralick did mention the names of some other local players who have signified out with the team. Included were Wayne "Weiner" Brown, "Moe" Hunter, Jack Hughes, Peter Weston, Stu Muirhead, Lionel Boily and Les Steeter.

Muirhead, Weston and Dave Jones played with Kingston Aces in the senior loop last season.

Jones told Belleville recently that he had again signed with Kingston. Both Crawford and Fralick admitted that Jones would have been a welcome asset to the Belleville team. "But if he said they had treated him real good in Kingston that I guess he just wanted to stay with them", said Fralick, "so all we could do was wish him luck."

A number of the city hopefuls are currently working out daily at the local "Y", under the watchful eye of coach Crawford.

– Floyd, as the faithful will remember, works at the sport just as hard in practice as he does during a game. You can bet that players on Crawford's club will give all they've got, all the time, or else.

Along these lines is the present training system. "We have arranged for Rick Locke, a well-conditioned physical education teacher to handle these workouts. He has arranged a program to get the boys in as good a shape as possible before the "on ice" training commences", Fralick said.

"And you should see some of our tongues hanging out when Rick gets through", laughed Crawford.

Invitations have been, or soon will be, sent to many other district players to attend the team's training camp, slated to open in Trenton in about a month's time.

Pre-season exhibition games are being arranged and player help has been promised from several places. Crawford hinted he felt Belleville would have a strong defensive squad, leading one to believe that a goalie and perhaps a couple of defencemen were on the coaches' "shopping" list.

Fralick and Crawford are at least two men who feel Belleville will have a contending team, ready for action, when the ten-team league opens in the middle of October.

But if we don't, one gets the feeling that it won't be from a lack of trying.

Peterborough Ties Finals

TORONTO (CP) — Peterborough, which lost the first two games of the Ontario Lacrosse Association senior finals, tied the best-of-seven series 2-2 Sunday with an 8-6 victory over Brampton.

NEW WESTMINSTER, B.C. (CP) — Defending champion New Westminster Salmonbellies retained the British Columbia junior lacrosse title Sunday with a 9-7 victory over Victoria Shamrocks.

New Westminster took the best-of-five series in straight games.

Seats Narrow, Prices High Says Smythe

TORONTO (CP)—The candor of Conn Smythe was on display at the Canadian National Exhibition sports day luncheon Saturday.

Smythe, for years owner of the National Hockey League's Toronto Maple Leafs, said that in a recent visit to Maple Leaf Gardens, he found:

"The new seats are so narrow that only a thin young man can squeeze into them and the prices so high that only fat, old men can afford them."

Several hundred seats have been added in recent months and ticket prices for the NHL games have been increased.

Saskatchewan Shares Western Lead

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Oshar-dwelling Calgary and British Columbia lost weekend decisions in the Western Football Conference as the Stampeders became the coolest mount an offensive and the Lions because things kept getting in the way.

Saskatchewan Roughriders edged the Lions 30-29 Sunday before 31,500 fans at Vancouver while the Eskimos defeated the Stampeders 26-5 Saturday in a rain-drenched game witnessed by 19,600 fans in Edmonton.

The Lions flubbed two chances to beat Saskatchewan—the first when Sonny Homer, seemingly headed for a touchdown, slammed into the goalpost and the second when Bill Mitchell's field-goal attempt in the closing seconds was knocked down by Joe Hilden.

Statistics told the story of the Eskimo - Stampeders game as the Calgary offence, suffering from the loss of four key players, was able to gain only 12 yards rushing and 63 passing.

Saskatchewan's victory moved them into a first-place tie with idle Winnipeg Blue Bombers, each with four wins. Winnipeg has a game in hand with only one loss this season against the Riders' two.

Hugh Campbell got two Rider touchdowns and Paul Dudley the other.

Jack Abendschan, whose field goal at 6:58 of the fourth quarter gave the Riders the 30-29 lead, had one other field goal and three converts. The other points came on a single and a safety touch.

Bill Munsey scored two touchdowns for the Lions and Willie Fleming and Dave Moten shared the others. Mitchell kicked four converts and the single.

The Stampeders, with Bill Gaskins, Ted Woods and Lovell Coleman out of action with ankle tendons, watched replacement Greg Palesmountain added to the injury list Saturday night with a dislocated shoulder. He will be out for several weeks.

Jim Thomas scored two touchdowns for Edmonton. Randy Kerbow got the other major and added a single on a punt. Tommy - Joe Coffey converted twice and added another point when his field goal attempt went wide. Two safety touches in the third quarter rounded out the Eskimo scoring.

Larry Robinson scored all Calgary's points on a field goal and two singles on wide field goal attempts.

Calgary Releases Eagle Day

EDMONTON (CP) — Calgary Stampeders of the Western Football Conference Saturday released quarterback Eagle Day after waiving him through the Canadian Football League.

Day has been replaced in the first - string quarterback job with the Stamps by Pete Liske.

Day broke into football with Winnipeg Blue Bombers in 1956. After being released by Winnipeg, he joined Washington Redskins of the National Football League, then came to Stampeders in September, 1965.

General manager Roger Lebrew said he delayed the move "as long as I could because I hoped something would happen to allow him to play."

Lebrew denied rumors the players had lost confidence in Day.

"Our players had great respect for him. Everybody knows he is a good football player."

Day has a job with an oil company in Calgary, but Lebrew said: "He wants to play football."

British Rider Killed In Race

DOUGLAS, Isle of Man (AP) —Brian Duffy, 47-year-old British rider, was killed Sunday when his Yamaha motorcycle crashed on the last lap of the 250 c.c. Tourist Trophy race.

Duffy's motorcycle crashed near the highest part of the Isle of Man mountain circuit.

Mike Hailwood of Britain, riding a six - cylinder Japanese Honda, won the race, his eighth victory on the circuit.

Hailwood, 26, who had already clinched the 250 and 350 c.c. world titles for 1966, averaged 101.79 miles an hour for the 226.35-mile course.

Four Golds, Two Records

Winnipeg Girl Star Of Meet

By DOUG MARTEN

RICHMOND, B.C. (CP)— Janet Maslin, 17, of Winnipeg won four gold medals Saturday and Sunday and turned the Canadian age class track and field championships into a one-girl show.

She also set two Canadian age class records and was voted the outstanding juvenile girl in the meet.

Thirteen other Canadian age class records fell during the two-day meet in the municipality south of Vancouver.

Miss Maslin set her records in the javelin and in the 440-yard relay, where she ran the anchor leg for the winning Manitoba team.

She turned in a 24.7 - second time in the 220 relay and led a six-girl field all the way. The old mark was 24.8, set in 1962 by Marjorie Turner of Halifax.

LOWERS ABBY'S MARK

Miss Maslin's Canadian record time in the 440 Saturday was 56.4 seconds. The old mark of 56.6 was held by Abby Hoffman of Toronto.

Other individual award winners were Miss Hoffman, outstanding junior girl; Dave Atkinson of Calgary, outstanding junior boy; Lynn Andrusyshyn of Oakville, Ont., outstanding junior boy. All three set Canadian records.

Miss Hoffman, making her first start since winning the 800-metre gold medal in the broke her existing Canadian record of 2:09.9 in the 880 with a 2:09.4 run. Her BEG time was 2:09.8.

Atkinson ran the two-mile in 8:58.2 to break the record of 9:17.2 set by Terry Dooley of Vancouver in 1965.

Andrusyshyn shattered the javelin mark with a toss of 242 feet 1½ inches. The old record was 218 feet 10 inches, held by Ain Roose of Toronto.

Both the men's and women's javelin BEG records were broken Sunday. Rick Storey of Windsor, Ont., won the men's event in 222 feet 3 inches, a mark of 1:33.2 set by John Reynolds of Galt, Ont., in 1963.

Roberta Picco of Toronto won the women's BEG in 2:11.8 to eclipse her own mark of 2:13.8, set in 1965.

Both the junior men's and juvenile men's pole vault records fell. Juvenile Bruce Wimpson of Scarborough, Ont., leaped 13 feet 6 inches to break a record of 13 feet 3½ inches set in 1964 by Rick Burrows. And junior Ed Kinsell Junior record with a leap of 14 feet 6¾ inches to beat a mark of 14 feet 4 inches set in 1962 by Bob Yard of Trail, B.C.

Wilf Wedman of Vancouver set a junior men's high jump record with a jump of 6 feet, 3¾ inches to beat 6 feet 3 inches set by both John Hunter of Toronto and Grant Phillips of Vancouver in 1965.

Rick Riley, from Spokane, Wash., turned in a 13:57.8 in the three - mile run to wipe out a junior mark of 14:07.6 set by Bruce Kidd of Toronto in 1960.

Meet Oshawa Next

Trudeau's Eliminate Petes 2-1

Trudeau Motors rode a few key hits and strong clutch pitching by Bobby Green into the second round of the OASA Intermediate "A" playdowns in Peterborough Sunday night.

Belleville nicked Peterborough 2-1 in the third and deciding game of the series. Both teams were tied at 1-1 after Jack City, with Green pitching, while the losers took the game to Belleville.

Trudeaus open their next series in Oshawa tomorrow (Tuesday) night, at 8:15, with the second tilt at the Alemite Park there Thursday. Game time is 8:30.

Five errors kept Green in hot water after Trudeaus built a 2-0 lead on lone runs in the second and fourth frames.

Ralph Plane slammed a solo homer in the second frame.

In the fourth, Larry Mavety picked a triple off the top of the right field fence. Seconds later Pete Weston rapped a single through the right side for the 2-0 lead.

Peterborough got the one run back in the sixth, on a bunt single, an error and Allen's base hit over first base.

They threatened in the last two frames. In the eighth, the Petes got two on with none out and Weston's good play at short held a runner at third. Another error loaded the bases but Stu Muirhead pulled down a fly in right field and fired home for a big double play to end the inning.

Two ninth-inning bobbles gave the losers another chance but Green struck out a pinch hitter to preserve his tight victory.

Green gave up five hits in all. The veteran lefty struck out nine and walked only one, surviving his club's five miscues.

Ernie Killins allowed six hits in defeat, striking out 12 and passing a pair.

Plane's homer, Mavety's triple and Weston's single were Trudeau's big blows. Bob Wannamaker singled twice and Roger Drake once.

Fred Murphy had a double, Bob Allen, Al Beatth, Ernie Killins and Ross Quigley a hit each in defeat.

'Cats, Kingston Play Tonight

Rain forced the postponement of Saturday night's OHA Senior "B" playdown game, between Belleville Bobcats and Kingston Indians, in Kingston.

The series is tied 1-1 and Kingston won the toss for the title of the third and deciding game.

Bobcat manager Ron Fralick said that the game will be played tonight, at 8.15, in McFarlan Stadium.

"The rain may have been a break for us, since we had several players unable to go Saturday. We expect a full turnout tonight," he added.

Texans Capture Little League World Series

WILLIAMSPORT, Pa. (AP)—Mike Robinette's strikeout pitching and the hitting of Steve Reeves led Houston, Tex., to an 8-2 victory over West New York, N.J., Saturday for the Little League baseball World Series championship.

The championship was the second for the power-hitting Texans, who last won in 1950.

The eight teams that played in the Little League World Series, including a Canadian club from Windsor, Ont., saw a big-league game Sunday. Washington Senators vs. Cleveland Indians. While on a two-day tour of the capital, they were guests of the Senators ball club.

15-Inning Thriller

Point Anne Ousts Madoc 1-0

A loss run in the bottom of the 15th inning ended a tremendous pitching duel in Stirling Saturday afternoon and gave Bill Shaw's Point Anne Cementmen a 1-0 triumph over Madoc.

Point Anne, underdogs going into the OASA Junior "C" playdowns, won two games, three set two games to one with Saturday's victory.

Ronnie Maracle, for the winners, and Larry Griffin, of Madoc, pitched the fans with a superb pitching battle over the route.

The Cementmen finally got to Griffin in the 15th for the lone run to end it.

Larry Fraser, ninth man in the Pointers' batting order, opened the inning with a single to right. Mike Cook and Denny Maher followed with bunt singles to load the bases.

Hall brought David Akey to the plate, with none out, and the hard-hitting Maracle to follow. Maracle never got to the plate. Griffin hit Akey on the shoulder with a pitch. It forced home the run and left Griffin with a heart-breaking defeat.

Maracle stopped Madoc on six hits over the distance. He struck out 11 and fanned the fourth until the 12th. The strong – armed right – hander struck out 13 and walked five.

Griffin gave up eight hits in all, three of them in the 15th, and had a perfect going there in the ninth frame. He struck out 10 and walked four.

Maracle made a bid to win his own game in the sixth inning. With a mate on via a single, and with two out, he slammed a tremendous blast that veteran centerfielder Akey travelled 300 feet to centre. Madoc's Ray LeSage, playing deep, went back fast and pulled it down with a great catch.

Mike Cook and Maracle accounted for half the winners' hits, each with two singles. Larry Fraser, Denny Maher, David Akey and Rick Rosebush got the others.

Ralph Hall rapped a single and Harold Bailey hit a double on Madoc's behalf. George Allen, Maracle and Brian Gray hit singles. The club had a man on in each of the 12th, 13th and 15th innings but could not score. Maracle never allowed more than one hit per inning and only once, in the third, did Madoc manage two runners.

Name Water Ski Champ

SHERBROOKE, Que. (CP)—Jean Ferrault of Shefbrooke and Valin Hoggan of Brandon, Man., captured the men's and women's titles of the 1966 Canadian national water ski championships Saturday.

In winning the men's overall, Ferrault broke his own record for the tricks event by massing 3,814.38 points—bettering by 120 another record he set two weeks ago.

The most difficult trick is a one-ski somersault, which Ferrault performed.

Brian Muirehead of Winnipeg was second over-all, with 2,172.04. Third was Andy Murdison Jr. of Niagara Falls, Ont., with 2,154.56, followed by Jean Rodrigue of Quebec City, with 2,140.27 and Cam McArthur of Hespeler, Ont., with 1,920.06.

Miss Hoggan, who trained with the national team in Quebec City, edged out Toronto's Janice Griffith by only 142 points for the women's title. Miss Hoggan's total was 2,436. Miss Griffith placed first in the women's slalom and tricks events but plunged to sixth in jumps after a poor performance. Champion Hoggan was a close second to the Torontonian in the first two contests and won the title by coming third in jumps.

Dodgers One Behind Giants, Pirates

Davis Combs Perry

By MURRAY CHASS
Associated Press Sports Writer

Willie Davis lashed four hits for the second consecutive day as Los Angeles Dodgers defeated San Francisco Giants 5-2 Sunday and moved to within one game of the National League lead.

The loss dropped the Giants into a tie for first with Pittsburgh Pirates, who defeated St. Louis Cardinals 5-1 Sunday in the opener of the doubleheader 3-2.

Davis' homer and three singles extended his streak to eight straight hits before he grounded out in the ninth inning. Since Aug. 6, when he was hitting .268, the 26-year-old has collected 36 hits in 96 at-bats to boost his average to .280.

Elsewhere, Cincinnati Reds stopped Philadelphia Phillies 5-3, Atlanta Braves defeated New York Mets 8-4 and Houston Astros edged Chicago Cubs 4-3.

Even Davis' four hits Saturday weren't enough as the Giants hung up a 4-2 victory over the Dodgers while the Pirates were losing 5-1 to the Cardinals, the Braves were shutting out the Mets 3-0 and the Astros were slipping by the Cubs 5-4.

Davis' first - inning homer Sunday started 23-game winner Gaylord Perry on the way to his fourth defeat. Jim Lefebvre's fourth - inning homer broke a 1-1 tie, and Davis singled in the seventh before Ron Fairly homered.

Roberto Clemente doubled home two runs and scored another on a Dora Chestnert's double as the Pirates erupted for four runs in the sixth inning of the nightcap. Bill Mazeroski added a homer in the ninth.

The Cardinals jumped in front in the first inning of the first game as Ted Savage tripled in one run and scored another.

Jim Maloney and Don Nottebart combined for a five-hitter against Philadelphia. Cincinnati bettered Larry Jackson for three runs in the first inning and went on to their fifth straight victory. Vada Pinson homered for the Reds in the third.

Homers by Ed Mathews and Rico Carty powered Atlanta past New York. Met errors by Ed Kranepool and Ken Boyer accounted for three more Braves runs.

Canadians Draw Bad Post Spots

DU QUOIN, Ill. (CP) — A dozen three - year - old trotters, including two Canadian owned and bred colts that suffered ill luck in the draw for post positions, were entered Sunday for Wednesday's $122,500 Hambletonian Trotting Stakes.

It marked the first time that two Canadian colts have entered the same Hambletonian. Governor Armbro, owned by breeders J. Elgin Ted and Charles Armstrong, all of Brampton, drew the No. 10 post on the extreme outside of the first tier.

Armbro Gazelle, also an Armstrong bred but owned now by Max J. Webster of Brantford, drew the No. 12 post and will be one of two horses in the second tier in Wednesday's first heat.

Carlisle, running from No. 7 post position, is rated the unofficial favorite at 3 to 1. Kerry Way, seeking to become the first filly to win since Emily's Pride in 1958, runs from the No. 4 spot and is also a favorite, at 7 to 2.

Canadian Champion

KISS FOR ACE—Wayne McDonald of Oakville, Ont., plants a kiss on his six iron after he scored a hole-in-one on the sixth hole of the Brandon Golf and Country Club Friday in a semi-final round of the Canadian junior championship. He won the title Saturday. (CP Wirephoto)

McDonald Wins Junior Title

BRANDON (CP) — The western hope in the Canadian junior golf championship final lost Saturday, but for many westerners the result wasn't all bad.

Wayne McDonald, 18, of Oakville, Ont., kept the title in the East with a 5-and-3 victory over Tom Moryson, 18, of Port Hammond, B.C., the only non-Ontario golfer to reach the tournament quarter-finals.

But some of the sting for westerners was removed by the fact that McDonald learned his golf in Winnipeg, where he was a top age-class competitor before moving to Oakville three years ago.

Moryson played the first 18 holes even by missing five birdie putts on the last 15 greens—including four in a row on the front nine.

On the last 18, Moryson lost two of the first three holes, and although he managed to win the 29th when McDonald missed a six-foot par putt, he dropped the next two to make the turn trailing by three.

McDonald remained 3 up after the 31st, helped by two missed birdie putts on 30 and 31, and on the 32nd both overshot the par-three green. But Moryson missed a six-foot par putt.

The 33rd hole and the title were conceded after Moryson's approach sailed over the green and his recovery chip was four feet past the pin. McDonald responded by placing a 10-foot birdie putt less than two inches from the pin.

The two played the first 18 holes of the 36-35—par 70 Brandon Golf and Country Club with identical 36-37—73s.

Yanks Kill Tiger Hopes

By DICK COUCH
Associated Press Sports Writer

Steve Whitaker, wound up his first week in the American League Sunday with a grand-slam homer as New York Yankees whipped Detroit 8-4, completing a three-game sweep and all but killing the Tigers as pennant contenders.

The 22 - year - old outfielder, brought up from the International League Toledo Mud Hens last Monday, clubbed Tiger pitching for seven hits—including a homer in each game—and drove in seven runs while boosting his seven - game batting mark to .391.

Whitaker had 30 home runs and a league batting average with Toledo and Columbus Jets of the International League this year to merit his promotion to New York.

While Whitaker's grand-slam and rookie Fritz Peterson's six-hit pitching were taming the Tigers, Boston Red Sox routed Baltimore Orioles 5-2, leaving the Orioles 12½ games in front of runner-up Detroit.

Elsewhere, Kansas City Athletics nipped California Angels 2-1; Washington Senators shaded Cleveland Indians 3-2 and Chicago White Sox swept a doubleheader from Minnesota Twins 4-3 in 15 innings and 7-6 in 11.

Saturday Il was Washington over Cleveland 3-2 while Minnesota blanked Chicago 1-0, New York bombed Detroit 11-1, Boston shaded Baltimore 3-2 and California beat Kansas City 6-5 in 14 innings.

Joe Pepitone also homered for the Yankees—striking his 30th of the year with one in on the third—while Peterson breezed to his 10th victory.

Joe Foy's run - scoring single in the seventh snapped a 2-2 tie and gave the Red Sox their second straight 3-2 decision over Baltimore.

Jim Nash, the Athletics' sensational rookie, checked California on six hits for his ninth victory in 10 decisions. Sixth-inning singles by Phil Roof and Larry Stahl delivered Kansas City runs.

Pacer Sets Season Track Mark

The racing crowd at the harness horse meet held at the Fairgrounds Saturday night was thrilled with the performance of R. Yankee Wann. The pacer, owned by Campbell Wannamaker of Conneaut, was perfectly piloted by Reg Reilly. The Ohioan pacer has earned nearly $5,000 on Ontario tracks. It was no shocker in the free-for-all Saturday that he set a new track record for the season of 2:06 2/5 and topped it to win in the second heat in 2.10 flat. In setting the record, the horse and owner will win many prizes donated by various merchants.

Deputy Chief Orr, a locally owned horse, started the evening in grand style for the "punters" when he was paid paid close to $20 for the win. This horse has raced with fair success all summer but it was the first time he had reached the winning circle. The second race was a divided affair when Reta Harrington of Brighton got Tarrago home in front in the first heat but Sammy Mulholland gave Swift Pick a terrific drive in the second heat and won going away. Double Star raced to second place in both heats and will bear watching in the fall racing. Miss Herring-ton continued her good work when she teamed Bobbi to two wins in the third race. Riverdale Bill, an outsider, registered a second in the first heat and made a lot of betters happy.

Little Timmy Pee upset the applecart for the betters in the third race when he came home on top to pay $21 for the win. Adorable Princess the prohibitive favorite won the first heat but broke badly in the second and finished sixth. Don Heath brought Cousin Dick to the front in the second trip but could not withstand the challenge of the winner in the stretch drive. Mr. Spudsey carried a lot of money but the good trotter could not find room to move when the drive came. Dave's Pee Lad provided the chief opposition to the winner of the Free-for-All. R. Yankee Wann, the colt not have enough luck to really start the winner pacing. Stable, expected to provide stiff opposition for the winner, had a touch trip both heats and never did find racing room. Johnny Bing, a $1,200 winner this season had no "turn of speed" and was never in contention.

The attendance was 506 and the mutuels were $12,116.

Bantams Out, Midgets Even

Peewees Cop East. Title

Belleville minor sports are busy in Ontario Amateur Softball Association playoff games at the week-end.

Playing at home on Saturday, Belsh and Soo Peewees won the Eastern Ontario championship by virtue of a sweeping win.

At Alemite Field on Saturday night, Ellis Midgets eventually defeated their arch rivals with Oshawa when they posted a 7-1 win to avenge a first game 12-2 loss on Friday. The deciding game in this series is scheduled for Port Hope this Wednesday night at 8.15.

In Bantam play, Belleville S.A.C.O. bowed out of the picture with a 6-4 loss to Peterborough, Scarborough defeated the home side 7-3.

In the Peewee contest, Al Travis was the winning pitcher, coming on in relief of John Spratckett. Between them, they gave up 10 base hits. Bind was the loser, giving up a total of 20 strikeouts in his complete game. Belsh had a field day at the plate for the winners, hitting for the cycle with a single, double, triple and home run. Codling and Tommy Haddleton each banged out three hits and John Spratckett had two safeties.

The Midget team wrapped up their game early. In the first inning, Wayne Storms doubled, Ron Mosburter drew a walk and one out later, Craig Stamp and Scott Scrimshaw slammed back-to-back homers to make it 4-0.

Ted Waite went the distance for the Ellis Oshawa pitching. Cranston came in for relief in the first inning and was sharp. He fanned 10 batters and allowed six hits.

Storms had two singles to go with his double for the winners. Rump slammed his three-run homer and a double.

Rocky Reid was a one-man gang for S.A.C.O. in the bantam game. But in spite of his efforts, the visiting Scarborough club took the win. Reid pitched a five-hitter and struck out 10 and was lone hit in the plate with a perfect four-for-four in the hitting department.

Scarborough broke a 5-5 deadlock with a pair of runs in the top of the eighth. Winning pitcher Thompson allowed nine hits while striking out nine batters and walking three.

The Belleville team had sidelined Brockville in first round playoff.

The Trots

TORONTO (CP)—A crowd of 11,346 watched Bonny Fergus and his pacer H. A. Meadowland register a 2:4-length victory in the $2,300 Queen City Stakes at Greenwood Raceway Saturday.

It was the third victory in a row for Fergus's yearling, boosting his lifetime earnings to $41,615.

BATAVIA, N.Y. (CP)—Marvlelulo was clocked in 2:02 4-5 in winning what featured invitational pace for $4,500 at Batavia Downs Saturday night.

OTTAWA (CP)—Peter Dawn lost his early lead but came back to win the featured $850 Westboro Pace in 2:07 Saturday at Rideau Carleton harness track.

A stretch bid put Ogden Hustler in second place. Vincent Boy edged Hoot Owl for third.

Leaf Wins Tighten Hot Race

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Toronto Maple Leafs, 3½ games out of first place going into the weekend, swept a doubleheader from Buffalo Bisons Saturday to tighten up the pennant race in the International Baseball League.

The Leafs dumped the Bisons 5-4 and 4-2 to move into a second-place tie with Columbus Jets, 1-2 losers to Richmond Braves. Meanwhile a 6-3 victory over Syracuse Chiefs enabled Rochester Red Wings to take over first place, one game up on Toronto and Columbus.

In the only other action Sunday, Jacksonville Suns exploded for a four-run first inning en route to a 7-1 triumph over Toledo Mud Hens.

Saturday's games saw Toronto edge Buffalo 1-0, Rochester blank Syracuse 4-0, Richmond bomb Columbus 11-2 and Jacksonville and Toledo split a twin-bill. Mud Hens winning the first game 1-0 and the Suns bouncing back with an 8-0 shutout in the finale.

Leafs had to come from behind a 4-1 deficit with a pair of runs in the seventh and another two in the eighth to edge the Bisons in Sunday's opener. Julio Navarro posted his sixth win in three starts while Don Rudolph took the loss for a 10-13 record. WINS 18th

Gary Waslewski picked up his 18th win in 28 decisions in the second game as Toronto's Gatewood taking the loss. Gatewood has a 5-5 record.

Former Cleveland Indians' pitcher Bob Feller pitched in a home run derby between games and gave up two homers to the six men he faced.

Latta Deadlocks Finals

Latta and Shannonville traded five - run innings but a single marker in the eighth decided the issue in yesterday's second game of the South Hastings Baseball League finals.

The lone marker gave Latta a tight 9-8 victory to deadlock the four-of-seven series 1-1.

Ken Hunt gave the Latta boys at 8.30 Wednesday, with others on Friday and Sunday. All games are at the Belleville Fairgrounds.

Latta snaped a 1-1 tie with a five run in the second only to have Shannonville rip back to tie it 5-5. The losers netted loners in the fifth and seventh, sandwiched around five in the fourth.

A walk, Rollins' single and an error loaded the sacks and led to the winning marker, on a wild pitch.

Howard Meeks, and Lorne Crowslight in (2-) sixth, handled the Latta pitching. They gave up nine hits, struck out eight and walked two.

Larry Lowis and Bill Barberstock in the fourth, toiled for Shannonville...They allowed ten hits, whilfed nine and passed seven.

Doug Chisholm sparked the Latta hitters with three base knocks. Doug Rollins got a pair, Doug Green a double. Shannonville Larry Mawby and Howard Meeks in a single each.

Doug Dafoe belted a three - run homer and a single and Bud Hill a solo home run and two singles to pace the losers. Wayne Sager, Chuck Rowbotham, Dave and Larry Lewis shared other safeties.

Riteways Splits With Brampton

All wrapped up in hockey earlier this year during the annual Brampton Lions Tournament, Novice players from Belleville Rite-Ways and Brampton hooked up in a special baseball series here on the weekend. And each team picked up a win.

Accompanied by a large rooting section, the Brampton youngsters roared to a 14-3 win in yesterday's game after Belleville Rite-Way won Saturday 11-7.

B. Burgess got the Sunday win for Brampton on a neat three-hitter. He struck out 10. The visitors struck early in this one, connecting for seven first-inning runs.

In Saturday's game, T. Whelan was the winning pitcher on a four-hitter. He fanned nine and walked three. B. Young took the loss. B. Sutherland had two home runs for the winners. D. Flesch banged a homer and two singles and G. Gogan had a single and a triple.

Local Archers Fare Well

Everton Tops Liverpool 3-1

LONDON (AP) — Alex Ball, star of England's World Cup soccer champions, scored two goals in seven minutes Saturday and led Everton to a 3-1 win over Liverpool in the English League.

A sellout crowd of 64,000 saw the clash of the two local rivals.

The two teams are represented in England in the big European tournaments this season—Everton in the Cup Winners cup and Liverpool in the Cup of Champions.

Everton paid £110,000 ($308,000) for Ball's transfer just before the season started. He has scored three goals in three games.

The fiery little redhead staggered Liverpool by scoring in the 10th minute and again in the 17th minute. Ball beat Tommy Smith counted for Liverpool in the 42nd minute, but Everton got on top again in the second half and, a goal by fullback Alex Brown clinched the game.

England's new Bobby Charlton got in some spectacular shooting for Manchester United, but in the end, his team lost 3-4 to Leeds.

Rally Defeats City Bantams In Opener

A three - run burst in the top of the ninth inning carried North Toronto Lions to a come from behind 7-6 win over Belleville Ellis Bantams Saturday, at Park Dale. It was the first game in an ORA Bantam playoff series.

The Belleville squad broke in front early with a three - run first inning and after eight full innings owned a narrow 5-4 lead. A walk and three consecutive base hits did the damage in the top of the ninth. The home team got one back in the lower ninth but the visitors held on to win the squeaker.

It was a close battle with each team connecting for nine hits and picking up three walks. Winning pitcher Jim Nickleson struck out 12 while loser Terry McTaggart fanned 11.

Belleville's Jim Potts topped all hitters with three singles in five tries. Ron Jury had two doubles while Steve Moore connected a double with a run each. Scoring for Terry Meagher and Mario Venuti.

Carl Ugulini, Jim Nickleson and Roy Kendall each banged a pair of hits for the winners.

Western Scoring Leaders

NUERNBURGING, West Germany (Reuters) — West Germany's Rudi Altig became 1966 world professional road cycling champion Sunday. Altig, last year's runner-up, was given a clear field when the baker, Britain's Tommy Simpson, dropped out. Second was Jacques Anquetil and third Raymond Poulidor, both of France.

Parsons Play 4-4 Draw With Camp Borden

Alan Brown connected with a hard blast from about 25 yards out in the dying seconds of the game to earn Belleville Parsons a 4-4 draw with an all - star RCAF squad from Camp Borden in exhibition soccer action at Canadian Forces Base, Trenton, Sunday. It was a see - saw battle all the way.

The teams were all even at 3-3 at the halfway mark but after the interval, the RCAF squad began to carry the play and only some great work by Parson's goalkeeper Ray Horne kept the home team from piling up an insurmountable lead.

Alwal finally put the ball past goalkeeper Ray Hore kept the stage for Brown's late equalizer. Alwal's goal was his second of the game. Baraka and Maslin were the other marksmen for the service team.

Parsons got goals from Bob Watson, Joe Iacuzzo and Tom Rutherford to go with Brown's counter. Most of the players on the all - star team are trainees from Tasmania.

56 Harness Horsemen Subpoenaed

NEW YORK (AP)—Some 56 harness racing drivers, track officials and gamblers were reported to have been ordered to appear at a grand jury investigation, beginning Wednesday, of Yonkers, Roosevelt and Monticello tracks.

One of those reported to have been ordered to appear is Lucien Pantano, Jr., owner of Point aux Trembles, Que. He is considered one of the youngest of the top drivers in the United States.

Detectives and state police handed subpoenas to 36 drivers, track officials and gamblers Friday night to appear at the surprise grand jury investigation.

Subpoenas were presented to the racing secretaries of the three tracks and to 26 drivers. Some were served in the paddock area of Yonkers Raceway just after Friday night's program began.

BILL RE THOROUGH

District Attorney Aaron E. Koota of Brooklyn, who disclosed the investigation, said it would deal with "every aspect" of the sport "including the suspected fixing of races."

Koota said the probe was an attempt "to determine whether criminal conspiracy exists, and has existed, in Brooklyn affecting harness racing."

Orders reported to have been directed to appear before the grand jury next Wednesday were drivers Billy Haughton, Del Insko, George Sholty, George Phalen, Sacher Werner and Billy Herman.

Racing secretaries John Cashman Jr. of Roosevelt, Ted Gibsons of Yonkers and Phil Tuby of Monticello also were reported to have been given subpoenas.

A spokesman for the State Harness racing commission said that the investigation was the first since 1953 when a state committee looked into charges of race-fixing and other illegal activities.

January Wins By Stroke

WHITEMARSH, Pa. (AP)—Don January posted a 71 Sunday, held off a strong charge by Jack Nicklaus which included two eagles and won the Philadelphia golf classic by one stroke ahead of Masters and British Open champ.

January, 38, won the $21,000 first prize. It was his first tournament victory in more than three years.

He holed out a five-foot putt on the 18th green to complete his 72-hole total of 278, one stroke ahead of Nicklaus, who just missed on a charge from five strokes back in his bid to win this tournament for the third straight year.

January, who said the long, hot summer and eight straight tournaments had sapped his strength to the point where he found it difficult to hit a club, had to come from behind to nip Nicklaus.

When the final round started, January and Arnold Palmer shared the lead with 54-hole totals of 207.

Nicklaus had a final-round 67, five under par.

He holed two charged into a tie for the lead Saturday with a seven - birdie round of 65, then came from behind with a two-over-par 74 and a 72-hole total of 281.

He tied for third with Bob Goalby, who shot 70 Sunday, and Gene Littler with a scrambling final-round 71.

George Knudson of Toronto started the final round only a stroke off the pace but fell apart on the front nine with a 41 and finished with 282. Tied with Knudson at 282 was Chuck Courtney, each collecting $4,100.

U.S. open champion Billy Casper finished with a 73 for a 284 while Al Geiberger, Professional Golfers Association champion, fired a 70 for a 280.

January said this was his last golf tournament of the year. He said he has lost 15 pounds this summer and is going to rest, except for several television golf specials.

Counterpin Will Be Eliminated

WINNIPEG (CP)—The troublesome counterpin will be eliminated from five-pin bowling.

The decision to do away with the counterpin was taken Saturday at the semi-annual meeting of the Canadian Bowling Council.

President Ernie Philpott of Winnipeg said the new ruling becomes effective Sept. 1, 1967.

The congress is the governing body of five-pin bowling in Canada.

The counterpin is the rear pin on the left side. Unser present rules a bowler gets no score unless the counterpin is knocked down. The new ruling will give the bowler points for every pin that falls, regardless if the rear left pin remains standing.

Equals World Record

VANCOUVER (CP) — Don Schollander, 20, of Santa Clara, Calif., Sunday equalled the world record of 53.8 seconds in the 110-yard freestyle, swimming in a special time trial to wind up the British Columbia centennial swim meet.

Schollander, who set a record of 1:57 in the 200-yard freestyle earlier in the meet, had asked for a trial to attempt to break the record set in the 110 Thursday by Zac Zorn, 19, of Los Angeles.

Seven world records fell during the meet. One, a mark of 2:32 in the women's 220-yard individual medley, was shared between Elaine Tanner of Vancouver and Karen Muir of South Africa by judges' decision.

Sharon Muir, 15, set a record of 2:32.8 in the women's 220 backstroke Thursday, three - tenths of a second better than the former mark shared by Cathy Ludgrove of England and Satoko Tanaka of Japan.

Schollander's time in the 220-yard freestyle, set in the event held Saturday, was four - tenths of a second faster than the standard set earlier this year by Australian Michael Wenden.

Zorn's time in the 110-yard freestyle, set in the final Thursday and equalled by Schollander Sunday, was a tenth of a second ahead of the mark set in Berlin last September by Frank Wiegand of East Germany.

Another Los Angeles Athletic Club performer, Greg Charlton, 18, set a record of 4:12.2 in a heat of the 440-yard freestyle Friday, 2.4 seconds ahead of the mark set this year by Robert Windle of Australia.

SETS 110 RECORD

Sue Jones, 18, of Santa Clara, was clocked at 1:13.3 in a preliminary of the women's 110 breaststroke Thursday, nine-tenths of a second better than the shared mark of England's Diane Harris and Karen Beyer of East Germany.

Ann Fairlie, 17, of Johannesburg, set a record of 1:07.9 in the women's 110 - yard backstroke Friday, shaving a tenth of a second from the mark held by Miss Muir since February.

Seven judges called Miss Tanner, 15, first in the medley but clocks gave Miss Muir a better time. Under international rules, the times are shared and the average of the six watches' time was set as the standard.

Miss Tanner held the former world record of 2:33.3. South African coach Alec Bulley complained the judges had to watch too many swimmers to do a proper job but the girls said they didn't mind sharing the mark.

Canadian open records fell in six competitions, three of them Saturday as the four-day meet progressed. Each then smashed the time trial for Schollander would be held the next day.

Pokey Watson, 17, of Santa Clara, set an open mark of 2:14.6 in the women's 220-yard freestyle final and Charlton established a standard of 17:13.7 in the gruelling 1,650-yard freestyle event.

The Los Angeles club team, including Charlton and two others who had just finished the 1 650, swam alone against the clock to set an open mark of 2:30.4 in the 400 freestyle relay.

David Lean Named To Nat. Team

SHERBROOKE, Que. (CP)—Jean Perrault of Sherbrooke, 21, heads the list of members selected Saturday for the 1967 Canadian National Water Ski Association team which will represent Canada in the 1967 world water ski tournament here next year.

Perrault, member of two of Canada's previous teams at Vichy, France, in 1963 and Australia in 1965, will be accompanied by Andy Murdison Jr. of Niagara Falls, Ont., George Athans of Kelowna, B.C., Jean Rodrigue of Quebec City, Brian Mulrehead of Winnipeg, Cam McArthur of Hespeler, Ont., Dave Lean of Belleville, and team coach Clint Ward of Hudson Heights, Que.

The women's team will be composed of Toronto's Janice Griffith, Vaills Hoggan of Brandon, Man., Jackie Lacoursee of Drummondville, Que., and Bonnie Murdison, Andy Jr.'s sister, of Niagara Falls.

Perrault won the men's overall championship Saturday during the 1965 Canadian national water ski championships. Athans, 14, won the junior title Friday. Miss Hoggan won the women's over-all title Saturday.

Falcons Upend San Francisco

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Atlanta Falcons—a team of hand-me-downs and rookies—posted victory 1 in the National Football League Saturday night by upending San Francisco 49ers 24-17 in an exhibition game.

Randy Johnson, getting his first long look at quarterback, completed 13 of 21 passes for 285 yards, engineered scoring drives of 77, 87 and 79 yards and clinched the victory over the 49ers with a 35-yard scoring strike to Alex Hawkins.

Dallas Cowboys won their fifth without a loss by downing Detroit Lions 20-10, Green Bay Packers throttled Pittsburgh Steelers 17-6, Los Angeles Rams walloped St. Louis Cardinals 32-14 and Philadelphia Eagles edged New York Giants 24-23.

In American League action, prior to Friday's regular season opener, Houston-Miami Dolphins and Oakland Raiders at Miami, Kansas City Chiefs finished unbeaten in exhibitions after a 31-20 victory over Houston Oilers, New York Jets upended Buffalo Bills 34-17, Oakland humbled Denver Broncos 32-21 and San Diego Chargers crushed Boston Patriots 31-13.

Twenty Years of War Have Dimmed Lustre of One-Time Pearl of Orient

For a former Canadian war correspondent, Saigon calls up memories of Sicily and London during the Second World War, Douglas Amaron, former editor of The Canadian Press on a reporting assignment in South Viet Nam, described conditions in the blasted capital.

By DOUGLAS AMARON

SAIGON (CP)—Saigon calls itself "the pearl of the Orient" but its 20 years of war have dimmed the lustre of what once must have been a beautiful city.

Its normal population of 2,000,000 swollen to a burning 3,000,000 or more by the influx of war refugees and servicemen, this capital of South Viet Nam has attracted the filth, squalor and lawlessness that are the accoutrements of such a situation.

First — time visitors are placed on the defensive immediately by advice to carry only as much money as will be used from day to day and to leave the rest in hotel vaults. They are warned that their purses may be slit as they walk down the street, their watches torn from their wrists, their pockets laces ripped from their throats.

Even in the best hotels where locks are provided for cupboards, management posts notices warning guests to take point currencies and precious personal effects to the hotel safe, otherwise "no responsibility is taken from our part for the loss."

Saigons three English newspapers publish as almost casual daily reminders of previous days incidents which range from simple theft to assault, rape and murder. Australian servicemen who visited Naples during the Second World War would be quite at home here.

TRAFFIC CRAWLS

This is the land of the lotus and the orchid, but the main travelling color is not of flowers but of gasoline and oil fumes and, on a decreasing scale, garbage — decreasing because of an American - financed campaign to get it out of the gutters.

Trucks, cars, buses and sputtering motorcycles and motorized pedicabs clog streets and spew exhaust in the faces of cyclists and pedestrians.

Bumped pedestrians and colliding vehicles are commonplace but there is so much traffic it moves at the five o'clock crawl of a Canadian city and serious accidents are rare. Any vehicle without a scratched or dented fender, however, must have been arrived in the country.

Residential areas, shaded by towering banyan and eucalyptus trees, still retain some faded elegance of the Saigon that used to be, but the downtown shopping and entertainment is a garish, crowded, noisy, smelly and arresting as the tawdriest International Exhibition midway.

Only the rides and the sideshow are missing and no doubt some of the seen-paid hustlers who grab the shirttails of passers-by with offers of women, dirty pictures and black - market money could provide shows the CNE would never approve.

PRICES NOT EXCESSIVE

Sidewalks, about 10 feet wide and muddy from frequent rain, are not for walking on. They are the place where Vietnamese and Chinese set up stalls loaded with a staggering assortment of goods for sale.

American and local cigarettes, books, magazines, jewelry, postcards, photographs of Vietnam, dark glasses, trunks, radios, cameras, stoves, toothpaste, candy, fruit, live and dead ducks and chickens, native food cooked on the spot over smoky fires, beer, wine, soft drinks. They are there and more.

Prices seem reasonable by Canadian standards but this is a city where the minimum monthly wage, established Aug. 1, is $18.20 for men, $16.30 for women and $14.25 for teen-agers. And the maximum is not much above the minimum.

Rent costs about 10 cents a pound at the market, pork $1.25 but these are not part of the Viet Nam diet—eaten as an onion or tea or flavor the staple rice that costs six cents a pound. Sugar, at 14 cents a pound, and bread, at about 13 cents for a 14-ounce loaf, are among the few commodities under price control.

Restaurant eating is a lesson in international economics with a choice that ranges from pizzas, hotdogs and hamburgers to Chinese, Vietnamese, Chinese and Japanese delicacies. To dollars a day will get a meal of if you choose carefully, pay for one meal of your lunch. Butter for your toast, milk for your tea cost from 35 to 75 cents extra.

Bars and nightclubs do a roaring business and vie for the foreign trade with an assortment of imported entertainers who probably couldn't make the grade at home, and the much-publicized Vietnamese and Chinese bar girls—hostesses please! — who do looks at least could make the grade anywhere. These girls have had the monopoly on them for drinks and on good nights probably clear about $2.50 an hour. Which is not, of course, if they take the customer home too.

REPORTS FROM VIET NAM — Douglas Amaron, General News Editor of The Canadian Press and a former war correspondent, is on assignment in South Viet Nam to report on conditions in the Southeast Asia country from a Canadian point of view. (CP Photo)

Signs of war are present everywhere, although the war itself seems distant despite occasional sounds of gunfire from the suburbs at night. Grenade-tossing is a daily occurrence, sometimes by the Viet Cong, sometimes by those the papers call ruffians, hooligans and thugs.

Uniformed servicemen, on and off duty, are as commonplace as to wartime Londoners — eating Americans, meet-as-pis Koreans and the they Vietnamese. War places fly overhead. Ugly coils of barbed wire encircle government and military buildings. Armed soldiers in pillboxes guard entrances. Military police patrol streets on foot and in jeeps.

Power shutoffs are frequent and a semi-blackout leaves the city in an eerie half-light. If you must be outside at night you keep to the centre of the road, instinctively watching over your shoulder and looking up your pace as you pass through shadows.

A midnight curfew for all but the diplomats and servicemen bars by 11:30 p.m. and brings silence to the streets while the dawn of another humid day.

Recognition Is Not New Experience for John Leyton

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — John Leyton is a slight, blonde-haired young man who can walk down any street in the United States without getting any more than a few stares at his longish hair and golden bangs.

But by the time CBS' new Jericho series has been seen a few times, John Leyton's face will suddenly become recognizable. He is part of television's annual crop of stars-in-waiting.

The show also stars Don Francks, a native of Vancouver.

Recognition, when it comes, will not be a novel experience for Leyton. He already is well known in his native England. There he was an actor when he was hired to play the part of a pop singer in a television show.

"I'm not a bad singer, I can sing, but get by with that pop stuff," said Leyton, "so I asked the director if he'd let me make a record my character's song myself because it would be easier for me to mime it later on the program—lip sync, I think you call it in the trade."

HE'S SENSATION

The upshot was that John Leyton emerged overnight from the pop field as a sensation. His first four records sold more than 2,000,000 copies the first year. Now, success has been imported to the U.S.

"It all made me very uncomfortable," he said. "I would go in to a restaurant or someplace where no one had ever noticed me, and suddenly I would begin to whisper and stare. I just felt self-conscious. I was everybody forgot I was an actor."

Movie parts followed, and Leyton managed to get back to his original career successfully enough to be one of three young Britishers starring in a team of Second World War agents—one American, one French and one British — operating behind enemy lines in the new CBS series, Jericho.

He is still another of the David McCallum-type heroes. Perhaps now has produced three in the same general mold: slight, and with tousled blonde hair. Mr. Has the original McCallum, of course, in The Man from U.N.C.L.E. There also is Neil Hamilton Sax's cop, who plays an agent in The Girl from U.N.C.L.E., and now Leyton, in Jericho.

In the latter, there is a choice of types—tall, dark and handsome as Marlon Brando was the French agent, Francks as the All-American boy and Leyton. Unlike the Lassie, and U.N.C.L.E. agents, the Jericho team will be playing their adventures straight.

Shelley Winters in Town To Play a Heavy in Batman

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — "The only thing that stands between me and good movie roles," said Shelley Winters with her customary candor, "is 20 pounds."

Even as she was saying this, Shelley has done well enough to become the only supporting actress to win an Oscar twice — for The Diary of Anne Frank in 1959 and A Patch of Blue in 1965. She wouldn't mind moving up to a starring Oscar.

But there's the weight to consider.

"I think I can lick it now," she said. "I'm going to a doctor who has put me on a strict diet. My trouble has been that I Double up and down. I take off the weight, then I put it on for a role. Or else I go to Italy. If you can't get spaghetti in Italy, what else is there?

"Now I'm going to get my weight down and stay there. No more of that Sammy business."

Shelley was in town to play a heavy—Sorry About That— in Batman. She claimed she did so in order to placate her daughter Romina, a beauty of 13.

"What a job!" exclaimed Shelley, who prides herself in being a method actress. "When I saw this guy in satin tights jump down in front of me during these crazy lines, I couldn't keep a straight face. It was too ridiculous.

"Finally the director had to tell me to play it."

The actress was ready to leave for Italy and a movie with Alberto Sordi, followed by a return to Broadway in three Saul Bellows plays, Under the Weather. That's the sort of thing she likes to do—offbeat, artistic, serious-minded.

Film Company Just Restored Charm Lost Earlier to Fame

By EDDY GILMORE

CASTLE COMBE, England (AP)—Four years ago, in a poll conducted by the British Travel Association, Castle Combe was voted England's prettiest village. And that's the way it looks to the people.

Came tourists, by the thousands, billboards, gift shops, souvenir factory, modern architecture sprouting on the thatched roofs. Gone were the days of peace and the close knit lines that had won Castle Combe the title.

Then came the movie company and, lo, Castle Combe is nearly back to what it once was.

Mrs. R. J. Thomas, who used to own the entire village, looks across this picturesque corner of Wiltshire, Southern England, of London, and says: "Now, thanks to an American movie company, Castle Combe again."

She means 20th Century-Fox, which came here in May to shoot a $13,000,000 movie, Dr. Dolittle, starring Rex Harrison, Samantha Eggar and Anthony Newly. To transform Castle Combe into the mythical seaport of Puddleby-on-the-Marsh, the Saigon that used to be, but the downtown shopping and entertainment is a garish, crowded, noisy, smelly and arresting as the tawdriest International Exhibition midway.

Only the rides and the sideshow are missing and no doubt some of the seen-paid hustlers who grab the shirttails of passers-by with offers of women, dirty pictures and black - market money could provide shows the CNE would never approve.

PRICES NOT EXCESSIVE

Sidewalks, about 10 feet wide and muddy from frequent rain, are not for walking on. They are the place where Vietnamese and Chinese set up stalls loaded with a staggering assortment of goods for sale.

American and local cigarettes, books, magazines, jewelry, postcards, photographs of Vietnam, dark glasses, trunks, radios, cameras, stoves, toothpaste, candy, fruit, live and dead ducks and chickens, native food cooked on the spot over smoky fires, beer, wine, soft drinks. They are there and more.

Prices seem reasonable by Canadian standards but this is a city where the minimum monthly wage, established Aug. 1, is $18.20 for men, $16.30 for women and $14.25 for teen-agers. And the maximum is not much above the minimum.

Rent costs about 10 cents a pound at the market, pork $1.25 but these are not part of the Viet Nam diet—eaten as an onion or tea or flavor the staple rice that costs six cents a pound. Sugar, at 14 cents a pound, and bread, at about 13 cents for a 14-ounce loaf, are among the few commodities under price control.

Restaurant eating is a lesson in international economics with a choice that ranges from pizzas, hotdogs and hamburgers to Chinese, Vietnamese, Chinese and Japanese delicacies. To dollars a day will get a meal of if you choose carefully, pay for one meal of your lunch. Butter for your toast, milk for your tea cost from 35 to 75 cents extra.

Bars and nightclubs do a roaring business and vie for the foreign trade with an assortment of imported entertainers who probably couldn't make the grade at home, and the much-publicized Vietnamese and Chinese bar girls—hostesses please! — who do looks at least could make the grade anywhere. These girls have had the monopoly on them for drinks and on good nights probably clear about $2.50 an hour. Which is not, of course, if they take the customer home too.

REPORTS FROM VIET NAM — Douglas Amaron, General News Editor of The Canadian Press and a former war correspondent, is on assignment in South Viet Nam to report on conditions in the Southeast Asia country from a Canadian point of view. (CP Photo)

Signs of war are present they commission "saw fit to publish opinions that were unjustified and particularly sensational." It said the removal of the serials and billboards, and cleaning up of the stream would actually improve Castle Combe.

With a touch of sarcasm, the council added: "Restoration (by the movie company) will not, however, include either romantic weeds or tumbled down river walls."

Now the movie company has gone, along with the 200 people and 1,000 animals (it seems that Dr. Dolittle loved animals and could even talk to them) and most of the village can be resettling over Castle Combe.

"We think" said a movie businessman, "we've made most of the people happy."

Certainly the TV watchers are happy. Reception is better than ever, and the company left a $10,000 fund to maintain the master aerial.

The English, presumably, is not happy. He and his friends must stand trial for that night raid.

New Zealand Still Without Unemployment

ST. CATHARINES, Ont. (CP) — The St. Lawrence Seaway Authority soon will be relying on closed-circuit television to speed the flow of traffic through the Welland Canal.

Television monitoring is intended to help seaway personnel in moving ships through the canal, which links Lakes Ontario and Erie, by providing instant information of the position of ships at Locks 1, 2, 3 and 7. These are single, 800-foot locks capable of traffic in one direction at a time.

The television equipment is scheduled to go into service Aug. 27. It will be harnessed to another electronic system just put into operation to provide information on the condition of lock control and navigational signals along the 27-mile canal.

The Bell Telephone Co. of Canada installed the electronic system and is installing the TV circuit.

There will be 12 cameras in all, three in the vicinity of each of the single locks.

It is hoped that the two electronic systems, along with other improved facilities, will allow the seaway authority to increase capacity of the canal by approximately 8 per cent.

Traffic on the Welland Canal has doubled since the seaway was completed in 1959. It carried 53,400,000 tons of cargo in 1965.

South Viet Nam Desertions Up

SAIGON (AP) — Desertions from South Viet Nam's 705,000-man armed forces are running nearly 30 per cent ahead of last year. A total of 67,000 members of the regular army, regional and popular forces walked out in the first six months of 1966.

If the desertions continue at the same rate in the second half of the year, the total number will be 21,000 more than the 1965 figure of 113,000.

Premier Nguyen Cao Ky's government expects, however, to reduce desertions through a new law imposing severe punishment and other measures improving the lot of the Vietnamese servicemen.

Miss Napanee Firefighter Chosen

NAPANEE — Miss Noreen Alger, 17, a grade 12 student in the Napanee District Secondary School, is Miss Napanee Fire fighter for a year. She was selected by a team of five judges at the "teen-age dance Friday evening, one of a series the Firefighters' Association has been sponsoring for two months.

Miss Alger was crowned and decorated with a sash proclaiming her status, and received a trophy, which, with the crown, she will hold for a year. She was presented with a number of gifts donated by Napanee merchants including a radio, clothes hamper, a hair dryer, hair styling, and articles of apparel.

Susan David placed second, and received cosmetics, hair styling, and weekend apparel, including a four-piece ensemble of outer clothing.

Third place went to Sylvia Clarke, whose prize included a translator radio, hair styling, cosmetics, and wearing apparel.

The Firefighters awarded $25, $15, and $10 to the first, second, and third place winners, respectively.

Fifteen girls competed, and were judged for poise, appearance and personality. The judges had a difficult time coming to a decision.

"It is estimated that close to 500 people watched the judging. There were 283 paid admissions and almost as many adults. Parents and friends of the contestants were admitted free.

The dance will become increasingly popular. One will be held again this week but permission to use the armoury beyond that time has not yet been secured.

The contest will be an annual one, it was announced.

Three Found Guilty in Court Session

NAPANEE — A Yarker youth Reginald Elwood Babcock, was sentenced by Magistrate R. C. Jackson to three months definite and nine months indefinite in the Ontario reformatory in Napanee Friday, in October, 1965, Babcock had been found guilty of stealing two cars. He was then placed under suspended sentence, but had not lived up to the stipulated conditions.

James Brice Elliott of Kingston lost his right to drive a motor vehicle for two years when he pleaded guilty to a charge of dangerous driving. He must also pay a fine of $100 and the costs of the court.

George Lloyd Wagar pleaded not guilty to driving while impaired, but was found guilty and will pay a fine of $100 and the costs, and lose his license to drive for three months.

Gregoire Plans To Hold Seat In Commons

QUEBEC (CP)—Gilles Gregoire, recently-elected president of a Quebec separatist party, Ralliement National, said Sunday he will go to Ottawa today more determined than ever to represent his constituents as an MP for the federal Ralliement des Creditistes party.

"No one can prevent me from sitting in the House of Commons," he said, in apparent reference to the statements of several MPs to the effect that they would contest Mr. Gregoire's right to remain a member.

Some have said they believe that Mr. Gregoire, as president of the provincial RN, which preaches independence for Quebec, has broken his allegiance to the Queen, which he swore when elected as a federal MP.

Mr. Gregoire said he had no comment on whether he would sit as an independent or as member if the Ralliement des Creditistes expelled him from the party.

Real Caouette, leader of the Creditiste party, said Thursday the party would hold a caucus meeting today in Ottawa to decide Mr. Gregoire's future in the house.

Mr. Gregoire said in an interview that he was given a mandate by his constituents in Lapointe riding to represent them in the House of Commons and that this was sufficient.

STUDENT BOOM BUSTS

WOLFVILLE, N.S. (CP)—Student council officials at Acadia University here made a public apology after a fund - raising venture failed. Not only was no money raised, said council president John Noble and treasurer John Brittain, but about $125 in expenses was still unrecovered.

Rock Picking Bee Held At New Park

DESERONTO — It was Children's Day in Deseronto Saturday, with at least 175 of them, from ages 2 to 16, each carrying a basket, swarming over the three acres of Centennial Park, and picking up the stones which had been brought in with the top soil.

Mr. Albert Marks, chairman of the Centennial Park Committee, marvelled at the way nobody seemed tired.

The town workers' employees were also there to lend a hand.

The Sports Organization sent three members, and some of the business men took time from a busy afternoon to come for awhile.

But, according to Mr. Marks, next in importance to the children were the women, representing every denomination in town: Mrs. M. J. Wall, Mrs. Ray Hood, Mrs. Blanche Detlor, Mrs. Nora Walker, Mrs. Marion Hodge, Mrs. Wareen Acker, Mrs. Marion Brooks, Mrs. Meeks, and Miss Diane Sharpe. They cooked hundreds of hot dogs and heated hundreds of rolls. They also handed out gallons of milk, both white and chocolate.

Ontario M.P. Will Open Mohawk Fair

TYENDINAGA RESERVE — A. Kenneth Roberts, K.C., Minister of Lands and Forests for Ontario, will officially open the Mohawk Fair at the Council House Grounds on the Tyendinaga Reserve on September 17.

This annual fair, planned and managed entirely by the Mohawks of their Reserve, and with Indian exhibitors only, always attracts large crowds of people, not from a distance, who come, not just because it is an Indian fair, but also because it is a good fair, with many outstanding exhibits, particularly in cooking and other women's work, and a good program of events, including horse racing. It is one open event in the year, also, when the general public has an opportunity to partake of a full dinner, complete with Indian corn soup, prepared and served by its Indian cooks.

Arabia's Rulers Seek to Set Terms in Yielding to Progress

A Canadian Press reporter travelling in the Middle East finds that oil wealth has two effects—it stimulates demands for social reform but provides the establishment with the money to resist such pressure.

By CARL MOLLINS

RIYADH, Saudi Arabia (CP) — The 20th century's siege of Arabia has touched off internal conflicts as one of the world's last bastions against the gospel of material progress argues about surrender terms.

Most of the 33 rulers of the peninsula's kingdoms, sultanates and shrikdoms are submitting to modernity. But they want to yield on their own terms—conserving some social and spiritual traditions —in the face of pressure for unconditional surrender.

The conflicting claims are expressed here in the Saudi Arabian capital, geographical centre of a sandy peninsula bigger than Ontario and Quebec combined and with perhaps 13,000,000 inhabitants, although nobody knows for certain.

"People are impatient," says the youthful director of a Saudi government department. "But if we are given the time, we can slow the economic success is possible with our present form of political leadership."

Another young civil servant counters that personal rule by a king and government according to the Koran impedes progress: "Our people stay poor because the sheiks keep us 100 years behind the world."

BACKED BY EGYPT

The contestants have joined battle openly on the southwestern flank of the peninsula. In Yemen, republicans led by Egyptian troops have been fighting for four years to sweep away stubborn royalists. A second test of strength with violence is under way in Aden and the 20 British-protected tribal territories of southern Arabia, with Egypt again supporting impatient radicals against wary traditionalists.

Among the 11 sheikdoms of the Persian Gulf and here in Saudi Arabia, the struggle has been confined mainly within the bounds of civil peace. But the rulers, and watchful outsiders, agree the contest has just begun.

The impact of modern standards and ideas is heightened because, until now, Arabians have been immune to the ideological revolutions except those that originated inside Arabia itself. The message of Islam was first proclaimed by Mohammed 13 centuries ago in Mecca. The revivalist campaign for a return to pure Islam was launched here by Abdel Wahhabi 200 years ago here in central Arabia.

OIL BRINGS WEALTH

Oil lubricated the penetration of Arabia by the 20th century. From its beginnings 30 years ago, the Persian Gulf petroleum industry has become the non - Communist world's biggest and cheapest exporter of crude oil—about 4000,000,000 tons a year worth $4,000,000,000. Two-thirds of the non-Communist world's proven oil reserves lie in and around the gulf.

The result has been sudden wealth in a peninsula barren but for a few pockets of fertility like Yemen. Saudi Arabia has a rising income from oil royalties that now stands at $750,000,000 annually. Many of the Gulf sheikdoms earn more in proportion to population than Canada or the United States.

Kuwait, a state slightly larger than Cape Breton Island and with 350,000 inhabitants, receives $600,000,000 a year from oil. Abu Dhabi, with 20,000 people, makes $75,000,000 annually after less than four years in production —an average $3,750 a citizen, more than twice the citizen rate of national income earned in Canada.

The money has brought material improvements. It has also purchased travel abroad and transistor radios, hired Egyptian, Palestinian and Lebanese lawyers and administrators with foreign ideas.

SLAVERY PERSISTS

Oil wealth thus opens the way to ideas like democracy in territories where the ruler's word is law, doctrines like socialism where national income is the ruler's privy purse. It brings talk of nationalism to an area where few frontiers are defined, demands for social reform where justice remains rough enough to take a thief's hand and where slavery persists in corners like Muscat.

But simultaneously oil money gives the traditionalists with a defensive weapon, a fund for buying protection.

Money spent on a cement factory in Jeddah meets some of the pressure for economic progress. Welfare for the poor of Bahrain relieves some of the pressure for social justice. A well-paid government job in Riyadh takes the edge off a young graduate's idealism. Development aid for Egypt from Kuwait makes the Kuwaiti rulers exempt from Cairo radio's hostility.

Nevertheless, growing demands of impatient iconoclasts eager for total revolution continue to outstrip the supply of protection money paid by the rulers. The traditionalists are trapped in a dilemma.

SHEIK DEPOSED

The rulers can attempt to hold authority to the old ways, as has the ultra-cautious Sultan Said bin Taimur of Muscat and Oman and his self-indulgent sheikh of Qatar. But the risks of revolution along that road have been emphasized by the dethronement of the profligate Saud of Saudi Arabia two years ago and the deposing of the backward Sheik Shakbut of Abu Dhabi Aug 6.

On the other hand, they can yield personal to the pressure and hope they can keep control—a path King Faisal of Saudi Arabia and the sheiks of federal South Arabia are trying. But even here the precedents are none too comforting: The reform-minded Imam Badr of Yemen helped create the very forces that now seek his destruction. In Kuwait, the limited democracy introduced by the ruler is slicing into Sheik Sabah's power.

Either way, the traditional system in Arabia is doomed. It is only a question of the old order giving way gracefully in the hope of a moderate settlement, or of trying to play Canute and being swept away in the tide of change.

Tomorrow: What time is it in Saudi Arabia?

HISTORIC FORT IS PRISON — A black-garbed woman enters a Saudi Arabian prison to visit a relative. The prison, its old mud walls standing in the middle of Riyadh, the Saudi capital, was once a fort which early in the century was captured by the late King Abdul Aziz, father of the present Saudi ruler. The conquest was the first stage of a campaign that subdued tribal leaders and unified Saudi Arabia. (CP Photo)

DRIVE TO CREATE INDUSTRY — This new cement plant on the road between Jeddah and Medina is the result of Saudi Arabia's drive to create industry in a land that imports almost everything except oil and sand. The factory, using limestone and clay available locally, produces about 30 per cent of the western region's needs. It is expanding to double the productive capacity when the existing 600 tons a day. Hon. Kelso Roberts Pays Visit to Provincial Park

PICTON (Staff) — The Hon. Kelso Roberts, Minister of Lands and Forests, Ontario on Friday visited the Sandbanks Provincial Park along with his wife and son. On hand to greet him during his unofficial visit was Norris Whitney M. P. P. and Robert Davison, superintendent of the two provincial parks Sandbanks and Outlet.

Mr. Roberts, who was responsible with the setting up of the Sandbanks Park was most impressed with the changes in the park this year and particularly pleased with this year's attendance. Mr. Roberts early sions a great park at the Sandbanks over the next few years and will be taking steps to promote this park and publicize it. Many people he feels are not aware of the park, its facilities and especially the size of the beach. It is a much larger area and the beach is considerably longer than that at the outlet. Last year a new entrance to the park was built with new gatehouse, paved roads and parking areas. Toilet facilities, change houses, drinking water fountains and picnic areas abound up and down the beach. Assistant superintendent Davison there were as many visitors to this park in July that there were all last season.

So far there is no camping in this park, but according to Mr. Roberts, it will come. To date it has been used only to accommodate extra campers who could not be accommodated due to overcrowded conditions at the outlet park. Some 160 of the overflow campers from outlet park may be accommodated here.

Some 46 attendants are employed at the parks this year and according to Bob Davison the parks have had one of their busiest years.

There have been some complaints about the weeds growing on the beach at the outlet this year. According to Mr. Davison they have not been caused by allowing it to dead fish as many have suspected but rather have grown because of snowcleaning which has been erected there during the off season to prevent a further drifting of sands. "Weeds will be controlled," he said, "and taken out when the trees have taken sufficient root to withstand same. They will be trimmed and provide shade areas for picnic benches etc."

The Sandbanks beach, this year, is perfectly clear and in beautiful condition and is patrolled by beach ranger and a lifeguard is on duty during the times when water is suitable for swimming, and not too rough.

Mr. Roberts and his family left the area after paying a short visit to the outlet park.

Part of Show on Percy Faith Is Filmed at Sandbanks

PICTON (Staff) — A CBC-film crew was in Prince Edward County on Thursday afternoon filming action to be used on a forthcoming TV program. The film will deal with the music of Percy Faith and his orchestra and the footage, which was shot on the county's famous sand dunes, will appear in color.

The crew of eight included Norman Campbell, producer of the film and Miss Martine van-Hamel, narrator.

Miss vanHamel appears in the film dancing on sand dunes to the music of Percy Faith. The selection used is a never-before-published song of Mr. Faith's program. The song was written on the dunes and near the water was most dramatic in Thursday afternoon's filming as dark clouds over Lake Ontario provided a good background for the film.

Norman Campbell, who is a well known producer with CBC Toronto, was pleased with the filming at the Sandbanks and feels that the day's shooting was a success. He is extremely familiar with the area and the Sandbanks in particular for he was formerly a CBC staff director near there. Mr. Wm. West, the operator of the resort and president of Bay of Quinte District Tourist Council, played host to the film crew during its short stay in the county.

Most of the others in the crew, choreographer, costume and make-up girls and director were most impressed with the location, the weather seen it before and thought that they would like to return for a holiday.

The film they are making will likely appear sometime in November on CBC.

Kingston Wins Tennis Trophy

Belleville tennis players made an improved showing in dropping the wrap-up of the annual Doug Grant Trophy at Kingston by a score of 6-3. Kingston easily captured home and home series by a total count of 23 matches to 7.

Winning Belleville players were Mike Walcott, Tom Woodley, Bill Redquest, Tim Cook, Doug Grant, James Hurst and Donald Desaulniers. Belleville lost a possible point when David Hurst defaulted in the singles. Other Belleville players were Bill Bell and Dennis Mercier.

Area Farmers Meet Minister On Thursday

PICTON (Staff) — A meeting held in Bloomfield Hall Friday night brought out some 60 farmers to be hopefully assured that the decision of federal Agriculture Minister, J. J. Greene to meet with representatives of Prince Edward County farmers would be held as planned.

A delegation of about 30 area farmers will travel to Ottawa on Wednesday to meet with the Minister and they will ask direct assistance for all farmers affected by the recent government grants to dairy farmers enabled them to maintain their quotas but local farmers involved in fruit, vegetable and grain production received no such assistance from the federal government.

The delegates will ask Mr. Greene for the setting up of a raincaking machine for a three-year trial period will also be requested.

Any interested farmer may travel with this group to Ottawa to meet and talk with Mr. Greene. The hopes and fears of the county farmers will go with the delegates to Ottawa to ask for financial aid and other assistance following a drought which has left many area farmers near economic ruin.

Stelco Union Members to Vote Tuesday

HAMILTON (CP) — The United Steelworkers of America will vote Tuesday on ratification of a new contract for the 14,000 members at the Steel Co. of Canada Ltd. Hamilton plant.

Negotiators for the union and the company reached an agreement in Toronto Friday, but if the members vote against accepting the contract it will mean authorization to call a strike.

The new agreement, announced Friday night by the Ontario labor department, follows rejection last Monday of the first agreement by negotiators.

Terms of the new agreement were not announced.

Stelco's Hamilton operations were closed down for five days by a violent wildcat walkout prior to the first agreement which came Aug. 17. The wildcat strikers were protesting the slowness of earlier negotiations.

Queen Mary Makes Quick Ocean Run

SOUTHAMPTON, England (Reuters) — The 30-year-old liner Queen Mary sailed into home waters today after the second transatlantic crossing of her career.

The 81,000-ton Cunard vessel passed the southwest tip of England Sunday night to complete the crossing in four days and three hours, an average speed of 30 knots. She was expected to dock here today, nine hours ahead of schedule.

The Queen Mary, which entered service in 1936, made the engine-performance run to test the effects of measures to deal with marine growth and propeller damage that had slowed the vessel. The marine growth crusted on the ship during the recent British seamen's strike.

The Queen Mary held the Blue Riband—the transatlantic speed record—for 14 years. The present holder is the liner United States 42,000 tons) for the west-bound voyage, three days, 10 hours, 40 minutes.

Leo Landreville Said "Unfit" For Judiciary

By JOHN LeBLANC

OTTAWA (CP)—Mr. Justice Leo Landreville of the Ontario Supreme Court, his reputation shredded in a royal commission report, today dug in against government action to have Parliament kick him off the bench.

Condemned Monday in Commissioner Ivan C. Rand's inquiry report as unfit for the judiciary, the 56-year-old former Liberal politician was refusing to resign over the backlash from a questioned stock transaction and was seeking a new deal before a parliamentary committee.

He will get such a hearing, Justice Minister Cardin announced Monday in giving the Commons notice that he will move for the judge's eviction shortly. The unprecedented removal of a high-court judge would take a resolution of both houses of Parliament.

Mr. Cardin interrupted the Commons' summer session on the rail strike to table the Rand report and said he will move his motion of resolution "at the first opportunity."

Political observers did not give the embattled judge much chance of breaking the tide against a government Motion. None of the opposition parties showed signs of coming to his rescue.

To reverse the government's move, the judge would have to stem the tide of a report from one of Canada's most distinguished jurists. Mr. Rand, 83, a retired Supreme Court of

Viet Cong Try to Sink Patrol Boat

SAIGON (AP)—The Viet Cong made a fruitless attack on a U.S. Navy river patrol boat southwest of Saigon today, the U.S. Command announced.

The command said a mine exploded near the patrol boat in the Co Chien River, 25 miles southwest of Saigon, but the explosion caused no damage or casualties.

Then Viet Cong guerrillas on the shore opened up with a heavy 100 rounds of automatic fire. But the boat was not hit and its crew returned fire first.

U.S. planes pounded North Viet Nam in more heavy raids Monday. Spring 79 missions against oil depots, truck convoys and other targets.

One U.S. F-105 Thunderchief was shot down 15 miles northwest of Dong Hoi. The pilot was listed as missing. It was the 347th American plane reported lost in the air war against the north.

Ground action in South Viet Nam came to a near standstill with only patrol skirmishes reported.

Report Is 'Unjust' Says Judge

TORONTO (CP) — Mr. Justice Leo Landreville of the Ontario Supreme Court Monday night branded the Rand report criticizing his stock dealings as "injurious, malicious, unjust and prejudiced."

The report, tabled in the Commons in Ottawa, said the 56-year-old justice derelict in his duty both on the bench and before the Ontario Securities Commission by his involvement in stock dealings of Northern Ontario Natural Gas Co., which won a Sudbury franchise in 1956.

Mr. Justice Landreville's statement was made in a telephone interview CBC interviewer and was similar to a telephone interview published today in the Sudbury Star.

Earlier, the justice told The Canadian Press he would be "willing to go before any parliamentary committee to clear my name, or I will go through any process that the government may determine."

The government has announced it intends to ask Parliament to remove the justice from the Ontario bench.

HAVE SOME EVIDENCE'

"There is some evidence which has not been introduced yet which I will bring up" Mr. Justice Landreville said. That evidence would be dealt with by a port of the Law Society of Upper Canada (Ontario), which asked for his removal from the bench.

In the TV interview, he said the report by Ivan C. Rand, retired justice of Supreme Court of Canada, to the government "is cluttered with evidence which was not introduced at all during the hearings."

"And most malicious of all is the appendix"—the report of the law society which the society itself "had not seen fit" to publish.

Mr. Justice Landreville said that had Mr. Rand seen fit to establish a letter from Magistrate Albert Mark, who tried him in connection with the stock

Eight Per Cent Wage Boost Now, Nov. 15 Deadline for Agreement Through Bargaining Pearson Plan

By BEN WARD

OTTAWA (CP) — A massive bill designed to produce sweeping changes in the entire field of transportation, but with its emphasis on railways, was introduced in the Commons Monday by Transport Minister Pickersgill.

It was a companion bill to the government's proposal for ending the railway strike, setting out as it does a revolutionary concept under which railways would have unprecedented freedom to set freight rates, abandon uneconomic branch lines and drop money-losing passenger services.

But it also reached out to embrace the whole transportation industry by proposing the creation of a super agency that would have regulatory powers over railways, airlines, shipping, trucking and commodity pipelines.

The railway section is based on the idea that competition, rather than rigid federal control, should become the regulating force in freight rates and railway services, an approach urged more than five years ago by the MacPherson Royal Commission on Transportation.

The legislation would allow railways to enter into competition with other modes of transport, cut loose from federal subsidies and allowed to operate like any other business enterprise.

It scraps laws written decades ago when railways held a monopoly in transport.

The government expects that the prospects of an improved financial situation will prompt the railways to bargain effectively with unions representing the 118,000 workers on strike.

Up until now the railways

Strikers Declare Govt. Bill "No Solution" to Deadlocked Wage Dispute With Railways

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Parliament resumes debate today on a government bill aimed at ending the country-wide rail strike, amid clear indications that the strikers think the cure is worse than the disease.

The strike - ending formula would impose an eight-per-cent wage increase for the 118,000 strikers who have tied up rail lines across the country, and would order contract talks resumed under threat of compulsory arbitration.

Leaders of the striking railway unions first issued a joint statement describing the government bill as "no solution" to their deadlocked wage dispute with the railways, then adjourned Monday night to express their opposition at first hand.

Elsewhere in Canada, strikers staged orderly demonstrations against a forced settlement of their walkout, which started Friday.

The largest such gathering was in Turner, Ont., at least 1,000 strikers sang and shouted slogans in front of Welch Station in a show of force timed to coincide with the emergency session of Parliament in Ottawa.

A march through London, Ont., was staged by at least 300 railway workers from the northwestern Ontario centres of London, Stratford, Brantford and Kitchener, and a similar parade of more than 200 strikers wound through downtown Windsor, Ont.

Demonstrators in Windsor carried signs describing compulsory arbitration as "an assault to organized labor." The London marchers voted unanimously to inform political leaders of their opposition to compulsory arbitration in any labor-management dispute, including the current one.

In Ottawa, R. C. Smith, negotiator for the international and operating unions, said the meeting with Mr. Pearson was requested by the unions "to inform the prime minister of our feelings about this bill."

Negotiators had been receiving calls from union locals across Canada urging them not to accept the terms of the legislation.

With Mr. Smith at the meeting were W. P. Kelly of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, W. J. Smith of the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway, Transport and General Workers and Tom Read, head of the shop craft unions' negotiating team.

President Claude Jodoin of the Canadian Labor Congress also sat in on the discussions with Mr. Pearson. None of the labor leaders would comment on the 30-minute meeting afterward.

In their joint statement earlier, the four union spokesmen said the government "is obviously attempting to introduce compulsory arbitration which would destroy the fundamental principles of collective bargaining."

Meanwhile, in the Maritimes, the problem of the strike-threatened ferries serving Canada's island provinces appeared to have been ironed out.

One ferry, the 8,300-ton William Carson, was carrying pas-

Agreement to Operate Ferries Breaks Down

HALIFAX (CP)—Strikers at Borden, P.E.I., threw up picket lines at entrances to the ferry terminal this morning in an apparent reversal of a decision Monday to resume limited service to the mainland.

A report from the scene said strikers were lined up four deep preventing traffic from getting on ferries.

Local 127, Canadian Brotherhood of Railway Transport and General Workers, at Borden agreed Monday to follow a directive from the union's national headquarters to work the four ferries for all non-commercial traffic.

Everett MacLeod, strike leader at Local 127, said in a telephone interview from Borden that members of his local appeared at 8 a.m. ready to work the ferries. But the said 40-50 members of the union's Local 20 in Charlottetown threw up picket lines at the loose entrance to the terminal and refused to allow passengers or other workers to enter.

No violence was reported at the scene.

Spokesmen for Local 20 were unavailable for comment.

Meanwhile, some 200 pickets were reported at the Cape Tormentine, N.B., terminal apparently intending to halt traffic from ferries if they crossed from Borden.

The ferries between Borden and Cape Tormentine have not run since the start of the national rail strike at noon Friday.

Premier Alex Campbell called an emergency meeting of the Prince Edward Island cabinet and it was meeting less than two hours after the Local 20 picketed appeared.

Meanwhile, two of three other major ferry systems in the Atlantic region continue to operate.

The CNR ferry William Carson has been plying between North Sydney, N.S. and Port aux Basques, Nfld., without incident since the CBRT and GW agreed Sunday to keep her in service for passengers and non-commercial traffic only.

The CNR ferry Bluenose has continued to run without interruption between Yarmouth, N.S. and Bar Harbor, Me., but the CPR ferry Princess of Acadia was taken off her Bay of Fundy run between Digby, N.S., and Saint John, N.B., when the strike started.

By GERALD McNEIL

OTTAWA (CP)—A bill to end the national rail strike went before the Commons Monday and so far union leaders are against it while political leaders haven't committed themselves.

A delegation of union men representing the 118,000 rail-employees who have been on strike since last Friday told Prime Minister Pearson late Monday they don't like the terms of the bill.

It provides for an interim eight-per-cent wage increase and compulsory arbitration if the railways and unions can't make progress in collective bargaining by Nov. 15.

The Commons session that recessed July 14 resumed Monday, more than a month before it was supposed to, specifically to deal with the strike.

Mr. Pearson said government intervention is necessary because a prolonged walkout would become a national disaster.

STUDY THE BILL

After the bill was introduced and pointed out by MPs, there was a three-hour break to allow time to study it.

The two hours of debate after the break didn't change things. And the late meeting of union leaders with Mr. Pearson only confirmed the union attitude against the bill.

There were suggestions that union membership wouldn't return to work on the terms of the proposed bill.

After an hour - long speech on second reading by Opposition Leader Diefenbaker, the Conservative position still wasn't clear.

Mr. Diefenbaker questioned whether the strikers would obey the law.

He was to finish his remarks today after a morning party caucus that would suggest possible amendments to the bill.

The Conservative leader moved adjournment at the usual time Monday night, though earlier Lloyd R. Crouse (PC—Queens - Lunenburg) said the party was prepared to sit all night to end the strike.

Mr. Crouse made the remarks after a New Democrat suggested that caucus reaction—approval in principle—of the strike - ending bill be put off today. That suggestion went by the boards after Mr. Pearson suggested the three - hour adjournment to allow time for assessment.

New Democrats are closely allied to the Canadian Labor Congress to which the rail unions are linked.

Gregoire Ousted By Party

By RONALD LEBEL

OTTAWA (CP)—For the first time since Confederation, a member of Parliament avoided the independence of Quebec.

Gilles Gregoire (Lapointe) became on first separatist MP Monday when he was ousted by his Creditiste party colleagues and crossed the floor of the House to sit as an independent.

The outspoken, diminutive legislator lost no time in letting the Commons know where his sympathies rest. Speaking in French on a question of privilege, he said:

"This is the first time this is said in this House; but the independence of Quebec, we shall have it and soon."

A few MPs scoffed and hooted as Mr. Gregoire left his seat next to Creditiste Leader Real Caouette and carried his books and documents across the aisle to a second-row desk on the government side.

The 40 - year - old, fast - talking MP now sits behind two other Quebec independents, Maurice Allard (Sherbrooke) and J.-A. Maurice (Trois-Rivieres), and beside James Brown (L—Brantford).

WORKS FOR WITHDRAWAL

He said he still holds his former party colleagues in esteem and still ascribes to Social Credit doctrines. But he had decided to work for Quebec's peaceful withdrawal from Confederation. "I will condemn acts of violence and of terrorism, as

Crime Is Way of Life in Negro Ghetto Grandfather, Age 30, Tells U.S. Senators

WASHINGTON (AP)—In the accents of New York's Harlem, two men who met in jail told Monday of a world warring on society, where crime is an honorable calling and the convict a prisoner-of-war.

"I might go back to jail again," said Arthur Dunmeyer, who has spent half of 30 years in prison. "I have no intention of breaking the law. But to exist, the way I live, you might have to break the law at any time."

Dunmeyer and author Claude Brown told their story of ghetto life before a Senate subcommittee investigating the problems of the cities.

"So far, all the white community has done is to try to placate," Brown said, "just keep the niggers cool—let's pass a civil rights bill."

Society's ills, said Brown, are written to protect white society, not the ghetto Negro. "He doesn't recognize the law."

In fact, life in the Negro ghetto is a war on the society outside.

"Whatever you may be doing—this is the way you come up in Harlem. You learn these games," Brown said.

The games, Brown and Dunmeyer said, are numbers running (policy "heads" racket), robbery, prostitution, swindling. Those are simply careers in the Negro ghetto, they said, adding that sexual promiscuity is accepted and illegitimacy carries no stigma.

Dunmeyer described the route to success in Harlem this way:

"They see that these things are the only way they can compete in this society . . . The only thing to do is to get something going for yourself.

By cheating, its stealing, these things are just a way of life."

And so is illegitimacy, said Dunmeyer. He said he was born out of wedlock, fathered an illegitimate child at the age of 15, and she was pregnant at 12.

At 30, he is the father of eight children and a grandfather, too, he added.

Brown told the subcommittee "in the Harlems all over the nation, by the time a Negro male reaches the age of 21, he's got a sheet on him — a felony sheet or

"It creates a vicious cycle because he can't get a job . . . He goes on paying for the rest of his life."

He said Congress should pass law so that a criminal record will not bar a man from government employment.

Ottawa Firm Gets Contract To Build College St. Bridge In Amount of $249,258

Construction of the new bridge was then closed during the summer months. Work will be started immediately on the project bridge has to be removed before the structure can be taken away and it was expected this would take nearly two weeks.

The IGA College Foodmarket at the corner of College Street and Trumpour Street will be moved to provide an eastern approach for the new bridge, while part of a vacant lot east of Castilion Road will also be required.

No buildings will have to be demolished to provide the approach on the west side of the river.

In the meantime council has amended the city's traffic by-law to provide for a system of one-way streets to be used during the construction of the new College Street bridge.

Mains Street from Coleman St. Charles and Wall Streets east, while westbound traffic will proceed along Strachan, Grove and Harris Streets. Coleman Street from Harriet to Main will be one-way eastbound.

CURTAIL PEDESTRIAN TRAFFIC

While the new College Street bridge is under construction, there will be increased vehicular use of Station Street and the Upper Bridge.

At the same time pedestrian crossing of Front Street, Station Street and the Upper Bridge from the east, west or north sides will be prohibited.

Trucks will be prohibited from using the south lane of Station Street from Pinnacle to Front Street, and no vehicles at any time will be allowed to stand on the east side of Front Street to a point 200 feet south from Upper Bridge and standing or parking will also be prohibited on either side of Station Street within 200 feet of Station street.

This will rule out the current practice of cars stopping at Trenton Street at the post office to allow posting of mail.

Mayor J. F. Ellis said if the practice of stopping to post letters continued after the restriction went into effect, officers would be liable to receive a parking ticket.

OFF TO LAOS

OTTAWA (CP)—Brig. M. L. Lalonde, 53, of Montreal and Quebec City, will become Military adviser to the Canadian delegation on the International Control Commission in Laos for a one-year period starting in mid - September, Canadian Forces Headquarters said in an announcement Monday.

GARY THOMSON, 22, leaves Toronto by plane on Saturday for Trinidad, where he will teach high school English. Mr. Thomson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Thomson, 568 Bridge Street East, is a graduate of the Belleville Collegiate, received his B.A. at McMaster University, Hamilton, a year ago and then returned this past year to obtain his honors English standing. His teaching contract with the government of Trinidad and Tobago runs for three years.

Mayor to Greet Aquatic Stars

Beverly Boyn, the 15-year-old girl who won silver and bronze medals for Canada at the recent British commonwealth Games in Jamaica, will be honored by a civic reception when she visits Belleville Thursday. Miss Boyn will perform at the annual water show to be staged at the Kinsmen Pool that evening. At 6.30 p.m. she will be received at the City Hall by Mayor J. R. Ellis. Also honored at this time will be the members of the famous Peterborough Ornamentals swimming team, which will also perform at the show here.

HARRY G. LETCH

Funeral services were held Saturday afternoon in St. James' Anglican Church, Tweed, for Harry G. Letch, interment was in St. James' Cemetery, with Rev. D. W. Sinclair officiating.

Bearers were Francis and Harry Thompson of Toronto, Bob Thompson of Montreal, Denzil Cox of Minden, George Robertson of Newburgh and Harold Baldwin of Granby, Quebec.

Mr. Letch died suddenly August 24th in Wiarton. He was 73.

Born in Camden East, son of the late Henry and Jane Letch, he was a member of St. James' Anglican Church. A Shriner, he was a first world war veteran.

He was with the railway 48 years, starting at Queensboro and working with the Bay of Quinte Railway. He was an agent at Tamworth and a dispatcher in Belleville for the CNR. He and his wife celebrated their fiftieth wedding anniversary in 1961.

Mr. Letch is survived by his wife Mabel Thompson and a niece, Mrs. James Denison of Kingston.

PETER MARACLE

Tyendinaga Reserve

DESERONTO — After an illness of a little over a week in the Bellleville General Hospital, Peter Maracle of the Airport Road, Tyendinaga Reserve, died there August 24th in his 77th year.

Born and educated on the Tyendinaga Reserve, Mr. Maracle was the son of the late Peter and Sarah Maracle. When he was a young man, he and his wife lived in Oshawa for a short time, returning in the late 20's. He has since lived on the Reserve. During the war he was employed as a carpenter at the Trenton Airport. He retired ten years ago, but has since worked locally on contracts.

He was a member and a faithful attendant of Christ Church. He was well known and well liked on the Reserve and was a good neighbor and friend.

He is survived by his wife, formerly Meta Claus; by his sons Lawrence, Harold and Walker at home; by his daughters, Mrs. Lou Berbeck (Jean) of Toronto, Mrs. Maxwell Hill (Mabel) of Montreal, Mrs. R. Allenbreck (Verna) of Deseronto, Mrs. Arnold Brant of "The Pines" on the Airport Road, on the Tyendinaga Reserve, and Mrs. Kenneth Gibbin (Lorraine) of Deseronto; and by 28 grandchildren, and 10 great-grandchildren.

A short service was conducted by the Rev. A. F. Dowdell at the White and Morris Funeral Home in Deseronto, and the Rev. Canon R. V. Temple, officiated for the funeral in Christ Church Saturday.

The bearers were Charles Reid, Murray Brant, Gerald Maracle, Arnold Brant, Percy Maracle, a grandson, and Maurice Harvey.

Interment was in Christ Church Cemetery.

MRS. GERALD M. ROSS

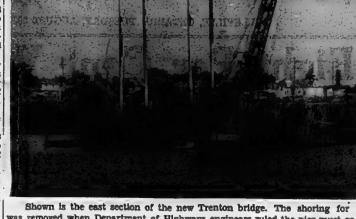
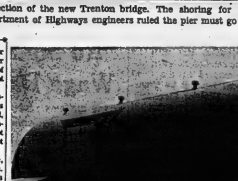
Girl Struck On Head by Truck Mirror



PICTON (STAFF) — Thirteen-year-old Marilyn Kotchapaw of R. R. 2, Picton was badly injured yesterday afternoon when she was struck by a truck just East of the village of Northport.

Marilyn is the daughter of Reeves Don Kotchapaw of Sophiasburgh Township. The report stated that the girl was riding her bike on the shoulder of the road and was being passed by a truck loaded with hot-mix for the road construction. She was struck on the head by the rear view mirror mounted on the outside of the truck.



The truck driven by 43-year-old Roy Barberstock of Shannonville was engaged in carrying the hot-mix for the construction of the new road from Demorestville to Hillcrest bridge. The truck was the property of Asa Cook also of Shannonville. Marilyn was taken to Prince Edward County Memorial Hospital by, Bonti's ambulance, she suffered a bad cut on the back, fractured left arm, two broken ribs and head injuries.

MILK COSTS MUCH

Mouse milk, used in a Swiss biometrical laboratory, costs about $10 a quart.

Hundreds flocked over the weekend to see "the barn that Doug built" . . . Reeve Douglas McMaster's new barn on the York Road. Friends and neighbors raised a goodwill collection this spring to assist the reeve of Murray Township to replace a barn razed by fire in December.

Sidewalk Construction Tender Is Accepted

New Arena Rental Rates Are Approved

Increased operational costs have forced up Belleville arena rental rates in some categories.

New rates for the 1960-67 season were approved last night at city council and reflect high rates for adult public skating, along with increased rentals for hockey practice time and hockey games.

The new Senior "A" hockey team will pay the arena $125 per game plus expenses and the Junior "B" team $100 per game plus expenses. The figure is reflecting a slight increase over last year.

Out-of-town hockey teams will pay $125 per game or a percentage of the gate, whichever is the greater.

The rate for hockey practice will be a straight $18 per hour with minor hockey to pay $12 per hour.

Public skating fees will be 25 cents for children under 12, 50 cents for students with cards and 75 cents for adults.

ONE-WAY TRACK

FLORENCE, Ariz. (AP) — Two convicts escaped Monday from the Arizona state prison, shanghaied the engine of a freight train, and kidnaped the engineer and brakeman aboard it. A 30-man posse of sheriff's officers and prison guards met the engine at a deadend of the spur track 18 miles away. The fugitives, throwing down a loaded shotgun, surrendered.

The cost of sidewalk construction is keeping up along with the cost of living.

City council found this out when tenders for the construction of approximately 20,000 square feet of sidewalk for the Dundas Street, West, and Herchimer Ave. areas were opened.

The contract for the sidewalk construction was awarded to Revay Construction Ltd. at $40,877, an amount about $10,000 higher than the figure approved by the Ontario Municipal Board.

Construction of the West Dundas Street work has been under discussion in city council for several years. The walk is needed primarily for the benefit of school children in the area.

Approximately 2,600 feet of the Dundas Street walk in the Rickery Street — Albert College area will be built of asphalt, the reason for this being that the walk may have to be dug up within a few years to provide for proposed roadway and intersection improvement.

City Engineer Wilbur Purcell said the reason asphalt was being laid in this area was that this type of construction was cheaper and was also more easily removed.

Council was told that the walk construction was expected to be completed this fall. Due to the fact that construction of concrete walk could not be successfully carried out in severe weather, the project would not qualify as winter works, it was stated.

Alyea Moves For Leave, Top Appeal

TRENTON — Tomorrow, at 10:30 a.m., Colonel R. E. Nourse, solicitor for Murray Township landowner, Jack Alyea will move for leave to appeal to the Court of Appeals of the Supreme Court of Ontario a decision brought down last week by County Judge J. C. Carruthers. Judge Carruthers ruled that the Trenton Public Utilities Commission might proceed with expropriation of 12.9 acres of land owned by Mr. Alyea which the commission claims it needs for a water storage pond.

Representing the PUC will be Toronto lawyer Robert Tow of the firm of Faskin, Calvin, McKenzie, Williston and Swackhammer, and the township's solicitor Judge Carruthers.

Two Liberals Acclaimed in Nominations

By DON McLEOD

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP)— Electoral headquarters here will try again to complete the list of candidates for Newfoundland's Sept. 8 election. Telephone and telegraph strikes left 10 ridings unreported after nominations closed Monday afternoon.

Magistrate R. G. Trickett, chief electoral officer, closed his office late Monday night with a list of 69 candidates from 31 ridings. He hoped to have "all of Newfoundland by noon today."

Strikes knocked out telegraph circuits and long-distance telephone calls, so Magistrate Trickett compiled his list with the aid of boats, taxis, RCMP radio and emergency help from Avalon Telephone Co. supervisors, filling in for regular workers who began a walkout Monday morning.

RETURN TWO LIBERALS

Two of Premier Smallwood's Liberal candidates combat veterans, Leslie R. Curtis, were returned by acclamation. Mr. Curtis was returned in Twillingate and A. C. Wornell, a newcomer to politics, was not opposed in Hermitage, a seat that put John Cheeseman in by acclamation in the 1962 election.

have argued that they cannot afford a wage increase because of the freight rate freeze that has been in effect since 1958. Wage increase since then have been covered by federal subsidies.

The new legislation would erase the freeze.

A key section of the 34,000-word bill proposes a Canadian Transport Commission to replace the three present transport agencies — the board of transport commissioners, the Air Transport Board and the Canadian maritime commission.

The 18 commissioners serving on the present agencies would automatically switch to the 37 - member commission. Their staffs would form the nucleus of the commission staff.

All railway subsidies, which have been steadily mounting to reach a peak of nearly $125,000,000 this year, are to be scrapped and replaced by a sliding subsidy that would see the railways through the transitional period in which economic services are dropped.

This new subsidy proposal is to begin at $150,000,000 next year, dropping by 15% per cent each year to the $82,000,000 mark. After that there would be none.

The legislation does not affect statutory grants, such as that one of which is the Crowsnest Pass agreement negging export grain rates at 1899 levels. A three-year cost study is to be carried out by the new commission to determine whether these rates actually involve a loss to the railways and how it should be covered.

A major role of the commission will be to decide whether a line or a passenger service that the railways seek to scrap should be continued in the public interest. If so, the federal treasury will pay the railway for the actual loss incurred in such operation.

In freight rates, the bill sets out safeguards to protect so-called "captive shippers" from excessive charges and also prevent the railways from unfairly undercutting their competitors.

A complaint formula is established under which the commission may set a rate for a shipper who has no economic alternate mode of transport and thus is "captive" to the railway. This formula starts at variable costs plus 160 per cent and works down according to shipping volume.

All rates must cover the railways' actual costs plus a profit. Those they will not be able to offer below-cost freight rates in order to push a competitor out of the picture. If there are complaints, the commission will make a cost study of the situation involved.

Government informants said the provision allowing abandonment of branch lines will be strictly controlled. Almost all these lines are on the Prairies and the government already established certain of these as "uneconomic" — meaning they will continue in operation with federal support.

The railways will be asked to approach branch-line abandonment on the Prairies from the bottom up, applying for the least-used lines first and then working up the heavily traveled ones.

The legislation leaves intact, for the time being, the Maritime Freight Rates Reduction Act under which the government pays out about $20,000,000 a year to shippers moving goods to and from Central Canada.

These payments, actually involving a freeze on freight rates in the Maritime provinces, are to be continued for two years pending completion of a special study of Atlantic transportation problems.

Also untouched would be certain freight rate provisions written into the 1949 terms of union with Newfoundland which made the island the 10th province.

One of the subsidies to be scrapped is the $7,000,000 "bridge" payment compensating the railways for operations through the thinly-populated region of northwestern Ontario. This is the railway "bridge" between eastern and western Canada.

Belleville school officials this week are bracing themselves for the avalanche of public and high school students who next Tuesday will be storming at classroom doors as the fall school term gets underway.

If estimates are anywhere near correct the school population in the city will be the highest ever.

Public Schools Administrator L. A. Corby estimates that about 5,250 elementary school pupils will register; although it was doubted this figure could go as high as 5,300.

This figure compares with the 5,100 pupils registered in the city's public schools at the end of the school term in June.

C. E. Casey, administrator of the Belleville Separate School Board, says he expects between 1,500 and 1,700 in the six schools operated by the Board. Unlike the figures for public schools, this total includes Grade 9 and Grade 10 students. In addition there were last year some 200 students in Grades 11, 12 and 13 at Nicholson Catholic College.

Mr. E. A. Orr, secretary-principal for the Bay of Quinte District High School Board which includes Trenton, is expecting four schools in the city. has much the same story to tell.

Mr. Orr estimates that anywhere from 3,900 to 3,950 high school students will register, although this figure could be as high as 4,000. It is expected enrolment will be up about 150 from the 3,797 who registered a year ago.

"There are a lot of families moving in and out of the Belleville district," Mr. Orr said, "and sometimes the school enrolment doubles and come out just where it is expected."

The high school teacher complement for the coming school term will be 196 — up 10 from last year.

The enrolment breakdown for the four high schools is expected to be approximately like this: Quinte Secondary School — 1,350; Moira Secondary — somewhere between 1,100 and 1,150; Belleville Collegiate School — between 1,000 and 1,050 and Centennial Secondary School in West Belleville — 460 Grade nine and Grade 10 students.

TWO MORE CLASSROOMS

The public schools system will see two additional classrooms over the number in use at the end of June.

These will be the two portable classrooms set up on the Hillcrest School in northeast Belleville.

Mr. Kells said that while the two portable classrooms have been set up at Hillcrest, this does not necessarily mean they will remain there permanently.

"The portable classrooms will be moved to anywhere in the city where an emergency problem exists," he said.

Another five additional classrooms are expected to be ready early in the new year. Wingar DeJong Construction of Stirling have about completed the foundation for the new Sir John A. MacDonald Public School being built on Harder Drive immediately west of the Centennial Secondary School.

The expectation is that the five-room structure will be ready for occupancy following the Christmas holiday period.

Leo Landreville

Canada Justice, tore great strips off Mr. Justice Landreville in a slashing 30,000 word report.

"PROVEN HIMSELF UNFIT"

Commissioner R a y d concladed: "... Justice Landreville has proven himself unfit for the proper exercise of his judicial functions."

From Toronto, Mr. Justice Landreville called the report "iniquitous, malicious, unjust and prejudiced."

He promised some new evidence, dealing mainly with a report of the Law Society of Upper Canada (Ontario) last year calling on the federal government to get him off the bench because of his acceptance of $27,000 in stock in Northern Ontario Natural Gas Co. in 1957.

Nature of this evidence was not hinted at, but Commissioner Rand said he had not taken the law society recommendation into account in reaching his own conclusions.

Mr. Rand accused Mr. Justice Landreville of "grave suspicion" of impropriety" in the stock deal itself, of treating the Ontario courts and Ontario Securities Commission with contempt and of coming close to deliberate lying.

SEVERE ACCUSATIONS

He wound up with three accusations against the judge:

1. His participation while he was on the bench in 0967 of 7,500 free shares in NONG, which had subsidiaries in Sudbury, in the Sudbury district council while he was mayor the year before, and which created suspicion of impropriety." The judge had not fulfilled an obligation of the Supreme Court to constituted a "serious violation of his personal duty as a Justice of the Supreme Court of Ontario, which has permanently impaired his usefulness as a judge."

2. His conduct from start to finish in a deal "trailing odors of scandal" was "a dereliction of both his duty as a public official (mayor) and his personal duty as a judge, a breach of that standard of conduct obligatory upon him, which has permanently impaired his usefulness as a judge."

The federal government in launching the inquiry had asked Mr. Rand to look into the question of possible misbehavior by an official Judicial capacity as well as that of general unfitness for judicial duties.

Mr. Justice Landreville, one of last federal judicial appointees of the Liberal St. Laurent government in late 1956, already has been through the investigative wringer twice.

OSC QUESTIONED HIM

The OSC, after missing him at first inquiry in mid 1958 into NONG promotional stock manipulations, ran across him in 1959 by accident and questioned him at a closed session. There was no public finding against him and that report has never been made public.

But in 1956 the Ontario attorney - general charged him with municipal corruption and charged Ralph K. Farris of Vancouver, first president of NONG, with offering the stock to him as a bribe to grease the way for the franchise. The judge was discharged at a preliminary hearing and the charge against the millionaire financier allowed to lapse.

Earlier in 1956, Mr. Justice

FAMOUS ACTOR'S GRANDSON fishing with new found Canadian friend Don Copeland (right) of Carrying Place.

Grandson of Movie Idol, John Gilbert, An Interested Visitor to Quinte District

CARRYING PLACE — The period in Trenton's history when the town was known as the "Hollywood of Canada" has aroused the curiosity of an adept young visitor from Connecticut who plans to return next summer to seek out information on this and other points of interest.

Of course 11-year-old Anthony Fountain visiting the William Bridgeman family at Jack Hunter's estate here has more reason than most people for wanting to learn more about the film industry and those connected with it. He is the grandson of movie idol, John Gilbert, one of the screen's great romantic figures whose roles with stars like Marlene Dietrich and Greta Garbo brought him fame and fortune before his death in 1936.

The scion of a Hollywood super star from the middle 20's until the middle 30's never saw his grandfather Gilbert in real life and only remembers him from family talk and pictures in a scrapbook kept by his grandmother, the former Leatrice Joy, who also was well known for her acting ability and appeared in Cecil B. DeMille's spectacular "The Ten Commandments."

"When people find out my grandfather was John Gilbert they ask me if I got my looks from him. Do you resemble him?" young Fountain was asked. I tell them my mother told me I have his eyes."

CAUGHT IN GAME

The youth says he has no ambition to follow family traditions and become an actor, however. Yet he is cognizant of the fact show business provided exciting careers for his grandparents and opportunities for his mother the former Leatrice Joy to get a foothold under contract by MGM, when she was still in high school. "I may change my mind later on. Wall Street like my father," he explained. "He seems happy in what he is doing and that is how I want to live."

Regardless of young Fountain's desire to escape a destiny influenced by heredity fate may have taken a turn in selecting the final decision for him.

Labor-Management Relations Better Than May Be Thought

Member of Rotary Club Told

Despite the evidence of industrial unrest in Canada today labor - management relations are better than may be thought, Francis E. Eady, executive assistant to the national president of the Canadian Union of Public Employees, told Belleville Rotarians on Monday.

"I would say something like 90 per cent of collective agreements in Canada are signed without anything approaching a dispute. Even when industries are strike - bound . . . in the period between strikes the relationship is better than we would give them credit for."

Mr. Eady said he thought newspapers are prone to stress differences between the parties. "It is hard to get a good story and photographs when there has been no argument and no dispute at all."

Observing that Canada had not yet come out of what he termed "frontier thinking" with regard to labor - management relations, Mr. Eady said that there were nevertheless "large areas in which relations were good."

"The stronger the union the better the employer," said Mr. Eady. Personally, he thought the trouble with the railways was that they had "too many unions."

"In the long run a strong and responsible union is better than 15 or 16."

The union official expressed the view that if collective bargaining were to be given a chance "government interference and legislation should be kept at a minimum . . . When it does enter the field it should do a strong job and which we have not got at the moment."

He said if the anticipated railway legislation had been introduced and the railway unions regulated the country would not be facing a rail strike now.

NEED FOR UNDERSTANDING

"The government must remain supreme, but it should use its powers with discretion, rather than as a weapon against the unions."

"If we are to do anything about the problems of labor relations in Canada there has got to be understanding by both sides of one another's problems," he said.

Speaking of labor relations generally, against the background of a new generation in industry, he looked to the future rather than back in the difficult days of organization. Mr. Eady said the impact of the younger generation was beginning to be felt in all parts of the structure. The Viet Nam demonstrations, anti - nuclear groups and the establishment-oriented union was one of those which prompted the creation of the commission of inquiry which has now been set up by the Canadian Labor Congress to take a good look at labor's set-up within the labor movement.

"Another area where there must be some changes is from the concept of town by town and plant by plant negotiations. We should first move to regional and area, and possibly to provincial and national bargaining.

"On management's side, there is need to re-group and enlarge employer organizations to provide the possibility for the regional and national bargaining which I have already mentioned. There have been some isolated set-up within the labor movement.

formal studies done in this field but I have seen no signs that any of the management and employer organizations are taking any action in this direction. This should be coupled with a real effort to re-train existing management and train new management for a different attitude towards labor-management relations.

NEED GOOD LOOK

"I think that in this connection we would need to have a good look at the attitudes absorbed at the average Schools of Business attached to universities around the country, and look more to Industrial Relations Centres of the type now existing in the University of Toronto and at McGill."

Mr. Eady said he was often asked by people who knew he had spent some time in Sweden as to what was the reason for the success of their system of industrial relations. The simple one answer could be found in government non-interference in labor-management relations, while at the same time encouraging and improving the mediation services which can be made available on request.

NO CONFRONTATION

Mr. Eady said he thought there should be an extension of the field of labor-management co-operation in such matters as safety, productivity, efficiency and so on.

He also believed unions should maintain, and possibly strengthen, the right to strike, the right to lock-out and then, having done that, "do everything possible to avoid the type of confrontation which we have seen in the railway strikes in the United States and their employees, and between the railways and their employees in Canada."

"It is fundamental that both labor and management should put aside their old prejudices, be prepared to accept change, and jointly make the changes in our 20th century system of industrial relations which will be necessary for Canada in its second hundred years."

Harry Frast introduced Mr. Eady and the latter thanked Den Thrush. Vice-president Jim Marker presided.

Tax Installment Due on Wednesday

There's only one more day's grace before property owners to pay that next installment of taxes.

Taxpayers are reminded that Wednesday, August 31, is the due date for the next installment of property taxes. The city hall tax department is open from 8:30 to 4:30 Monday through Friday.

Going Nowhere Man!

News pictures of strike activity afford an interesting study in contrasts. They provide strong insight into the character of a society accustomed to service, and suggests an unfortunate degree of public apathy in the face of any breakdown of facilities — in this case inviting transport.

The faces of people at the Bay Street bus terminal in Toronto were typical. They reflected inaction, docility — even resignation. True, there was little they could do, but the overriding impression was of a large group of people bereft of initiative, stunned by circumstances outside their control.

Does this ring a bell somewhere? In this typical of the Canadian character — a quiet acceptance of circumstances that in other countries where temperament is more apparent would lead to a riot. Perhaps it is as well, though, that we are an orderly people.

Strangely enough, at the terminal where the travellers stood, three large buses were parked nearby, but they appeared empty. Nor did they look as if they were being routed anywhere. And the folks just stood there looking blank, accepting the whole sorry business as normal.

Others had taken taxis to home towns that were not too far distant. But a taxi farther afield . . . would be something else again. And the faces of two elderly Vancouver people, Montreal-bound but stranded at Ottawa, were far from cheerful. They at least expressed their anger. Their target was the Ottawa stationmaster.

Meanwhile the Toronto bus terminal officials reported they were "swamped," and Air Canada similarly was doing big business. But it is the faces of those sad, disappointed passengers "going nowhere man" which haunt us.

Unrest in China

Communist China is in the grip of some sort of internal anarchy stemming from the activities of the teenage Red Guard movement.

What is described as a "cultural revolution", spearheaded by the young people, is demanding an end to Western influences on the Chinese way of life. Laborers, government employees and housewives, all wearing red arm bands, are reported to have joined the so-called Red Guards in their campaign.

With the approval of the country's communist authorities, the young people and citizen supporters have been rampaging through cities beating and humiliating men and women, many of them elderly and presumably representative of the "old world" the Red Guard is seeking to destroy.

Further evidence, moreover, that the split between China and the Soviet Union is widening is seen in the demonstration that occurred outside the Soviet Embassy in Peking. In the curious political language that emanates from Peking, the street where the Embassy stands has been renamed Struggle Against Revisionism Street.

Roman Catholic nuns at the Convent of the Sacred Heart taken over by the guards are reported under deportation orders. All are elderly and have been in China for many years. They include Canadians.

In all the young agitators are not having it all their own way. Nine are reported to have been shot and killed by citizens. Clearly China is in the grip of internal stress unlike anything reported from that country in recent years. Hitherto much of its political thinking has been directed outwards — principally at the United States. Now it seems an attempt is being made to eradicate western influences within the country itself.

Beachcombing Anyone?

A recent story described how an Ontario woman reckhound, interested in mineralogy since her schooldays, developed it into a lucrative business.

There are other ways too of following one's bent, making it pay, and at the same time avoiding the madding crowd. Mrs. Dolores Carlson of Huntingdon Beach, California is one who finds not necessarily gold, but something of value, in that sandy strip.

Described as a veteran beachcomber, Mrs. Carlson scours the beach daily with a metal-detector. She pursues this routine daily and sometimes picks up as much as $15 in lost coins, in addition to valuable lost articles half-buried in the sand.

But her most valuable prize, she says, is the persistence of the long walks. Mrs. Carlson evidently makes a living from beachcombing, and at the same time finds the kind of solace that is missing from the lives of most people today.

The first Canada - wide railway strike ended 16 years ago today—1950—when Parliament ordered 155,000 members of 17 striking unions back to work. The stoppage began Aug. 22 after failure of negotiations over higher pay and a shorter week. Among the work week to 40 from 48 hours. The strike nearly paralyzed railway - distance communication and caused layoffs in other industries dependent on railways, such as coal and metal mining, food packing and wood and chemical processing. It was Canada's most costly labor dispute to date.

No Diet Yet Proven To Cure Psoriasis

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: My son has a severe case of psoriasis and believes that a no-protein diet will help him. What is your opinion? — J. A. R.

Psoriasis is one of the most aggravating maladies we know because nobody to date has found any sure cure for it.

Oh, yes, there are plenty of proposed remedies, but we are as much in the dark as to the exact cause of this skin condition that we have no satisfactory way of attacking it. And as with every unexplained ailment, the result is a host of suggested remedies with no assurance that any will really be a cure.

When, for any ailment, a reliable remedy at last appears, then the other proposed remedies quickly fade out of use.

Fortunately psoriasis ordinarily does no harm except to one's appearance, and it is not contagious. It just looks bad!

Different kinds of diet have been tried but have not been found effective. One school believes a high-fat diet is helpful. Another school prefers a low-fat, high protein routine. So you see there is a wide difference in opinion.

More recently taurine, one of the amino acids, (a protein) has been suspected of being poorly tolerated by psoriasis patients. To reduce the intake of taurine, it is necessary to limit the amount of protein foods, their sources, and to use special cooking procedures to leach out the taurine.

This is not a "no - protein" diet, but one that restricts it. Care must be exercised in using the diet, especially among adolescents who, still growing, are more urgently in need of protein than others.

Thus any attempt at such a diet should be under strict supervision of your physician.

I don't mean to imply that a careful method of treating — or trying to treat — psoriasis, in any case, is not worth while. Many proposed remedies have seemed to work in certain cases although since psoriasis has a come and go without any visible reason or even stop without any treatment at all, it is hard to say whether a remedy really has worked or just happened to be in use when the psoriasis subsided spontaneously.

My own preference is to put such a case under the supervision of a dermatologist with use of one treatment or another primarily aimed at keeping the skin soft and preventing flaking. That, at least, lessens the risk of having infection start because of scratching the scaly patches.

Exposure to sunshine or to some other source of ultraviolet also seems to help — but again, don't be disappointed if it doesn't cure the problem. It tends to help and that's the best I can say.

Dear Dr. Molner: Please differentiate between Parkinson's disease and multiple sclerosis. — Mrs. J. S.

The essential difference is that in Parkinson's disease the hands (and other parts of the body) tremble in a "pill-rolling" motion, because of a disorder of a part of brain which governs muscular activity.

Multiple sclerosis can resemble Parkinsonism superficially, but the major symptoms are weakness, jerking movements and lack of co-ordination rather than mere trembling. Movements of the eyes and speech mannerisms also may be involved.

Note to Mrs. J. B.: I see no reason why chronic colitis should impair your ability to have children.

New Cabooose

Financial Post

All North American railways are on a horror buying spree these days, but no line can top Canadian National Railways when it comes to caboose. CN has decided that the railroaders who bring up the rear are due for a bit of pampering.

Result: CN has ordered 150 new steel cabooses which officials feel will be the envy of the railroad world. Electricity will allow lighting, refrigeration, air conditioning. Upholstered swivel chairs with adjustable safety head rests and upholstered benches for cat naps will replace hard chairs. The ride will be smoother with roller bearings specially designed wheel sets, frames. Two oil stoves and a high - capacity water system for washing and cooking add to the rolling homes.

City Image Is Important . . .

. . . Halifax Chronicle - Herald . . .

A feature in the current issue of The Advertiser, Kentville's weekly newspaper, poses the thought-provoking question, "Does your town smile or frown?"

The brief article is concerned with the appearance of the entrances to our communities and asks whether the approaches are attractive to visitors, or repulsive to them.

Passing the same structure day after day, one fails to observe how unkempt it may have become. The drive into town may be through a slum section or past the local dump, but the resident, having taken the situation for granted over a long period, does not even notice.

The reaction of a stranger is quite different. With him, first impressions are lasting. The mental picture which he takes home with him may be very wrong indeed, simply because his first view of an area was distasteful.

Any civic council might be well advised to take as a test the lines of Robert Burns.

Vacation-Bound Parliament Just Dropped Everything

By GREG CONNOLLEY
From The Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA—If you'd watched the nine successive Parliaments that have worked and worried through those past 36 years, you'd notice approaches the true stature and worth of this one, the 27th since Confederation.

Assessing each one of them from your front row Commons Gallery seat, you could conclude that the average performance of this particular Parliament is that its Broadcasting Committee spent twice as much time and took three times as much evidence on the Seven Days reveal of the CBC as the Defence Committee did on all aspects of the Armed Forces.

The statistics?

The Broadcasting Committee; 42 sittings and 1,344 pages of evidence.

The Defence Committee; 19 sittings and 420 pages of testimony.

But that doesn't tell the whole story.

The great bulk of its sitting time and wordage of evidence was devoted by the Broadcasting Committee to the attempted Seven-Days-producer take-over of the CBC executive.

And not one minute nor a single word of evidence was concerned in the Defence Committee with the Canadian Forces' ever you wish to call it, of the Unification-Axis, the Air Vice Marshals and the Lieutenant-Generals over Service unification.

Nor does that tell it all.

For not only did the Broadcasting Committee spend time in port defending and justifying the Seven Days revolt against good taste, good manners and discounting honesty, integrity, objectivity, and other such old-fashioned fuddy duddy concepts . . .

. . . but the Defence Committee produced a report in which there wasn't so much as a whisper of censure of Parliament's disenchantment and even dissatisfaction in the Armed Forces.

Even that gives only part of the story.

Look at it cost-wise, from the taxpayer's viewpoint.

Seven Days was an annual $1,130,000 CBC television operation, a hundredth part of the $120,000,000 publicly - owned CBC and its subsidiaries.

And the Armed Forces take $1,500,000,000, or 31 percent of the entire annual Federal budget to run.

Well, what was the trouble? Was the Defence Committee asleep?

Not completely.

It did have the right witnesses before it for two full sittings, witnesses like former Rear Admiral William Landymore who could have given the answers if he had been asked the questions.

Admiral Landymore being a naval officer — and RCAF and Army officers are no less bon-crabis — wouldn't flok on Defence Minister Hellyer by voluntering information he knew might be enormously damaging to him.

Tradition and simple decency wouldn't permit him to rat on the Minister.

But the Defence Committee could have asked him questions — and he would have had to answer.

HOLIDAYS FIRST

And had the right questions been asked and answered, there might have been a good chance to explore the crisis and do something to resolve it at less than the price of the heads of Admiral Landymore and 18 other senior service officers that it so far has cost in the two months since.

Even worse than the Committee having drowned sleepily in reading CBC executive briefings, the Commons itself, suddenly faced with this most critical situation of the entire Session of Parliament up to then, ran away from it.

Deliberately.

Not out of fear.

Out of sheer irresponsibility. And sloth.

For Parliament was still sitting that afternoon of Thursday, July 14, when Admiral Landymore suffered his brickdidie.

Then that event had been earlier shooting along the Defence perimeter the week before with other senior service officers skirmishing against integration and paying with their long and honorable careers for it.

But knowing all this, Parliament — and it was the Opposition's responsibility to — did nothing about it — was just too bushed for holidays to care.

Or-at least to bother.

There was an all-Party political truce on, and the Parliamentary shop that same night for the 13-week recess, and nobody, but nobody, was going to interfere with that. But now, it's back to work, overtime, on the rail crunch.

When it comes to abdication of responsibility this is the present Parliament at its greatest but its 27th six-year-and-six-months years in the Capital.

Strictly Personal

Society Lacks Conscience

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

A recent news story related that a man was shot while standing beside a counter in a department store. Although there were 150 persons in the store while police were unable to find any witnesses to the shooting.

One of the most serious flaws in our social system is the growing unwillingness to make even the slightest effort to help out in the community. The desire to "keep out of trouble" far outweighs any twinges of social conscience.

The modern world has grown so huge and impersonal, that we come so smothered in restrictions and red tape that most people are reluctant even to testify as witnesses to a crime. The unwritten law seems to be, behavior have diminished almost to the point of invisibility.

My friend's agent recently told me about one of his clients, who stopped on a deserted road to pick up the victim of a hit-and-run driver.

When the police questioned their insinuated strongly that he had hit the Pedestrian, and gave him such a bad time that he resolved never again to perform this same generous act.

A young lady who heard this tale then remarked that she, too, had suffered because of her scruples. Leaving a party one night, she had only a couple of cocktails — she brushed the fender of the adjoining car while trying to get out of her parking space.

She rang the doorbell of the house where the owner of the damaged car was parked, and said, "If that's your car, I dented the left fender. I'm fully insured for insurance, and I want to leave my name and house number."

Instead of being grateful, the indignant householder called the police, who then found their way down to the station for a "drunk-ometer" test, kept her for several hours in a cell, and kept her loose crying hysterically — for her father is a prominent man, and the news of her predicament

"If I had done as most people do," she said ruefully, "and simply driven off after scratching the car, no one would have ever known, and I would have stayed out of trouble."

Staying out of trouble has become the creed in modern society, and no one in particular is to blame for it. We are all trapped in the flywheel of the machine age, and we prefer to be anonymous cowards rather than courageous individuals.

The real curse of bigness is the loss of our self-respect.

Noble Homes A Liability

By CARL L. VOGEL
In Deutsche Korrespondenz

Romantic piles are just as hard to maintain in Germany as they are in England, where the nobility despairs at death duties, and the Duke of Bedford is reduced to the status of guide round his own estate.

More and more old castles and ruins are being offered at give-away prices, whether because of historic indifference or because of the lack of funds of local antiquity societies and public authorities.

A South German newspaper recently advertised "Guaranteed genuine Gothic Castle built in 1488, ideal old! situation, medium sized, three big halls, three ladies' retiring rooms, 120 square metres kitchen, earth closet, drawbridge (drawable), cheerful private chapel, on sale in the first taker for 20,000 Marks (about $5,000). Buyer takes responsibility for restoration."

And of course, the snag in the deal lay in the last sentence: making the pile habitable. And yet can it be really true as the Suddeutsche Zeitung claims, that castles can be had for nothing at all? In Bavaria alone, besides these doubtful "castle to be sold" offers, about at ancient buildings are being offered at prices ranging from 300,000 Marks ($81,000), to ten times that sum.

Of course, just after Second World War, many ancient buildings were bought up by local authorities and turned into youth hostels. But the romantic period is now over.

Neither private business nor public bodies can find the money needed to remove ruinstarters. Romanticism has been harnessed to business, and has lost its sincerity. It is now only interested in built for tourists. Perceptive buyers looking round medieval castles concentrate on the practical. One of their most important questions is: "Where can we build a carpark?"

Human Values Versus Power

By ROBERT McCracken of Weekend Magazine

Irving Layton, in an interview with Matthew McCracken of Weekend Magazine

"I'm not the rebel. I believe it is the other people who are rebelling, rebelling against the flight, rebelling stupidity and blindly against love and life. They are sons and daughters of the dedicated angels, not. I But they have to rebel in my society — people who seek power, prestige, money, fame. They are the ones who deal vitality. They place ridiculous restrictions on human behavior. They destroy, rather than create. They're the same everywhere. The creative and the powerful are not compatible. Power cares little for creativity, sensitivity. Creative people believe in the spontaneous, the free-and full development of a human being. People in power use others as means and not ends. They manipulate people. There is organized egotism and selfishness at all times. They believe everyone should fight and compete and hurt another. These are the values in authority.

Vermont at Expo

Montreal Gazette

We share much with Vermont, including some common historical ties. One of them is that Samuel de Champlain, the great French explorer who journeyed through the lakes and across the countryside of what later became Vermont, as well as exploring the lakes and rivers of Canada.

In fact, Vermont will name its pavilion the "Samuel de Champlain Pavilion" — a tribute to this common heritage.

Susanna's Family Fair

THE QUEEN OF HEARTS

. . . baked some blueberry tarts that they ran over to the oven and it took her smart son the knave to show her how to throw a little salt on the spilled juice to instantly stop it from smoking. The salt also snuffed out the unpleasant burnt odor that was building up, and let the heady aroma of fresh baking take over! They were both very pleased about that.

While he was at it, he taught her another trick. He showed her how to shrink the empty shells first by placing them in a medium oven for five minutes.

Then, when she added the filling, and returned them to the oven to finish baking, the hardly had to worry about a thing.

After this, even the king had a good word for young Jack! — SUSANNA

FISH FILLET, RICE STUFFING

At one store I found fresh frozen haddock fillets at 39c per lb. At another, fresh haddock (not frozen) at 89c per lb.

I bought the fresh haddock fillets. I had given you a recipe in June of this year for Baked Stuffed Haddock Fillets Continental calling for wine and for it I used fresh frozen fillets. According to their letters our readers were pleased — especially with the wine addition.

The recipe for today's Haddock Fillets calls for a rice stuffing and no wine. I think the flavor of the fresh fish is superior but not 41c per lb's. worth.

BAKED STUFFED FISH FILLETS (serves 6):

2 lbs. fresh haddock fillets (4 long ones)
2/3 cup raw long grain rice
1½ cups hot water
½ tsp. salt
2 tbsps. minced onion (or bottled minced onion)
½ tsp. salt
¼ tsp. dill weed or seed (see note below)
½ tsp. basil
2 tbsps. chopped fresh or 2 tbsps. lemon juice dried parsley
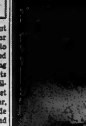
2 tbsps. butter

Cook rice by combining with hot water and salt and cooking over low heat until covered for 30 min.

Place 2 fish fillets side by side in buttered long shallow baking dish.

To cooked rice in pan add the onion, second amount of salt, herbs, (do not leave out the dill — it is just right for this and contributed largely to its success), lemon juice and butter. Spread rice stuffing evenly over both fish fillets and cover with 2 remaining fillets. Spread top of each fillet generously with soft butter; bake at least 2 thsps. Sprinkle moderately with paprika and salt. Bake at 400 deg. F. for 15 minutes or just until flesh is opaque and will flake when tested with tip of knife.



TUESDAY Dinner Menu

by Mary Moore

Mixed Grill: Lamb Chops, Sausages, Chicken Livers; Parsley Creamed Potatoes; New Baby Limas; Shredded Cabbage and Carrot Salad; Fresh Peach Pie with Ice Cream; Coffee.

If your baking dish is tableware, garnish with border of lemon wedges and carry to table. If your baking dish is not tableware, use pan with buttered foil first before baking fish and this will facilitate removal to preheated serving platter.

I recommend this Baked Stuffed Fish highly.

MR. AND MRS. STEPHEN S. ESFORD

Esford — Gayler

Rev. B. Lindsey was the officiating clergyman in St. John's Anglican Church, Wesley, on Saturday August 20, 1960, when Sandra Gayler, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Alexander Gayler, Picton R. R. 4, was united in marriage to Stephen Sidney Esford, Belleville, son of Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Esford of Kingston.

Miss Margaret Walker provided traditional wedding music and accompanied the soloist Mr. Roger Rawlings in appropriate selections.

The bride given in marriage by her father wore an Empire styled bridal gown of white peau de soie featuring an overlay lace bodice having long lily - point sleeves. The back of the dress was accented with a flowing lace train extendinfy from the shoulders. A bouffant nylon net was caught with a crown of tear drop pearls and she carried a solitaire mauve orchid encircled with stephanotis.

Sister of the bridegroom Miss Julia Esford was maid of honor and the bridesmaids Miss Patricia Gayler, sister of the bride and the Misses Ellen and Doreen Gayler, cousins of the bride were identically attired in mauve satin gowns with overlay lace bodices enhanced with elbow length sleeves. All wore wedding ring headbands with mauve nylon veils. The little flower girls Miss Brenda Gayler sister of the bride who wore a white nylon chiffon dress with mauve colored sash and carried a basket of mauve baby 'mums.

Mr. William McMaster was groomsman and Mr. Michael Roberts and Mr. David Goulding were the ushers.

For the reception on the lawn at the bride's parent's home, the bride's mother welcomed the guests wearing a semi - fitted dress of apple green figured brocade satin accessories with a corsage of white gladioli and pink 'rosebuds. Assisting was the bridegroom's mother who wore a beige linen and lace dress with matching beige accessories and a corsage of red rosebuds.

For the wedding trip to the East Coast, the bride chose a pink linen floral dress with matching coat, pink nylon hat, white accessories and a mauve orchid corsage.

Upon return Mr. and Mrs. Esford will reside at 76 Queen Street, Belleville.

SEEK MODEL JOBS

More than 100 girls turned up to apply for eight modelling jobs at this year's Canadian National Exhibition.

Miss Brigitte Koestler of Belleville will sail from New York on September 8, for a year of study in Europe. Miss Koestler will take her third year in modern languages, St. Michael's College of the University of Toronto, at Strasbourg and Cologne Universities. She is an honor graduate of St. Michael's Academy and Nicholson Catholic College, Belleville.

MR. AND MRS. GARRY M. GRAY

Gray — Cooke

Rev. J. A. Dunlop officiated at the candlelight ceremony in St. Margaret's-or-the-Hill Church, Belleville on Saturday August 20, 1960, when Linda Marlene Cooke, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Cooke, Belleville, was united in marriage to Garry Michael Gray, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Gray, also of Belleville.

Mr. Scott Bradford presided at the organ and played traditional wedding music.

Given in marriage by her father the bride wore a floor-length gown of nylon organza over taffeta highlighted with guipure lace sleeves. The back was enhanced with a flowing chapel train. A three-tier elbow length veil of silk illusion was caught by a chapel cap with seed pearls. She carried a bouquet of yellow roses, stephanotis, and trailing ivy.

Miss Pamela Murray as maid of honor and the bridesmaids Miss Suzan Cooke, Miss Susanne Lazariuk, Miss Dianne Gray and Miss Wilma McKnight were identically attired in mint green chiffon over taffeta floor-length dresses. The maid of honor carried a bouquet of yellow and white Shasta 'mums, while the other attendants carried bouquets of white Shasta 'mums.

Mr. Douglas Parker was groomsman, and the ushers were Mr. Michael Bradley, Mr. Peter Scarth, Mr. Ronald Lovett and Mr. Rae Munroe.

A reception was held at the Belleville Shrine Club where music was provided by the Stephen Chorus trio. Mrs. Cooke, the bride's mother, received the guests wearing an Atlantic blue peau de soie dress with matching accessories and a white orchid corsage. Assisting was the bride groom's mother, who wore a pink lace ensemble, white accessories, and a corsage of pink and white 'mums.

Leaving on a wedding trip to New England States and down along the east coast the bride wore a pink linen three piece suit with pink and white accessories and a corsage of white gardenias and stephanotis.

The couple will reside at 341 George Street, Belleville.

Designer Brings Back Belts, Fitted Midriff

By PEGGY MASSIN

PARIS (Reuters) — Designer Hubert de Givenchy, whose loose, unshaped chemise has been his stock in trade for the last 10 years, rediscovered the waistline in his winter collection shown to the press here Monday.

He brought back belts and a fitted midriff paired with wider skirts and replaced the chemise with a shirtwaist and dirndl styles, with narrow, shoestring belts circling the natural waistline.

He used belts on everything, including coats and suits.

Other silhouette highlights were the return of wide rounded shoulders, padded with "deepcut" raglan sleeves, and wide-swinging tent coats with fullness controlled at the front by a leather cord slotted through the side seams.

He also revived capes, featured in close-fitting cocoon styles.

Dress hemlines grazed the knees. Coats were all shorter than dress length and in monochromatic colors, with shoes and stockings in the shade of the coat.

He showed heavy-textured stockings and fishnet tights, worn with flat-heeled brogue or Oxford shoes. Colors featured were navy blue, sometimes teamed with bright red, green or beige.

Suits had boxy jackets, flared with wide skirts tucked with deep inverted pleats at each side. Long wool jersey bodices on solid tones were paired with blanket plaid or window-pane checked tartan.

In formal clothes, there were tent-draped dresses in soft crepes of puckered silk, worked with one sleeve and an asymetrical neckline.

Club Activities

The Milltown Birthday Club met at the home of Mrs. Olive Vance. All members were present. Euchre prizes went to Lillian Bennett, Lena Fitzgerald; lone hands — Josie Embury and Ruby Kilpatrick, consolation.

Next meeting will be at Lena Fitzgerald's home.

Couple Mark 25th Wedding Anniversary

MARMORA — Gladioli imported from Holland and grown by Mr. Sid Tonnos, Mayfair Gardens, Havelock, decorated the home of Mr. and Mrs. Stewart Hardy, R.R. 1, Marmora, on Friday for their 25th wedding anniversary celebration.

All attendants at their wedding were present for the occasion: maid of honor, Mrs. A. L. Daw, of Toronto, best bridesmaids, Mrs. Mel Prior of Seattle, Washington and Mrs. Roy Franks of Sault Ste. Marie; flower girl, Mrs. Barry Mawer of Sudbury, and groomsman, Mr. Orville Wells of Lindsay. A 3-tier anniversary cake presented to Mr. and Mrs. Hardy was made by their niece, Mrs. Gordon Allanson of Warkworth. The 60 relatives attending the party included the couple's two children, Eldon, 19 and Mary 14, and the immediate family of Mr. and Mrs. Hardy; Rev. and Mrs. L. J. Hardy of Sarnia; Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Hardy of Warkworth; Mr. and Mrs. Albert Wells of Trenton; Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Robinson of Madoc; Mr. and Mrs. Ritchie Wells and Mr. and Mrs. Russell Wells of Marmora; Mr. and Mrs. Harold Wells of Stirling; Mr. and Mrs. Orville Wells of Lindsay and Mrs. Irwin Wells of Marmora. Master of ceremonies for the evening was Mr. Orville Wells.

The late Rev. J. W. Potter of Frankford, Mrs. Hardy's uncle, married the couple on the lawn of the Wells' homestead on August 23, 1941. Except for the first three years when they resided at Warkworth, Mr. and Mrs. Hardy have lived on the homestead as their married life.

On Tuesday evening a hundred friends in the community and members of the Free Methodist Church to which they belong, gathered at their home to congratulate the well-known couple. Following a social evening, a presentation was made. The address was by Mrs. Carl Bird, a close friend from Marmora.

Ann Landers

'Other Woman' Pleads For Betrayed Wives

ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I was the "hypotenuse" of a love triangle and therefore I'm qualified to speak on the subject. I'd like to make a plea through your column to every woman who is involved with a married man.

Please put yourself in the place of his wife. Can you conceive of her private heartache and public shame if her husband should die of a heart attack in your apartment or in a backstreet cafe or a motel when you two are hiding out?

How would the story look in the newspapers if you two should become involved in a serious accident? What if the car hit an oil slick, or the bridge sprung a leak, or the bleachers collapse? Far-fetched? Yes, of course, but such things happen.

The wife may not be aware that you exist. Can you imagine her humiliation when she learns? And of course if there are children, what would it do to them?

Please give some thought to all the implications, Girls, the next time you date a married man — ONE WHO DIDN'T.

DEAR ONE WHO DIDN'T — Cheaters often live in a world of fantasy. Your letter may bring some of them back to reality. Let's hope so.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I'm a teen-ager (19) but I'm a rock and roll disc jockey, too. My work brings me into close contact with hundreds of teen-agers everday. They dig me and I dig them.

If you've said it once you've said it a thousand times, "Most boys will take whatever is offered, plus whatever they can talk a girl into — or out of. It's up to the girl to turn him off."

This is true, Miss Landers, but I know some nice guys who got into trouble and it was the girl's idea. Some boys don't want to get involved in heavy love-making but when a girl moves in and takes over, the temptation is too much for a normal guy.

So please, Ann Landers, say something. It's time the boys were relieved of some of the responsibility. — D.P., THE D.J.

DEAR D.J. — You've been so busy spinning those discs that you've missed some of my columns. I've said plenty about it.

I'm well aware it's not always the boy's fault. I've said repeatedly that unless a boy uses a lead pipe or chloroform, the girls is responsible for whatever happens to her.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — My wife is very friendly with a woman she used to work with before we were married. The woman is attractive and pleasant and has remained single.

The other evening she confided in my wife that she is having an affair with a man (unmarried) she has known only a few months.

I am so disgusted that I find it impossible to be civil to her. Am I justified in telling my wife not to invite the woman over again? If I am wrong, how do I put her behaviour out of my mind? — MR. DISAPPOINTED.

DEAR MR. — Who appointed you judge, jury and chief executioner? Although I can understand your disappointment, there's something wrong with an individual who can't be civil to those who don't live up to his standards.

If you are unable to be decent to the woman suggest that your wife see her when you are not at home.

* * *

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Write them to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Successful Living

Husband States Case To His Wife's Lover

DEAR DORIS — I could quite well be the husband referred to by "HOPING AGAINST HOPE", a man who is hoping for a future with another man's wife. Perhaps you could find space to print the following reply:

DORIS CLARK

"To HOPING AGAINST HOPE: I could be the husband to whom you refer. I know that you are a good man caught up by the forces of circumstance, and though it is easy for us to lead a good and moral life if such conduct does not conflict with our own self interest and desires, it is far harder to follow these principles against your heart's desire.

"I beg you to follow the code that you have always believed in and break off this association for your own peace of mind and for the future happiness of my family. We are moving into a new home; let it be a new life also. And may you, by your sacrifice, find eventual happiness. — JUST HOPING".

Thank you, Doris. Your reply to that letter was very close to the centre of the target. — J.H.

DEAR J. H. — O.K. Make your bid for an intact home; but try not to sound too righteous in the process. Just print it and do all you can to make your second chance at married life and love the blissful state it can be, at its best.

* * *

DEAR DORIS — When in a mixed beer parlor is it right for a married woman (such as myself) to go first and talk to men neighbors she knows or the men neighbors to go and talk to the woman?

I am saying it's up to the man and my husband, neighbor men, and my sister claims it's always the woman first. So who is right?

I also think it looks worse for a married woman than a single one. — K.H.

DEAR K.H. — Gentlemen wait for ladies to speak first. You may nod in his direction; in which case the neighbor may get up and come over.

Perhaps he is first tomes In, he stops at your table when you greet him. If you invite him to join you and your husband, he sits down; but not before.

Married or single, the lady thus has the social contact in her control. A man does not inflict himself on her uninvited.

DEAR DORIS — Thank you so much for your wonderful advice. The children's happy and liveable It's like a miracle, what love can do! — DEEPLY GRATEFUL.

* * *

DEAR DEEPLY — Isn't it though? As a widow, and alone, you were deep in self-pity. But all you needed was to be pointed in the right direction — to start loving and laughing with your greatest treasures. It's a bright person who can take advice.

* * *

DEAR DORIS — I once had the same problem as "Just a Giraffe". When I was 12 I was five feet eight inches tall. I am now 16 and have the same height. The only way to overcome the self-consciousness is to forget about yourself, and start taking interest in other people.

Boys have to be assured that a girl is approachable, and that she will not bite their heads off. One of the most popular girls I know is six feet tall.

So hold your head up, girl, and show people the person you really are.— PROUD OF HEIGHT.

DEAR SIX FEET AND PROUD — The message seems to be "Stand Tall!" Thank you.

DEAR DORIS — I'm so afraid to face school in September. You see next term I begin grade nine which will have many dances and activities.

But my problem is that I'm not popular; last year I always stood in a corner while all the other girls were asked to dance. In this coming term I'd love to be popular with both boys and girls. — UNPOPULAR.

DEAR UNPOPULAR — So that's news? Even the good dancers and good lookers quake in their shoes at first. But they don't stand in the corner and beg to be overlooked.

For a change practise being the one to smile and speak first. Spot a lonely male and make him feel handsome and interesting. You have nowhere to go but up!

* * *

TO FULL OF EMPTINESS — This story of Dr. Norman Vincent Peale's was made for you:

"I knew a woman once whose dearly loved husband died. They were childless and very close to each other. She was a fine cook, but she found she had little interest in cooking for herself alone.

"Then one evening she said to herself: "This is no good. I'm going to that kitchen and bake a cake just the way Harry liked it. Then I'll decorate that cake with candles and take it to the children's hospital.

" 'Tomorrow night I'll bake pies and take them to the orphanage; and the night after that I'll make cookies and take them to some friend who has lost a loved one.

" 'I'm going to keep that up until I feel like myself again!'"

The surprise ending is that she started a successful business venture and a useful new life. 'Nuff said?

DEAR DORIS — I had to smile at Nurse's complaint about the long hours. I am an old ex-nurse and when I trained we worked 12 hours a day and had one half-day off a week. We never got a week end off.

" Our salary, if you want to call it so, was $6. a month the first year, and $10. the last year.

We got a wonderful training. We had our boy friends also; some left to get married, and some left during my training as more girls came in- if a girl is not "nurse material", she had better drop out as it costs a lot of money to train a girl.

Nursing is one of the most wonderful careers there is. You have something that no one can take away from you, and you never know when you may be called on in an emergency. I never really quit nursing, even after marriage, as I was called on many times to help out in an emergency, a neighbor suddenly takes ill, present at a hurry-up baby case, even to case three or four elderly people "across the divide".

My suggestion to Nurse is, take a fresh grip on her training, and think of the time when she will walk down the aisle in her white nurse's uniform to receive her diploma and her nurse's medal! She is young, and she can walk down another aisle in white and join the man in her life later. — AN OLD EX-NURSE.

DEAR EX-NURSE — How times have changed! But nursing is still a wonderful career and I hope Nurse takes your advice. Your letter is a delight.

* * *

(We now have some understanding of why people act as they do. Write to Doris about your particular human problem, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope for private reply.

45,691 Women Enlist Within Five War Years

By JEAN SHARP
Canadian Press Women's Editor

Twenty-five years ago, with Canada in the midst of a Second World War recruiting drive for 22,000 men and Prime Minister Mackenzie King insisting there would be no conscription, it was announced that women's branches of the armed forces would be formed.

As described by War Services Minister Joseph T. Thorson, enlistment of women was to be on a modest scale. There would be only a few thousand in each branch and they would do only a handful of jobs.

But by the time the Canadian Women's Army Corps, RCAF Women's Division and Women's Royal Canadian Naval Service—the CWACs, WDs and Wrens—were disbanded five years later, 45,691 women had served with them.

And far from handling a limited number of jobs, they wound up doing just about every task except fighting.

Typical were the women of the naval auxiliary. The first class of 67 had little hope of serving in other than clerical, administrative or domestic capacities. But as the war progressed Wrens became motor transport drivers, teletype operators, visual signalers, wireless operators, coders, sick berth attendants, switchboard operators, radar operators, sailmakers, operational plotters, training assistants and even electrical artificers.

A good many also became wives of sailors, soldiers and airmen. About 18,000 servicemen married service women.

ARMY WAS FIRST

Although War Services Minister Thorson (who later became a member of the exchequer court) announced in June, 1942, that the women would be given a chance to serve, it wasn't until Sept. 1 that the army began enlisting its first 250 recruits.

On Oct. 10 the air force told its first 150 to report to their nearest recruiting station and by the end of November 16,000 had applied and 600 had been admitted to the two services.

It wasn't until the spring of 1942 that the WRCNS announcement was made. Within six days 800 girls had applied.

The first small groups were picked. Elizabeth Snelle, now of Toronto, was borrowed from her job as matron - in - chief of the army medical corps to supervise the organization of the CWACs. Miss Smellie recalls that she travelled across Canada explaining and interviewing.

"At first they were looking for people in different areas who would help the military with recruiting. Man-like, they were hedging about what women to pick. . . . Everyone wanted to enlist. It was a natural desire to be where the excitement, and the men, were."

Marjorie Evis, now senior CWAC officer at Canadian forces headquarters in Ottawa, says there were reservations about the usefulness and wisdom of recruiting women despite the success of a similar program in England.

"They even thought of us as camp-followers, until they saw we had a role to play." She enlisted as a private on Sept. 1, 1941, one of the first recruits from the Toronto area. Today she is a major.

"When you're young you get caught up in that terrific feeling," she says.

"You feel you have to do something. I guess it's patriotism, though that seems to be a dirty word today."

Whatever the reasons for the response from Canadian women, it seems unlikely that the pay was an important inducement.

"Among the first posts to be filled will be cooks for military hospitals and maids for nurses' quarters," said a report in August, 1941.

Pay was two-thirds that of men. A recruit got 90 cents a day, a sergeant $1.50. On enrolment, volunteers got uniforms plus $15 for toiletries and underwear. They received another $3 every three months.

And far from handling a limited number of jobs, they wound up doing just about every task except fighting.

Marjorie Evis, now senior CWAC officer at Canadian forces headquarters in Ottawa, says there were reservations about the usefulness and wisdom of recruiting women despite the success of a similar program in England.

"They even thought of us as camp-followers, until they saw the WRCNS training centre at Galt, Ont., as HMCS Conestoga, thereby making the commanding officer, LL-Cmdr. Isabel Macneill of Halifax, the first woman to command a navy "ship."

It took both the army and navy until spring of 1943 to decide to give women officers the same rank titles as men. Army lieutenants had, for example, been subalterns.

Also in 1943, the RCAF WD and CWAC got pay raises to bring them up to 80 per cent of men's salaries. A lieutenant-colonel got $8 a day instead of $6.70.

The following year the navy gave Wrens permission to wear bell-bottom trousers on the trip overseas and open collars in summer. But as late as 1945 the army refused permission for the CWAC pipe band to wear kilts because the pipers' knees would show.

As the end of the war in Europe approached there was speculation about whether women would be allowed to go to the Pacific theatre. The navy approved the idea and the WDs were reported eager to volunteer.

But in December, 1944, the RCAF was beginning to release its married WDs. The WRCNS had paused in its recruiting and started again but Commander Adelaide Sinclair, director for Canada, said recruiting would probably halt at 6,000 in the winter of 1945.

When the Japanese war ended in August, 1945, demobilization of the women's forces began in earnest. The Wrens were retired from active duty in July, 1946, the CWACs were demobilized by the end of September and the WDs said farewell with a parade and inspection at Trenton air station Nov. 14, 1946, under Wing Officer Kathleen Walker.

Their total enlistment had been: WRCNS 7,043, CWAC 21,618, RCAF WD 17,030.

City-bred Farm Wife Enjoys Country Life

PRINCE (GEORGE, B.C.) (CP)—A city-bred farm wife says she has the best of both worlds and wouldn't change places with her urban cousins.

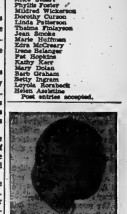
"You get to the point where you can't stand crowds anymore," says Mrs. S. R. Christenson, whose husband operates a big dairy farm near here.

She works from 6 a.m. to 9 p.m. daily but insists she still has a better life than the old-time walk-pounding city woman with half the chores.

Her well-equipped house has all the facilities of a city house and she has the added advantage of cheap food raised on the farm.

Mrs. Christenson says she's amazed at the amount of money city housewives leave in the supermarket. Her farm provides her family of six with all the eggs, meat, milk and vegetables they need.

"When I go into Prince George and look at the price of steak! But we have it here maybe three times a week and think nothing of it."



Even the children have the best of both worlds, she says. They take on responsibilities for chores at an early age, something city children seldom get. They attend a well-equipped school and live in a home with telephone, television and a wealth of reading material, including two sets of encyclopedias and a 400 - book library which serves as a lending library for the area.

Mrs. Christenson says she has an adequate social life and the family can visit Prince George for exertainment. But the rural mother of five never breeds loneliness. There is always lots of visiting.

Mr. Justice Rand at 82
A Top Canadian Judge

Report

transactions in 1964, it would be a different picture now.

He said Magistrate Mark's letter criticized the law society for its report and its "inaccuracies and unfairness." It

DIDN'T CONSIDER REPORT

Mr. Rand said in his report he did not take the law society report into account in reaching his conclusions.

The justice added in his Sudbury interview:

"I did not introduce the resolution of the law society at the Rand commission hearing out of consideration for the society. Mr. Rand must have seen it and should have published it along with the letter from Magistrate Albert Mark who tried me in Sudbury. That letter vindicates me completely.

"It was, moreover, written and sent to the Secretary and with the consent of the Ontario attorney - general, Arthur Wishart. The magistrate's letter vindicates the resolution because it was wrong on all facts. That letter should have been dealt with by the society and should have been made public. I will make it public in the proper time."

"I have always respected his (Mr. Rand's) judgment," Mr. Justice Landreville said on television."However, in this particular case, he is not dealing with facts but with imaginations and gossip.

"I intend to appear before whatever body the government will set up. I will go into the details and establish my innocence . . . against gossip and insinuation."

He said he considers himself innocent and does not intend to resign.

"I have always stated that I have committed no wrong, neither morally, legally, ethically or otherwise. And if anyone can establish that I will, of course resign."

He said he will remain in office and fir his own date of resignation and will not "be pushed by anyone or any pressure to resign."

"I would indeed be a poor judge and set a poor example to the people of this country to plead guilty by resigning. Too many people plead guilty out of pressure."

Mr. Justice Landreville said he has always admitted that he made $147,000 profit from shares of Northern Ontario Natural Gas, which was negotiating to bring natural gas into Sudbury while he was mayor of the city in 1955-56.

He said an option to purchase the stock was part of a deal in which he was to have taken an office with NONG after his term as mayor ended.

He said he did not expect an appointment to the Ontario Supreme Court at the time, but he but decided to accept it in spite of financial losses he would suffer through not joining NONG.

Mr. Justice Landreville completed the transaction for 7500 shares of stock in February, 1957, after he had assumed his position on the bench.

He said that no evidence was ever brought forward to show that he had exerted any influence on the Sudbury city council or any other city official concerning a NONG franchise for the ity.

He added he does not regret having accepted the NONG shares because "what I did in 1955-56 in the circumstances of what I knew then—and even what I know now—I would have done the same thing in the same manner without changing anything."

Strikers

seagers and non - commercial vehicles between North Sydney, N.S., and Port aux Basques, Nfld., and the CNR ferries linking Prince Edward Island with the mainland were to resume limited operation today.

Premier Alex Campbell said the Charlottetown Monday night he was elated at the news. An advertising campaign was already under way to lure tourists back to the island province of 100,000 for the Labor Day weekend.

AIR TRAFFIC INCREASES

In Montreal, Air Canada reported a great increase in both cargo and passenger traffic as a result of the strike, which has tied up nearly 20,000 miles of track across the country.

"More than 25 extra flights were operated over the past weekend," the strike said in a statement.

Air Canada's Toronto freight terminal alone was handling about 1,000,000 pounds of goods daily, twice the normal average, and "all other major stations report similar increases."

Bus lines reported heavy increases in both passenger and express traffic, and the airlines were turning away passengers despite their extra flights.

In Toronto, Joe Goodman, general manager of the Automotive Transport Association of Ontario, said the strike effects were just beginning to "take hold."

Some individual trucking companies were "finding it hard to locate tractors to pull their freight."

There were huge traffic tieups in Montreal Monday as the 42,000 commuters who normally travel to work by rail joined the car pools or crowded buses.

The strike has also shut down the telegraph services provided by the CNR and CPR, two-thirds of the seven railways affected, and spokesmen for industry say that layoffs will be necessary if the walkout lasts a week.

The strike along with 96,000 non-operating railway employees are 20,000 trainmen, the group involved in the actual running of the trains.

The non-ops, members of 16 railway unions, earned an average of $2.22 an hour under their last contract and are seeking a wide range of increases plus fringe benefits which spokesmen have said are complicated to translate into dollars and cents.

Largest of the non-op unions is the CBRT, which is asking for hourly raises ranging from 99 cents to $1.05.

Most of the non-op unions belong to the shop crafts group, whose demands include a 25-per-cent increase as a basic hourly, the latter figure representing a 40-per-cent increase.

The trainmen want a 15-per-cent increase as well as a reduction in hours worked or miles run.

The CPR and CNR have branded the union demands unrealistic but have made no counter offers on grounds that, with freight rates frozen since 1959, they have no way of raising the additional revenue they need to pay higher wages.

The government's answer to this argument was contained in a massive transportation bill introduced in the Commons Monday as part of the strike-settling formula.

The bill would amend existing legislation to give the railways unprecedented freedom in setting freight rates, abandoning uneconomic branch lines and slashing money - losing passenger services.

Saigon Students Resent Girls Marrying Yanks

It's not easy for an American soldier in Viet Nam to get permission to marry a local girl but there is enough intermarriage to cause resentment among Vietnamese men. A Canadian, Peter Worthington, describes the situation.

By DOUGLAS AMARON

SAIGON (CP) — Canadian servicemen who brought brides home "from foreign countries may be interested to know that the old question of intermarriage is a hot issue in Viet Nam.

It was sparked by a demonstration by Saigon University students that the Vietnamese government do something about marriages between the United States servicemen and Vietnamese girls.

The students implied that many of the marriages are the result of moral decline and are being used by the girls as an escape from the low standard of living they have now and will continue to have if they marry one of their own race.

What the government should do was not made clear but United States authorities say they would not object to the ways of Vietnamese girls because if it is material things the girl wants she will always turn to the richer American.

"Our youths should learn to worship some ideal other than just getting more and more money, and more and more things, or imitating the oddest oddities from the West—twists, Beatles, strip - teases etc.

"They should remember that only a generation ago, the best way for a man to conquer the loveliest woman was to earn a reputation for learning and virtue, and that was how even the Emperors' daughters were accessible to the poorer peasants' sons."

Quyet Tien, a Vietnamese-language paper, praised the country-loving spirit of the students and spoke of the serious lack of love of Vietnamese feel when they see parents using their daughters as capital to invest in the American "people-industry."

Quyet Tien suggested the United States adopt a long - term operation but feared it would be "a fry in the desert . . . for love has no frontier."

Most realistic comment on the controversy came from a 25-year-old Chinese bar girl who admits her chances of finding a Vietnamese or Chinese husband are slight because of her occupation. Living for today, she offered: "It'll be your Saigon wife."

Cong Trinh, who writes a satirical column called Much Ado About Nothing in the Saigon Daily News, suggested "the Americans have done a great thing by taking away from Vietnamese husbands their irresistible temptations."

"The dollar is harder and stronger," Trinh wrote. "The many wives I know have found in this (intermarriage) an act of supreme beauty which has restored peace and harmony to many Vietnamese homes."

Trinh, however, offered a solution, inspired by the early American custom of publicly branding the letter A on the chest of an adulteress.

LAVENDER THEIR LOT

"We should learn from the Americans and so brand all Vietnamese women showing desire to marry Americans," he wrote. "But only with pink paint. Furthermore, we should parade them once a week through the streets, showing the branded cheeks.

"In such a way our national morality will be best protected since every fighter of our national morality will be satisfied, both man and female. The man for human reasons, the female for having her ideal realized.

"For potential American husbands will surely be put off. Who would marry cheats which have become public property?"

In more serious vein, Ton That Thien, managing editor of the Vietnam Guardian, wrote, in his column, Life's Many Sides, that democracy means freedom of choice, equality of women with men, and freedom to choose the wife or husband he or she wants.

"It is therefore the perfect right for a Vietnamese girl to marry a foreigner . . . just as a Vietnamese man has the right to marry any foreign girl he may fancy."

Thien took the students to task for contradicting themselves, recalling their decisions, moves and hatred of Madame Nhu when she advocated the same prohibitions when her brother Ngo Dinh Diem was prime minister.

But he said he could not reject entirely what the students feel—their "certain sense of shame because our women prefer foreigners, and especially Americans because the latter have more money."

Then, too, offered a solution:

"How our women ought to behave, and whether they should or should not marry Americans, or foreigners, is a matter for the Vietnamese families to settle inside the walls of their homes. The students who do not want their sisters to marry foreigners should educate them a bone instead of denouncing them in the streets."

He cautioned Vietnamese youth not to try to vie with one another for possessions—transistors, motorbikes, smart clothes — with which to impress Vietnamese girls, because if it is material things but from now on I will spend all my energy to convince Quebec citizens democratically that they have every interest in leaving Confederation as it now exists."

Mr. Gregoire, an MP for the last four years, said he gradually became convinced that the future of French-Canadians rested in separatism.

Earlier Monday, the Creditiste MPs censured their house leader for accepting eight days earlier the leadership of a new right - wing separatist party in Quebec, Le Ralliement National.

The party caucus gave Mr. Gregoire three options: Step down as House leader and sit as a Creditiste back - bencher, leave the Creditistes to join the western - based Social Credit Parliamentary Group, run for reelection, or cross the floor to become an independent.

Mr. Gregoire chose the third option and hoisted from the caucus in obvious displeasure.

Raymond Laughlin, 39, a bilingual ex-teacher and MP for Mégantic, was named the new Creditiste House leader.

Mr. Caouette, who teamed up with Mr. Gregoire to found Le Ralliement Creditiste in 1958, said his group strongly opposes separatism because it would lead to a much lower standard of living in Quebec.

The matter left the Creditistes with eight members, down from 26 in 1962, 20 in 1963 and 18 in 1964. The sizeable decline resulted from election defeats, internal splits and defections to other parties.

Mr. Gregoire is the first MP to advocate the secession of a province since the last example when some Nova Scotia MPs appealed vainly to Britain to set up a colonial government in their province, separate from Canada.

Commons standings now are 129 Liberals, 96 Conservatives, 26 New Democrats, eight Creditistes, five Social Credit, three Independents and three vacancies for a total of 285.

Eight Per Cent

party finally accepted the three-hour break as an alternative to an overnight adjournment.

Mr. Nesbitt and Mr. Diefenbaker split evenly the two hours given Monday night to debate on second reading.

It wasn't clear how long the debate would run.

BASED IN PRECEDENT

Mr. Pearson defended the bill as being solidly based in precedent, including one set by Mr. Diefenbaker in 1958 when his government ordered striking British Columbia seamen back to work on practically the same terms.

He said further that the interim wage increase—four per cent retroactive to Jan. 1, the test to July 1—attached that proposed in a conciliation report on the bargaining that began last November.

The conciliation report proposals were rejected by a membership vote of the union. An eight - per - cent increase in the first year and a 10-per-cent increase for the second year was recommended in the report.

Besides the back-to-work bill, the government also introduced a 22,000-word bill that would set up a super board to direct the entire field of transportation.

Among other things, it would free the railways from historic freight rate restrictions and allow them to abandon unprofitable passenger services and branch lines.

HOPES PROMISE HELPS

Mr. Pearson said he hoped the promise of a better financial picture for the railways and the prospect of action on the Freedman royal commission would aid collective bargaining and make compulsory arbitration unnecessary.

He referred several times to Mr. Justice Samuel Freedman's report last fall in which he called for more run-throughs, saying he hoped the government might be able to put before long to Parliament on studies now being made of these recommendations.

A key Freedman proposal was that labor laws be amended to allow unions to negotiate with management the terms of new working conditions brought about by technological change.

However, Mr. Diefenbaker wanted assurances from the cabinet that the strike would obey the back-to-work bill. A dangerous, destructive situation would result if Parliament were placed in the position of being unable to enforce its orders.

Earlier, NDP Leader Douglas said the government couldn't "wash its hands of psychology of a strike" to push legislation through.

Both Creditiste and Social Credit speakers promised co-operation in dealing with strike-ending legislation.

DRAWS PRIZON TERM

ATHENS (Reuters) — An Athens appeal court Tuesday increased a death sentence on a young conscientious objector to 14½ years in prison. But the sentence on Costas Papadakis, 22, who had refused to take up arms, faces the prospects of another army call-up when he comes out of jail—and another jail sentence if he refuses. Kazakis is a member of the Jehovah's Witnesses sect.

Pinch Hitting

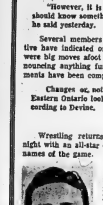
By GARRY ALEXANDER
Staff Sportswriter

Jack Devine, 1st Vice-President of the OHA, says he expects a big turnout, and perhaps a few surprises, at tonight's Eastern Junior Hockey meeting here.

Clubs from all over the district, in Junior "B", "C" and "D" leagues, will attend the combined meeting. It has been called for the Belleville Recreation Centre, at 8.00 p.m.

Representatives from Kingston, Belleville, Peterborough, Oshawa, Trenton, Picton, Cobourg, Napanee, Wellington, Tweed, Gananoque and several other centres are likely to attend.

Devine guesses that there may be a few changes in the "B" and "C" categories from last year.



"However, it is all guess work right now but we should know something more definite Tuesday night", he said yesterday.

Several members of the Belleville "B" team executive have indicated on a couple of occasions that there were big moves afoot in their case but have declined announcing anything further, apparently until all arrangements have been completed.

Changes or, not, the junior hockey situation in Eastern Ontario looks to be in for a lively season, according to Devine.

Wrestling returns to Memorial Arena this Friday night with an all-star card featuring some of the real big names of the game.

LORD LAYTON

Headlining the card, scheduled to commence at 8.00 p.m., will be none other than the popular Lord Athol Layton.

And ready to rip the big Englishman limb from limb will be the guy who inspired "They're Coming To Take Me Away", one Bulldog Brower.

This bout should be a classic, pitting the rugged and clean-cut judo chop expert, Layton, against the ruthless and at-times-unbelievable-crew, Brower.

The bout will be a two-of-three falls affair.

Plenty of action should also be provided in the semi-final affair, which sees one Rocky Johnson, a colored grappler of some reputation, doing battle with Karl Von Eric.

And the preliminary, if it can truly be called that, sends Gene DeBois into action against Whipper Watson Jr.

Yes, the ever-popular Whipper Billy Watson now has a son on the circuit and the lad has already established himself as one to watch. DeBois had better be at his best for this one.

While it is not listed on the card, it is also reported that DeBois will bring his wrestling bear to the show — if he can find someone willing to tackle the big brute.

It looks like a good one from start to finish.

ODDS AND ENDS

Dr. T. Woodley, writing from the Quinte Tennis Club, says that the report turned in here a week ago, stating that the club's junior players are losing interest and that the club had no "uncertain future" was unauthorized. He says they are displaying "enthusiasm and skill"... Ball-wise, Trudeaux open their intermediate "A" second round in Oshawa tonight, returning for a Thursday game, while Ellis Janitors play host to Peterborough tonight and travel to the Lift-lock City Thursday... What is going on in the Trenton football League? It winds up its regular schedule this week and yet clubs are still picking up ball players, some from well outside Trenton... Belleville Parsons soccer club, finding the schedule pretty light these days, is trying to line up a few more exhibition games... With Fiori Goegan accepting the post of coach of Belleville Junior "B's", it is not likely that he will come out as a player with the senior squad... Don't forget the big water show, featuring top name divers, etc., at the Kinsmen pool Thursday night.

Fires 4-Hitter ★★★★★ Jim Bunning Leads 'Giant Killers' ★★★★★ All Contenders Lose

By ED SCHUYLER Jr.
Associated Press Sports Writer

Jim Bunning played Jack and the Beanstalk against San Francisco Giants again.

Bunning killed the Giants for the 10th time in 12 decisions as Philadelphia Phillies beat San Francisco 5-1 in National League action Monday night.

Meanwhile, Mike Cuellar pitched his first major league shutout as Houston Astros defeated Pittsburgh Pirates 3-0.

Bob Shaw pitched New York Mets to a 5-3 victory over Los Angeles Dodgers, and the Pirates and Giants remained in a first-place tie, one game ahead of the Dodgers.

In other action, Cincinnati Reds downed St. Louis Cards 2-0, and Chicago Cubs defeated Atlanta Braves 4-2 in 14 innings.

Bunning allowed two hits in the first inning, one of them Willie Mays' run - scoring double, and then didn't allow another until the ninth when the Giants got two harmless singles.

ALLOWS FIVE HITS

Cuellar struck out 11 and allowed five hits in subduing Pirate southpaw Bob Veale for Houston's sixth straight victory.

Shaw was staked to a 4-0 lead in the first two innings — two in the first on Jim Hickman's error and two in the second as a result of third baseman Nate Oliver's following error.

Deron Johnson hit two homers and veteran Joe Nuxhall pitched a two - hitter in Cincinnati's victory over St. Louis. Willie Mays' run - scoring double, and then didn't allow another until the ninth when the Giants got two harmless singles.

Ferguson Jenkins of Chatham, Ont., and starred the game for the Cubs, but Rico Carty's sacrifice fly in the ninth inning that tied the 1-1 knocked him from the mound.

Jenkins had allowed five hits and both runs against him were earned as he walked one and struck out four in 8 1-3 innings.

Cementmen Nip City Hotel 5-4

The Point Anne Cementmen held off a late rally and moved to within one victory of the title in the Commercial Softball League finals last night.

They nipped City Hotel 5-4 before a big crowd at the Alemite, cutting off a three-run rally by the losers in the bottom of the sixth.

Point Anne leads the four-of-seven semi-final set three games to one. They are scheduled for Point Anne tomorrow (Wednesday), at 6.30.

The winners jumped ahead 3-0 in the first and 5-1 in the top of the sixth but the Hotelmen bounced back to make it close.

Ron Maracle, the Ox-point workhorse, went the distance once again for the Cementmen, stopping the losers on three hits. He struck out 11 and walked six.

Larry Hull took the loss, allowing five runs off as many hits before Dave Feeney (below) ed up, giving up two hits. Hull whiffed three and walked three.

Ron's brother, Glen Maracle, sparked the victors at bat, clouting a home run in the first frame and a double in the sixth. Ron helped his own cause with two singles. Mike Cook hit a double, Jim Hammond and Verne Whalen added base hits.

Larry Hull, Hill and Dave Feeney collected the losers' 5 base knocks.

Walks and errors got the winners in sixth and seventh innings as Jams but the Hotelmen could not get the needed hits to win.

Point Anne	300 003 0	5-7-1

Takes Lead In Senior Tourney

TORONTO (CP) — Romeo Trudeau of Laval — sur - le - Lac, Que. took the lead with a 72 after the first round in the 36-hole Canadian Seniors' Golf championship here Monday.

The 58-year-old 1964 Canadian seniors champ carded a three-shot lead over defending champion Rosa Somerville of London, Ont. after 312 players in the tournament finished the first 18 holes.

Tied for second place with Somerville are Gordon B. Taylor of Kanawaki, Que. and Don Anderson of St. Catharines.

Ben Merwin of Sudbury, former Royal Canadian Golf Association boss, also finished with a 78.

The record field in the 68-year history of the tournament was split between two golf courses. The golfers switch courses today for the second half of the tournament.

When the scores are counted tonight, the CSGA executive will choose a 16-man team to play against the U.S. team in dutch cod medal rounds Thursday and Friday in the annual international matches.

City Hall Ousts Firemen To Enter Finals

City Hall earned a berth in the Departmental Softball Loop final series last night by edging the Fire Department 3-2.

Grant Stickle's City squad won the semi-final set three games to one, with one tie.

The final championship series, between The Intelligencer and City Hall is a four-of-seven affair, starting tonight. All games are at 6.00 o'clock, at Hillcrest School. Second game of the series is slated for Thursday, with three others scheduled for Monday, Wednesday and Thursday next week, according to league president Al Rump.

Gary Reid hurled the victory last night while Larry Reid toed the rubber in a losing effort. The Firemen outhit City Hall 6-4.

City Hall had one home run in the contest, a second baseman Bill Ferguson.

For the Firemen, Reg Christopher and Bob Lloyd clouted homers to account for both the clubs' runs.

The losers' third baseman, Brian Smith, was ejected from the game by plate umpire Ron Gott.

With both City and Intelligencer winning their semi-final series 3-1, each with a tie a close battle is expected in the finals. In regular schedule play, City finished on top, beating the Intelligencer once, while the Printers finished second, winning twice over the City crew.

Home Runs Spark Warner Win

Stewart Warner used back-to-back home runs by Lyle Wannamaker and Pat Glancey for insurance in a 3-0 Commercial Softball League playoff win over Lightfoot Construction at Prince Charles School last night.

The win gave Stewart Warner a 2-0 lead in games in the best of seven semi-final series with games three and four scheduled for Wednesday and Thursday of this week. Wednesday, the teams hook up at Alemite Park at 8.30 and Thursday, the action shifts to the CNRA Park with game time set for 6.30.

In last night's contest, Stewart Warner was nursing a 1-0 lead when Wannamaker and Glancey connected for their circuit clouts with one out in the sixth inning. The winners' first run came in the top of the first inning and as it turned out, that counter was enough to get the job done.

Junior Day got the nod over George Young in the pitching department. They hooked up in a tight duel with Day limiting the losers to five singles. Young was touched for the two homers and four singles. Each pitcher fanned three and walked one. Lightfoots stranded six runners and Stewart Warner left four.

Glancey had a single to go with his homer to spark the winners. Wannamaker's homer was the only other extra-base hit of the game. Rod Turner, Chuck Rowbotham and Gary Gow shared the others. Don Wood and Tim Cook each got to Day for a pair of singles apiece for Lightfoots while Les Hall took care of the other safety.

Leaders Spread Around

Peter Kempf Tops Scoring Race

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Toronto Argonauts are in last place in the Eastern Football Conference but Toronto players lead in three categories in the individual statistics.

Hamilton Tiger - Cats and Ottawa Rough Riders share first place but each boasts only three players leading in any of the eight categories.

Toronto has the top pass receiver in Bobby Taylor, leading punter in Dave Mann and top punt return man in Jim Copeland. Hamilton's Willie Bethea is first in kickoff returns and Don Sutherin has a share of first place in interceptions while Ottawa's Russ Jackson tops the passers.

Montreal Alouettes, in third place, boast the leading scorer in Peter Kempf, the top rusher in Bob Parenmore while Larry Fairholm is tied in interceptions with Sutherin.

Kempf, whose toe could carry him to the scoring championship in the East, has 31 points in four games on two touchdowns, four converts and five field goals.

Tommy Grant of Hamilton, who caught three touchdown passes in one game, is second in scoring with 30 points on five touchdowns. Sutherin remained in third place with 15 points on six converts, two field goals and three singles.

Parenmore, a recent acquisition from the National Football League, has gained 246 yards on 47 carries for a 5.2 average. He has scored one touchdown. Bob Scott of Ottawa has 201 yards and a 4.9 average while Bobby Taylor of Hamilton has 196 yards and a 4.5 average.

Jackson leads the passers with a .554 average. He has completed 21 of 38 passes for 333 yards and four touchdowns. Frank Cosentino of Hamilton is second with .500, having completed 30 of 60 passes for 60 yards. Toronto's Wally Gabler is 27 for 72 and 533 yards.

Fairholm has returned three interceptions for 14 yards while Sutherin has returned three for only three yards and Jim Hountree of Toronto two for 47 yards.

Bethea has returned six kickoffs for 180 yards, Copeland five for 127 and Parenmore three for 126. Copeland has also returned four punts for 117 yards, Ed Learn of Montreal 19 for 114 and Gerney Henley of the Tiger-Cats 24 for 109.

Dave Mann has kicked 27 punts for 1,148 yards and a 42.5 average, followed by Joe Zuger of Hamilton with a 41.6 average and Glen Beretta of Montreal with a 40.7 average.

Leahy Superb

Bobcats Oust Kingston 8-1

Away on his honeymoon for the first two games of the series, Bruce Leahy returned in time to pitch Belleville Bobcats past the Kingston Lakeview Indians in the OASA Senior "B" playdowns.

Leahy hurled superb three-hit ball in Kingston last night as the Tabbies scalped the Indians 8-1 in the third and deciding game of the series.

While Leahy tamed the Kingston batters, Belleville batters piled up a 7-1 lead after three frames, exploding for a trio in the second and four more in the third.

Len Mowat, one of the 'Cats' batting stars during the series, ignited the second-frame rally with a double. McKibbon and Merne followed with base hits and after two were out, Leahy also singled to drive in the third run.

Kingston's lone scoring sortie came in the top of the third, putting Bobcats' lead to 5-1. Mitch Monette looked after the tally with a home run.

The only other hits Leahy gave up were singles in the sixth and seventh frames. He struck out 11 batters and walked only one. Leahy hit two batters.

Kingston fell apart in the third, committing four errors to go with LeSage's hit, as Belleville put the decision in wraps, 7-1.

A final marker came in the eighth on a hit batter and three more Kingston bobbles.

Al Lertie started on the losers' hilltop replaced by Mike McMahon in the third who in turn gave way to Ronnie Brown in the seventh. They were tagged for seven hits, none off Brown, getting nine on strikes and walking none.

The Indians' nine errors left the pitchers with little in the line of support.

Len Mowat and Billy Mitts cracked a double each and Mitch McKibbon had two singles to spark Belleville's attack. Terry LeSage, Paul Merne and Clarke Leahy collected a base hit each.

Monette's homer and singles by the same players and, Bob Senior accounted for the losers' offence.

Bears, champions of the West Hill Tyke division, squeezed past East Hill champions, the Canadians by an 8-7 score Saturday to win the City title. Bears won the final series in two straight.

Larry Waite went all the way for the Bears, striking out nine. Jamie Mason pitched well in defeat, fanning four. Cam Smith and Ken Brooks coached Bears to the championship. The team was beaten only once during regular season and playoff games.

Oshawa Nears Series Sweep

OSHAWA (CP) — Oshawa Coach Gaudi downed Mimico Mounties 21-10 Monday night to move within one game of a Canadian by an 8-7 score Saturday to win the City title. Bears won the final series in two straight.

Oshawa can wrap it up with a victory in Mimico Wednesday night.

Brian Thompson showed the way for the Green Geels with six goals while Phil Clayton had four and Ross Jones three. Ted Armstrong, Don Stinson and Jim Riggs each added two with Fred Greenwood and Charlie Marlow sharing the rest.

Will Eagle Fly To Argos' Rescue?

"Up To Shaw"

By BOB MacKENZIE

OTTAWA (CP)—Toronto Argonauts have several problems this season but quarterback Eagle Day doesn't appear to be one of them.

At least this is coach Bob Shaw's feeling about the veteran quarterback released Saturday by Calgary Stampeders of the Western Football Conference.

"I've got a good quarterback," Shaw said in an interview Tuesday night.

Rookie Wally Gabler hasn't lived up to his potential yet, Shaw added, "but he's lived up to his expectations from a rookie."

The Argos will be looking for their first win of the Eastern Conference season tonight when they tackle undefeated Ottawa Rough Riders here. Shaw feels a victory is far from impossible.

FEARS LET-DOWN

Ottawa's coach Frank Clair expressed the same feeling earlier this week. He's worried that the Riders may be due for a letdown after their impressive wins this season—four in exhibition games and three in the Big Four season.

The game will be broadcast on the CTV Eastern television network with the Ottawa area blacked out.

Although their record of three straight losses, Shaw says the Argos are a better team at this point than they were last year.

Shaw blames the Argos' poor start on injuries—especially to offensive centre Tommy Scarborough and defensive tackle Billy Shipp, both Canadians, and import halfback Larry Ferguson. But Shipp and Stonebrough could be back within three weeks "and make a lot of difference."

There has been speculation that Shaw is under pressure, from Argos' front office to pick up Day for the rest of the season, especially if the Argos leave Ottawa without a victory.

DECISION IS SHAW'S

But Lew Hayman, managing director of the club, said any decision in the matter will be up to Shaw.

Argos have two new players but Shaw is waiting until the last minute to decide who will dress.

Import halfbacks Raymond Jones from Los Angeles State, a cut from Minnesota Vikings of the National Football League, and Kern Carson, an American Football League cut from New York Jets, are ready and at practice but will start in offensive backfield. Both could get the call, teamed with veteran fullback Don Thurton, but this would mean dropping an import from starting position.

Clair hasn't had to touch his lineup since the season opened, likely will continue with import end Bill Quinter and Canadian Trekka Andy Shaw in backfield.

Clair's only problem has been at fullback where import Jim Dillard and Canadian Rick Black have been battling for the starting assignment.

Black drew a strong start when Dillard was rested to heal a minor injury early in the season but Dillard has been coming on strong and may have regained his job.

Horton Homers Spark Die-Hard Tigers

By RON RAPOPORT
Associated Press Sports Writer

Al Kaline took exception recently to the suggestion that Baltimore Orioles had the American League pennant wrapped up.

Basically, Kaline's thought was that if Detroit Tigers could get a jump on the Orioles in their current series, anything could happen.

Team-mate Willie Horton responsed to Kaline's call Monday, clouting a pair of homers and a single that drove in five runs to give Detroit a 6-3 victory over Baltimore.

Baltimore's lead is still 11½ games, though, and looks increasingly comfortable as year. The Orioles have lost seven of their last 10 games, but have had just two games taken off their league lead.

Elsewhere, Chicago White Sox shut out Cleveland Indians 2-0, New York Yankees beat Kansas City Athletics 4-2, Minnesota Twins damped Washington Senators 6-1 and Boston Red Sox trounced Los Angeles Angels 5-2.

Denny McLain picked up his 18th victory for the Tigers and he did it the hard way. In all, he threw 229 pitches, walked nine, struck out 11 and had to retire batters to base runners in every inning.

"Tomed John threw a five hit, 1-0 shutout over Toronto Aggie drive in both of Chicago's runs with a homer in the sixth inning. It was John's fifth shut-out of the season and made his record 19-8.

HURT FOR SIX HITS

Dooley Womack and Steve Hamilton gave the Yankees 6 1-3 innings of scoreless relief pitching and New York erupted for six runs in the last two innings. Vern Handrahan of Charlottetown allowed two earned runs on a walk and Lou Chinello's homer while pitching the final inning for the Athletics.

Bernie Allen celebrated his first appearance in the Nationals starting line-up in two weeks by hitting a three-run homer that broke a tie in the fourth inning. Jim Perry set the Senators down on five hits.

Jose Tartabull's pinch-hit single in the ninth snatched victory away from California after the Angels had moved ahead in the seventh on Bobby Knoop's 18th homer. Geoge Scott hit his 25th homer. Jose Santiago went the first eight innings for the Red Sox and gave up just four hits.

Suns Help Idle Leafs Move Up

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The idle Toronto Maple Leafs slipped into second place in the International League Monday night on the pitching and hitting of Larry Miller and a pitch-hit single by Wayne Graham.

Miller's five - hit performance on the mound and his 1.000 average in three trips to the plate gave Jacksonville Suns a 7-0 shutout over Columbus Jets and gave the Maple Leafs a one-half game lead over losers.

Meanwhile, Graham's pinch-hit single with two out gave Syracuse Chiefs a 2-1 victory over the first-place Rochester Red Wings and brought the Leafs to within one-half game of the leaders.

In the other scheduled game, Richmond Braves edged Toledo Mud Hens 5-4.

Miller had lost his three previous starts against the Jets. He drove in two runs and scored another.

Walks had forced in both runs in the Syracuse-Rochester game until Graham drove in the winner. Leo Marentette picked up the victory on the mound for the Chiefs.

Billy Southworth scored the winning run for Richmond, crashing into Toledo catcher Frank Fernandez at the plate and knocking the ball from his hand.

Minor Baseball Results

In last night's Belleville Minor Baseball League playoff action, Jets topped Rockets 11-2 in Tadpole while in the Tyke semi-finals, Lions Club shaded Jaycees, 4-3.

The Jets' win enabled them to sweep their series with Rockets at 1-1. Paul Weeks and Greg MacInnis shared the pitching duties with Mike Burke handling the catching. For Rockets, Peter Hall and Scott Bennet did the pitching to Chris O'Hara.

Top hitters for the winners were Mike Burke, Steve Coates and Greg MacInnis with two singles each. Andy Lapenette had a double with a single each for Paul Weeks and Brian Coughlin. Brad and Mark Perrier looked after Rockets' safeties, connecting for a single each.

Ron and Don McTaggart combined to pitch Lions Club to the 4-3 Tyke win. Pitching for the Jaycees were Ron Wood and Bruce Clarke. It was the first game of the best of three semi-finals.

Ron McTaggart led the winners with the bat with two singles. Checking in with one each were John Ashley, Don McTaggart, Terry Madden and Robert Webb. Mike Watt, David Rollins and Bruce Clark had the losers' hits.

Petes Blank Belleville At CNE

TORONTO (CP) — Hamilton downed North Toronto 4-2 Monday at the Toronto Star-Canadian National Exhibition pee wee baseball tournament.

Hamilton's Gerry Graham decided the issue with a two-run double in the third inning.

In other games, Niagara Falls, Ont., scored three first-inning runs en route to a 7-1 win over Owen Sound and Jeff Gilmour gave up three hits as Peterborough blanked Belleville 6-0.

Shortstop Doug Gibson, who had a homer, single, walked twice and scored three runs, was the batting star in the Peterborough-Belleville game. Ken Leahy poked two runs home for the winners.

Mike Gerrow, Stan Brooks and Barry Culkin attended to Belleville Holy Rosary hits.

Austin Wilson and Stan Brooks in the third inning pitched in defeat.

The four undefeated Belleville entries in the tournament, after the club had knocked Simcoe out in the opening round.

Four Solid Contenders

Breaks Could Decide Issue

DUQUOIN, Ill. (AP) — Joe O'Brien of Alberton, P.E.I., hopes this year's edition of the 41st Hambletonian will go at least three heats.

O'Brien lost the same race last year in the fourth heat while reigning Armbro Flight, owned by the Armstrong Brothers of Bramalea, Ont.

But things are a lot different this year.

O'Brien, driving Governor Armbro of the Armstrong Stable, has drawn No. 10 post position for Wednesday's first heat of the $122,540 race.

"It's definitely a handicap for me," O'Brien said Monday.

"I think I can win the first heat from the No. 10 spot.

"There is a possibility that a heat in 1:58 2-5 may be trotted, but I can't see anything faster than that, and even two minutes that could look good."

The record for three-year-old trotters at Dunnain Fairgrounds is 1:56 4-5 set by Arrest in 1964.

Governor Armbro has finished seven times in 12 starts this year, but has never won.

AGREES ON TIME

"I look for the fastest heats to be between 1:58 and 2:00," says veteran Delvin Miller, whose wife, Mary Lib, is one of the owners of favored Carlisle. "I think it will take three heats, and maybe the limit of four, to decide the winner. That's because there are four solid contenders—the most for the Hambletonian in at least 20 years. It may be decided on lucky breaks alone."

Consensus of driver-trainers is that the filly Kery Way, two-year-old trotting champion of 1965 who in a light campaign this year has won three of eight starts, is the horse to beat. Driven by Frank Ervin, who captured the 1958 Hambletonian with Diller Hanover, Kerry Way recently turned in the fastest trotting mark for three-year-olds of the season with 2:00 4-5 on the mile track at Springfield, Ill.

The fans seem to favor Carlisle, reined by Billy Haughton, who has won every harness race he's driven in the Hambletonian. Carlisle has won his last three rides, including an impressive triumph in the American National in Chicago last week.

Ontario Halts Manitoba

WINNIPEG (CP)—"We blew it," Manitoba coach Don McKenzie said of a 2-0 group A loss to Ontario in the Canadian soccer championship tournament Monday night.

In Group B, Saskatchewan fought from behind for a 2-2 tie with Alberta.

Today, favored British Columbia plays Ontario in Group A while Saskatchewan faces Quebec in Group B. Quebec and Alberta 3-0 Sunday.

"We had the chances but couldn't put the ball in the net," said McKenzie whose squad lost 4-1 to B.C. Sunday. Manitoba forwards missed eight good scoring chances.

Ontario took a 1-0 lead when fullside forward Ralph McPaste rammed home a shot from 10 yards in the 30th minute.

Ernie Szabo, Hungarian-born right wing, scored Ontario's second goal on a breakaway in the 87th minute.

OPENS THE SCORING

John Schepers, 23, of Regina, opened scoring for Saskatchewan in the 20th minute when his header bounced into the Alberta net.

Seven minutes later Alberta tied the score on a goal from right winger Andy Szabo.

The 1-1 deadlock was broken in the 57th minute when Alberta inside forward Nick De Hoog's drive from 25 yards slipped into the net under diving goalkeeper Willie Hauenpenger of Regina.

With 11 minutes remaining, Saskatchewan took advantage of a corner kick. The ball was lofted high over the goal mouth where Hendrick's lost it to the lights. The ball bounced in inside forward Adolf Traweger, whose hard shot from 12 yards hit the top of the Alberta net for the tie.

Will Pay So Prince Can Play

BUENOS AIRES (Reuters)—The Argentine Polo Association offered Monday to pay the expenses of Prince Philip if he comes here to play for the British polo team.

An announcement from Buckingham Palace in London Sunday night said Prince Philip is withdrew from the team, because of the British government's £50 ($130) limit on the expenditure of travellers abroad, part of Britain's economy program.

"The Argentine association has undertaken to pay the expenses of all British players and delegates who take part in an international polo season starting next October," an association spokesman said.

"Of course, this includes Prince Philip's expenses if he comes here as a member of the British team, which—we much desire."

He would be the first member of the Royal Family to represent Britain in international sport.

Youth Wins Southpaw Tournament

BURLINGTON, Ont. (CP)—John Wynne, a 15-year-old Hamilton golfer, carded a three-over-par 74 Monday to capture the Ontario lads/lasses' amateur golf championship.

Wynne had eight one - putt greens to finish two strokes ahead of runner-up Doug Veaver of Toronto.

The big names in the tournament had trouble with the tricky Burlington Golf and Country Club course. Four-time champion Ken Thorpe of Toronto could do no better than tie for third place at 77 with Allan Swartz of Kitchener.

Only one other golfer, Dennis Grierson of Toronto with 79, among the 190 lefties broke 80.

Defending - champion John Mykyrchytyn of Toronto shot an 82.

LOSE AGAIN

SAO PAULO, Brazil (AP)—Canada's basketball team lost its final chance for a medal at the second Pan-American Maccabiah Games by losing 82-73 to Argentina Sunday. The basketball team was Canada's only entry at the Games, which concluded Sunday.

THE ARNOLD Palmer Method
by GOLF'S 4-TIME MASTERS WINNER

© 1966 by MAPL, Inc. Reg. Tm. of Arnold Palmer

It's bad enough to play out of sand and rough under normal conditions; however, these problems become greatly intensified when the course is wet.

Most golfers find it especially difficult to play from wet sand, not only because they have trouble judging how to make the shot under such abnormal conditions, but also because balls tend to bury or plug in moist sand.

Shots from deep grass are also problems when it's damp. The moist grass really cuts down your ability to control the ball's action.

All this should make it obvious that when the course is wet, the safe way is the best way. When you approach to a green that is guarded by a bunker, for instance (see illustration), shoot away from the hazard. It's well worth sacrificing a chance for a birdie to assure yourself that you will not bogey or double-bogey.

Gladys Cooper, 74, Enjoys Four Swims Every Day

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — She looks like a typical favorite grandmother — but how many grandmothers take four swims every day, rain or shine?

That is what Gladys Cooper does, and it explains why, at 74, she seems more alert and alive than most starlets. Far from retiring, she returned from touring in a Somerset Maugham play in England to do her first movie singing in "The Happiest Millionaire."

Now she plans to perform in a repertory of three Maugham plays in London, with possibly take them to New York.

Would you believe that she was sickly as a child?

"Indeed I was," she insists. "But that weakness disappeared when I went on the stage at the age 16, and I have had no trouble since."

She ruled as one of the great ladies of the English theatre in the era of Shaw, Maugham and Barrie. After years of triumphs on the London and New York stages, she came to California in 1940.

LASTED 36 YEARS

"I came out here for a two-week visit and stayed 36 years," she said. "I thought I would just come to visit friends, but Alfred Hitchcock, whom I had known in England, wanted me to do Rebecca. I had known Daphne Du Maurier, the author, all my life, having appeared with her father Gerald du Maurier. So it seemed like a good idea."

She remained for such films as Kitty Foyle, That Hamilton Woman, Now Voyager, Song of Bernadette, always living a new year contract with MGM, where she appeared in White Cliffs of Dover, Mrs. Parkington, Green Dolphin Street and Madame Bovary.

In more recent times she has appeared as Rex Harrison's mister in My Fair Lady and matriarch of the swindling Rogues in the ill-fated television series.

Boy's Theory: 'No Sooner Said Than Done'

STE. AGATHE, Que. (CP) — "Uncle Marc" said 13-year-old Remi Cloutier Jr., "I want a pony, and next week we'll have it."

"You can have one if you learn to ride it," he was told, "and show on an artificial lake at the Expo site between April 28 and Oct. 28."

Marc set to work, training on a lake where the Cloutier group stages shows every Sunday for visitors to the Laurentians. He practised daily and his big chance came Sunday.

Now his uncle says he'll be able to perform, Marc said:

"I would like to replace you Daddy's place and I will have won the hearts of the crowd as he skimmed along the surface and he did his bare feet at speeds of up to 30 miles an hour.

As a special treat, he is going to the Canadian National Exhibition in Toronto to watch a performer who not only skis in his bare feet, but does it back wards.

'Violence' Is Television's Dirty Word for Producers

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The good words are action, adventure, hunt, chained, struggle, even battle and war. But, when talking to a television producer or to an actor with a piece of the show, don't mention "violence." It is television's dirty word.

Ever since the U.N.C.L.E. episode on underground Thrush installations, that fact has become a big, big letter. It's tongue-in-cheek action.

When Marshal Dillon grimly shot down the drawer, it's true frontier justice, never violence.

When a Combat episode is the result of plot, it falls sanity minutes by having U.S. infantry and Germans snipe at each other. Last season, the Sgt. catches his heart and falls face down over a log. That isn't violence, that's war.

If "violence" is a naughty word, "violent" is also one. Anyone connected with a network will tell you he's there not for the violence but the money—but for the challenge.

A careful look at the new network schedules shows that for many, the main challenge has been a format that demands diversity — well, that it not be predictory action. Clues to half the opening shows are explained by the fact, for example, a switching battle between wild animals.

Andrew Prine, who often is pushed beyond human endurance in Daniel Boone, The Road West, insists that network control carefully watch television violence.

"I remember doing a Gunsmoke a few years ago that nobody could get a grip with now," he said. "Before I got killed in the show, I had killed nine people, in fact, I'm surprised the sheets and shows never got out of one of them alive."

He also recalls one Have Gun, Will Travel episode in which he played one of the most sadistic killer who ever swayed, sent free, at the end of the episode.

"I'll never let that happen now," he said.

Most of today's western heroes are men of property and substance, like Bonanza's Cartwrights and Big Valley's Barkleys who are just protecting themselves.

This season they have even converted Shane, the itinerant gunfighter, into a end - buster who now owns property and action when he absolutely has to.

Manitoba Canoe Race Winner

NEW YORK (CP)—A crew of modern - day voyageurs from Manitoba Monday won a 10-mile canoe race that emulated the feats of the fur traders who helped shape that province's rivers 200 years ago.

A British Columbia crew was second in the two-day race in New York City from the Lachine Rapids near Montreal, the first warmup for a 2,500-mile centennial race next year.

Other entries were timed, covered by Saskatchewan, Ontario, Quebec, Nova Scotia, Northwest Territories, New Brunswick and the Yukon.

The actual race covered about 300 miles of water.

There was no cash prize for the winner. Next year's race is expected to be worth $200,000 in prizes.

This year virtually the same crews are expected to compete in a 100-day race from the Rockies to Montreal.

The Trots

TORONTO (CP) — Walvis Bay, a two - year - old pacer jointly owned by Morris Macdonald, A. E. Oakley of Strathroy, Ont., and Stewart Howard of Brampton, won the $1,200 first race Monday night at Greenwood Raceway.

OTTAWA (CP) — Thunder Shower came on in the stretch to win the featured one-mile trot in 2:10 at Rideau Carleton Raceway Monday night.

Overlooked at the pintuels, Thunder Shower paid $45 to win and set up a quinella return of $357.30.

"MAY RETIRE

NEW YORK (AP) — Roger Maris, who broke Babe Ruth's record by hitting 61 home runs in 1961, is contemplating retirement from baseball. "I'm thinking seriously about it," the New York Yankees' outfielder said in an interview. He is hitting .261 with 10 homers and 37 runs batted in.

Phone Strike In Nfdl. Snarls Communications

By DAL WARRINGTON

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP)—Most of Newfoundland remained cut off from long-distance telephone and telegraph service early today as striking communications workers went into their 22nd day.

A court injunction ordering pickets away from Avalon Telephone Co. buildings brought no immediate change. Hours later pickets of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers were still outside local exchanges.

James J. Walsh, union business agent, said IBEW officers do not recognize the injunction because their members voted to strike against union advice.

Telegraph service in Canada's easternmost province was already crippled by the country-wide railway strike when about 300 telephone maintenance men walked off the job Monday morning. Long distance phone service was cut when about 250 toll operators, members of the same union, were persuaded not to cross the repairmen's picket lines.

AGREE STRIKE ILLEGAL

Both company and union officers agreed the walkout is illegal since a dispute over wages is still in the hands of a labor conciliation board.

Justice Gushue obtained the injunction from Judge Arthur M. Mathis of the Newfoundland Supreme Court Monday afternoon. Mr. Walsh said the union received the court order Monday night but as far as we are concerned the injunction is not valid."

Under Osberg, Avalon president, said: "Employees who refuse to return to work will be considered suspended." He suggested such employees risk loss of seniority and insurance benefits and possibly dismissal.

The break in telephone and telegraph service disrupted nomination proceedings for the Sept. 8 Newfoundland provincial election. Early reports of officials in St. John's still did not know who had been nominated for 10 of the 42 legislature seats.

Nominations closed officially at 2 p.m. Monday.

The IBEW has asked for a 15-cent-an-hour pay boost over a two-year period. Mr. Walsh said top pay now for regular men with five years service is $79.50 for a 40-hour week.

ELECT PRESIDENT

KINGSTON (CP) — George Archer of Quebec City Monday was elected president of Flowers Canada, a 1,400 member organization of growers and retail suppliers. Delegates attending the first anniversary convention here elected Mr. Archer at the windup of a three-day session. He succeede Arthur E. Harris of Barrie, Ont. Delegates will hold their next convention at Ste Adele, Que. Sept. 17-20.

HOLSTEIN SALE

NAPANEE — The Merrybrook Holstein herd of W. J. Vrooman of Odessa early in August brought a total of $22,745 for the 38 head, an average sale price of $585 a head, including calves.

A four-year-old cow, Merrybrook Magic Dawn, brought the top price, $3,600 paid by Chanbric Farms, Rockford, Illinois. R. R. Dennis of Oak Ridges Farm, Oak Ridges, paid $1,450 for Merrybrook Romeo Eileen, the top price for a herd heifer.

The sale created widespread interest, as is shown in the fact that animals were sold to a total of 38 different buyers, seven for export, with six going to the United States.

Twenty-five milking females averaged $744 each; 10 bred heifers, $710; 12 open heifers, $360; nine heifer calves $347, and two bulls, $315.

O.P.P. ACCIDENT REPORT

The Napanee detachment of the Ontario Provincial Police investigated 16 accidents in all last week, with five of them on Saturday, and four within the last two hours.

At 1.30 p.m. a one-car accident just east of Napanee sent Mitchell VanBuskirk, Jr., of Odessa to the Lennox and Addington County General Hospital and damaged the car to the extent of $300.

An accident at 4.45 p.m. near Centreville brought injuries in two people, and two charges under the Highway Traffic Act.

Five minutes later two cars were involved in an accident near the C.P.R. bridge on Highway 41 with damage of $300 to one car, and $1,000 damage to the late model car of John Jordan of Robbin, against whom charges were laid.

The fourth, a minor accident occurred at Centreville Fair at fifty o'clock, and the last one on the day at 6.35, near the C.I.L. plant on Highway 33, with a total of $200 in the two cars and charges laid against Victor Davis of Picton.

Deseronto Personals

DESERONTO — Relatives from out of town attending the funeral of Mrs. Merton Cummings at the White and Morris Funeral Home Thursday included: her brothers, Arthur Sedore of Actinolite and Alex Storring and James Storring of Picton and their wives; her sisters, Mrs. Donald Ross and Mr. Ross of London; Mrs. Hilda Lasalle of Niagara Falls, N.Y. and Mrs. Ross Robinson and her husband of Tonawanda; and Edmund J. Cumming of Enterprise and Mrs. Ida Robinson of Belleville.

Mrs. Ted Lindsay of Prince St. is reported recovering from surgery in the Lennox and Addington County General Hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Bell of R.R. 1, Selby left Sunday for Hamilton to visit friends and relatives there for a few days.

Miss Mary Howard of Toronto is visiting her sister, Mrs. Charles Cole of Fourth St.

Mrs. Michael Flynn of Fourth St. returned Sunday from the Kenora and Addington County General Hospital where she had been undergoing treatment for a week.

Mrs. James Dobbin of Main St. has been in the Napanee hospital for some time for treatment.

Relatives from out of town attending the funeral of Peter Maracle held in Christ Church Saturday included: Mr. and Mrs. Lou Serbeck of Toronto; Mr. and Mrs. Marcel Roux of Montreal; Mr. and Mrs. Donald Gorelle and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Watson of Toronto and Mr. and Mrs. Willie Rivard and Paul and Henry Lennox, Gordon Lennox and David Keith, all of Montreal.

REDNERSVILLE — The Rednersville A.O.T.S. men's club played a friendly game with the Consecon Athletic Association ball park in a fairly large crowd on Saturday night, with Rednersville the victors.

HOLDS SHOWER.

On Saturday evening several from the community gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Doxtator to hold a community shower for their daughter and her new husband Mr. and Mrs. Ken Prindle who now reside in Trenton. Mrs. Eva Wesse read the card to the couple and Mrs. Evelyn Peck presented them with a card table and four chairs and an 11-piece T.V. crystal set. The card was signed on behalf of the community by Mrs. Eva Wesse, Mrs. Evelyn Peck and Mrs. Marjorie Ireland. Beverly and Ken expressed thanks and refreshments were served.

Recent guests of Mr. and Mrs. Summers Dawson were Mr. and Mrs. Richard Simpson of Oregon, Ontario.

Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Wetherall recently visited Mr. Dennis Dempsey in Royal Victoria Hospital, Montreal.

Mr. Archie Mansfield is a patient in Belleville General Hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. Allan Cameron and Donnah have returned home after the showing of their paintings at an art show in Owen Sound.

Mrs. Jack Andrews and family attended the Moore reunion on Sunday at Tweed Park.

Mr. and Mrs. Norm Post and girls entered their ponies in the show at Foxboro on Sunday and placed third.

ARREST 10,000 PERSONS

JAKARTA (AP) — Ten thousand more persons have been arrested in a new drive against underground Communists in Central Java, the commander on infantry brigade in Surakarta reported Tuesday. The army commander, Col. Achmad said 7,000 of those arrested came from the Klaten area, between Surakarta and Jogjakarta. Central Java was a Communist stronghold and has been a centre of resistance to the drive to relegate President Sukarno to figurehead status.

Burning Rectal Itch Relieved In Minutes

Exclusive Healing Substance Relieves Pain As It Shrinks Hemorrhoids.

If you want satisfactory relief from itching, burning hemorrhoids, a renowned research laboratory has found a new ointment, Preparation H., that promptly relieves the burning itch and soothes painful, inflamed hemorrhoidal tissue. This substance has been shown to produce a most effective rate of healing. Its germ-killing action helps help prevent infection.

In case after case "very striking improvement" was noted, even in cases of very long standing. And this improvement was maintained over a period of months!

This was accomplished by a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne)—discovery of which has helped relieve pain and stimulate growth of new tissue. Don't suffer from hemorrhoids or other rectal troubles. Get Preparation H. Ointment or Suppositories. Available at all drug stores—satisfaction or money refunded.

Demonstrations in Peking Take Ugly Look Says Writer

(Freelancer Journalist Cecile Michelle returned to Hong Kong Friday after 30 days in Communist China. She saw the mass marches and destructive activities of the ultra - patriotic Red Guard youth groups. In this exclusive article written for The Associated Press she relates her experiences.

By CECILE NICHOLLS

HONG KONG (AP) — The demonstrations in Peking began in a fiesta atmosphere. Everyone was gay and smiles were everywhere.

But by the time I reached the mid-way point of my 30-day tour of Communist China it had taken on an ugly tone.

I arrived in Peking Aug. 8, only hours before crowds began gathering in streets to celebrate the meeting of the central committee of the Communist party of China.

It was after this session that it was disclosed Defense Minister Lin Piao had been elevated to become party Chairman Mao Tse-tung's heir apparent, and student units began mass demonstrations to support Mao and condemn what were described as bourgeois traditions.

I saw more than a mile of bicycles parked at least 30 deep along a road near a school where students were holding mass discussions on the revolutionary idea of disbelieving their professors in favor of "creative self-reliance."

There seemed never a moment, for more than 10 days, when the sound of drums and cymbals could not be heard, day or night.

SOUNDED LIKE TRAIN

In Shanghai, when an estimated 800,000 marchers filed past my hotel, it seemed as though a train as long as China itself was rumbling past.

At 5 a.m.—more than 20 hours after the demonstrations began outside my hotel window—marchers continued shuffling by, spurred on by cheerleaders. Other chief demonstrators carried torches while large red banners bearing slogans and portraits of Chairman Mao were carried with electric bulbs. Girls used umbrellas to keep his portrait protected from a constant, pounding rain.

In Tainan, Wushi and Soochow, marchers remained in a festive mood, even applauding foreigners as our bus stopped alongside.

Up to this point there had been no signs of violence. It was in Hangchow that I first saw evidence of destruction, when middle (high) school students decorated a Buddhist temple. They probably were members of the Red Guard youth group, the beginning of a Buddhist temple. They probably were members of the Red Guard youth group, the beginning of a Buddhist temple. Just before I arrived at Lin Yin temple, a detachment of teen - agers had defiled the images of Buddha and pasted on the two large temples crude signs.

"VERY GOOD THING'

Questioned through my interpreter, the beard monk was reported to have said that "this is probably a very good thing."

As Lin Yin temple is a national monument, the vandals made only the symbolic gesture of throwing a small Buddha to the ground.

We passed the crowd on the road soon after, returning back to town to drum and cymbal, cadence high, in search of bourgeois signs. At 10:30 p.m., they knocked down, near my hotel, a marble monolith commemorating the visit of an ancient dynasty emperor. The pieces lay on the ground as we drove to the railway station the next morning.

My guide said similar demonstrations would be taking place all over the country on Aug. 24 and 25. Al Pushan I saw evi-

Astrological Forecasts

By SYDNEY OMARR

For August 31

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Pressure indicated regarding responsibility, finances, romance. Don't be rushed into any decision. Take time to think. Others may try to monopolize conversation. Obtain necessary privacy.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): If you mix business with pleasure, expect to pay price. Wise course is to be perceptive — and to finish what you start. Not wise to play both ends against the middle.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): If you attend to basic responsibilities you succeed. Otherwise confusion reigns. Obtain hint from Taurus message. Take initiative, lend your own counsel. Be original, independent.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): Trust inner voice . . . your feelings apt to ring true. Good lunar aspect highlights long-range planning . . . but avoid unnecessary travel. You can get what you need close to home base.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): You find this a day when many opportunities appear. Key is to be selective. Choose the best by utilizing past experience. Maintain sense of humor, balance. Don't rush!

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Tension could exist in dealing with those closest to you. Applies especially to marital or business partner. Check details. Don't permit possessions to possess you.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): Work toward basic goal can improve relations with associates. Be moderate in approach to problems. If you are too insistent . . . others shy away. Know this — act accordingly.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Accent now on ties of affection. Give love and you will also receive it. Emphasize domestic harmony. Let affairs at home in order. Spotlight harmony . . . then foolish disputes are avoided.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Emphasize ability to work with those holding opposite views. Need for greater flexibility is apparent. Accent responsibility at home. Check tendency to deceive yourself.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): You could be misquoted today. Make meanings crystal clear. You are responsible for certain messages, assignments. Know this and be at your best. Otherwise there could be reverses.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Keep eye on belongings — be aware of budget requirements. Money situation stressed. Not best time for stretching finances. Don't overdo in shopping, planning for future.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): You must hold in check tendency to act purely on impulse. May be difficult but try to give logic an opportunity. If you make yourself more flexible . . . then tomorrow is easier.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY . . . at times you tend to live a pool of regret but have deep desire to face future in optimistic manner. Basically serious, you are drawn toward situations involving helping others.

LINDSAY, Ont. (CP) — Ontario Liberal Leader Andrew Thompson said Saturday Ontario is ineffective in fighting inflation because of indifference and lethargy to the needs of its citizens. He told members of the Victoria-Haliburton Liberal Association that constant negotiations, free government conciliation before a strike, and training and retraining programs are "imperative if we are going to stop our boom economy from becoming a bust economy."

Bootleg Film Theatres One Feature of Arabia

Ancient traditions die hard in Saudi Arabia, a land where men women buy chic Paris clothes but would never dare wear them in public. A Canadian Press reporter explores the anachronisms of the Middle Eastern country.

By CARL MOLLINS

JEDDAH (CP)—Trying to tell the time in Saudi Arabia is an exercise in arithmetic, if not futility.

Fixing appointments involves juggling four separate systems—standard time according to international noon; Arab sun time, which begins with sunset as 12 o'clock; European sun time, an invention of Western residents that is six hours ahead of Arab time, and ARAMCO time, a system of daylight time used by the Arabian-American Oil Co. and U.S. military advisers.

Confusion about the time is appropriate in a country where the quick 1960s clash so openly with a medieval past that is still present.

Driving in a Mercedes-Benz with a Saudi friend who constantly taps his ankle-length galabieh clear of the accelerator pedal, you suddenly swerve to miss a donkey bearing fodder along the four-lane Jeddah street.

Yusif, the driver, turns down the volume on a rubber-mounted record player under the dashboard. The music is a nasal lament of love sung by Egypt's Om Kalsoom, a chanteuse in her 60s who is adored at the top of the pops everywhere in the Arab world.

NO PUBLIC MOVIES

"How would you like to see a John Wayne movie tonight?" Yusif asks with a conspiratorial air that gives the question a tone of "Psst, want to see some interesting postcards?"

An hour later, Yusif shows a card at the entrance of a five - storey building, you climb to the roof and find a seat in the darkness amid a ghostly gathering of fans in flowing white Arab headgear. A crescent moon hangs in the sky above the screen as John Wayne begins to shoot 'em up.

Only in such private settings can you see a movie in Saudi Arabia, because the old taboo against graven images and pictures of the human form still bars public cinemas.

But King Faisal established television in his domain during the last year over protests from the religious establishment that reached the edge of violence and succeeded recently in banning TV sets from public places in Mecca.

You can thus watch Dr. Ben Casey perform medical miracles on television in a country where rigid sabbath laws mean the main hospital in Riyadh refuses to accept a patient on Friday.

WOMEN VEILED

Bare - faced, soaked - kneed women also are seen on Saudi television, although Saudi women are still in purdah, covered in black, veiled from forehead to chin and rarely in public except on womanly pursuits such as shopping in the souk, the old market, or in the modern glass stores.

What is the explanation, then, for the racks of chic, imported dresses, the stiletto-heeled shoes and nylon flimsies in the stores? "Oh, said a husband, "our wives dress up in the evenings when a few married couples meet in one of the homes. The women sit around talking just as if they were in Paris or New York."

But the religious police—officially the Asil - Abomination Society—closed down a nightclub on the Medina Road because foreign Arabs working in Saudi Arabia threatened to make the place a vice centre, in the religious view, by taking their wives there to share the desert breeze, drink some lemonade or cola and listen to Om Kalsoom.

It is impossible to taste anything stronger than pop or a whiff of tobacco from a water pipe at the so-called nightclubs lining the highways outside Jeddah and Riyadh. Prohibition keeps these open-air shutters of small tables and wicker settees free of excitement — except, sometimes, for the discreet talk of angry young men made restless by the restricted pressure of tradition and by the visions of Arab advance conjured up by Cairo radio.

WHISKY $25

It is said in Jeddah that bootleg whisky is available, but it is not worth the price of $25 a bottle nor the risk of jail and deportation for a foreign toper. 100 lashes and a year in prison for a Saudi smuggler.

The sharia Moslem law is similarly fierce in other fields. A thief can still have a hand lopped off on conviction, although this punishment is inflicted now only for major larceny. Early this summer, prostitution was discovered in Jeddah and the women were sentenced to be stoned to death — in 1960s style, trussed in sacks, then crushed by a ton or so of rock dropped from a dump truck. A foreign embassy intervened on behalf of the prostitutes, and Saudis who gathered at the execution ground beside the foreign embassy on three successive sabbaths were disappointed.

Considering the forceful survival struggle of old custom, Saudi Arabia's advance in the last few years has been spectacular.

Just over five years ago, the army was called out to prevent a riot when the first government school for girls was opened. Within a year, 5,000 girls were enrolled in 50 schools. Now, more than 10 times that number attend almost 200 schools.

Every one of more than a score of multi-storey government, university and office buildings that would grace any North American city is less than 10 years old.

But, for the present, it is often hard to tell what time it is in Saudi Arabia—even, sometimes, what century it is.

Tomorrow: Saudi Arabia wants industry.

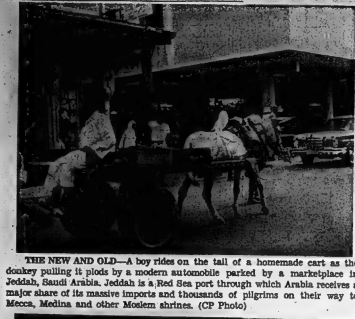
Judge Carves Up Characters Of Two Men

OTTAWA (CP)—Ivan C. Rand carved up the characters of Mr. Justice Leo Landerville and financier Ralph E. Farris in highly unflattering language in his report to the government on their stock deal.

The Ontario judge, condemned as unfit for office, and the Vancouver promoter, who provided him with a stock windfall, were described as kindred spirits.

Mr. Rand, a retired Supreme Court of Canada judge, said Mr. Justice Landerville is "fascinated by the glitter of success and material well-being" . . . "quite capable of being disingenuous" . . . "not averse from untruths."



"In short," Mr. Rand said, "he presents the somewhat versatile character of a modern hedonist (lover of pleasure) of vitality whose philosophy is expressed in terms of pragmatic opportunism for public promotion," financial and social success, linctured with arrogance towards subordinates and confidence in his ability to move around. . . .

"In Farris he met a kindred spirit, between whom there would be mutual loyalty serving personal interest, the determinant of the shortsighted and disastrous course of action . . .

"Farris, a man . . . with a mind sharpened by the keenness of the struggle for a fortune, of a driving energy, who viewed the petty morality of the middle class as no more than a hindrance to the public and private interests of a large-scale enterprise, found a congenial associate in Justice Landerville.

"In both, the titillating speculative proceeds were irresistible and in the northland of Ontario an unsurpassable locus presented itself."

Impatient Driver Seen As One Factor in Mishaps

By BOB MacKENZIE

OTTAWA (CP)—Why does a quiet, average pedestrian who will help an old woman across a busy street lean impatiently on his horn when he gets behind the wheel of his car and finds her driving slowly in the middle of the road ahead of him?

The National Research Council's motor vehicle accident study group says the problem is isolation from normal communication and social contact. It may be a leading cause of traffic accidents.

Auto accidents are more a social problem than one of poorly-trained drivers or unsafe cars, the five-man study group says in a series of reports reviewing North American and European research into traffic accidents.

Alcohol as well as attitudes are keys to the mounting accident toll, the reports say. But they add that a lack of extensive research into traffic accidents leaves too little reliable information for definite conclusions to be drawn.

"The reduction in motor skills due to the consumption of alcohol is known to be fairly uniform for all but the occasional drinkers, for whom it is exaggerated. Also it is known that the effect of alcohol on social behavior varies widely with different individuals."

NEED RESEARCH

But lack of research makes it impossible to say how much any single factor is responsible for accidents.

The reports say there is no evident, practical way is to reduce accidents caused by drinking unless strong enforcement procedures are carried out on a large scale, and this would affect "adversely the liberties of many innocent persons."

"The problem of the alcoholic, as distinct from the social drinker, is one for society as a whole, and it would seem to need a more fundamental solution than that of stopping drivers for breath analysis tests."

Even so, the statistics that are available show alcohol is involved in about 10 per cent of all accidents "and this figure appears to about 30 per cent for the serious and fatal accidents."

Public appeals have little effect, and the study group says the entire problem needs exhaustive research to discover a solution.

Drivers who don't drink still are at fault for a large number of accidents and most of these are due to the driver's "social behavior" of deciding what he wants his vehicle to do—not his mechanical task of making the vehicle do what he wants it to do.

Driver education a courses "seem to have little influence on the accident picture, in spite of their emotional and lay support," and driving instructors in some cities "are no more qualified than taxi drivers."

The trouble with driver education courses is that "proper steps to measure scientifically the worth of any such program were not taken when it was set up."

The study group, established under F. R. Thurston, director of NRC's national aeronautical establishment, does not rule out the possibility that improvements in driver education courses could make the courses effective.

One of our suggestions for further research is in this field," the reports state.

Someone has been trying to put dirty,thoughts into your mind:

about oil heat
The truth is, wall streaks occur with all modern heating systems—oil, gas, electric—but are not caused by the fuel. Dirt enters your home through open doors and windows—arid on clothing—is picked up, circulated and deposited by warm air. Cooking fumes and cigarette smoke deposits "film" on windows and mirrors. But oil heat can't possibly cause dirt. It burns inside the sealed combustion chamber of your furnace—is never in contact with the warm air that heats your home. Like gas and electricity, fuel oil provides clean heat. And oil is also economical, safe and dependable.
It's a great comfort to have oil heat

Oppose Hellyer Plan

TORONTO (CP) — Two retired generals—one a former chief of army staff—say the proposed unification of the armed forces results from a bid for error in government military policy.

Lt.-Gen. Guy Simonds, 1951-55 army chief, and Maj.-Gen. Chris Vokes, a wartime divisional commander and post-war Central Command and Western Command head, say policy is polluted in the wrong direction by ignoring the possibility of having to mobilize for a major war.

In a joint letter and memorandum made public today, they launch a new drive to rally support against Defence Minister Hellyer's controversial plan for wrapping up the three armed services into one. They are among the first army men of high rank to take up the cudgels against the scheme that has caused an outbreak of early retirements among high navy officers.

Gen. Simonds, 63, commanded the 2nd Canadian Corps and later the 1st Canadian Army in Europe during the last war. In World War. He retired in 1955 after his term as chief of staff. Gen. Vokes, 62, who retired in 1959, was a divisional commander in Italy and northwest Europe. Both were professional soldiers.

Their joint letter and memorandum outlining "concepts of military opinion" goes to about 75 prominent Canadians across the country, including a number of officers retired from the armed forces. They urge "grave consideration and protracted debate" by the Commons, and the recipients are asked to take up the issue with members of Parliament.

COULD BE RIDICULOUS

Top-to-bottom unification of the forces, they say, "smells of nothing but change for the sake of change" and could turn out to be "ridiculous."

The two generals have parental approval of the "integration" now in process as a step towards unification. They applaud as long overdue the integrated National Defence Headquarters under a single chief.

However, they have reservations about the establishment of six "integrated functional commands" among the forces. Misgivings were based on lack of a titular head for each of the three services and lack of assurance that the system will measure up to the strain of a general mobilization.

Both the functional command system and the unification program, the generals say, stem from a policy that should be corrected before it is too late—a matter that should be "of paramount concern to all Canadians."

They suggest that current Canadian policy is too concerned with peacekeeping tasks to have the forces in shape for mobilization in event of a big war.

MUST PREPARE

"The aim of governmental military policy in peacetime must, they say, "must be to prepare for the worst eventuality—the outbreak of a major war in which Canada may become involved."

Liberals Fight to Save Bill From Conservatives and NDP; Union, Rails Ask More Money

By BEN WARD

OTTAWA (CP)—Union leaders and railway executives held separate meetings with Prime Minister Pearson Tuesday to appeal for changes in the government's strike-ending legislation now before Parliament for approval.

Their requests in a nutshell: More money.

Union leaders asked that the interim wage increase provided in the bill be fattened.

The presidents of the CNR and the CPR asked for a federal subsidy to cover the $48,000,000 in additional 1966 wage costs already provided in the bill.

Neither side appointed spokesmen.

The bill proposes a four-per-cent wage boost retroactive to last Jan. 1 and another four per cent retroactive to July 1. It also stipulates that the strike, now in its 10th day, be stopped while both sides return to bargaining under the threat of compulsory arbitration after Nov. 15.

Later, in an interview on the CBC television program Newsmagazine, Mr. MacEachen said the 18-per-cent boost over two years was a "realistic probability."

The four top union leaders, followed by president Claude Jodoin of the Canadian Labor Congress, spent an hour in Mr. Pearson's office arguing for a larger wage increase in the bill. But they refused to tell reporters what kind of a deal they had requested, or discuss Mr. Pearson's reaction.

Mr. Pearson later told the Commons that no additional offer had been made to the unions.

No Layoffs Here Yet Due Strike

The general consensus of Belleville's major industries is they are "getting by" despite the rail strike for now, but if it continues, then who knows.

Mr. V. Leach, vice - president and assistant general manager, Stephens - Adamson, said "It hasn't been a great problem so far. We seem to be able to get our material in and out of Ontario and Quebec, but all the other provinces are lost. We can't get through to them.

"We can't take it very long. Nobody can. If it continues, we'll be in bad shape."

He said the major problem is the fear that suppliers' plants will close down and material will become unavailable. "It's like the electric switch. You don't realize how much you need it until it's turned off."

Gerry Wishart, general manager, Head Johnson, said: "It's giving us lots of work changing plans. We seem to be changing our plans every few days.

"So far we've been able to keep our customers supplied as well as our regional warehouses across the country. It's costing more money, but we've been able to keep operating.

"How long we can carry on. My main worry is if our suppliers get bogged down. Then we might be in trouble."

Dawson C. Boyd, general manager, International Hardware, commented, "It's a little early to really forecast what might happen in the future.

"At present, local transport has gone out of its way to look after us locally and outgoing materials are bogged down a bit.

"Many of our customers from, say, Toronto and Ottawa are coming into the plant and picking up their own orders rather than leaving it up to transportation systems.

"We depend upon rail transportation."

Ferry Service Restored

CHARLOTTETOWN (CP) — Prince Edward Island's main ferry link with the mainland was restored with quiet order this morning, ending five days of uncertainty over whether striking workers would resume operation of the CNR vessels which ply between Borden, P.E.I., and Cape Tormentine, N.B.

The ferry Confederation, tied up along with three other boats since the national rail strike started Friday, slipped out of Borden without incident at 6:38 a.m. ADT today and unloaded also on 19 cars at Cape Tormentine.

A CNR spokesman in Moncton said there were no demonstrations by union members at either terminal and the Confederation left the New Brunswick side on schedule at 7:30 a.m. with 430 vehicles.

The ferry Prince Edward Island departed Borden on time at 8 a.m. and a railways spokesman there said ticket sellers, vehicle handlers and other workers were performing their duties in an orderly fashion.

Another ferry, the Abegweit, will pick up her schedule at 10 a.m., and then all three vessels will be maintaining their

OTTAWA (CP)—The Liberal government Tuesday night fought back efforts to scrap its controversial bill to end the national rail strike.

In a bitter speech in the Commons, Health Minister MacEachen said the opposition was "totally irresponsible" in trying to misrepresent government ef-

If there was any reluctance on the part of the 138,000 workers to return to work once the bill was passed, it would be due in part to Opposition Leader Diefenbaker's claim they would get only a six-per-cent pay increase.

Mr. MacEachen said it was absolutely unrealistic to suggest at the final wage settlement would be anything less than the 18 per cent recommended in conciliation reports.

The former labor minister also denied that the bill does nothing to implement the report by Mr. Justice Samuel Freedman of Winnipeg on automation in the railway industry.

This key objection on the part of union leaders — echoed by Conservative and NDP spokesmen — was a feature of a Diefenbaker amendment, which may be voted upon today, to kill the bill. The amendment said the bill's neglect of fringe benefits makes it inadequate.

BILL UNWORKABLE

Mr. Diefenbaker said it was clear the government bill was unworkable and might be defied by the strikers. It had to be changed to avoid disrespect of Parliament.

The Freedman report suggested matters of automation which result in disappearance of jobs be made a topic of union-

Effects of Canada's Railway Strike Are Assuming Serious Proportions, Layoffs Seen

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The effects of Canada's nationwide rail strike are assuming more serious proportions, and opposition to the government's strike - ending formula continues to snowball, as Parliament-begins its third day of debate on the bill today.

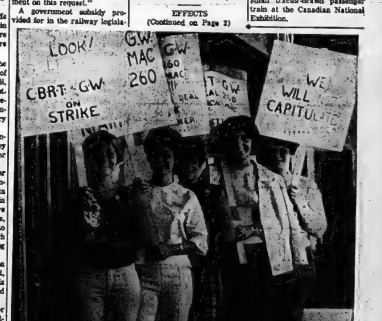
Plant shutdowns and layoffs involving at least 5,700 men in Ontario and Quebec have been announced Tuesday, and more are imminent.

Railway workers across the country were harshly critical of the proposed strike-ending bill, with the exception of an almost per-cent pay increase and renewed company-union bargaining under threat of compulsory arbitration.

Even the railways complained, wondering where they would get the money to cover the interim increase.

In Ottawa, Health Minister MacEachen said the government will stand by its bill in the face of stiff opposition in the Commons by Conservative and New Democratic parties, both of which are committed to vote for an amendment which would have the effect of killing the bill.

A vote is expected today on the Conservative amendment, which says in part that "this House declines to proceed further" with the bill.



Mr. MacEachen, former labor minister, stressed that the eight-per-cent rise would only be an interim increase and that the $18,000 strikers can expect to win a final settlement of "not less than 18 per cent." A figure recommended by conciliation boards involved in the dispute.

The walkout involving 17 railway unions has left the CNR and CPR and five smaller railways shut down since Friday, and domestic telegraph services also paralysed.

Railway presidents Donald Gordon of the CNR and Ian Sinclair of the CPR made it clear at an Ottawa press conference Tuesday night that they had asked Prime Minister Pearson for federal money to cover increased 1966 wage costs written into the strike bill.

The costs would be $30,000,000 to the CNR and $18,000,000 to the CPR. Mr. Gordon said the prime minister "made no comment on this request."

tion covers only existing costs, the presidents said, and there is nothing in the bill that would give the carriers any revenue increase in 1966.

Union and railway leaders meanwhile complained that the interim increase is too low, and

Accept Stelco Contract

HAMILTON (CP) — Workers at the Steel Co. of Canada Ltd. have ratified a new three-year contract giving them a 70-cent-an-hour increase in wages and benefits.

Ratification, announced early today by the United Steelworkers of America, headed off a strike by the 11,000 Stelco workers that would have started at 8 a.m. Wednesday.

The settlement includes a wage increase of 45 cents an hour, three cents more than the pay raise offered in a contract rejected by union members nine days ago.

In the final year of the new contract, beginning Aug. 1, 1968, Stelco wages will range from a base of $2.51 an hour to a high of $4.60, union officials said. They described the contract as the best in Canadian industry.

The agreement provided Aug. 31 would have been the Stelco workers an estimated $0.7 cents an hour, including a 38-cent wage increase that would have brought the average wage to one cent above the current rate for steelworkers in the United States. The U.S. workers have new negotiations next year.

TOTAL VARIES

The ratified agreement provides for a minimum 13 cents an hour in the first year, eight in the second and 10 in the third year.

Total increase, with the addition of job classification movements, will range from 31 cents to a high of 39.5 cents an hour, a union spokesman said.

TORONTO (CP) — Brian Fisher, 13, of Toronto was injured Tuesday night when he fell through the wheels of a small tractor-drawn passenger train at the Canadian National Exhibition.

Lightning Kills Two DHO Men Near Kaladar

KALADAR—Two Department of Highways employees were killed by lightning early yesterday afternoon three miles east of Kaladar on Highway 7.

Dead are Clarke Barker, 44, of Arden and Norris Coudy, 47, of Mountain Grove. With two other men they had been painting guard rails when a 15-minute flash storm hit. The four sought refuge under a huge pine tree when lightning struck.

Elwood Keller, 48, of Mountain Grove, who was working in the group at the time, said: "We had no place to go. We all went under this pine tree but it was crowded and I went across the road to another tree for shelter. Suddenly there was a huge thunderclap and flash and Mr. Arney came out yelling for help". Merrick Arney, 42, also of Mountain Grove said "I was standing between the two men killed but it must have been my lucky day. When the flash came I was tossed into the air and landed on my back ten feet from the tree". Arney is the father of 13 children, aged 5 months to 19 years. He was treated for shock at Tweed.

Barker was the father of two girls, aged 16 and 18; Coudy had three children, aged from 4 to 10 years.

Keller flagged down a passing motorist who notified the Kaladar O.P.P. detachment at 1:30 p.m. Constable William Watson investigated.

City Ambulance of Belleville removed the bodies to the Belleville General Hospital morgue.

Two PT Boats Hit By Planes

SAIGON (AP) — U.S. Navy planes struck two North Vietnamese torpedo boats in the Gulf of Tonkin today, knocking out one and damaging the other, the U.S. command announced.

The attack ran up the score for the carrier-launched bombers to three PT boats destroyed and three damaged since Monday.

Other U.S. pilots reported knocking out a surface-to-air missile site 40 miles north of Vinh and hitting another missile site only five miles west of Haiphong.

In South Viet Nam, a weeklong lull in the war persisted. No significant action was reported.

The air war against the north cost the American number plane today. A U.S. spokesman reported a navy reconnaissance plane went down eight miles southeast of Haiphong. The pilot was rescued by helicopter.

By U.S. count, it was the 546th U.S. plane reported lost over North Viet Nam.

Canadian Mother Superior Faints as Nuns Cross Border

HONG KONG (Reuters)—Two of eight Roman Catholic nuns expelled from China fainted while crossing into Hong Kong today as about 700 Chinese Red Guards shouted and raised clenched fists at them.

One of the nuns who fainted was Sister Winifred Duff, a 78-year-old Canadian who was mother superior of the Peking convent taken over by youthful Red Guards last week.

(The Associated Press identified the Canadian nun as Mother Mary of the Cross.)

The Red Guards on the Chinese side shouted as a 58-year-old nun from Cork, Ireland, Mary O'Sullivan, was wheeled across the border on a baggage trolley.

The nun, known as Sister Ex-moom, apparently fainted from exhaustion.

Hong Kong's police superintendent, also named O'Sullivan and also from Cork, carried Sister Zamoon to the waiting room of the Lowu border railway station.

The two nuns were taken to a hospital where a spokesman said they were suffering from general fatigue and would be kept in hospital for several days.

The other six were taken to a convent.

"All of them are healthy," a nun at the convent said, "but they're all very, very tired and they would like to rest."

The nuns who all looked drawn and depressed, said they had been under armed guard during the entire three-day train journey from Peking to Canton and had not slept for eight days.

The eight members of the Franciscan Order of Mary had taught at the Sacred Heart Academy in Peking since before the Communists took over mainland China in 1949. Last Thursday violently anti-Western Red Guards invaded the school, foisted the red flag over it, plastered the walls with demands that "foreign devils" get out of China and forced some of the nuns to kneel in the gutter while they reviled them.

Purportedly acting on the teen - aged Red Guards' demands, the Communist government closed the school and expelled the nuns.

Pedestrians Will Be Protected at Crossings

Pedestrians are going to be king at the intersection of Front and Station Streets and at the south end of the Upper Bridge when the proposed one-way street system in connection with the rebuilding of College Street bridge goes into effect.

Traffic lights will comprise by stop all vehicular traffic movement for the entire block between Pinnacle Street and the Upper Bridge and pedestrians will be able to cross without fear of cars coming at them from around the corner.

City Engineer Wilbur Purcell says present lights south of the Upper bridge will be hooded, and new temporary lights will be installed at the Federal building at the intersection of Pinnacle and Station Streets.

With the new lights all vehicular traffic between Pinnacle Street and the Upper Bridge may be brought to a complete stop and the area becomes a "free flowing" intersection for pedestrians.

PAINT WALK PATHS

However, walk paths will be painted across Station Street and pedestrians will be asked to use them.

But when vehicular traffic is moving pedestrians crossing of Station and Front Streets at this point will be prohibited.

Mr. Purcell said he expected the one-way traffic on Moira and Grove streets would go into effect on September 6th although demolition of the old College Street bridge would not be started until possibly a week later.

The new traffic regulations at the Pinnacle, Station and Front Street intersections are because of the increased vehicular traffic expected when the College Street bridge is out of use.

Woman Gives Birth to Baby Girl in Sleep

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — A Lansing woman gave birth to a seven-pound, 13-ounce baby girl in her sleep.

Mrs. Elden Summerix, 21, took a nap Tuesday and woke up to find she had given birth. She was taken to hospital where she and the baby, Susan Elizabeth, are reported doing well.

Her doctor, Dr. Kara Lovell, confirmed the "very unusual" birth.

"Every now and then we see a birth like this—one with little or no pain and apparently no effort—but we really don't know what causes them."

There were no unusual external influences that might have affected the delivery, he said. The mother, he said, "is a very normal girl."

A mother who delivers in this way cannot expect subsequent births to be as quick or as painless, he said, " but they will be fast."

Mrs. Summerix said he has delivered an estimated 1,000 babies and that this was the third of its kind.

Elzevir School Will Become Township Hall

An Elzevir township public school is going to be converted into a township hall and council chambers as a Centennial project.

Hastings East MLA Clarke T. Rollins said today the provincial grant approval for the project had been given and the application has now been forwarded to Ottawa to get the Centennial Commission approval.

Total cost of converting the school is estimated at $5,500 of which $4,160 will be paid by the township of Elzevir and Grimsthorpe. $870 by the provincial government and subject to Centennial committee approval, $435 by the Federal government.

LINE WAS TOO LONG

WESTERHAM, England (Reuters)—Winston Churchill's old country house here was opened to the public Wednesday and then closed after several hours because the line was so long. Thousands of British and tourists from abroad crammed into this quiet country village to visit the 300-year-old, oak-beamed mansion Churchill.

also spoke out against the provision for compulsory arbitration.

LOCALS UPSET

In Montreal, a meeting of union officials representing 8,000 Quebec strikers called the bill "completely unacceptable." In Quebec City, meeting that night, 370 of 377 strikers at a meeting voted against a request to return under terms of the legislation. Strikers in Saint John, N.B., in a similar vein, expressed their opposition to returning to work.

Special arrangements have been made in Halifax to transfer passengers off ocean liners Carinthia and Empress of Canada to make air and bus connections for various destinations across Canada. Both ships arrived Tuesday in the Montreal.

Layoff plans were announced in three Ontario centres and in Saint John, while companies elsewhere said they will follow suit if the walkout continues into next week.

LAY OFF 4,700

Largest of the shutdowns is that of McKinnon Industries Ltd., which announced layoffs of parts for General Motors of Canada. The company said it will close down its plant in St. Catharines at 7 a.m. Thursday, affecting about 4,700 production workers off the job. Another 600 McKinnon employees would be laid off in Windsor, Ont.

Fibreglass Canada Ltd. has already laid off 97 men at Sarnia and Saint John, N.B. Imasle Sugar Refineries plant announced that its last production run will end Friday. There is a shutdown will begin Friday. Affected will be 300 to 400 production, packaging and warehousing workers.

In Oshawa, a General Motors spokesman said production there could be affected by the end of next week if the strike went on that long.

GM employs 12,000 workers in Oshawa. The auto industry as GM and other car makers were about to bring out their 1967 models.

Bar Association Will Seek Say In Selections

WINNIPEG (CP)—The Canadian Bar Association decided by a slim majority Tuesday to seek a say in appointment of judges.

In a 86 to 73 vote, delegates to the annual meeting decided to urge the minister of justice to seek the association's advice about proposed judicial appointments. This would be done through a proposed CBA national committee.

F. G. Muldoon of Winnipeg said advice from the CBA would not remove judicial appointments from the political arena.

Delegates also passed a resolution which recommends creation of a new criminal offence based on the amount of alcohol in a driver's blood stream.

WANT COMPULSORY TEST

The resolution—criticized by some lawyers as infringing on basic principles of justice—recommends legislation stating it unlawful for a person to drive if his blood-alcohol level has reached .08 per cent. Alcohol levels would be determined by compulsory analysis of breath only.

And the association endorsed the idea of safeguarded legal abortion.

Under the plan, the medical profession would make the decision when pregnancy involved life or health of a mother or when there was substantial risk a child might be born with grave mental or physical defects.

Ireland Buys Demonstrator Appliances

For many years, Jack Ireland has co-operated with the Ontario Hydro in marketing kitchen appliances used for demonstration purposes. Once again a large block of these same brand ranges, refrigerators, dishwashers and other appliances has been purchased by Ireland's - all in "like new" condition and fully guaranteed.

These tremendous values in appliances will be offered to the public during Ireland's September Liquidation Sale being held to make room for new color and black and white TV coming soon.

For genuine savings on top brand appliances visit Ireland's low overhead location, 380 Front Street, just south of the upper bridge.

Squadron Leader Alan Pickering of Belleville and Sarnia has been appointed Air Force Staff Officer at the Royal Military College of Canada. He was a member of the first postwar class at RMC, holds a diploma in engineering from RMC and a Bachelor of Science degree from Queen's University. He has served as a test pilot on the RCAF "Voyageur" at Trenton and has recently completed a three year tour as chief engineer on the Gemini Target program in the USAF/NASA Space Systems Division in California.

Senior Citizens Seek Relief From Taxation

OTTAWA (CP)—The United Senior Citizens of Ontario Tuesday urged exemption of homeowners from direct school taxation and won support from Conservative Mayor Don Reid.

A resolution approved at the annual convention of the organization suggested federal and provincial governments assume full responsibility for education costs.

Mr. Reid, in a speech to the 300 delegates ranging in age from 65 to 98, approved of the resolution with the comment that: "Education costs should not be directed against real estate."

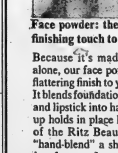
The elderly delegates, by resolution, also sought a variety of other changes to improve the economic lot of the old-age pensioner.

These included stern demands for:

A government-imposed price ceiling to help those such as pensioners on fixed incomes;

Doubling of the basic federal income tax exemption to $2,000 for the 65-and-overs;

Half-fare bus rates at all off public-owned and publicly-assisted transportation system;



Positive implementation of the proposed national medical care program regardless of opposition from provincial governments and medical organizations.

Margaret Rideout, parliamentary assistant to Health Minister MacEachen, told the group there will always be a substantial number of people requiring government assistance whose needs go beyond the rest of the population. They must be served differently.

Mrs. Rideout, substituting for Mr. MacEachen, said flat rate pensions are too inflexible to take care of everybody.

Return Trip To Car Lot Quite Costly

TRENTON — A "Robin Hood" type of crime was unleashed in Trenton Court yesterday, at Trenton. It all happened last Friday.

Hugh A. Dennison of the Armed Forces Base admitted he had stolen a wheel and tire from the used carlot of Art LeClair on Byron Street, after the wheel had fallen off the car of a friend, which he, (Dennison) was driving. The "friend" was said to have been "blindfolded", and asleep in the back seat of his car. Dennison found after taking the wheel that he didn't really need a wheel.

but did need a small "wheel washer."

Returning to the car lot, Dennison and another A.F.B. man, Clarence Glen Flood, attempted to steal the 50 cent part needed from another wreck. They were apprehended in this attempt by Constable Norman Mallory who was off-duty at the time.

(The owner of the car was still asleep in the back seat).

Dennison was fined $50 and costs on the first offence and $20 on the attempted theft of the washer. Flood was fined $20 on the attempted theft of charge.

ALWAYS LOOK AHEAD

If you must look in the mirror while driving your car along a country road. . . be careful you don't look at the wheel whole side of the road and nearly run head on into a car driven by a Trenton policeman.

Bernard Genereaux of Sidney Township paid a fine in police court yesterday after Magistrate T. Y. Wills heard first hand evidence from Constable Roger Camp, the officer involved.

Company Starts Work on Sewer For New Bridge

TRENTON — The John Gaffney Construction Company will today start on the installation of a 21-inch sanitary sewer on Front Street, in the vicinity of the site for the new bridge, from the Canadian Tire Store across the railway tracks to the Flax Station. A detour has been set up here. The work should take around a month.

Carr's Electric has the contract to install the sewer from Middle Street to Canadian Tire and from the Flax station to Dundas Street, and these will be at this work shortly. The sewer will serve the north end of town.

PATIENCE WINS OUT

NEW TUSKET, N.S. (CP) — Wallace and Edsel Muise captured half a dozen wild mink 35 years ago, when they were teenaged boys. The descendants of their early pets now have developed a pure black strain, which sells for $2,000 for a male and two females.

Several Tourneys Will Be Held

TRENTON — After a summer of very little activity, the Trenton Golf and Country Club will swing into action in the first two weeks of September. The Northern Electric ladies' tournament and the Trevorlan's staff tournament will be held on Sept., 10; the Chamber of Commerce will meet in set for the 14th and the Bata Shoe Company tournament for the 17th.

New Addition To Hospital A Possibility

TRENTON — S. O. Graham, chairman of the Trenton Memorial Hospital Board said today architects and consultants were engaged in planning a new addition for the hospital. Mr. Graham stressed, however, that this was still very much in the planning stage. Government approval of the proposed addition must be gained before the board can make concrete plans to go ahead.

The hospital was opened in 1951 with 68 beds. Ten years later a new addition was opened, giving the hospital a 136 bed capacity.

In 1965, two surrounding children's playpens and a new entrance waiting room were added on.

Admits Pushing Hand Through Hotel Window

TRENTON — Dennis Tripp, 19, of Colborne pleaded guilty before Magistrate T. Y. Wills at Trenton yesterday to pushing his hand through a window in a rear door at the Queensway Hotel on August 7th and was ordered to pay restitution and a $30 fine.

Tripp was said to have been in company with another man who attempted to buy beer after closing hours. On the way out, Tripp cut his hand when breaking the window.

GOES TO JAIL

Malcolm Munro of Trenton will spend the next two months in the county jail on four convictions for being intoxicated in a public place. The incidents leading to the charges took place on August 10, August 13, August 16 and August 26.

FAILED TO YIELD

Jack R. Foster, 24, of Meyers Street, Trenton, paid a $50 fine in Trenton court yesterday pleading guilty to failing to yield the right-of-way to a pedestrian.

A witness to the August 7 accident at the corner of Division and Dundas Street, when an elderly man was knocked down by the Foster car, told police the youthful driver appeared to be "trying to be smart" and see how close he could come to the elderly man."

Foster will lose three points.

$50,000 Now Collected to Build Pool

TRENTON — Douglas Whitley, chairman of finance with the Trenton Board of Education, said today the official announcement of actual costs and contributors to permit the contract to build the United Services Clubs' swimming pool in the Dundas Street area, could be made by Friday of this week.

Mr. Whitley said once the contractor got underway the pool should be ready for use in six weeks. $50,000 has been collected towards the construction of an outdoor pool. Once enough money is on hand to insure the outdoor phase of the pool, the service clubs and the swimming pool committee hoped to stage a campaign to cover the pool for year round use.

Curling Club To Celebrate 100th Birthday

Next year the 100th anniversary of the founding of Canada will be celebrated and incidentally it will be the 100th birthday of the Curling Club in this city although the Club was noncoperative for a period of about 25 years. At the present time the Quinte Curling Club's in a floorlighting condition and as per set to the recreation facilities in this community.

The directors of the Club have decided that the birthday should be fittingly recognized along with the birthday of Canada and have selected a committee of four members, William Riley, William Gault, Fred Maund, president of the Club and Claude D. Thor as Chairman. The committee has powers to add to its number and this will be done as plans progress. A meeting of the committee was held last night at the Club and at that meeting details of events was lined up for the week of January 30th to Feb. on Sunday the 15th. It was agreed a church service should be held in each of the city with arrangements to that end are being made.

Previous to the start of the week, the popular Sportsmen's Spiel will be held on the 13th and 14th of January. On Sunday afternoon an "Open House" is scheduled at which times each club will accept calls for instruction to any new members. On Monday a Women's bonspiel is on for 1967 for local rinks and on Tuesday night and a Mixed Pairs/triples mixed bonspiel of local members will be played.

Thursday will be an open day and on Friday will be the beginning of an invitation bonspiel that will include rinks from every part of the Province. Special letters will be sent to individual clubs and it is hoped that 25 will accept the invitation and with six local rinks in the 32-rink draw. This spiel will continue until Saturday night but on Friday afternoon the draw will be called off and a social evening and banquet is being arranged. It is also proposed that a special pin be struck for the occasion and be available to local and visiting curlers. These plans are only in the making and are subject to change. Chairmen will be named for the various events and be under their supervision. In all it looks like a grand week and it is hoped that all members and notably behind this effort to honor the 100th birthday of the Club.

Police Retrieve Motel Pillow

During the 8PM working hours logged by the Belleville detachment of the Ontario Provincial Police last week, the only theft reported was that of a pillow taken from an area motel. The persons responsible were stopped by police officers on Highway 401 and the pillow returned to the rightful owner.

A varied assortment of tasks were performed by the local detachment during the week, including the herding of seven livestock from area highways, the returning home of two small runaways from the Frankford vicinity, and the relaying to Belleville General Hospital from Kingston of a quantity of anti-tetanus serum, in answer to a emergency request from doctors at the Belleville institution.

Traffic offence charges were laid against 16 persons in connection with the 17 motor vehicle accidents investigated by the Bellevillle detachment during this period. Two individuals were charged for driving while their ability was impaired.

Four cases of breaking and entry reported last week are still under investigation.

Ernest hunters are off to an early start — several complaints of premature duck shooting have been received to date by the local O.P.P.

Tradesmen Work Against Clock But Expect Centennial School To Be Ready Tuesday Morning management negotiation in striving for new contracts.

Mr. MacEachen stressed throughout his speech that the government bill before the House was aimed at getting the rail workers back on the job, with an interim wage boost, and leaving the final tooling-out of the settlement to negotiations between the parties.

The rail workers went on strike last Friday with their unions demanding a 30-per-cent pay raise.

The government bill offers eight per cent—four per cent retro-active to Jan. 1, 1966, and four per cent starting last July—as an interim settlement.

The unions and the companies would be required to negotiate on a final agreement, with provision for compulsory arbitration if no progress is made by Nov. 15.

GET $2.22 AN HOUR

Most workers are non-operating employees—they don't run the trains—who average $2.22 an hour.

Mr. MacEachen over-rode interjections by Mr. Diefenbaker, Tommy Douglas and NDP deputy leader David Lewis in a hard-hitting speech.

When he repeated time and again that Mr. Diefenbaker ordered railway workers back to work, Conservatives and the entire Liberal back - benchers applauded and called on Conservatives "the same game".

He also needled the NDP leader when he said Mr. Frank Howard's efforts last spring to have compulsory arbitration to settle the longshoremen's strike.

"This bill is just about as good an say bill produced by the opposition and to describe it otherwise is hypocrisy," Mr. MacEachen said to Liberal cheers.

Mr. Diefenbaker had stopped the 1960 strike when it started and ordered the men back to work empty - handed. Now he wanted the Liberal government to fix wage rates for a two-year wage period and legislate a total settlement.

SQUARE THIS?

"How can he square this amendment with his own conduct as prime minister?" Mr. MacEachen asked.

As labor leaders listened in the galleries, Mr. Diefenbaker asked what the latest government offer to the unions was.

This brought Prime Minister Pearson to his feet:

"I can answer that question at once. No offer has been made."

Labor Minister Nicholson also denied that any other offer had been made to the unions.

Mr. MacEachen denied that the bill makes no allowance for settlement of any job security issues discussed in the Freedman report last year after a inquiry on CNR crew runthroughs.

He said the principal Freedman proposal is that the best solution is to allow the parties involved to collective bargaining to work out the problem.

ALL IN LINE

If this failed, an arbitrator could be appointed. All this was in line with the government's bill, which provided for collective bargaining followed by arbitration if no progress was made.

Both Creditiste and Social Credit spokesmen promised support for the Liberal strike-ending legislation.

There appeared little chance the bill would be defeated on a vote. However, Social Credit Leader Thompson's suggestion that it could be amended during clause-by-clause study appeared possible.

NDP Leader Douglas said his party would support the Conservative motion.

The NDP tried to move an amendment, ruled out of order, that criticized the bill for imposing compulsory arbitration and proposed an administrator to supervise the railways during collective bargaining.

Tradesmen are working against the clock at the new Centennial Secondary School in West Belleville, but everyone seems satisfied that the Tuesday morning school re-opening deadline next week will be met.

Next Tuesday morning approximately 680 grade 9 and 10 students will be reporting for classes at the new school on Palmer Road, but as of yesterday afternoon, not one of the close to 30 teaching areas was completely ready.

The schedule calls for 19 classrooms in a central block of the three and a half million dollar structure to be ready for school opening. One school official said yesterday it appeared that some tradesmen would have to work every the weekend to meet the deadline.

Tuesday most of the painting of the classrooms will be completed and in some rooms, tile floors were laid and blackboards were installed.

But in other rooms, particularly in the science rooms, tradesmen were busy installing desks and hooking up sinks and other equipment.

Also installed is acoustical ceiling slabs covering the maze of wiring, heating and air conditioning ducts which in most part still to be installed.

But at least two of the smaller rooms were ready for school principal W. J. Musgrove and vice-principal Gerald Boyce have already begun moving equipment into areas to be temporarily used as staff offices.

BLOCK OFF SECTION

Tuesday morning grade 9 and 10 students reporting for classes will use the northwest entrance with the unfinished sections of the school being blocked off until construction is completed.

No completion date has been set for the still uncompleted sections of the 12 classrooms, the 800 seat auditorium, the school library, the gymnasia, cafeteria and the various specialty and shop rooms still in various stages of completion.

Also still a considerable way from completion are the locker rooms in a central area of the structure — one on the ground floor and the other directly above. Yesterday - workmen were busy with grinding operations on the second floor locker room terrazzo floor.

Principal designate of the Centennial Secondary School will have an accommodation for approximately 1320 students or about the same number as Quinte Secondary School.

But with school enrolments increasing every year, provision has been made for a possible school extension which could eventually increase enrolment to as high as 1800.

There is no question that the school has been one of the costliest in the history of the city.

Total cost of the school, including general contracts, architects' fees and furnishings is given as $3,934,174, of which $3,000,000 is for furnishings and equipment. However, the net cost of the school with federal grants deducted is reckoned to $3,790,186. Of this amount 75 per cent or $2,079,879 is paid by a Federal-Provincial grant, leaving $1,710,306 as the local cost to be debentured by the Board of Quinte High School Board.

The city of Belleville pays about 65 per cent of the local share of high school board costs, with the remainder paid by Sidney, Thurlow, Tyendinaga and Ameliasburg townships and the village of Frankford.

FEW WINDOWS

A distinctive feature of the new school is the few windows in the central section of the school are windowless with windows in the two wings and the outside rooms reduced to a minimum. Ventilation is provided by air conditioning.

Ductwork for the heating and air conditioning is carried over the ceiling in narrow hallways connecting rows of classrooms.

This allows for greater accessibility for servicing, with the corridors at the ends of the classrooms also serving as additional storage space.

Also at the school there is a ground floor "receiving room" where shipments of school supplies may be stored awaiting distribution throughout various parts of the school.

Another feature of the new school, indicating the careful planning which went into the structure is the fact that the auditorium, library, gymnasium and cafeteria are so positioned that they can be used separately with other areas of the school closed off.

SEVERAL ENTRANCES

The main entrance to the school is at the east or the Palmer Road side. Also there is a second smaller entrance at the east, with two entrances both at the west or South.

The school parking and bus turning area is to the south of the main south entrance from Palmer Road.

South of the bus-turning area will be a playing field. Further, running west from Palmer Road past the new five-room public school adjoining the high school property.

Today the new high school appears to be almost open country. But the area is developing quickly. Within a few years it is expected that the building will be in the middle of a residential area.

portation of certain commodities from the U.S. We have a lot of the commodity on inventory right now, but in another couple of weeks if this strike goes on, we'll be in bad shape."

LIVE OFF INVENTORIES

A Northern Electric spokesman said, "Basically, we are still living off our inventories, but we're starting to feel the pinch in isolated areas. It will be another week or so before it starts to really hit us.

"Most of our shipments go by truck anyway, but many of the trucks wind up empty backs. This is where the problem comes in."

W. Robertson, office manager, Union Carbide, said the strike is not really a problem for them yet. They had to make other arrangements in some areas," he said. "The situation may change if the strike continues, but we're making all our deliveries to date."

"If it continues it's difficult to say what would happen. Eventually all of our suppliers' stocks will run out."

SHIP BY TRUCK

J. C. "Pat" Houston, general manager, said, "I really hasn't bothered us at all yet. We ship mostly by truck. It has created some problems for us in the timing of our express, but not too much.

"The lack of telegrams and cables are giving us more of a problem. We're making a lot more phone calls."

S. D. Hagerman, manager, Bell-Northern Research Company is not suffering much effect yet from the strike. "At the moment we're all right. We expect it will get worse as the strike goes on."

Keith Telephone manager Charlie Buckley said the strike is giving him some problems. "We depend upon express for shipments of copies of our customers' bills."

He said that overall there hasn't been any more traffic in long distance calls. "There was a quick flurry, but it seems to have settled down."

He said the use of the information services has really jumped since the strike began.

On the other side of the coin, a spokesman at the Belleville Bus Terminal said, "We've managed to be able to take care of the traffic so far by running two and three buses at a time."

"We've really been swamped. "I don't even want to hazard a guess at it. We had to open over the holiday on the weekend."

HEARING AT CAPACITY

Belleville's transport companies are working at capacity to handle all the extra traffic.

Max Haggerty of Haggerty-Smith said: "We're busy busy. We've got trucks out. We've even got one out in Vancouver.

"The big problem is getting to the Maritimes and the west. This is where the railway comes into its own — on the long haul."

Don Boyle, manager of Smith Transport, a subsidiary company of Canadian Pacific, said his company has been busy. "We operate independently and haven't had to many interruptions.

"We're busy, but we really haven't felt a big surge so far."

A city travelling salesman commented the strike could put him out of business. "I work on a commission and get paid by what I sell. If I can't get my products in by express, I can't very well sell them."

Everyone seems to be unanimous in hoping for a quick end to the nation-wide rail strike.

Ottawa at A Glance

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

TUESDAY, Aug. 30, 1966

Opposition Leader Diefenbaker introduced a Commons amendment that would lift the present government bill to end the national rail strike.

New Democrats promised support for M.

The Conservatives said the bill was unworkable and could result in strikers defying its back - to - work provisions because of dissatisfaction.

It specifically noted that there was no provision for job changes due to new techniques being made a matter for union-management negotiation.

The NDP added a rider that an administrator be appointed to supervise the railways during collective bargaining.

NDP Leader Douglas said otherwise the railways would sit back and wait for compulsory arbitration as provided in the bill.

But Commons Speaker Lucien Lamoureux ruled the NDP amendment out of order at this time.

Debate continued in the Commons after Prime Minister Pearson had meetings with union leaders in the morning and railway heads in the day.

At one heated point, Mr. Diefenbaker asked whether the government had abandoned a higher wage settlement to the unions "while Parliament sits."

"No offer has been made," Mr. Pearson shot back swiftly.

The House adjourned without reaching a vote on the Conservative amendment.

WEDNESDAY, Aug. 31

The Commons meets at 2:30 p.m. to continue debate on the rail bill. The Senate meets at 3 p.m.

Rev. Norman Hutchinson Accept Call to Truro, N.S.

Rev. Norman W. Hutchinson, minister of St. Columba Presbyterian Church on Farley Avenue is leaving Belleville next month to take up a charge in the Maritimes.

Mr. Hutchinson has accepted a unanimous call from St. James' Presbyterian Church in Truro, Nova Scotia. His final service in Belleville will be Communion on Sunday morning, September 18.

A native of Belfast, Northern Ireland, Mr. Hutchinson has been active in community affairs in Belleville, Latterly he was president of the Belleville branch of the Canadian Mental Health Association and a member of the YMCA where he conducted seminars on comparative religion. He is a keen soccer player and played for Belleville Parsons.

After graduating from Trinity College, Dublin, Mr. Hutchinson studied theology at Assembly's College, Belfast, and was ordained by the Presbytery of Belfast in 1950.

The same year Mr. Hutchinson came to Canada to work under the Home Mission of the Presbyterian Church in this country. His first charge was St. Columba, Belleville, and in March 1963 when the church was completed, the congregation worshipped in the lovely manse. Today the congregation numbers about 350 representing some 135 families.

Mr. Hutchinson and his wife Muriel will be honored by the congregation at a farewell supper on Sunday evening, September 11. The couple have two daughters, Julie, 4½, and Jacqueline 2, who were both born in Belleville.

The minister will be inducted at Truro on September 23 and he will conduct his first service there on September 25.

Beatle Banner Ordered Down By Police

LONDON (AP) — The Beatles came back from their fourth North American tour to a screaming welcome by about 250 fans at London Airport today, but police ordered the removal of a banner saying: "Thank Christ you are coming safely."

It was plain to onlookers that the banner was a sort of humorous reference to John Lennon's famous remark that The Beatles are now more popular than Jesus. Lennon's statement caused a furore, particularly in the northern United States, and he apologized for it at the start of the three-week tour.

More on Expo

The five or six million people expected to visit Expo '67 in Montreal next year will be spending a lot of money in Canada.

And the fact is, the country is going to need the cash to help cushion it against the inevitable slowdown that will come when the big exhibition is over.

True, Expo is not the one and only mainstay of the country's economy. If it were we would be on shaky ground indeed. But it does represent the focal point of this country's effort to celebrate the first 100 years as a nation.

Millions of dollars are being spent on the various projects, not only in Montreal but across the country. And no effort should be spared to ensure that the best possible return is achieved for the money and effort involved.

In other words, the Government and Expo officials should be looking more and more to other countries to achieve maximum visitor impact by the time the Montreal exhibition opens next April. The time for early publicity is here and now, particularly in view of the disconcerting discovery more and more Canadians are making on visits overseas — that this country just is not in the great power category, a big country geographically, yes, but not one which excites much general interest.

Newspaper magnate, Lord Thomson, put it bluntly during a recent visit to Montreal. "The Expo publicity department has done a good job, but let's face it, British and continental interest in Canada is practically nil."

And in the same vein, from The Squeaking Wheel, a contemporary look at the Canadian scene, by John Mercer, is this observation: "It is a recurrent Canadian conceit that we are, though a very small country, a very advanced one, and that everybody elsewhere is aware of our importance."

For still further confirmation of the lack of interest in Canada overseas consider an observation by James Gray of Calgary, who has been writing about his cross-Canada tour around Europe. In an article in The Hamilton Spectator he says: "The pre-occupation of Ottawa with foreign affairs, Mr. Pearson's Nobel Prize, our devotion to NATO and the UN and our efforts to two world wars all combine to create the illusion that we are citizens of one of the world's leading powers."

The way goes on to paint a disillusioning picture of the real overseas attitude toward Canada — one of disinterest and lack of knowledge of the Canadian scene. And after all, are we on this side of the Atlantic not guilty of the very same thing vis-a-vis Britain and the continent of Europe.

But there is still time to boost Canada and Expo in countries abroad. It is being done now, throughout the United States as well as in Europe. Only two weeks ago State Secretary Judy LaMarsh carried the message of Centennial year to Australians and New Zealanders. Between now and April, however, publicity about Canada and the 1967 celebrations will have to be stepped up greatly.

Perhaps Centennial Commissioner John Fisher, who will be in Belleville on Monday week to address the Rotary Club, will be able to enlighten us on this vitally important aspect of Canadian image abroad. This is Canada's big opportunity to really make itself better known on the world scene and we should make the most of it.

De Gaulle in Africa

France, like Britain, has been swift to recognize the aspirations of its colonial territories around the world.

Some, like Algeria, won independence only after bloody internal strife, but in others as the territories of French West Africa for example — independence came in orderly fashion.

President de Gaulle for his part is anxious that the remaining French possessions should have their independence the moment they are ready for it. Stubborn as he may appear in his dealings with France's western allies, de Gaulle has always shown himself sympathetic, even pragmatic in his attitude toward the French colonial territories.

Comments made during his African tour may suggest otherwise, however. Remarking on the demonstrations in French Somaliland, de Gaulle said: "The territory of Somaliland decided in 1958 to have a status as a French territory. France respects this status and there is no reason for it to stop respecting it. . . The destiny of countries is not decided on the streets."

From this it may be assumed that de Gaulle is not immediately in accord with any precipitate action that would lead to independence in the near future. On the other hand the general feeling is that Somaliland will not remain a colony for long — five years at the very most.

The French president is a realist, and his somewhat disdainful comment on the demonstrations last week were probably no more than a thinly veiled criticism of the disorder itself. In due course ,or rather in his own good time, de Gaulle will likely pave the way for independence in this last outpost of the French empire in Africa.

City Engineer Charles Abbott and City Solicitor A. B. Coffee received the go-ahead signal Thursday evening to proceed with the Riverside Drive when all city council committee meeting council members recommended the project be proceeded with, immediately.

Twelve teachers will be added to the staff of the Belleville Collegiate and Vocational School for the opening of the school term next week, it has been announced by George E. Hyrns, school principal. Three of the teachers are for men members of the staff who are returning to Belleville, while the others are new to this city.

Strictly Personal

Newsmen Try to be Fair

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

A reader in Richmond, Virginia, complains that the newspapers "have little respect for personal character," and that "mock or revile" famous figures in the news.

Based on some 30 years of newspaper experience, I should say that exactly the opposite is the case. Except for a few garbage-disposal units known as "Broadway depositary," the newspaper, friendly, treats the angle in describing personalities.

The reason for the alarming rate of ulcers, hypertension and general malaise among newspapermen (who have been given more thermometers per capita than any other segment of the population), their relationship to the duration in maintaining the "objectivity" that news stories call for.

In my interviewing days, I had hundreds of characters (along, of course, with many virtuous folk) who were greedy, stupid, ruthless, dishonest, and cheap as a dime-store brooch.

But it was not my business to emphasize their personal failings only to report what was newsworthy in their statements or actions. The relationship between overt behavior. I might privately be convinced that Citizen X was a jerk cum laude, but this feeling was translatable into a news story only when Citizen X publicly made a jerk of himself.

Worldly success and inner character is, at best, a tenuous one; and the newspaperman is forever meeting so-called "celebrities" who crumble into sawdust with great authority, but whose personalities can be seen by the discerning to be rotten, corroded, or otherwise damaged; by too much bumping on the hard sides of life.

During political campaigns, in particular, the reporter is forced to quote muscular platitudes by the bushel, even when he knows that the orator barely understands what he is saying. He has no intention of fulfilling his glorious promises, and indeed may not have seen the article until he was nudged in front of the microphone.

Yet, apart from the editorial columns of the paper (in which the editor has a right and a duty to get personalities on the skewer), the bulk of news stories must be written deadpan, in a fast, telegraphic style, to avoid any imputation of "colorful" or favoritism.

A large part of the alcoholism so identified with newspaper-men is past easy excuse for in their bitter awareness of the disparity between a man's public shadow and his private character. This turned many a reporter into a premature cynic, unwilling to believe that a core of goodness resides in the human breast. My reader in Richmond should try a week on general assignment.

To Your Good Health

Infection of Prostate Common in Old Men

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: My husband is 57 has acute prostatitis. Treatment to date has been many antics a week plus a drug.

I would like to know the cause of this condition, proper treatment, and what it can lead to if not treated; also what symptoms go along with this disease. — Mrs. L. E. R.

Prostatitis, or infection of the prostate gland, is quite common in older men, and much less common but hardly rare in younger ones.

Saying what the cause is becomes as difficult as giving the cause of an infection anywhere in the body: germs have settled in a particular spot and have set up an infection. It may be that a focal infection some where else (gumsitis, teeth, anywhere) may have been responsible. Some infection of the urinary tract may have affected the prostate. The point is that the infection exists and needs to be treated.

The proper treatment is (as in your husband's case) antibacterial drugs to subdue the infection, and massage to relieve the congestion and swollen condition of the gland. Hot sitz baths often are prescribed, both for comfort and to help reduce the swelling.

Dear Dr. Molner: I have arthritis of the spine, have stooped over, can't straighten up.

Please tell me what to do to straighten some, even if just a little. — C. C.

In advanced arthritis of the spine, there is severe bone deformity. During political campaigns, in particular, the reporter is forced to quote muscular platitudes by the bushel, even when he knows that the orator barely understands what he is saying. He has no intention of fulfilling his glorious promises, and indeed may not have seen the article until he was nudged in front of the microphone.

Yet, apart from the editorial columns of the paper (in which the editor has a right and a duty to get personalities on the skewer), the bulk of news stories must be written deadpan, in a fast, telegraphic style, to avoid any imputation of "colorful" or favoritism.

A large part of the alcoholism so identified with newspaper-men is past easy excuse for in their bitter awareness of the disparity between a man's public shadow and his private character. This turned many a reporter into a premature cynic, unwilling to believe that a core of goodness resides in the human breast. My reader in Richmond should try a week on general assignment.

Surgery, quite often necessary when older men have prostate trouble, ordinarily is not necessary in a young man unless some unusual condition exists.

The ins and outs of treatment at various ages, and the several different kinds of prostatic trouble are discussed at length in the newest of my booklets, "The Pesky Prostate" which is now ready for distribution. I anticipate the greatest interest among older men, but when a young man encounters prostatitis, he, too, certainly wants to know what it is all about. (For the new booklet, send 20 cents in coin and a long self-addressed, stamped envelope and address your request to Dr. Molner, in care of the Chicago Sun-Times Syndicate, P. O. Box 158, Dundee, Ill.)

Among other of my treating acute prostatitis include the serious risk of infection spreading to other parts through the urinary tract and damaging bladder or kidneys, especially the latter; the possibility of holding stones (on which is a most serious emergency; and the risk of the infection becoming chronic.

Symptoms include burning, frequency but paucity of urination, pain, and the appearance of pus.

The booklet outlines in detail symptoms as they affect older men when the problem may be simple enlargement of the prostate without infection, stones, or the beginning of cancer. These problems are not likely in young er men, but it is well to understand them.

Note to Mrs. R. F.: One egg a day certainly is not going to increase your cholesterol harmfully. I think the cholesterol problem sometimes gets unduly out of hand. There are other factors — fatal calories and fats, and also the type of fat in the diet.

Letter to the Editor

Emergency Aid For Youngster

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

Having had an unusual experience on a main street of Belleville this past Monday, I feel that I should at least acknowledge the friendliness and assistance given us by Belleville citizens.

We had lunch at a restaurant after which my wife and two children decided to go shopping for a few minutes. They had no sooner disappeared than my daughter Trudy, who was with me, became ill and fainted.

Without hesitation, a man, a woman and a teenaged boy — all strangers — came to my aid. There was little conversation. The man assured me that he would get help and would proceed immediately to the hospital with my daughter. The unknown lady volunteered to drive him and my daughter to the hospital while I would search for the other members of my family.

It proved to me that being a hundred miles from home, strangers can and will help when a difficulty occurs.

Perhaps, too, at times we are too critical of our teenagers, but this boy and girl calmly assisted in rainy weather conditions in locating my family in order that we could be with our daughter at the hospital.

The time I was arrived at the hospital, Trudy was well cared for by Dr. Bates and staff. We have since learned that a Mr. Michael Lucas of 24 Sidney Street was the kind gentleman who quickly responded in this emergency.

We most certainly are grateful to Mr. Lucas and all who came to our aid.

Open letter to Belleville. . .
Greetings from Brampton, Ont. (Flowertown of Canada).

Having been a recent visitor to Belleville again after many years (this time mainly for exhibition hardball games between the Brampton U.A.W. and a Belleville team) I'd like to say that Belleville is still not only "Belleville the Beautiful" but also that Belleville is "Belleville the Beautiful and Friendly".

May you never change.

Milk Prices in New York

Brockville Recorder and Times

There was a time when the dairy farmer in northern New York state was getting about twice as much for milk as his opposite number in Canada. While the positions haven't been reversed, the Ontario farmer is now getting as much or more for 100 pounds of milk than his counterpart in New York.

The New York farmer is now getting $5.67 for 100 pounds of milk sold to a dairy. Milk sells for 38 cents a quart and if a dairy farmer gets about 13 cents a quart. But the U.S. gallon and the U.S. quart are smaller than ours and because of this factor, the price is probably about the same on both sides of the border now. But there the similarity ends. Our dairies, if they appear by comparison, have been doing well, but not our farmers.

Just as milk has risen in price here, it has gone up twice in New York state, first two cents and then one cent a quart, to take it from 35 to 38 cents in less than a year. That is the price the consumer pays. Yet the price paid the farmer, $5.67, has remained unchanged now for 30 years.

In the U.S. this has brought charges of price fixing at the consumer level, especially after certain interests refused delivery of milk unless they charged the consumer a higher price. The price fixing charges are now under investigation.

While milk prices appear to be the same all over Ontario, the competition is nevertheless keen in all ways except in pricing. There is an exception, however, in that the chain store has its own dairies and undersells all other dairies in their milk bars, especially in the Toronto area.

But milk prices in Ontario have a habit of going up at the same time and the same rate all over the province. And now the dairies are getting prices comparable to those in New York State while the farmers in New York has been receiving the same price for his milk, between $5.66 and $5.68 for at least 30 years, in that period the price per quart to the consumer has gone up from 13 to 25 cents.

It would appear that in both New York and Ontario a pattern has evolved that now puts our dairies and dairy farmers on an equal footing with their U.S. counterparts. But unlike the New York farmer, we cannot say that the farmer here has been getting the same price for milk for the past 30 years. The Ontario farmer has only entered the 20th century in his remarks on the price of milk.

On the other hand, however, our dairies have been getting the same for milk from the consumer as their New York counterparts, right along and would appear to have been doing all right. But for how long, and are so many dairies merging or disappearing?

Nurses Have More Say

Windsor Star

Importance of the contract between Riverview Hospital and its nurses will have an impact beyond that hospital's even though there was no thought by the hospital administration of setting a pattern. It is the first collective bargaining agreement for nurses in this province.

It appears as favorable a contract. This will encourage other nurses in other parts of Ontario to organize and to negotiate. Heretofore the nurses have had little, if any, say about their own recompense.

It is all very well to aver that nursing is a profession where humanitarianism should predominate, but to claim that clergymen should be imbued by their spiritual call. But nurses are entitled to enough to maintain a decent life — and many, many are the support of families. It is unfair to expect them to work for less than they should be paid because of duties to a dedicated profession.

Paradise for "30c An Acre"

Peterborough Examiner

"Vacation paradise in Canada," says an advertisement in the New York Times, "30 cents an acre." Is it possible that the so-called Canadian Information Bureau operating out of a private house on Elizabeth Street, one, Willowdale, Ontario, can offer paradise so cheaply? At least one would get help and New York Times has asked for confirmation: "Is it legitimate?" he asks.

The advertisement continues: "By authority of Acts of Parliament, Canada will give to each extraordinary program to discourage immigrants to Canada . . . As a U.S. citizen you are eligible to pick up full title to parcels of land measuring up to 125 acres for business and-or pleasure. The cost? As little as 25 cents an acre, depending on location . . . Send $3 (add 20 cents for cheques) for complete kit and 2 record kits assisted in rainy weather conditions in locating my family in order that we could be with our daughter at the hospital.

The time I was arrived at the hospital, Trudy was well cared for by Dr. Bates and staff. We have since learned that a Mr. Michael Lucas of 24 Sidney Street was the kind gentleman who quickly responded in this emergency.

We most certainly are grateful to Mr. Lucas and all who came to our aid.

Harold W. Vogt,

mail: maps, regulations booklet and details, application forms, etc., to Canadian Information Bureau . . ."

The Canadian Information Bureau is not a government operated by an ex-newspaper correspondent, a retired civil servant and Fuller Brush salesman, Steven Simogi-Ginsberg, who operates out of a summer employer. Their sole business consists of sending a questionnaire to prospective applications for the sale of crown land to people who answer the advertisement. Then the high-flown title of the partnership, is made clear in the advertisement that the Bureau "does not buy or sell land. C.I.B. is not a real estate firm. We provide factual information on acquiring land direct from Canadian and provincial governments."

The Ontario Department of Lands and Forests confirms that the Bureau distributes this information factually, as far as it goes but the department also admits the need for the distribution of information but does not consider it necessary in the way that this Bureau is going about it. Crown land is available here land for sale at about $2.50 a lake-foot frontage, plus $100 down (the advertisement gives "accessible property near U.S. border in beautiful friendly Canada"). When asked what kind of response he received to the advertisement, he said it appeared in a number of major American newspapers and that its "willing power was good".

What it boils down to is that the Canadian Information Bureau is in the business of selling information that could be freely obtained from the Dominion Government for the asking. The fee covers postage, the cost of the information kit, and, we suspect, a handsome income for the advertising, the office and the partners. Is it legitimate? It is an ingenious means of raising expectations of the impatient New York American applicant's expectations of paradise in Canada's north country, not satisfied by the information — or even by the land if they buy it — described, of course, on one's idea of paradise.

PCs and NDP Join Forces In Amendment in Attempt To Halt Railway Strike

OTTAWA (CP)—The Conservative and New Democratic parties joined Tuesday in an attempt to force the government to rewrite its bill to halt the national railway strike on the grounds the measure is unfair and might invite defiance of Parliament.

Opposition Leader Diefenbaker moved an amendment in the Commons that would kill the bill because it "does not provide an adequate solution of the current impasse."

After Speaker Lucien Lamoureux ruled the amendment in order over the objections of the government, NDP Leader Douglas followed with a subamendment that embraced Mr. Diefenbaker's objections and added some new ones.

The bill introduced Monday at the opening of emergency sittings of Parliament is aimed at getting the railways, idle since 118,000 workers went on strike last Friday, back into operation.

Mr. Diefenbaker's amendment said "this House declines to proceed further" with the bill because its "wider implications" from the terms of conciliation board reports and its neglect of bridge benefits made it inadequate to deal with the situation.

Mr. Douglas said the NDP will vote for the Conservative amendment.

CALLS IT 'INADEQUATE'

His party's subamendment terms the legislation inadequate because it imposes "compulsory arbitration" and because no administrator has been appointed to supervise the railways during the collective bargaining.

Mr. Douglas said the railways will not enter into any serious collective bargaining when they know the government will impose compulsory arbitration.

Conciliation boards that studied the railway wage dispute recommended increases amounting to about 18 per cent in a two-year contract. The strikers are demanding increases that would amount to about 30 per cent.

The heavy attacks by Mr. Diefenbaker and Mr. Douglas against the bill came after union leaders representing the employees—most of them oil-the-rails workers earning an average $2.32 an hour—rejected the legislation.

They found the wage offer too low and said so in Prime Minister Pearson at meetings Monday night and Tuesday morning.

Mr. Pearson, who said there might be further meetings, gave no indication of any changes the government might propose. He said, however, that the union views are "grossly clear" in his mind as a result of the meetings.

KEY OBJECTION

A key objection to the bill by Mr. Diefenbaker and union leaders is the fact it contains nothing to implement the report by Mr. Justice Samuel Freedman of Winnipeg on automation in the railway industry.

The report recommended that job losses through technological change should be made a matter of bargaining between unions and management during the life of a collective agreement.

Mr. Pearson said he expects a study of it by the labor department will go before cabinet in a matter of days.

Mr. Diefenbaker said it must be clear now that the government's bill is unworkable. It might be defied by the strikers.

He called for changes as there wouldn't be disrespect for Parliament, which had to be careful any strike-ending bill wasn't so coercive that it would arouse antagonism.

Health Minister MacEachen argued that the Diefenbaker amendment was out of order because it did not oppose the principle of the bill—recurring railway operations—as required by House rules.

The argument was challenged by Stanley Knowles (NDP—Winnipeg North Centre) and by Gilbert Hilliker (PC—Kamloops), who said the amendment was similar to one introduced by Mr. Pearson in 1965.

SAYS IT'S DIFFERENT

The prime minister said the 1950 Conservative bill was different. But Mr. Lamoureux agreed with Mr. Fulton that the Diefenbaker amendment was substantially the same and had been accepted.

Mr. Diefenbaker's toughly-worded speech charged that the Liberal government lacked the "moral power to lead this nation" and its "two-faced" attitude shown in the bill would not assure the objective of ending the strike.

He called for a "fair and equitable" solution that would not invite defiance of Parliament by union workers.

Mr. Douglas said the basic weakness of the bill is that it may be ineffective in persuading the workers to return to their jobs. It demonstrated how "out of touch" with the public the government had become.

He urged the government to consult the unions, propose amendments incorporating a "fair minimum" increase, then allow free collective bargaining for an additional amount.

HAVEN'T MADE OFFER

Mr. Douglas said the railways for the last 10 months have not made a "good offer of money," maintaining their traditional behavior of provoking a strike that blackmails Parliament into stopping it and granting increased revenues.

He said the CPR has exploited its workers, milked shipping and raised the federal treasury ever since it was established with the "connivance" of both major political parties.

He termed this a "dance of avarice and expediency" in which every step is carefully rehearsed and the conclusion well known in advance.

And in this dance of thing was certain: "The public gets ravished." The major parties condemned this practice when in opposition but practised it when in office.

Mr. Douglas said any assessment of the CPR's ability to grant wage increases should take into account its profits from vast holdings of timber, mines, oil rights and land.

volved—no matter how remote this eventuality may seem.

"The employment of our standing military forces on peace-enforcement tasks is a contingency which is secondary to the above aim. . . .

"If senior Canadian professional sailors, soldiers and airmen have grave misgivings about accomplished or proposed changes in the structure of the Canadian armed forces, the government and the people of Canada should think very long and carefully before overriding their misgivings.

"It is very easy for a government to impose its will on its senior serving officers by refusing them out-of-hand if they disagree with a policy which, because of their training and experience, they know to be dangerous to the future military welfare of their country.

"Current military obligations in peacetime must never be permitted to obscure the long-range aim by isolating military organization to fit what is only an incidental requirement," the former commanders said.

Sally Rand Has Finally Shed Her Fans

CHICAGO (AP) — Sally Rand finally has shed her fans.

The tiny, blonde, 62-year-old dancer gave the famous three-foot-long white ostrich plumes to the Chicago Historical Society Tuesday.

"They're symbolic of an age," said Clement Silvestro, society director, as he accepted them.

Miss Rand stirred up a lot of controversy—and male fatigues—when she danced wearing them—and nothing else—at Chicago's 1933-34 Century of Progress World's Fair.

Miss Rand first affured her fans to the society in 1962 but they were turned down then as not having "sufficient historical interest."

Silvestro said the fans, each weighing seven pounds, are valued at about $400.

Kaunda Will Not Attend Conference

LUSAKA (Reuters) — President Kenneth Kaunda of Zambia said Tuesday he will not attend the Commonwealth prime ministers conference in London next week.

Kaunda told a press conference he decided not to attend because he was disgusted with the British government's handling of the Rhodesian independence crisis.

He said the Zambian delegation to the conference, which opens next Tuesday, would be headed by Foreign Minister Simon Kapwepwe, now on a goodwill visit to Denmark.

Kaunda said a decision on whether Zambia would quit the Commonwealth, as he has frequently threatened recently, would depend on what comes out of the conference regarding action on the Rhodesia issue.

Four Players Undefeated In Chess Play

KINGSTON (CP)—Only four of 116 chess players remain unbeaten after the first three fourth-round matches Tuesday in the Canadian open chess championship at Queen's University.

Still in contention for the $1,000 first prize are grand masters William - Lombardy and Lawrence Evans, both of New York City, and American masters Stephen Popel of North Dakota and William Martz of Wisconsin.

Evans defeated Grand Rubia, a 19-year-old Montreal university student, who earlier Tuesday upset grand master Pal Benko of New York.

Several other continuation fourth-round matches will be resumed today beginning at 10:30 a.m. Play in the fifth round of the Swiss - style tournament which ends Sept. 5 begins at 6 p.m. Ten rounds will be played.

Popel won his fourth-round match Tuesday, defeating O. M. McConnell of Montreal, while Martz defeated William Doubleday, 21, of Kingston, who had won his first three matches.

Honor Tyke Softball Team

Members of the winning Red Sox tyke softball team were entertained recently at a wiener roast at the home of the Doornbos family, Foster Avenue. At this time the assistant coach Yvonne Heidstra presented trophies to six players selected and three went to S. Sullivan P. Murray, B. Chase, J. Haggis, J. Heidstra and P. Kerr. A cake was also presented to the team for finishing in first place.

Previous to the social a game took place between the Red Sox team and their fathers which resulted in a 12 to 11 victory for the team. In another two games played the team was also victorious with the scores 32 to 15 and 18 to 12 in their favor.

Miss Heidstra expressed thanks to the players and parents for their support during the year and reminded all of the big date at Alemite Field on September 10, which will wind up this year's activities.

CONSERVATIONIST DIES

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Dr. John D. Detwiler, 86, one of Canada's pioneers in conservation and former head of the University of Western Ontario's department of biology and zoology, died Tuesday in a Galt hospital. In the late 1930's he helped organize the Canadian Conservation Association and was its first president.

MR. AND MRS. ROBERT D. BANTING

Banting – Haig

Bridge Street United Church, Belleville, was the scene on Saturday, August 27, 1960, at 2.00 p.m. of the marriage of Gertrude Louise (Trudi) Haig and Robert Douglas Banting. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. McLean Haig, R. R. 3, Belleville, and he is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Alan G. Banting of Belleville. Rev. H. M. Davis was the officiating clergyman and Mr. John Deacon sang a psalm, Mr. Alec Gordon was organist. The music composed by Mrs. Deacon for the wedding of the bride's parents.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore an Empire line peau de soie gown with appliqued neckline and lily point sleeves. Her long silk tulle veil fell from a headdress of white forget-me-nots and she carried a bouquet of white roses and stephanotis.

Miss Penny Roberts of Toronto, cousin of the bride, was maid of honour. She wore a blue peau de grenadine gown, fashioned as the bride's and trimmed with a cornflower blue velvet sash, with gloves and head bow to match. Miss Christie Haig, sister of the bride and Miss Susan Graham, the bridesmaids, were dresses of the same style and color as the maid of honour. All attendants carried bouquets with cornflowers.

Mr. Nelson Banting was his brother's attendant and the ushers were Mr. Ronald Banting, brother of the bridegroom, Mr. Andrew Haig, brother of the bride and Mr. Allan Martin of Toronto.

At the reception at the home of the bride's parents on the Trent Road, Mrs. Haig received the guests, wearing an ivory Italian silk sheath dress with short jacket of matching Italian lace, a belt of dusty rose velvet and matching accessories. Her corsage was a pink-centred cymbidium orchid. Mrs. Banting wore a shell pink crepe sheath dress with matching lace coat, white accessories and a corsage of gardenias.

For her wedding trip to Bermuda the bride chose a lattan coat and hat in peach and taupe, with matching silk dress, black accessories and a white rose corsage.

On their return, the couple will live at Cookiville, where the bridegroom is employed with Atomic Energy of Canada.

Purple Lodge Holds Annual Picnic Reunion

Order of the Royal Purple Lodge No. 164 Belleville held its annual outing of members and relatives at Vandewater Park on Sunday.

The weatherman provided a perfect summer day while the women of the O.D.R.P. provided entertainment and refreshments.

The highlight of the day was, the presentation to the oldest and the youngest in attendance. Mrs. J. Mackey Brennan, mother of Mrs. D. Ricard, represented the 19 century, who is 96 years old Andre Brennan, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. Brennan, age 6 months represented the 20th century.

In the racing contest, winners were: egg throwing contest: Jim and Grace Murray; wheel barrow: Bill Anderson and Elsie Browning; Mr. and Mrs. Keith Gordon; wheel barrow (girls and boys) Lee Whitney and Jean Carman; Christine Haines and Cari Haines; 5 yrs. and under: Andre Ricard, Kathy Heike, Bobby Haines.

Other winners were: Bob Prentiful, Mike Browning, Allen McLaskie, Karen McLaskie, Bonnie McLaskie, Claude Gilbert, Kathy McCreary, Stephen Gilbert, Nancy Browning, Jimmy McLaskie.

A gift was presented to Mr. and Mrs. Poelma representing the shortest married couple - 1 month also to the longest married couple to Mr. and Mrs. J. Delmage 33½ yrs. to Mr. and Mrs. Ricard for the couple present with the most children (6).

The day was filled with races, ball games followed by a tug of war with treats and refreshments for the kiddies. The winner of the attendance prize was Bill Gilbert.

FREEHOLD, N.J. (AP)—Unmarried persons who seek welfare assistance for their children will face possible prosecution on adultery or fornication charges, Monmouth County Freeholder Marcus Daly announced Tuesday. He said the county spends about $1,500,000 a year for aid to about 3,000 dependent children and a good percentage goes to support what he calls "children of illegitimate parents."

Ann Landers' Undressed Women Irk Room Service Waiter

ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I work as a bellhop and room service waiter in a well-known hotel. I am sick and tired of women who let waiters into their rooms when they have a towel just barely draped around them. Some women yell, "Come in," when they are wearing only a nightgown. Do they think we are blind?

It doesn't make any difference who they are. The school teachers, and lady executives are just as brazen as the show girls who entertain at stag parties. I've been asked to zip and hook and unbutton so many dames I feel like a stage mother. Any advice? — S.O.S.

DEAR S.O.S. — Yes, get a job hopping bells at a men's club.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I was interested in the letter from "Old World Thinker" complaining about her nephew's sloppy thank you note.

The woman felt the boy's mother should have corrected the spelling and made him write it over. You said it was admirable that a 10 year old boy would write a thank you note and that if he expressed what he felt, the spelling was not important.

I am so happy you gave that advice, Ann. Our unofficially "adopted" son who is now 30, refused to write letters because his father (a high school principal) was also an "Old World Thinker."

When the boy was a youngster away at camp he wrote several letters to his parents telling them what good time he was having. At the close of the camping season his father returned all the letters — with corrected spelling and punctuation. This so deflated the lad that he quit writing letters.

We've tried to explain we don't care about anything except hearing from him, but that early hurt left him so badly scarred he never recovered. — MRS. R.J.H.

DEAR MRS. — Thanks for the superb support. You couldn't have produced a finer piece of evidence.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — Ever since my father-in-law died of a heart attack six years ago, my husband's mother has been nagging him to take care of himself because "heart attacks run in the family."

She has tried to get Sheldon to move into the guest room and that didn't work. But her hands are never idle. Every week she sends him obituary notices of people who have died of heart attacks. All her clippings are about men under 60.

Whenever she sees Sheldon lifting something heavy she says, "Stop that. Let your wife do it." The classic was last week. The car stopped and Sheldon said it must be the battery. His mother announced, "If the car has to be pushed, your wife can push it."

Sheldon hasn't had a sick day in 15 years. I wish I could say the same. Please debunk the myth that heart attacks run in families or I can send a clipping to my mother-in-law for a change. Thank you — TIRED.

DEAR TIRED — Heart attacks do run in families but that doesn't mean Sheldon can't live to be 100 if he takes care of himself.

By "take care of himself" I don't mean move into the guest room, or let his wife push the car. I mean keep his weight down, exercise regularly, get enough rest and stay away from cigarettes and booze.

Social Action on Strike Advocated by CWL Meet

By JEAN SHARP
CP Women's Editor

HAMILTON (CP)—Social action on the rail strike was called for at the Catholic Women's League of Canada convention Tuesday by Rt. Rev. J. A. MacLellan of Edmonton.

Delegates at the annual national convention were discussing what sort of social action is suitable for the league.

Msgr. McLellan said delegates could take an immediate action by appealing to labor not to defy Parliament by prolonging the current railway strike if it passes a bill ending the strike.

Rev. J. T. Shea, director of the social action department of the Canadian Catholic Conference, drew applause by replying that if an appeal were made, it should go to all parties—labor, management and government.

A panel discussion was told that Roman Catholics must not follow the lead of Catholic intellectuals and abandon their separate schools.

John Sweeney, a separate school inspector in Kitchener, said the separate school system has better teachers and more money now than it has ever had and must play its part in the education revolution.

STRESSES INDIVIDUAL

Sister Paulette of the St. Croix Adult Labours Convent in Montreal, Que., said part of the revolution is the emphasis on the individual rather than on the system.

She said separate schools have always been more concerned with people than with organizational structure. But there have been moments in their history when they have set up a type of ghetto and have failed to do the job they should have done.

"If our separate schools are going to survive we must rethink and re-plan our approach. We can't just say they will survive. We must plan."

James Sherlock, assistant business administrator of the Hamilton separate school board, said money given to schools by a province should not be called a grant. He said it is merely tax money being returned to taxpayers and, as such, is subject to political control.

BOOTH'S GRAND OPENING SALE

To The Citizens of Belleville and District

For the past two months we have been busy remodelling, redecorating and expanding our store into the premises formerly occupied by the Intelligencer. Although we have carried on our business as usual, we apologize for the inconvenience we have caused our customers.

Now that renovations are complete, we believe our store to be one of the finest in Belleville with more than double our former floor space, new departments — new lines of merchandise and new improved service.

To acquaint the public with our "new look" we are offering special values in every department and extend a sincere invitation to all to visit our store.

(Signed) Howard Booth

THREE BRANDS OF MOTORCYCLES are carried by Booth Radio and Television in their new showroom. The addition houses sporting goods, guns and motorcycles.

NEW SPORTING GOODS DEPARTMENT in Booth Radio and Television's new showroom features the most complete stock in Eastern Ontario. This area was formerly the offices of The Ontario Intelligencer.

Booth Radio and TV Has New Sports Shop

A six - week program of renovations has recently transformed the old Ontario Intelligencer offices into a part of Booth Radio and Television Ltd. By knocking out a wall which formerly divided the two buildings Booth's has more than doubled its floorspace. The whole area has been redecorated and new showcases have been added.

The new addition houses the gun department along with sporting goods and motorcycles. The firm handles Hondas, B.S.A.'s, and Ducatis. With the increase in space Booth's is able to stock the most complete line of sporting goods in Eastern Ontario.

The stereo department is now housed on the main floor of the original section of the store. It formerly was upstairs. Sharing this area with the hi - fidelity equipment are the musical instrument, camera, and large appliance departments. The service set - up for the store is housed in the building immediately north of the showrooms.

With a staff of about twenty-five, Booth Radio and Television is now able to offer increased service to its customers.

FINE SETS RECORD

MONTREAL (CP)—A ship's captain who inadvertently discharged more than 400,000 gallons of oil on the St. Lawrence River last May, was fined a record $3,500 Tuesday. The penalty was imposed on Capt. J. Widnall, master of the Great Lakes tanker B.A. Peerless.

THE LITTLE WOMAN

"I'm voting for Reginald Marchbank—but don't tell my husband!"

SUN PARLOR SALAD

Two teen-aged daughters of mutual friends are pals and applied for jobs at a posh summer resort and were accepted. When we saw them off duty one of the girls gaily announced, "I'm the salad chef". I asked if she had prepared the salad we had been served. "Sure I do all of them."

I was proud of her for it had a professional air and the arrangement we beautiful.

When I shop at our local outdoor market on Saturday mornings I get carried away and buy more than I can possibly serve. At this time of year the fruits and vegetables are absolutely perfect and it is hard to believe that just weeks ago we were reading blue ruin because of the drought. Irrigation is the answer.

A salad called Sun Parlor is one that can be made by every amateur and professional salad chief in this audience.

SUN PARLOR SALAD:

- leaf or Bibb lettuce or endive
- tomato wedges (eighths) scored unpared cucumber slices
- thinly sliced radishes
- spinach leaves, dash dried and torn
- wafer-thin onion rings
- M.S.G. (accent)
- garlic salt
- French dressing

Select a large shallow salad bowl. Line it with washed and dried small leaf or Bibb lettuce leaves or spearlike leaves of endive, protruding slightly over edge of bowl. Arrange all of the vegetables listed above in an attractive pattern until you have your bowl brimful. Sprinkle sparingly with M.S.G. (accent) and ever so sparingly with garlic salt. Then drizzle over sparingly cold French dressing. Chill until serving time. Pass additional French dressing at the table.

DEWEY SALAD:

This individual salad is attractive, tasty, quickly prepared and of course, healthful.

For each individual salad place a ¼" thick slice from a firm head of iceberg lettuce on a tea plate. Cover with a thick slice from a peeled very large tomato. On top place a small mound composed of equal rights of finely chopped celery heart and green and red pepper. Serve with Lorna Doone Dressing: Mix together ½ cup French dressing, 1 tbsp. finely chopped parsley or watercress, 1 tbsp. best quality thick chili sauce.

Train yourself to be a professional salad chef while all our lovely Canadian salad vegetables are in full season.

DISTRICT WOMEN'S INSTITUTES

MELROSE W.I.

A great deal of knowled about the operation of local i dustries was gained by Melro Women's Institute when th monthly meeting was held i the form of a tour through tw business establishments. Twen ty-one women and nine 4-H homemaking club girls met at The Intelligencer office where Donald Cameron escorted the up through the department here 16,000 newspapers are composed and printed daily. The linotype, linotype and printing presses are intricate machines which operate busily, the first beginning at 7 p.m. the previous evening, to compile material for the day's publication. The explanation of the method of producing colored ads and pictures was most interesting. Although the press is capable of printing an 80 page edition, the average publication is about 20 pages. A brief tour of radio station C.J.B.Q. was also enjoyed. It was noted that about 125 are employed in this modern and important communication building.

The group then proceeded to the Black Diamond Cheese Company which is situated in the heart of a dairy district. Miss Cathy Cook was a very pleasing hostess as she described the making of process cheese. Cheddar cheese is purchased from factories in the surrounding area, then it is ground fine, stirred and heated until it forms a thick liquid which is poured on long cooling belts and then stacked, cut, weighed and packaged automatically. Several curing methods result in the production of the gourmet delicacies which are becoming more in demand by today's customers. The cold storage rooms will accommodate ten million pounds. Now cheese is stored from two to five months, but old cheese is held for an 18 month period. The company is now building a special auditorium suitable for the tours which they are planning as their centennial project. Flagpoles are being erected on their spacious lawn which will bear the flag of each nation which buys the Black Diamond Cheese products.

The W. I. treated each one in attendance to lunch at the Tops Motel. This was a new venture for this branch and proved to be both enjoyable and educational.

Never Stand Under Tree In Storm

OTTAWA (CP) — Lightning strikes the Empire State building about 40 times a year—and that bit of information takes care of the theory that it never strikes twice in the same place.

An article in Canadian Nurse magazine says lightning can kill you outdoors, especially if you stand under a tall tree, or even indoors if you are talking on the telephone or fiddling with the TV dials.

You're safe in a car during an electrical storm, but it's a good idea to pull off the road. A bright flash of lightning could blind you temporarily, making you lose control of the car.

If lightning strikes someone, apply mouth-to-mouth resuscitation, even if there are no signs of life, and wrap the victim in blankets to keep him warm.

SHORT COAT FOR WINTER — In his fall and winter showing in Paris, designer Yves Saint-Laurent presented a short red woollen overcoat with black belt and pockets. The Experts Say
Scientific Information Division Gives Tips on Control of Insects

By MARILYN ARGUE

OTTAWA (CP) — Got a beetle in your house? Or a weevil, a platoon of ants or, horrors, a bedbug?

Keep calm. You can find out how to turf them all out with a letter or phone call to Isabel Creelman, scientific information division, Central Experimental Farm, Ottawa.

If you have bugs you can't identify, she'll comfort you. She is head of the desk in which her end of the conversation runs like this:

"Goodness, that big, eh? And it's got hairs, too . . . on the red part or the beige? Hmmm. Does it seem to be eating the carpet or just sliding on top?"

Sometimes she asks callers with crawlers to slip some in a little bottle and send them along to the farm. Entomologists there can identify the most exotic insects and tell you what to do about them.

Miss Creelman began working in an entomology lab during summers off from a BA course at Queen's University, Kingston, Ont. After graduation she naturally joined the similar setup in the department of agriculture here.

A blue - eyed strawberry blonde, she has a liberal sprinkling of freckles earned in her half - acre garden. Brought up on a fruit farm in the Niagara peninsula, she now lives in a rented farming community 30 miles south of Ottawa.

In 15 years on the job she has seen quite a few bugs and she says they're mostly OK. Personally I'm not fond of large spiders but I'm interested in living things and that includes insects."

BUSY IN JUNE

Her files on insect pest conditions across Canada hold 225,000 cards detailing 3,000 species from abacarus hystrix (grain rust mite) to zygosella saccamantonis (sunflower beetle).

In June, her peak season, she'll get up to 30 desperate calls a day. "But all summer people are bothered with ants, bedbugs and outdoors. Later there are wasp's nests, dental and human fleas, clothes moths, carpet beetles, cockroaches, fruit flies, house flies and bedbugs."

You don't have to be stuck with any of them, though control must be a continuous process. "Insecticides now have a residual effect. They last for several weeks and kill the young as they hatch. Try not like the days when you used kerosene or javex and killed what you hit."

She says the move of high-rise apartment-dwellers to the freshly-built suburbs has put a lot of people who frankly know what bugs are right in the front line. "A lot of these suburbs were fields a year ago and all the same insects are still there. They come into the houses—there's nothing to stop them. But this just lasts a few years."

It has been a bumper season for mosquitoes this year because of the damp spring. "There were lots of puddles for them to breed in and the swamps didn't dry up."

But there are lots of good repellents on the market, thanks to research done during the Korean War when malarial mosquitoes were a problem.

Miss Creelman recommends careful reading of directions on labels of insect spray and repellent. Misuse can be dangerous, even fatal. "After all, they are poisons."

India's Women Protest Rising Prices of Essential Commodities for Home

By RAM SUNDAR
Canadian Press Correspondent

BOMBAY (CP) — India's women have been apparently emboldened by the fact that the country's premiership is in the hands of one of their own sex.

During the last few weeks there has been a spate of feminine demonstrations against the government.

The provocation has been provided by rising prices of essential commodities like rice, cooking oil and kerosene.

All the major opposition political parties including the Communists, Socialists, Freedom Party Conservatives and the Hindu Jana Sangh (Peoples' League) have straightened their women's wings.

The Jana Sangh, a right-wing party with a large following in the northern and central provinces, is making a special effort to mobilize support among housewives.

Recently, the Sangh branch in Nagpur city organized what the press called "a chain hunger strike" to focus attention on the high price of consumer goods.

WOMEN FAST

Some 500 housewives took part in the demonstration which went on for 12 hours. Batches of women fasted for 24 hours, to be replaced by others.

Some women were permitted by the party to fast only for 16 hours. This was to enable them to attend to their domestic duties and avoid the displeasure of their husbands who were apparently more interested in a good lunch than in observing the government of Prime Minister Indira Gandhi.

Mrs. Nirmala Vaiekar, one of the anti - government women leaders, said that the chain hunger strike was a "great moral success."

"The prime minister should now realize that unless she is able to bring down prices, she will find it difficult to get feminine votes in the next elections," she said.

In Ahmedabad, capital of Gujarat state, the Communist party has been pressing women volunteers into a demonstration against United States aid campaigns.

Hundreds of women demonstrated before petrol pumps to protest high prices of kerosene.

The Jana Sangh and the Communists also are busy organizing women's demonstrations in New Dehli, the capital.

Shouting housewives recently held a two-hour demonstration in front of the prime minister's official residence. A mother of six carried a hand-written placard which read: "Respected prime minister, do not betray your suffering sisters."

The ruling Congress party has taken up the opposition challenge.

It organized a rally of 200,000 housewives in Calcutta to show that Indian women are still by and large with the party of Indian independence.

Kamaraswami Kamaraj, chairman of the Congress party, plans to utilize the services of women to take the party's message to the remotest hamlets.

With elections scheduled to take place next February, the ruling party estimates that it will need some 500,000 women workers. Though the number sounds impressive, it means at best one worker in a village in a land of more than 500,000 villages.

Ruling party circles concede that some opposition groups like the Communists are far ahead in the matter of women workers.

In the state of Kerala alone the Communists have perhaps more than 100,000 women propagandists working for the party on a part-time basis. They include school teachers, office workers and peasant women.

With its revivalist Hindu ideology, the Jana Sangh also is making a sizable impact on women voters.

Indian government leaders say that feminine votes numbering some 100,000,000 could prove decisive in the next elections.

They admit that it can no longer be taken for granted that Indian women are submissive and will stay out of political agitations. Nor can they be trusted to vote according to their husbands' wishes.

Couple Honored With Presentation

RIVER VALLEY — Mr. and Mrs. Bill Conley, a newly married couple, were given a presentation party by the River Valley community on Friday evening at the school house. Mr. Ed Enns was master of ceremonies, and Mrs. Sheldon McIntosh and Mrs. Philip Conley conducted a sing-song.

Numerous readings were given by Mrs. Ernest Carr, Mrs. Percy MacMillan, Miss Jane Bush and Mrs. Roy Tucker. Selections were played by an orchestra comprised of Kenneth Morrow, Ernest Rosebush, Norma Rosebush and Mrs. Conley.

Glen Morrow read an address on behalf of the chartvari group and Glenn Brooks made a presentation. Mrs. Kenneth Morrow read the address on behalf of the community and John Enns, Jack Sager and Ernest Carr made a second presentation.

Guests included Cpl. and Mrs. Ronald Wannamaker and daughter Brigette from Germany, Mr. and Mrs. Tom Rosebush of Metier, Ontario, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Roberts of Hamilton and Miss Evelyn Massey of Oshawa.

BLAST KILLS TWO

Susanna's Family Fair

SO WHAT ELSE IS NEW?

Dear Susanna: Monday — washday. Tuesday — ironing. Well, not necessarily.

Now you have a dampening bag to keep clothes from mildewing while they are waiting and waiting to be ironed.

Contents stay fresh and sweet for days and even a couple of weeks.

The ones you buy have a convenient zipper top. However, the medium-sized grocery, plastic garbage bag will just as nicely. You can be fancy, too. I use one for white things and one for colors.

Deposit the dry clothes loosely in the bag, toss in a cup of water, shake contents slightly, press out the air as completely as possible and fasten the top securely to keep any more air from entering.

They'll be just right for ironing in less than an hour . . . and you'll stay that way. Of course, it isn't necessary to add extra water if clothes are already damp from the washing.

What a boon to all of us who hate ironing. Susanna, and we can only stand to work on a few items at a time. — P. A.

Bringing Up Baby

HINTS COLLECTED BY MRS. BAS GERBER, MOTHER OF 5

Something old, something new, something borrowed, something blue. Some mothers apply this charming wedding custom to baby's layette. Nice sentiment for a new baby.

Post-natal problem. Watching your diet is just as important after the baby comes as it is before. You need all the nutrients your doctor recommended to regain your strength and keep you fit. Word is the wise: crash diets are no more sensible than over eating.

Watching baby's diet is one of your doctor's (and your) primary concerns. When he gives you the go-ahead on cereal, you'll want to try Gerber Cereals. Each one has a blend but distinctive flavour . . . yet all have a smooth-to-the-tongue, easy-to-swallow texture. Most important, they have added iron, calcium and these important B-vitamins: thiamine, riboflavin and niacin. To stimulate appetite interest, rotate all 3: Rice Cereal, Barley, Oatmeal, Mixed Cereal and Protein Cereal Food.

Night-feeding simplified. Take the grope and fumble out of night feedings by laying out robe, slippers, diaper, etc., in advance. Luminous paint on light switches will save many a stumble in the dark.

Vitamin view-point. Baby's vitamin drop will be best given by dropper. If you put them in his formula and he doesn't finish it, precious drops will be wasted.

Another vitamin viewpoint. Vitamin C, so important for sound gums and other body tissues, is usually recommended for baby's diet. Gerber Strained Orange Juice is an excellent source of vitamin C. Made of tree-ripened fruit, specially selected for maximum C content, it's one the way it should be for a new baby. Gerber Baby Foods, Niagara Falls, Canada.

Two-of-Everything World

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP)—We live today in a two-of-everything world.

It is getting so a man can't hold his head up proudly any more unless he has a two-car garage and dwells in a house that has at least two telephones, two television sets and two or more bathrooms. (Many of the bathrooms even have two wash basins—for Mr. and Mrs.).

To be a real standout you have to have two places to live, one in the country and one in the city, and take two vacations a year, one in the winter and one in the summer.

Some lucky fellows even manage to wangle two wives, one at home and one at the office. And now and then you meet a junior executive who carries two briefcases.

Yep, it has become a two-of-everything economy. One of anything no longer seems enough, not even when it comes in a large economy-size package. Whatever it is, you buy two large economy-size packages of it.

But this philosophy of double plenty breaks down completely when a man goes to work. There he gets only one of everything—except perhaps in the matter of paper clips.

This, I suspect, is the hidden cause of much of the paranoia, frustration and schizophrenia one encounters in modern business life.

What produces the man to dwell in a house with two bathrooms, two cars and two television sets if he has to work in an office where he is allowed only one desk and one swivel chair?

Subconsciously, he can't help feeling that he is a failure. To have only one of anything today is a sign of lack of success. Deep in his mind lies the conviction that if he were really getting ahead at the office he would have two of everything there, too—two desks, two swivel chairs, and even two secretaries.

MAKES APPEAL

OTTAWA (CP)—Gilles Grégoire, new leader of the separatist Ralliement Nationale, says the party origin in La Nation is not anti-semitic and appealed to the province's Jewish community "to stop letting themselves be used by some newspapers to fight a political party." He said La Nation had published two articles of an anti-Semitic nature, but one repeated remarks by Premier Daniel Johnson and the second was a reader's letter which slipped in by mistake.

Ferry

schedules as advertised," the spokesman said.

He said the Scotia II pressed into service earlier this summer to handle the increasing volume of tourist traffic, would not operate.

Resumption of service this morning followed an agreement between the CNR, union and P.E.I. government, to operate the ferries on a non-commercial traffic.

Local 20 of the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway, Transport and General Workers at the Borden terminal established picket lines at the terminal Friday. However, the local voted Tuesday night to permit limited ferry service to be restored and by midnight the picket line had disappeared.

SECOND LINE OPERATES

The Island's second ferry link with the mainland has not been affected by the strike. Northumberland Ferries Ltd., a non-railway company, has been operating extra trips to meet the demand created by the Borden-Tormentine closure.

Mr. Campbell had been preparred Tuesday to enforce the province's Emergency Measures Act to restore the CNR service, but he delayed this pending the union locals at Borden accepted orders from national union President William J. Smith.

The order that the local was instructed "to lift your picket lines where they interfere with the operations of the Borden-Cape Tormentine ferry services." It also decreed that the Borden locals were to provide "necessary" personnel to permit resumption of limited ferry operations.

Meanwhile, the railway strike has forced Atlantic Sugar Refineries Ltd. to plan closure of its operations in Saint John, N.B., and temporarily lay off 350-400 workers.

A company spokesman said the shutdown would start Friday.

GOVERNMENT RESIGNS

CHANDIGARH, India (Reuters)—The government of Punjab State resigned Wednesday as a prelude to the division of the Punjab into two separate linguistic states. The reorganization will split the Punjab into a Punjabi-speaking state, which will have a predominantly Sikh population, and a Hindi-speaking state of Haryana, whose population will be mainly Hindu.

Saudi Arabia Is Seeking Firmer Basis For Economy Than Oil, 'Tourist' Trade

Efforts to give Saudi Arabia a broader-based economy are complicated by the lack of information about the country. A Canadian Press reporter travelling in the Middle East finds that Saudi Arabia hasn't even an accurate count of its population.

By CARL MOLLINS

RIYADH (CP)—Saudi Arabia, financially afloat on oil in the east and richly awash with Moslem pilgrims in the west, is struggling to develop less fluid sources of income.

Inquiry in the marketplace for a genuine Saudi Arabian souvenir prompts a wry suggestion from a cynical young citizen.

"If you want something made in Saudi Arabia," he says, "you had better take home some sand."

The comment is almost true of a dauntingly dry land where even a wadi or part of the national diet must be purchased abroad and subsidized by the government.

Saudi wealth has multiplied swiftly since oil was discovered 30 years ago and the national income was less than $2,000,000 a year. After the Second World War it was still only $15,000,000. Today, oil royalties alone provide $750,000,000 a year and the royal government's current budget totals almost $1,000,000,000.

But ex-king Saud frittered away the money faster than it came in, with little to show for his spending by 1958 for debts, a devalued currency, a posh palace in Jeddah and a town-sized, $100,000,000 estate in Riyadh with 70 mansions and villas for concubines and kin.

SAUD EXILED

Sterner members of the family finally called a partial halt and appointed Crown Prince Faisal prime minister in 1958 to produce the country's first budget, establish the beginnings of a civil service and cut his brother Saud's allowance.

Saud interrupted Faisal's work in 1960, but the crown prince came back as prime minister in 1962 and two years later Saud was on his way to Greece with a reduced retinue. Faisal was on the throne but, in a property suriers gesture, not in Saud's palaces or air - conditioned Cadillacs.

Faisal launched the search for new resources and modern industry in earnest, but he had little to go on.

Fundamental facts about the country were missing and even now one government publication gives the population as 11,000,000, another says 6,000,000, a slipshod census came up with 3,500,000 and an official spokesman in Riyadh suggests it might be "seven or eight million."

New roads are being built and the government announced plans this summer to restore the derelict Medina-Damascus railway. But the administrative capital of Riyadh is still linked to the commercial centre of Jeddah only by airplane, dessert vehicle or camel.

FEW JOBS FOR WOMEN

Money is being poured into education, but it is also spent on high salaries to lure foreigners into professions and office jobs while the custom of purdah keeps Saudi women out of almost all occupations but nursing and teaching. Virtually the only source of skilled workers is on the oilfields of the Arabian-American Oil Co. around Az Zahran.

The Koranic prohibition against usury does not inhibit Saudi money-changers from raking off at least seven per cent, the visitor finds, but the country's Islamic law is incapable of governing modern business practice.

The government is trying to attract foreign investment with accompanying technical skill—but manufacturing enterprises launched in the last few years are struggling. A match factory in Riyadh closed down. A detergent plant in Jeddah must charge almost 20 cents for a seven-ounce package and wants a higher protective tariff. A cement mill on the Medina road charging 98 riyals a ton is undercut by cement importers who must pay 22 riyals a ton duty.

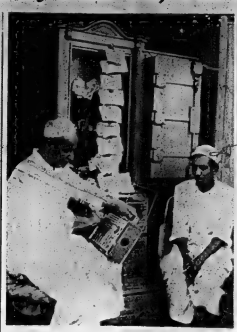
Planning attempts have been confused by conflicting advice from foreign experts who forbade a liberal proposition of political and economic carpet-baggers.

"Unfortunately, some of the advice we have been given arises from personal ideology instead of sound economics," a government economist says.

OIL IS LEVER

But hopes and determination remain high among many Saudi enthusiasts aware that achievement is difficult from a standing start.

Hady Taher, 35, a businesslike and articulate administrator who got his higher education in Egypt and California, is one of those who appears to be a realistic organ for development in the government's Petroleum and Mineral Organization, known as Petromin.



"We are a catalyst trying to mobilize local and foreign resources to develop petroleum and minerals and sideline industries," he says. "Our objective is industrial diversification."

Taher wields a substantial persuader. American, European and Japanese interests seeking oil exploration rights are being encouraged, if not actually coerced, to help establish other industries as part of the contract for oil rights.

Petromin is already in partnership with foreign interests in oil exploration, drilling, distribution, refining and in geophysical surveying. Plans at various stages of progress include iron mining and smelting, fertilizer and sulphur production, and other petrochemical manufacturing, from plastics to industrial chemicals.

Saudi Arabia is likely soon to have more than sand to offer as a souvenir.

Tomorrow: King Faisal's delicate mission.

MONEY AND MUSIC—Money-changers in a Jeddah, Saudi Arabia, market listen to Western popular music on a transistor radio. Moslem law, which governs Saudi Arabian life, forbids charging of interest in business, but taking a "commission" on loans or exchanges is condoned by Koranic regulations. (CP Photo)

CNR Reports Operating Loss During July

MONTREAL (CP)—The CNR Tuesday reported a net operating loss for July of $3,172,000, which compares with a loss of $320,000 for the corresponding month of 1965.

Railway operating revenues for last July totalled $72,126,000 and expenses, taxes and rents $75,308,000.

The July loss reduces the CNR's net income for the first seven months of 1966 to $12,346,000. This compares with a loss of $186,000 for the first seven months of 1965.

SHAPE UP SUMMER HANDS FOR FALL . . . If summer sports and the Great Outdoors have left hands in need of help, map out a schedule of grooming and exercise, say beauty experts. Application of a medicated hand cream, followed up by a professional manicure treatment will work wonders. Simple hand exercises to relieve fatigue add supple strength and beauty to busy fingers, too.

How to Get Vacation Hands Fit for School

Hands that held a tennis racquet, guided a water ski-tow or steered a yacht have been busy during the summer holidays. But now that it's campus and career-time, hands may need help to look their prettiest. In fact, knees, heels, and elbows may need first aid, too.

To help heal sore, chapped hands and heels, use a specially designed cream. Such a cream is Pacquin's, a long-time favorite with nurses, formulated to heal and soften. It is recommended that you apply the medicated cream over all chapped areas each day, both morning and night. It absorbs quickly into the skin.

Soft, smooth hands are just the beginning of the beauty plan. Well-manicured nails are a must, too. Remember talk is totes, typing, or tossing a salad, your hands are always in evidence. Take the time each week to give yourself a professional manicure. Before you apply your favorite polish, begin with the cuticle. If looks ragged and rough from a summer of sports, use a crystal-clear cream that washes excess cuticle away in a minutes. One prospector takes just three easy steps comes with its own orange stick and detailed directions for use.

For pretty feet and toes, follow the same routine in your weekly pedicure. And in trimming toenails, remember to cut them straight across to prevent snagging hose and ingrown nails.

Handsome hands are healthy, supple hands. If they become tired and cramped from hours of writing or touch - typing practice, exercise them!

Finally, follow-up your hand exercises with a gentle scrubbing of warm, soap water. Dry thoroughly and apply a lavish coating of hand cream. They'll look as nice as they feel.

Plan Early To Finance College Years

Food, clothing and shelter are being replaced as the largest items in many family budgets by a new trio — books, board and tuition.

On average, it costs $2,000 to keep a boy or girl in college for a year, and costs are going up.

Planning to meet this need should begin as early as possible according to a panel of Life Insurance agents.

Insurance traditionally has played an important role in family planning to meet college costs. Insurance at the breadwinner is a key element in college planning, these top insurance men say. If it's a choice between a traditional college endowment policy on the child and adequate life insurance on the father, insurance for Dad is a wiser buy.

Here's the reason: If the breadwinner dies, his life insurance benefits can be used to put Sis or Junior through school; if he lives, the children will be going to school during what is probably his peak earning period when more money is available. Further, his life insurance can be cashed in, or used to secure a low-cost loan.

On the other hand, the endowment policy offers a good savings plan for families with better than-average incomes, where the breadwinner already has adequate life insurance protection. Endowments are also popular with grandparents who want to make a contribution to children's college educations.

Here are some other facts to be considered in planning how to raise dollars for diplomas — Part time jobs are available on nearly all campuses, although opportunities differ from school to school. You'll find more jobs near colleges located in a major metropolitan area. A full time job and college don't mix.

— Loans for college costs are available from the federal government at low interest rates.

Play Up Your Prom Beauty

When school bells ring, reading, 'riting and 'rithmetic will share the campus calendar with proms and parties.

For every special social occasion, a corsage of fresh flowers adds to the festivities. To make sure the corsages you'll wear will complement both you and your gown, follow the tips from FTD experts in corsage creations:

When your date inquires about color you'll wear, be sure to tell him the style of dress. The cut of the dress — with sleeves, straps or self-ornamentation such as ribbons, lace or beadings — will guide the florist in selecting the best floral accessory.

Hair and complexion can be important, too, in selecting corsage flowers. For instance, if a girl has flaming red hair, she may shy away from wearing red roses or carnations. Pink roses, on the other hand, can be worn close to the face or skin to create a soft, flattering blush.

Tall girls should have a full corsage — perhaps an over-the-shoulder design or a half-moon shape for a rounded neckline. Florists recommend a petite floral pouf for tiny girls, or a small tiara of miniature orchids or carnations in her hair.

What corsage flower is best for you? Orchids, because they come in so many varieties, cost- or and sizes, are always popular. The small green cymbidium orchids are particularly effective when worn singly or as floral scatter pins. Wristlets of carnations add an elegant touch to the arm and hand, and free the wearer from worries of crushing the flowers while dancing. Nosegays of mixed blossoms, made popular by Princess Margaret on her visit to this country, are young floral accents for solid - color d dresses.

Party for the School Crowd?

First, be sure every room shows a shining face, with a touch of fresh flowers in all its eyes.

The bathroom or powder room should gleam — freshened up with guest towels (or save you laundry and ironing time later) with a roll of paper towels in the new pastel colors that ca be used with either matching or contrasting holders. (Many hostesses provide paper towels, aware that guests sometimes hesitate to use expensive linens). The bathroom should also have a convenient covered container so that used towels or facial tissues can be disposed of easily.

Color is entertaining, too — and here's another idea for its use. Spend a few extra cents on perfumed soaps that come in a $2, lovely colors, and then match them in color with toilet tissue. Flowers always provide a cheery spot of color.

Set out coasters and place mats in the living room before the party begins.

NEW ENGLISH-LANGUAGE DICTIONARY is a study aid to a freckle-faced boy who would rather be playing baseball than doing homework.

Proper Study Habits Open New Vistas . . .

Physically, millions of children will return to school this fall, but their minds will still be exploring the fun of summer.

One of the big jo b for teachers and parents is to persuade youngsters that reading books can be as much fun as exploring new swimming holes and haunted houses.

Next, suggest a varied study pattern. Taking homework in like eating a meal. For many children, it's more fun to switch from one portion — or subject — to another, then back again, rather than to complete a long assignment in one subject before going on to a long assignment in another. Build study schedules around the child's temperament so he can move through his homework in the way that is most enjoyable — and beneficial — to him.

Learning requires good reference materials. They should be close at hand when the child is working. A short walk from the bedroom to the living room to check the 20-volume encyclopedia can double-cause to the refrigerator and the television set, with the result that an hour is lost before the child returns to work.

Men's Sox Have Many New 'Faces'

Sock fashions will be worn underfoot on campuses around the country this fall. That's the word from the U.S. National Association of Hosiery Manufacturers who report that great strides have been made in the hosiery for the fashion-conscious male.

For campus wear, there are a wide number of socks available for wearing to and from class. The crew sock, still the most popular of casual styles for the college man, is now available in more colors than ever before. In fact, there are even crew socks which match the school colors of some of the nation's leading universities.

The crew sock is not the only sock that will brighten college lads' wardrobes this fall. There are styles with a "denim" look, socks to be worn with Western-style clothing, and also velours which are now striped for the first time.

Have Lamp, Will Study

Any parent knows it's next to impossible to get youngsters to sit quietly while studying . . . today's student belongs to the go-go generation and his study habits reflect his energetic mobility.

That's why the mobile Tensor Lamp is finding such great popularity with students everywhere. Easily totable from room to room, the lamp provides close-to-daylight conditions, ideal for close eyework.

Its high-intensity white light is glare-free eliminating eye strain for studious youngsters, especially important when long hours of homework are on the agenda.

Its small size allows privacy in lighting and minimizes distraction for the all-too-easily distracted youngster.

Parents who would like to see an improvement in their youngster's grades would do well to lamp.

LIGHT ON THE SUBJECT at study-time makes concentrating easier. The mobile lamp, called the "Princear", is high-intensity, achieves a close-to-daylight condition, sheds a glare-free white light. Lamp can be hung on wall or moved from room-to-room.

The lamp also encourages good study habits by providing students with the proper lighting equipment, such as the handy, versatile Tensor

Be Wise... Choose Career Realistically

"Watch your reasons in choosing your future life's work," caution the vocational experts. "Too many wrong reasons can create unrealistic goals."

They point out that many times a student will aim himself at a glamor or prestige career, when in all actuality his abilities indicate another direction that will leave him more fulfilled.

Experts cite the young man who was sent by his parents to take a battery of vocational and aptitude tests.

At the final interview with the vocational counselor he said, "I want it firmly understood that no matter what you tell me I'm going to be an engineer."

He may have arrived at this choice because he wishes to emulate someone he admires.

If he is bright and intelligent his may indeed become a successful engineer but never be completely happy because his real pattern of interests is more suited to another line of work.

Sometimes a college freshman chooses a certain professional field through parental pressures.

In many cases this ambition may exceed the aspirant's ability and cause him to either fail or become with great effort only a moderate success.

Kitchen 'Labs' Help in Schooling for Adulthood

One way to help your daughter find son achieve independence is to show them how to be at home on the range.

Can your teenage boy make himself a hot breakfast on Sunday morning if he gets up before everyone else? Or does he go hungry? Or when awaken, or worse yet, does he nibble the first (usually inappropriate) food he sees?

If you're delayed in returning home some afternoon, can your teenage girl get the family's dinner started? Or is she helpless in the kitchen?

Now, with children going back to school, is the perfect time to start your own kitchen course in your teenagers' "schooling for adulthood" program. Encouraging them to help in the kitchen and teaching them the rudiments of cooking is important. It is knowledge they will soon put to use when at college or in homes of their own.

Frying eggs, making a melted cheese sandwich, heating canned soup, putting the potatoes on to boil are all well within the range of ability of even 11 year olds. So are preparing simple meats such as hamburgers and lamb chops for the fry pan and warming canned vegetables in a saucepan. With today's electric ranges, this beginners' cooking is easy, safe and satisfying.

For example, with an automatic electric range, your teenage just turn a dial and are assured of exactly the right cooking time — automatically.

Mom, too, will appreciate the tenderizing controls that keep even inexpensive cuts of meat tender, horizontal broilers that do both sides of the meat at the same time for sealed-in juiciness, and a meat probe that goes into the roast's centre and registers arrival at the degree of "doneness" the cook has indicated.

The "last word" in cooking is thermostatic action. Available on many new electric ranges, it maintains food at serving-warm level after the cooking is done. For both back-to-schoolers and you, this thermostatic control means the food you've lovingly prepared is always just right for enjoying.

Glamorous Apple Juice

Youngsters streaming in from school in the afternoon make a beeline for the refrigerator. Just plain hungry they are. And thirsty. Left to their own devices, they will cheerfully fill up on whatever catches their eye and fancy. So it's a wise mother that sees to it that her children find the wholesome, nourishing refreshments she wants to have ... simple, but tempting snacks, substantial enough to hold them until supper time but not enough to spoil their appetites.

Drinks, of course, are always in order, to quench those enormous thirsts the young seem to develop. One of the real delights for children is apple juice. And it's good for them — fine apple juice is just the pure, natural juice pressed from the fruit. Served cold, it's refreshing. Served hot, it warms them down to their toes. And as a "mixer" it takes on real party airs.

Here is a suggestion for a good apple drink, easy to prepare, wholesome, non-rich . . and the children will love it!

APPLE SURPRISE COOLER

1 quart apple juice
2 tablespoons instant tea
1 tablespoon lemon juice

Combine all ingredients. Chill or serve over ice. Makes 4 servings.

GOOD GROOMING RATES with college men now that a rechargeable automatic clothes brush goes along as a valet friend. It weighs only 13 ounces, operates continuously for 15-20 minutes when fully charged and has nylon brushes which can be removed for cleaning.

New Brush Makes Neatness Come Automatically

College men who major in good grades and good grooming pack the essentials first. One of the handiest companions for campus living is a lightweight automatic clothes brush that, flat, neatly tucks into a suitcase. It's the perfect "built in" valet for the man who cares about his grooming.

Whether on campus or away on weekend housepurties, the cordless wonder whisks away dirt, lint and hair at a moment's notice. Best of all, it weighs only 12 ounces and operates continuously for 15-20 minutes when fully charged. The washable, nylon brush has extra-fine bristles for gentle brushing and can be removed for easy cleaning. The maintenance tool, stored in the charger base, includes a brush for cleaning the lint chamber and a comb for cleaning threads and hairs from the brush.

A suggestion: Don't press down on fabrics. Let the brush do the job; it cleans moving forward and backward.

Once it's on show in dormitory room, the automatic clothes brush is sure to groom more than few roommates. The handy color blends well with color schemes, and there are soft, rubber feet to prevent marring furniture. One of the most convenient storage places is on a dresser, or it can be mounted on a wall since the charger base has a bracket. It's the perfect gift for the man.

SHAPE CONTROLS YIELD

BERWICK, N.S. (CP)—Apple farmers in the Annapolis Valley hope to triple yields by pruning trees in pyramid or Christmas tree shapes. The common umbrella - shaped tree produces about 300 bushels of apples to the acre but the new shape may produce up to 1,000 bushels in the acre.

Exercise Program Pays Off

How did you feel this summer? Get healthy as Tom Sawyer... Tarzan or Jane? If you did, you'll want to avoid that winter "indoor" feeling that comes when the tan and fitness fade.

Recreational exercise can do the trick.

Even if school, the home or office combine with weather to make recreational exercise difficult, a regular schedule should be maintained during the winter. The season will be more enjoyable and you'll feel better.

To derive the greatest benefit experts point out, exercise at least once a week. Your schedule can be maintained more easily if the activity is inexpensive and convenient. In other words, don't choose skydiving if pennies are important and closest airport is 75 miles away!

Bicycling is a popular choice for these reasons. The leg muscles, the back and shoulders all receive a workout. If you feel hesitant about riding around your town, campus on a bicycle, take comfort: more than 53 million persons own and ride bicycles in the U.S. today.

Bowling also has a big and enthusiastic following. It's relatively inexpensive, and suitable for all ages. The muscles of the arms, shoulders and back get the benefit when you bowl.

Other recreational sports that are convenient, inexpensive and help keep you feeling fit, include roller skating, ice skating, handball and tennis.

Up-Dated Sweatshirt Very 'In'

Once upon a time, there was an item of clothing popular with collegians of both sexes. It was called the sweatshirt, and it was popular because, in spite of the fact that it was rather unattractive, it was very comfortable.

The tense is past, because the sweatshirt is here. In its place there's a new kind of sportshirt. It has all the comfort of its old-fashioned prototype, but is a brand new kind of neat styling and cool looks.

These new shirts are a knitted fleece fabric of Orelan acrylic fibre that won't stretch out of shape, won't shrink out of size, and won't mind even the most ruthless speed laundering techniques.

Styling ranges from the traditional raglan-sleeve crew neck to short-sleeved pullovers that have the same shaped tree bodices as their longer sleeved shirts, and even to authentic, white-bordered Henley models. Most styles are available in his and hers versions.

Miles of Smiles and Fashion for Your Feet

As any parent knows, a child's return to school inevitably means new things to wear. One of the most important of these purchases and the one with the furthest-reaching effect will be his shoes.

It is estimated that the average 7 - year - old takes about 90,000 steps daily.

According to research, it was found that the average person takes approximately 18,100 steps a day. Certainly no other article of wearing apparel is ever subjected to such an unmerciful beating as the shoes which one wears on his feet.

If children and adults alike would take more interest in the care of handling of their footwear, longer and more comfortable wear would result. Proper fit, according to the experts, is the cardinal consideration. Here are 10 others that the company engineers for both you and your children.

1. Don't wear the same shoes every day. Alternate, so that they get an airing and perspiration dries. Rotation also helps preserve shape and gives you greater comfort.

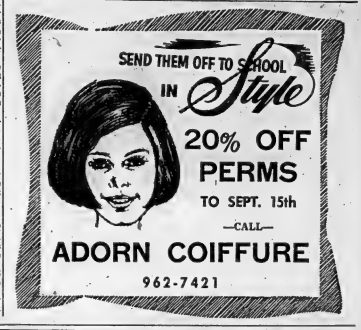
2. To minimize perspiration—one of the biggest threats to foot comfort — feet should be washed and dried thoroughly, especially between the toes.

3. Clean socks or stockings are another daily must. You may also find it beneficial to change shoes twice a day if you walk or stand for long periods or if you have a perspiration problem.

4. Overshoes and rubbers, if too small, may mark the shoe. Have rubbers fitted to shoes similar in size and style to the ones with which they'll be worn.

5. Store shoes where they'll stay dry and in suitable wooden shoe trees.

6. Avoid drying wet shoes near heat or in direct sunlight — it may cause them to stiffen.



7. Regular polishing makes shoes last longer and also helps retain their appearance. Keep shoes clean by wiping them occasionally with a cloth.

8. Maintain shoes in good repair. Be especially prompt about having the heels straightened. Run-over heels will ruin shoe shape and can affect posture adversely.

9. Periodically check the insoles, or sock lining (layer of material on top of innersole). Because this is the surface on which your foot rests, it absorbs a great deal of perspiration. If it shows excessive soiling or deterioration, it is advisable to replace the sock lining.

10. If you or your children have foot trouble, take the precaution of an occasional examination by a qualified doctor.

THE CUSTOM LOOK of handknit sweaters sends youngsters back to school in style. These toppers knit up quickly in big-needle yarns for Fall. The girl's cardigan in all-wool Scandia yarn features a snug hood, and the young he-man pull-over has a rich, raised pattern in Shakespun wool.

Hand-Knits Have Status

School days are sweater days. Ever since the "sloppy Joe" sweater won the school girl's heart in the 1940's, knitted toppers have become the ideal lazy classroom fashion for all ages.

Handknit sweaters score high with the school-age set. Rich pattern and texture are quick-to-knit into a hale and hearty custom-look. A recent survey shows that nearly half of all teen age girls in the country knit, and the fashion they most often choose is the sweater.

Teenagers and mothers who knit for the pre-teens can choose from "grown-up" sweater styles for the new school year. Fall and winter styles designed by a leading mill have plaid cable stitching and the robust texture of big - needle yarns. For young men on campus, the crew and V-neck pull-overs share honors this season with turtle neck cardigans and hefty roll - collared knitted jackets that close with zippers. Tailored cardigans, classic pullovers with easy raglan sleeves and bulky-knit toppers with hoods set the style pace for school girls.

Triangle scarves, wide headbands and ascots are easy-to-knit accessories for school, and the novice can test her skill with needles on one of these fast-to-finish fashions. A special "Learn to Knit" pak by Bernat Pickles needles, yarn and instructions to guide the beginner in knitting a back-to-school fashion accessory.

Careful, Cinderella! Guard Those Feet

Long before there were glass slippers or red shoes in fairy tales, footwear was a mark of fashion and social distinction to all femininity.

But vanity has not always been fair and the feminine foot has been squeezed, pinched, poked and pushed, to name just a few of fashion's prods.

One very important foot-note often overlooked is fit. This is especially important with young people who literally "live in" certain favorite shoes from dawn to dusk.

For those who will heed their advice, experts on feet and footwear have set forth the following guide:

1. Don't marry a size! It's the fit that counts, not the numbers written inside a shoe. So many different lasts are in vogue, that length and width needs vary from style to style. Heel heights can also affect size. Since high heels thrust the foot forward, more length is needed than when the foot is more equitably balanced on a low heel.

2. Buy shoes at end of the day if possible. Feet expand during the day's normal amount of walking, sitting and standing. Hence a shoe that feels comfortable when tried on in a shoe salon in the morning or early afternoon, might feel painfully tight at home that night.

2. Have your feet measured every time you buy shoes to see whether there has been any change in your foot contour. The foot's muscles change, and may broaden or lengthen long after one has technically stopped growing. Since large feet are no longer a social disgrace — with 8½ the average size of high-fashion models today — a woman really need no longer pinch her feet to prove her femininity.

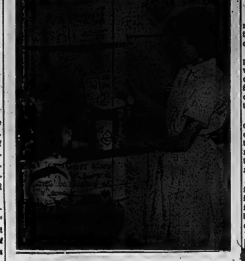
4. Be sure that the salesman gets an accurate take on the heel-to-ball length, as well as heel to toe. This is to make sure that he'll bring out shoes with lasts that place the foot's ball joint — the big bone at the great toe's base — in the shoe's widest part, which is called the "ball-hose."

5. Try the shoes on the left foot first. No two feet are alike and the left is usually a little longer than the right. In addition, since the right shoe is tried on more often in a store, it may be stretched.

College Begins At Age Two...

Thirty years of experience attest to this fact, says Mrs. Isabella P. Buckley, founder of The Buckley Schools, Los Angeles, the nation's only non-profit co-educational private institution ranging from pre-school through high school.

That the school's "no - nonsense approach to education" has met with success is evident in the fact that all members of the past two graduating classes have been accepted for colleges stretching from Harvard to Stanford.



In her recent book, "College Begins at Two" (Whitestone/Morrow), Mrs. Buckley writes, "Formal learning is the primary task of the school and is something that must begin in the very early years.

"It has been my experience that although children have a natural curiosity, they do not necessarily have a natural desire to learn. Desire generally has to be implanted, and the earlier that desire is implanted, the easier will be the acquisition of knowledge in later years."

Unless special physical or emotional problems prove ill, children should be exposed to formal learning from the age of two years, the educator believes. Montessori schools should not shelter preschool age children from reality, but its implications should be interpreted with kindness and understanding.

The philosophy that "college begins at two" is predicated on the premise that the instinct to learn, which also must be encouraged, is first satisfied through play — play that is designed to stimulate the imagination.

For the youngest children — from two to three-and-one-half — the ideal curriculum, Mrs. Buckley believes, includes art, dancing, music, French, story time, free play-and games. They also learn another thing their first day in school: How to shake hands and look you in the eye.

SWEET AS MAY . . . When the lunchbox and all its trappings are washed in a baking soda solution, daily odors left over from today's lunch can't creep into tomorrow's. Youngsters can take over this minor chore regularly and give Mother a break.

Chase Lunch-Box Doldrums!

You can never be sure of how much of the school lunch box meal is actually "tucked away" where it's intended. A great deal depends on you. Pack the same fare day in and day out so that the small fry always knows what to expect, and boredom is apt to set in and part of the food gets left or given away. Surprise and variety are your best allies.

Mix colored jelly beans in with applesauce for a dessert surprise done up in a plastic container. A candied apple, a lollipop or a couple of pieces of chocolate are little extras that will appeal to the schoolhound.

The cleanliness of the lunch-box and all its trappings is another factor that often affects appetites. Closed all day, it tends to collect a musty odor which is sure to transmitted to tomorrow's lunch, for food absorbs odors.

The same is true of the vacuum bottle. Just rinsing it out isn't enough. Corked after it's emptied, it turns sour, and tomorrow's beverage won't taste as it should.

Adopt the habit of sponging out the lunchbox with a baking soda solution, for soda is the household's leading sweetener. Or you can relegate the job to the oldest school goer if she's reached a responsible age. After a soap and water washing, rinse out containers used for desserts or salad first with a soda solution and then with fresh water. Fill the vacuum bottle with water, add two tablespoons of baking soda and let sit for a while. Rinse with fresh water and leave the bottle open until it's ready to be refilled. The cork or stopper is also an odor collector, so be sure to rub it with a little dry soda to make sure it's clean and sweet.

EUROPE NEEDS POWER

European members of the Organization for Economic Co-operation and Development account for 60 per cent of the energy used in the world.

Pen-Marker in 8 Colors

Schoolwork will seem a lot more colorful with a new pen that doubles as a marker and comes in eight ink colors.

Students will find the new pen handy in the classroom as well as around the house because it writes on so many different surfaces, including glass, cloth, leather, wood, and plastic.

For taking notes, editing, or copying material the pen manoeuvers and writes like a conventional ink type. Apply a little more pressure, however, and the fibre point tip becomes a marker.

Underlining in color with a fibre-point pen makes the more important sentences stand out from the page for easy review before examination time. The different colored inks are handy for marking maps, labelling bottles in the chemistry lab, or identifying school supplies and sporting equipment.

Aspiring young artists and architects can use the new pen for sketches and ink drawings. Unlike an ordinary pen tip, the fibre point allows for flourishing strokes and fancy curlicues.

The colors are black, blue, red, brown, orange, green, yellow, and violet.

PHOTOGRAPH HAZARDS

DARTMOUTH, N.S. (CP) — Aerial photography has been used to help ensure the safety of water skiers in the area. The Silver Spray water ski club had its skiing zones on lakes Brook and Micmac photographed to plot all shoals, rocks and danger areas.

More Books Means More Bookshelves... Build'em Yourself!

A new school year means more books — and probably more bookshelves.

Every semester students accumulate additional school books and supplies. Sufficient and appropriate storage space for them can present a problem as the family grows — and grows up.

Today, it isn't a matter of pencils, notebooks and slim readers. Modern students are likely to need thick reference books, giant atlases, drawing pads and large portfolios. For science classes, they may require microscopes as well as magnifying glasses.

A convenient and practical way to provide plenty of shelves and storage space is to build them yourself with sturdy, easy-to-work hardboard.

If the students in your house have a study corner, you can install perforated hardboard paneling. Brackets fitted into the perforations hold shelves of different heights and depths or Jumbo-sized texts. With hooks attached, the panels also hold an assortment of sports items, clothes and favorite mementoes. Or, they can be used as a bulletin board for notes, class schedules, maps and photos. Nothing gets lost, and the corner stays neat.

Wood - grained hardboard which is tempered for strength supports bracketed shelves with ease. It is also extremely attractive and takes hard wear without denting, scratching or scuffing. Those with a plastic finish can be sponged clean.

An especially attractive and practical idea is to combine or alternate perforated and wood-grained panels, or to use the perforated style on the upper half of the wall and the wood-grained below as wainscoting.

Both types come in light-weight 4 by 8 - foot panels that can be worked with ordinary handyman's tools. Standard shelf sizes are also available. The panels are easily nailed to an existing wall surface, or applied with a special adhesive. Brackets, books, and prefinished molding and trim that match the panels are available at local lumber dealers.

Swinging Coats and Suits Go-Go to School

ON A CO-ED'S WAVE LENGTH . . . bright, new coat of wool gabardine, revealing mirrored neckline that takes to sleeves of fur. In leading fall color, plus lavender, chemois, alabaster, blue green, brown, pink.

Coats and suits, snug, warmest, most comfortable fashions are now at last enough to be truly in with the campus set.

American designers continuously survey the college scene for straws in the wind. Our booming young population have become fashion leaders for all age groups. The "with it" looks are the London Carnaby, the Naval, the Combat, the Western, the Total Costume, according to the U.S. National Board of the Coat and Suit Industry.

Pea coats are nautical and nice. The ¾ length makes a breezy topper. Slightly shorter, they combine with pleated or slim skirts for sally suits, jack tar collars, side entry pockets and other trappings rate a salute.

The combat look, often in olive drab, marches along. Lookplaced belts and spanking are features. Often matching slacks make a triple threat suit.

Skimmer shapes lead, but "Pup Tents" are coming into the swing. For topping suits, sweaters, and other campus bundling, they're great.

Lengths go higher and thigher. How else would a co-ed show off white or wildly striped stockings? And, speaking of accessories (the peaked caps, the chunky jewelry, the pierced earrings, the boots) what better background for them than the coat and suit.

Fabrics — smooth but wild. Fun-for fabrics, campus hits for coats, now suits the co-ed. Shining spotted seal fabric combines with suede-cloth or tweed — and a sweater totals the look.

Other fabrics are corduroys, menons, chinchillas, flannels, and of course, Oppy vinyls — shiny and brave.

Tattersall and window-pane checks go mad and mod — so do geometrics. Tweeds, on the other hand, go soft.

Colors — zingy! Fashion pulls out a plum — the big color. After that, pinks, purples, verdees, curry. Blues — sky to midnight. Greens — brilliant to forest. Espresso brown and taupes. Off whites.

"Practical" lead to be the word for back-to-school coats and suits. They're still that — but they certainly have "the knack" for "with it" fashion.

School Bus Safety Tips

As the nation's students return to school, it is important that every young school boy/girl realizes he must be responsible for his own safety and that of others on the bus.

According to "Safety on Our School Bus," a film produced for classroom use, youngsters should be taught these good safety practices:

—Line up in an orderly manner and board the bus in single file; fill back seats first;

— Be sure aisles are clear so nobody will stumble;

— Stay in your seat while the bus is moving;

— Don't put anything (including your head or hands) out of the window;

— Don't play with the emergency door;

— Don't talk to the driver while the bus is moving;

— Ride quietly without scuffling or horseplay.

The film illustrates each of these rules by picturing and reenacting the story of a popular bus driver and his riders who have maintained an excellent safety record.

It also depicts the proper way to get off a bus and to cross a street.

Tasty, Easy-to-Fix

Once the children are back in school, Mother quickly adjusts to making lunch only for herself. And then Saturday rolls around, with everyone — including Dad — on hand for the noon meal, appetites aroused after a morning of "fun days" activities.

It makes sense for Mother, therefore, to plan a quickie lunch, requiring a minimum of effort. The good news is a no that promises to do just that. Another plus feature: the use of disposable paper service, eliminating after-lunch kp duty.

The new molded-type paper bowl and plate are matched in design, and the cold drink cup is color-coordinated in a solid. Of course, there are so many designs and patterns available today that Saturday can truly be "pick - a - theme" oriented when it comes to table settings with paper service.

If the dishes get more attention than the children, you're running the risk of being more housekeeper than mother.

The all-important thing to remember, though, is this: keep Saturday lunch fun and carefree. It doesn't matter how long the family takes to enjoy the good eating so long as it's a "quickie" for Mother to prepare and clean up.

A DORM PARTY IS SPECIAL . . . The pretty co-ed in this modern dormitory room uses her desk as a party pantry. She's heating cheese rarebit to serve friends on brightly-patterned, ceramic dinnerware. A perfect choice for college treats, it is colorful, light to pack and highly durable.

Study Havens Can Develop Entertaining Ways, Too

Very soon, on campuses everywhere, smart co-eds will be "at home" in their cubbies in thumb tacks and tape, converting their dormitory rooms into lively "cells" for studying — and entertaining.

They may be privileged upperclassmen in brand - new rooms furnished with compact efficiency units where clean-lined, floor-covering walnut units of hideaway bed, closet, desk and shelves contribute both space and tidiness to a small dorm room.

Or, they may be lowly freshmen discovering the delights of living in dwellings "rich with tradition" — campus lingo for quaint, inherited furnishings.

It matters not. Up go the pennants, the bright-flowered draperies and photos of friends, out come the coffee pots, mugs and saucepans.

For despite the heavier - than - ever college study load, one thing is certain. Even today's hard-driving students will find time to "take ten" for a social clatch in somebody else's room.

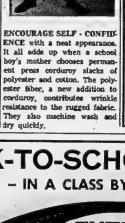
Develop Children's Fashion-Wise I. Q.

How do the junior members of your family rate on the fashion I.Q. scale? Give them a test and you'll probably learn that they have a genius score! Children have a natural affinity for fashion. Encouraging them to develop this innate style sense can save a busy mother wear and tear, hours at the ironing board and frazzled nerves. Furthermore, she'll give the pencil box and jump rope set confidence by teaching them the ABC's of good grooming and young chic. All it takes is a drop of psychology and a dollop of imagination. Here are some how-to tips:



— Put good grooming aids in the children's rooms. A little girl will be delighted with a hair ribbon rack, a closet rack that's just her height, her own clothes brush, a fashion bulletin board to post pictures of her favorite styles, a bubble bath set. For a boy, a grown-up bed and tie rack, a clothes hanger, hamper, "valet" chair and shoe shining kit will go a long way toward encouraging him to be neat . . .

— When selecting children's clothes, keep an eye out for fabrics with the "magic" touch that children love and busy mothers demand — denims, synthetics and plaids. They offer that special stamina and play-care freedom. Look for clothes that are ready-treated with stain repellent finishes to defy spills and stains. When milk — or any other liquids — even oily ones — spill on a fabric treated with repeller, it will bead up on the surface and can be blotted away in an instant. Also, this fall for the first time it is available in a do-it-yourself spray can so that the housewife can apply it herself to washable or dry-cleanable fabrics — dresses, slacks, snow-suits, raincoats — and hundreds of other items.

Other "magic" helpers to watch for: wrinkle proof fibres, the new permanent press features that keep Junior's pants crisply-creased and Susie's pleated! Don't forget to tell the children about the "magic" finishes — they'll be as delighted with their care-free clothes as you are.

— Keep color in mind when buying children's clothes. Coordination is the keynote of any smart and well-kept wardrobe. Sometimes there's a tendency to buy appealing clothes for children that don't match. Bright colors are children's favorites. Why not let your child pick his favorite color and plan a school wardrobe around it? Children are likely to treat things that they select with loving care.

—Encourage children to keep drawers neat and clothes accessible by making labels a part of dresser decoration. Paint child's dresser a bright color. On the outside, label with block lettering: Socks, Pajamas, Slips, Gloves. Or let children cut letters out of magazines and shelter on. Make the bottom drawer a child's private property with the label: "Secret Treasures."

ENCOURAGE SELF - CONFIDENCE with a neat appearance. It all adds up when a school boy's mother chooses permanent press corduroy slacks of polyester and cotton. The polyester fiber, a new addition to corduroy, contributes wrinkle resistance to the rugged fabric. They also machine wash and dry quickly.

Tailgating May Be More Serious Highway Hazard Than Speeding Researchers Report

By BOB MacKENZIE

OTTAWA (CP)—Is there too much emphasis on speed in highway safety promotion?

A National Research Council study group on motor vehicle accidents says speed limits and their obvious enforcement help reduce accident rates, but other, more effective measures may be overlooked due to over-emphasis on speeding.

Failure to maintain sufficient distance between vehicles may be a far more serious hazard than speeding, the five - man group suggests in its first series of reports examining results of accident research in North America and Europe.

The reports say statistics now compiled often are misleading because of omissions and narrow scope, and additional research is needed before drawing definite conclusions.

But, "it was determined that short headway, or zero following distance between vehicles was one factor that correlated positively with accidents, while speed did not."

TAILGATERS UNAFFECTED

Obvious enforcement of traffic regulations—frequent patrols by marked cars, for example—slows speeding drivers, the report continues, but it has little effect on drivers who follow other vehicles too closely.

"It does suggest that following too closely, particularly at high speed, is perhaps the element for which our traffic police should be on the lookout."

Environment and the vehicle itself play prominent, although not as obvious, roles in accident frequency and degree of injury, the reports add.

Limited - access, multi - lane highways have the number of fatal accidents per vehicle mile as compared with undivided, two lane highways. Less spectacular but still appreciable reductions result from removal of physical obstructions such as trees, posts and bridge abutments.

Special road surfaces for areas known to be slippery in wet weather, and improved communication devices such as traffic signals, also are suggested. A computer - operated traffic light system in downtown Toronto not only speeded traffic but reduced the number of accidents at the same time, the reports note.

CHECK AID 'LIMITED'

While mechanical defects in vehicles have been cited as the cause of about 10 per cent of all accidents, periodic safety checks and improved standards help only to a limited extent, the reports say.

Packaging the occupants in the vehicle to reduce severity of injuries when accidents occur, the car is one area where there is room for improvement, the studies say.

Introduction of lap belts and improved door locks have reduced injuries due to occupants being thrown from vehicles, but little has been done to reduce by designing steering wheels and instrument panels to reduce injuries to persons who remain inside the vehicle.

Effective use of the shoulder harness—the report says it is much more effective than the lap belt—has been hampered by inadequate seat and seat attachment strength.

A section dealing with seating arrangement of passengers says there are several advantages to having passengers face the rear of the vehicle. It also would cause difficulties for front-seat passengers, particularly in restricting the driver's vision.

TV HIGHLITES FOR WEDNESDAY AUG 31

● This week's instalment of CBC's "Home Movies" encompasses the field of animation in Canadian film-making. Most of the work in animated films has been done by the National Film Board, which has won a number of awards for their short subjects. The second larger producer of animated films in Canada is the CBC, also award-winners on a number of occasions—as evidenced 11 and 12, beginning at 8.30.

● Belgium has two official languages. For the most part its inhabitants speak either one language or the other, but not both, and there is widespread opposition in the country to the idea of bilingualism. The importance of this situation to that of Canada, will be outlined on "What Went Wrong With Belgium", one of a series of "Eight Stories Inside Quebec", seen at 10.30 on channels 11 and 12.

Producers and Directors Begin to Get Type-Cast

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—When it filmed, the adventurous selection was set down in the Old West. On a set decorated with wigwams and Hollywood Indians, star James Darren was on his knees, begging an old Indian to send his braves on the warpath.

It was Chief Sitting Bull, and Darren was trying to head off the massacre of General Custer's troops at the Little Big Horn.

One problem of the show, at least for the writers, is the fact that the scientists cannot compete with history. The Titanic must still hit the iceberg; Custer's men and the Indians must still fight it out.

Few People Aware of Change In Highway Traffic Act

NAPANEE — William Schell, a Napanee businessman whose home is in Deseronto, is disturbed because so few people seem to be aware that a change has been made in the Highway Traffic Act with respect to traffic passing school buses.

For years it has been necessary for any vehicle to stop when it comes up behind a school bus which is not in motion. It has been illegal to pass a standing school bus from the rear. As of September 1, it will be illegal to pass a standing school bus with red signal lights flashing when coming toward it in any direction, front, rear, or side.

Mr. Schell, who is in on the transportation committee of the Napanee and District Collegiate Institute Board, is afraid there will be a lot of rear-end collisions. A vehicle may stop in obedience to the new enactment, but the driver behind him may not be aware of it and may not stop in time to avoid a collision. He feels that there has not been enough publicity, and that the time is too short.

Mr. Schell would like to see the story given attention by the newspapers over the weekend, with headlines that would attract attention. Also, he feels that there should be publicity on both radio and television.

When asked how the OPP could help, Sergeant Laughton said they could do very little except draw attention to the new enactment in their weekly news release. "It is our business to enforce the law, and not to teach the law. We are in sympathy with more publicity, but can do nothing officially", he said.

Public School Inspector Paul Anderson said that all the bus drivers had been informed of the new enactment, but that further publicity directed to the public was a matter for the Department of Transport to look after.

Napanee Personals

NAPANEE — Public School Inspector Paul Anderson, Mrs. Anderson and their four children moved Monday into their new home on Simcoe Street. Mrs. Anderson and the children have been spending the summer at the family cottage on Georgian Bay, returning Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Asselstine and Kimberley arrived Monday to visit Mr. Asselstine's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Bert Asselstine of Robinson St. They were accompanied by Mrs. Asselstine's mother, Mrs. Arthur Andrews of Belleau, Ireland, who has been visiting them for nearly three months. She will leave Montreal Wednesday to return home by ship. Mr. Andrews, who had been time to spare, also visited his daughter and her family, travelling by plane. Neither of the parents had visited the old countryside of Ireland.

Mr. and Mrs. R. S. Cummins and family, who had been visiting Mrs. Cummins's mother, Mrs. Gladys Sherman of the Hay Bay district for two weeks, have returned to Winnipeg. While here all visited Mrs. Sherman's sister, Mrs. Dwight Elliott of Sherman's Point and attended the wedding of Miss Gerward Smith and his wife Mary family of Rochester spent their holidays at Quinte View cabins in Prince Edward, visiting Mr. Smith's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Smith of South Centre St. several times by other than the bridge is not yet completed. They were overnight guests there last week before starting for Ottawa to visit Mr. Smith's sister, Mrs. Ray Stevens of Ottawa.

Guests of Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Cuthill of the Deseronto Road have been Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Stapley of Ottawa for the weekend; their daughter Nancy of Toronto who came home to enter the County Hospital Sunday for observation, and their daughter, Mrs. Merrill McPhail, her husband and daughter Michelle of Richmond Hill who arrived Sunday to visit a few days.

M. P. Graham, clerk-treasurer of Napanee for many years and now an invalid, was transferred this week from Hillcrest Lodge, Napanee to St.-Mary's-of-the-Lake Hospital, Kingston.

Beatles Collect $146,000 For 10 Songs in 27 Minutes

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The Beatles have come and gone, collecting $146,000 for mouthing 10 songs in 27 minutes.

By way of social commentary, the pay of the four young English singers exceeded the combined annual salaries of the president and vice-president of the United States.

To the adult, a Beatle concert must be viewed as a social phenomenon, since it is impossible to enjoy as entertainment. Even those with a falling for some of the Beatle songs can find little pleasure because of inaudibility.

The Thomas group made its third annual pilgrimage to hear the Beatles. Nancy, 18 and pretty for college, showed no disenchantment for the mop-tops. Janet, 14, was in the full throes of fandom. She had been to a new entry and not lacking in enthusiasm.

APPROPRIATE SETTING

This year the concert was in Dodger Stadium instead of Hollywood Bowl, and it seemed the latter would be more suited to take place in a sports arena rather than a cathedral of longhair. The other kind of cathedral, Dodger Stadium looked somewhat like the Garden border.

Burly guards stood at the bottom and midway of each stairway. Ushers in white Uniformed policemen with helmets and billyclubs lined the field. Not to be seen communicating with walkie - talkies. Behind them were three rows of hurdles and a newly-erected wire fence.

Preliminary acts poured a torrent of noise through the public address system while the 40,000 onlookers grew restless and stared at each other. There was much to stare at. One bearded chap on my aisle wore the headdress and robes of an Arab sheik; another sported a green velvet cape.

SHE'S A HE

The girl next to me with the orange page-boy bob turned her head and I discovered she was a fellow.

At 8:25 the Beatles came out of the dugout at third base and it was noisy. Oh, was it noisy. Signs began to unfurl all over the grandstand.

The guards at the bottom of the aisles eyed the masses uneasily. There was a charge of excitement in the crowd as a handful of teen-agers leaped out of their benches and raced toward the barrier at the field base.

Police quickly captured the invaders and led them off in handcuffs as the onlookers booed. Later, an officer on my aisle told was hit in his rear by an orange buried from the upper deck. The crowd cheered.

Review by the Thomas girls:

"They didn't sing enough new songs . . . George's hair was a mess . . . Paul was the only one who tried to please . . . They seemed bored . . . but they're the greatest. They're cool . . . . I love the Beatles."

Pinch Hitting

By GARRY ALEXANDER
Staff Sportswriter

Midget hockey, as anyone who attends the annual Trenton tournament will tell you, is likely the fastest and most exciting class of minor play in the province.

Thus, the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association's midget championships, being held in Kingston next East-er Week in connection with the Canadian Centennial Celebration, should be a dandy.

Aside from the fact that the tournament is being held only 50 miles from Belleville, there is extra interest here since our fair city hopes to have a team in the tournament.

But it will take a lot of winning hockey to get there.

Belleville has been placed in the Eastern Zone's "E" grouping, with Kingston, Napanee and Picton. Lou Jeffries, of Gananoque, is convenor. He established Sunday dates for the fall, with a group meeting in Napanee. The group must have a winner by November 21.

Games in the group will start around October 28 and each club will play a home and home series against each of the other three entries.

Tentative home dates for Belleville are November 5, 13 and 19.

Imports are being allowed, according to constitution of the Kingston town. Other details concerning this were outlined in an earlier sports story, once by these pages. It adds up to Belleville being permitted four imports providing the calibre of the player is such which they may draw do not boost this city into a higher population category. Belleville is in the 30,000 to 40,000 population bracket.

Any boy from outside Belleville, who has his coach and parents' written permission and who feels he has a good chance to play here, should apply in writing to team manager Fred Jones, at R.R. 4, Elmwood Drive, Belleville. Included in the reply should be the boys' hockey background, his height, weight and his playing position.

Age-wise, players must be in the 14 to 16 bracket.

Much is yet to be confirmed but plans call for neutral referees to be used for all games. Games will be in close by regulation as time permits, with a minimum of one stop and two straight time periods, and if necessary, three ten minutes overtime periods.

There are four groups in the Eastern Zone. As well as the "E" group, there is Peterborough, Marmora, Millbrook and Brighton in group "A", Whitby, Oshawa, Bowmanville and Little Britain in group "C" and Barrie, Orillia, Hoskins, Aurora and Woodbridge in group "D".

The Ontario Minor Association must declare its champion in a playoff which will be held in Walkerton during Christmas week. However, before this the Eastern Zone must name its own champion from among the four groups.

There are also four Western Zone groups, including teams from Brantford, Brampton, Galt, Guelph, Georgetown, Niagara Falls, St. Catharines, Grimsby, Thorold, Exeter, Wingham, Forest, Chatham, Riverside and Sarnia. They too must have a winner to compete in the special O.H.A. playoff at Walkerton. Other teams there will be winners from the Toronto Hockey League and the Northern Ontario Hockey Association.

Back with the Belleville team for a moment, manager Jones says that a sponsor has been secured, that a three-man special committee is being formed to select players for the team and that a physical education teacher is being approached to help train the boys.

Approximately 30 boys will be invited to the training camp and due to the short time available for training, it will be run on a very strict basis.

It sounds like a good winter for district midget players with a bit of talent and the willingness to work to produce a good team.

Minor Baseball Results

Tip Tops ousted IBEW by an 11-8 score, and Sine Shell eliminated Jaycees 7-5 in E.M.B.A. playoff games play last night. The two winners open a series at Park Dale Thursday.

In tyke action, DeMilles topped Beller's Little Giants 10-4 to deadlock their series 1-1.

Tip Tops overcame a 5-3 deficit with six runs in the fourth while Sine Shell had to come from behind a 5-0 deficit, with six in the fourth, to snatch their decision.

Wayne Andrews and Austin Wilson pitched a two-hitter for the winners. Mike Burley took the loss. Andrews slapped a triple and Wilson connected for two singles to spark the Tip Top hitters. Dean Lang and Pete Wager each supplied a single. Allan Wood collected both hits for IBEW.

Sine Shell pitchers Gary Edwards and Rick Meagher held Jaycees to three hits in their 7-5 win. Losing pitcher Greg Duffy surrendered five safeties.

Edwards sparked the win-ners at the plate with a home run and a single while David Wood smashed a homer. Barry Culkin tripled and Michael Smith singled.

The Sine Shell squad fell behind 5-0 in the third inning but bounced back with six in the fourth and added another in the fifth.

DeMille's struck for five runs in the third in the win over the Little Giants. Tom Coughlin and Andy Ricketts teamed to pitch the win. Robin Gest and Jed Forster pitched for Giants.

Mike Yott, Steve Kirby and David Rutherford each hit safely twice for the winners. Checking in with one each were Andy Ricketts, Pete Crawford and Bill Hickman. Stu Hilvers tripled for the losers with singles for Cliff Raab, Joe Kirby Dalnard and Jed Forster.

Leafs Climb To Top

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Baseball's Toronto Maple Leafs are in the International League lead today for the first time this season, thanks to the consistent play of Tony Horton, Fergie Smith and Ed Rakow.

Horton played a major role as Leafs vaulted into the lead Saturday night by hitting his 24th home run of the season and Toronto walloped Syracuse Chiefs 4-2.

And Smith hit his 16th and 17th home runs as the Leafs took a one-half game lead behind Rakow's fourth consecutive victory. It was Rakow's 10th victory of the year.

SHUT OUT HENS

Elsewhere, Richmond Braves shut out Toledo Mud Hens 5-0, Buffalo Bisons defeated Rochester Red Wings 8-5 and Columbus Jets created a two-way tie for second place with Rochester by edging Jacksonville Suns 2-1.

The Bisons rode to victory behind four straight hits by Steve Boros. Boros also included a homer and a triple.

Dan Schneider gave up one hit in the first seven innings for Richmond. Chi Chi Olivo preserved the victory after Schneider allowed two Toledo players to reach base in the eighth inning.

Jack Damsaka drove in the first Columbus run and Jose Martinez won it in the seventh with a run-scoring double.

Defence Sparkles ★★★★★ Five Interceptions ★★★★★

Ottawa Blanks Winless Argos 24-0

By BOB MacKENZIE

OTTAWA (CP) — Ottawa Rough Riders started the Eastern Football Conference season with high hopes based mainly on an explosive offence. They are undefeated and in first place, but a defence that has allowed only 17 points in four games is the main reason.

The pass defence — a weak point last season—made five interceptions Tuesday night and played the key role in a 24-0 victory over the winless Toronto Argonauts.

The Argos, deep in Ottawa territory five times, tried to score on passes three times but all three throws by rookie quarterback Wally Gabler were picked off in the end zone.

The Argos also tried two field goals, but one was blocked and the other was wide. Both came after players on both teams thought the kick was good.

The Riders' offence didn't really get going until the fourth quarter, and even then it was the defence that provided the spark, intercepting four passes to set up the two touchdowns that put the game out of reach.

Ottawa quarterback Russ Jackson had an unhappy evening with only 10 completions for 141 yards on 22 attempts. But two were for touchdowns and he turned in a strong running game, leading his club in rushing with 38 yards on 8 carries.

TWO PASSES SCORE

Jackson hit fullback Whit Tucker with a diamond scoring pass in the second quarter, then halfback Bo Scott opened for a six-yard touchdown toss in the fourth period. Fullback Jim Dillard got the other Ottawa touchdown on a one-yard plunge.

Tackle Moe Racine accounted for the other six points with a 47-yard field goal, two converts and a single when his field goal attempt from 27 yards out was wide.

Ottawa had an 11-0 half-time lead but the Argos came back strongly in the third quarter and looked as if they might be able to pull an upset.

Gabler started one drive from the Toronto 23 but the Argos lost the ball when Bobby Taylor fumbled on the Ottawa 38.

Toronto got the ball back three plays later but Ottawa moved them from their own eight to the Ottawa 21 early in the fourth quarter on a mixture of short passes and running plays.

But a second - down pass was picked off by Ottawa halfback Bob O'Billovich. Gabler went to the air almost every down but had the ball for the remainder of the game and the Riders made three more interceptions in the final quarter.

Halfback Joe Poirier stole two of Gabler's passes, one in the first quarter and the other in the final period. Halfback Billy Cline and linebacker Ken Lehman also picked off Gabler passes in the fourth quarter.

"The interceptions killed us," Toronto coach Bob Shaw said after the game, but he gave no indication he intends to bench his rookie quarterback and pick veteran Eagle Day who was released last Saturday by Calgary Stampeders of the Western Conference because "they just weren't all his fault."

Despite the score, the statistics were fairly close. Gabler completed 12 of 28 passes to give Toronto a 153-141 edge in passing yardage.

Jackson's running and Scott's 39 yards in 10 trips gave Ottawa a 128-103 edge in rushing. Halfback Ray Jones, playing his first game for Argos, got 64 yards in seven carries while Gabler ran 10 times for 46 yards.

The win leaves Ottawa in excellent position for their first game against the Tiger Cats in Hamilton next weekend. With four straight wins and a two-point lead, the worst the Riders can come out of Hamilton is in a first - place tie with the defending Grey Cup champions.

The Argos' future has a different color. They go into their next game against Calgary Stampeders. To make the playoffs, Argos will have to provide Montreal Alouettes and the Als already have won two of their first four starts.

Series Opener

Petes Blank Juniors 4-0

By DOUG WALSH

Peterborough Healing used hustle, timely hitting, flawless fielding and a sound pitching effort by Jim Bell to post a 4-0 OASA Junior "A" playoff win over Belleville Ellis last night at Alemite Park.

Five Belleville errors also proved beneficial to the visitors. Second game in the best of three series is scheduled for Thursday night at 8:15 at Peterborough Petes.

Bell stopped the home team on a solid five-hitter. Given a 1-0 lead before he threw a pitch, the young right-hander made it stand up and was working on a one-hitter in the sixth inning. Four of the losers' hits were of the infield variety and the fifth was recorded when the ball just got by the outstretched glove of the second baseman and rolled into right field for a single.

While Bell was taking the sting out of the Belleville attack, his mates got to left-hander Bob Ehler for eight base hits. The winners' safeties were well spaced but most of them came at the right time. After opening up a 1-0 lead in their first trip to the plate, the visitors were held scoreless until the sixth when they added another run. They continued to produce with single runs in each of the seventh and eighth innings.

The first man to the plate came around to score on one. Randy Reid opened with a double, moved to third on Gary McKevech's fielder's choice and scored after the catch on Gary Holbrook's hi-hat down the right field line in left territory.

Hits by Don Hodson and Grant Paggett, and a Belleville miscue gave Peterborough its second run in the sixth. Two more errors and McEwen's double did the trick in the seventh and in the eighth, Bill Watkins plastered Hodson with a two - out double.

The home side threatened in the seventh. With one out, Don Gardiner and Terry Wellsley beat out fielder's choice and a single to the infield cut the rally short.

While spinning his five-hitter, Bell struck out 10, walked two and hit one batter. His mates backed him with errorless support afield. Ehler, touched for eight hits, recorded 14 strikeouts. He walked none and hit two batters.

Paggett and McEwen each banged a double and a single for the winners, Reid, Mickey Redmond, Hodson and Watkins had the losers. Belleville, which was Bob Moon with two singles leading the way, Wayne Woods, Wellsley and Gardiner had one each.

Belleville's Moon was ejected from the game in the bottom of the eighth.

PETERBOROUGH: Reid 3b, McEwen 3b, If, Holbrook cf, Redmond c, Hodson lb, Paggett rf, Bell p, Watkins lf, Joiner 2b, and Hodson ss.

Fourth Straight Loss

Tigers Stretch Orioles' String

By MURRAY CHASS
Associated Press Sports Writer

Earl Wilson is discovering that a simple wind-up is better than so exaggerated one, or once at all.

The 30-year-old right-hander gained his seventh straight victory and 16th over-all Tuesday night as Detroit Tigers edged Baltimore 5-4, handing the American League - leading Orioles their fourth straight defeat.

When Wilson left Boston Red Sox for Detroit June 13, he took with him a 5-5 record and a 3.83 earned run average. Since then he's compiled an 11-4 mark and a 2.90 era.

Said Tiger vice - president Rick Ferrell:

"I remember seeing him several years ago when he had the big leg kick and the exaggerated windup. He couldn't get near the plate. Then he went into the no-windup stance . . . Guys who go for the no-windup invariably come up with a bad arm.

"Wilson now has a simple windup, and he's throwing strikes."

In other American League games, Kansas City Athletics defeated New York Yankees 4-1, Minnesota Twins trimmed Washington Senators 3-1, Cleveland Indians downed Chicago Cubs 6-2 and Boston Red Sox edged California Angels 7-6.

For his latest victory, Wilson needed ninth - inning relief help from Orlando Pena, who put down a bases - loaded threat. The Tigers' however, had built a lead on homers by Jim Northrup, Al Kaline and Norm Cash. Brooks and Frank Robinson connected for Baltimore.

Kansas City's John Odom pitched a one - hitter, allowing New York only a first inning double by Rober Maris. Jim Gosger drove in two runs for the Athletics with a fifth-inning single one of 11 hits off Mel Stottlemyre, now 11-16.

Jimmie Hall rapped a two-run single in the sixth inning that proved decisive for Minnesota. Jim Merritt held Washington to five hits, one of them Fred Valentine's seventh-inning homer.

Max Alvis propelled Cleveland to its victory over Chicago, slamming a two - run homer in the second. Larry Brown added a two-run single in the Cleveland fourth.

Boston erupted for five runs in the sixth inning, wiping out California's 6-2 lead. Carl Yastrzemski, who singled home a first - inning run, put the Red Sox ahead 7-6 with a two-run homer. Paul Schaal and Jose Cardenal homered for the Angels.

CHANGE RULES

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — The Augusta National Golf Club announced Tuesday it is cutting down the number of amateurs invited to the Masters tournament. Under the new rules, the club said, amateurs invited will include eight from the U.S. amateur tournament, the winner of the British amateur, and members of the U.S. world amateur and Walker Cup teams.

Mets Clip Dodgers; Bucs, Giants Win

Champs Two Back

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Until Tuesday night, ace left-hander Sandy Koufax had lost only one game to New York Mets.

That was last season when pitcher Tug McGraw beat the Los Angeles Dodgers in a pitching duel with Koufax.

Things looked a lot different after the first inning of a Koufax-McGraw return match Tuesday night. The Dodgers held a 3-0 edge in their National League encounter and Koufax appeared well on his way to revenge.

But Bob Friend took over for McGraw in the second inning and held Los Angeles to four hits over the remainder of the game, while the Mets exploded with a five-run rally off Koufax in the third inning and went on to a 10-4 victory.

Elsewhere, San Francisco Giants blasted Philadelphia Phillies 7-1, Pittsburgh Pirates defeated Houston Astros 8-2, Cincinnati Reds beat St. Louis Cardinals 6-4, and Chicago Cubs edged Atlanta Braves 5-3.

The host Dodgers-Mets doubleheader BREAKS UP CONTEST

Jim Hart blasted a three-run homer in the eighth inning that broke up the San Francisco-Philadelphia contest and powered the Giants to victory.

Willie Stargell's bases-loaded single drove in two runs in a five-run fourth inning for Pittsburgh as the Pirates kept pace with the Giants. Roberto Clemente drove in his 90th run of the season, a personal high. The defeat snapped Houston's winning streak at six games.

The Mets got to Koufax for five runs in the third inning. Koufax, now 22-8, walked three men in the second inning and forced in a run. Jerry Grote doubled in a pair for the Mets in the third.

Cincinnati extended its winning streak to seven games as Pete Rose hit two home runs and Deron Johnson hit his third in two days and 20th of the season.

Ernie Banks provided the Cub muscle with a three-run homer in the third inning. Hank Aaron spoiled Ken Holtzman's shutout bid with a three-run homer in the seventh. It was his 36th of the season and pushed his RBI total to 101, marking the eighth season Aaron has driven in 100 or more runs.

Rangers Get Good News On Players

NEW YORK (AP) — New York Rangers received good news in the progress reports Tuesday of their injured star forwards, Rod Gilbert and Jean Ratelle.

Each underwent x-ray examinations in hospital to determine the extent of their recovery from spinal surgery. Gilbert was operated on last Feb. 1 and Ratelle on April 26.

Gilbert was told he could resume skating immediately and will report to the training camp of the National Hockey League team in Kingston Sept. 19. Ratelle is expected to resume skating Nov. 1 and start play in mid-December. The season opens Oct. 18.

Gilbert was the Rangers' leading scorer with 25 goals two years ago. Ratelle had 21 goals last season.

Will Draw Picton Players

City Juniors Now 'Quinte McFarlands'

By GARRY ALEXANDER
(Staff Sportswriter)

Belleville's entry in the OHA Eastern Junior "B" League this winter will have a totally new look.

It will be known as The Quinte McFarlands.

The club will play half of its home games in Picton.

Picton Mayor H. J. McFarland, financial backer of Belleville's Allan Cup and world championship senior club of a few years back and later of a Junior "B" team in this city, will be president of the Quinte McFarlands.

Picton will not have a Junior "C" entry this year and thus that town's players will be available to Belleville.

Members of last year's Picton and Belleville Junior teams' executives will serve on the Quinte McFarlands' executive.

Jim Matthews and Tom "Red" Mavety of this city, and Chris Lockyer, of Picton, represented the club at a combined OHA Junior "B", "C", and "D" meeting here last night.

The delegation's announcement startled some of the other clubs' representatives but OHA 1st. vice-president, Jack Devine, explained that "nothing illegal was being done in what actually amounts to the combining of the two clubs."

He pointed out that since the team is entering the OHA from Belleville, and since Picton will not have a club, the players can play either with the higher classification team nearest Picton or with its nearest "C" town, in this case Napanee.

Mavety said, following the meeting, that a complete executive will be not up for the McFarlands and its officers announced shortly. Reserve Harvey McFarland will be the president," he added.

Other clubs in the grouping this year will be Oshawa Crushmen, Kingston Frontenacs, Trenton Apple Kings, Peterborough Don Byes and Cobourg Cougars, all back from last season.

48-GAME SCHEDULE

The clubs hope to play a 40-game schedule, if ice time is available, with the top four clubs entering four-of-seven, semi-final playoffs.

The Quinte team will play its Belleville home games at 9.00 p.m. on Fridays and its Picton home games at 8.30 on Thursdays. Trenton gave Fridays and Sundays as home dates, Oshawa Saturdays, with some Saturday afternoons, Kingston also Fridays with some Monday and Wednesday dates and Cobourg Mondays.

Peterborough did not have a representative at the meeting but had informed Devine that the club would play its home games in Port Hope this season.

Trenton's "B" team and the Cataraqui "C" team raised some objections to the drawing area of players made available to Belleville and Napanee through Picton's withdrawal.

Only Napanee and Cataraqui remain in the district as "C" clubs and only Wellington and Tweed as "D" teams. The "C" and "D" teams played in one grouping last season and will likely do the same this year.

Perth has requested entry into the OHA but first must be accepted by the current clubs and released from the Otty Lawn Valley body. The "C" and "D" clubs were in agreement to accept a Perth entry this year.

A Cataraqui spokesman said that there is some doubt if that centre can compete against a two-town team like Napanee, with players from Picton. They will pick up whatever "C" players Belleville does not want while we learn all our good ones shifted away by the pros." He added that Cataraqui refused to use imports or pay players and felt that something would have to be done to assist his club.

Other centres will be contacted to strengthen the "C" and "D" grouping and another meeting will be held late in September.

Pair Share Seniors' Golf Title

TORONTO (CP) — Gordon Taylor of Montreal, and defending-champion Ross Somerville of London, Ont., shared the Canadian Seniors' Golf Association championship Tuesday with final 36-hole scores of 142.

Tournament officials said no playoff would be scheduled.

Taylor, a 56-year-old textile firm executive, and Somerville each had 72s in the opening round Monday and covered the Toronto Golf and Country Club course in 72 Tuesday.

Romeo Trudeau of Laval-sur-le Lac, first round leader, soared to a three-over 77 Tuesday to finish in third place with 143.

Don Anderson of St. Thomas came in fourth with a second-round 77 for a 153 total. In fifth spot was Ben Erwin of Sudbury, a former Royal Canadian Golf Association champion, with 153, one stroke ahead of George Hevenor of Toronto.

Intelligencer Wins Finals Opener 13-2

Ron Culloden's three-hit hurling and a diverse attack powered The Intelligencer to a 13-2 triumph over City Hall in the first game of the departmental Softball League finals last night.

Second game in the four-of-seven set is slated for Thursday, at Hillcrest School, with other games next Wednesday and Thursday. A Monday game has been switched because City Hall cannot field a team on the holiday.

The winners snapped a 1-1 tie with 9-seven runs in the fourth and used timely and alert running, along with a dozen hits, to build the big margin.

Culloden fanned one and walked one, allowing Bill Lee's homer, a double by Wilbur Purcell and K. Hanson's single while pitching the win.

Gary Reid fanned five and walked three in pitching the 12-hit loss.

Maurice Switzer had a double and two singles, Don Wood a homer and single, Claire Hoy a double and single, Lyle Thompson and Merve Thompson two safties each with Gary Wood also hitting safely, for The Intelligencer.

The game was the fourth in a row which the Intelligencer has won with a 13-run total.

Trudeau Game Rained Out

Trudeau Motors' second-round OASA Intermediate "A" series opener, slated for Oshawa last night, was rained out.

Word arrived from the Oshawa team shortly before Trudeaus were set to leave, that it had rained all afternoon in that city, saving the club a pointless trip.

The series will now open here Thursday night. The game is scheduled for Alemite Park at 8.30. Trudeaus ousted Peterborough in the first round.

In Senior "B", the Bobcats travel to Oshawa on Thursday for their second-round series opener, with the return game here next Thursday.

Point Anne opens its second-round Junior "C" series in Sydenham at 8.30 Saturday night.

Canadian Soccer

B.C. Whips Ontario 6-0

WINNIPEG (CP)—Norm Petterson of Quebec and Ike McKay of British Columbia, both centre forwards, each scored three goals to guide their teams to victory in the Canadian soccer championship tournament Tuesday night.

Petterson, counters, giving him five in two games, came in a 5-1 decision over Saskatchewan in Group B. McKay's goals were in a 6-0 romp over Ontario in Group A.

B.C., a victory over Manitoba Sunday, now leads Group A with four points. Quebec occupies top spot in Group B with three points.

Today, Manitoba, which lost 2-0 to Ontario Monday, faces B.C. while Quebec and Alberta, who played to a 3-3 draw Sunday, meet again.

Group leaders after a double round-robin meet in the tournament final Saturday. Group runners-up play the same day to decide third and fourth place. Neil Ethet, 40, the oldest member of the B.C. team, opened scoring in the 12th minute when the five kicked from 20 yards out caught the top corner of the Ontario net.

Right wing Harold Hansen made it 2-0 when he headed in a high ball in the 20th minute. Less than 11 minutes later left winger Sergio Zanatta set up McKay with a sailing pass for the third B.C. goal.

Zanatta made it 4-0 when he rammed in a rebound dropped by goalkeeper Ken Castledine following a hard shot from inside forward Robert Goodheart.

Petterson, a native of Belfast, clubbed up his markers while Quebec had the wind advantage in the second half.

Quebec went ahead 1-0 in the 19th minute on a goal from inside forward Richard Hazby but 24 minutes later Saskatchewan, which holds a 2-2 tie with Alberta, tied the score on a goal by inside forward Dwight Hewlett.

Petterson's first goal in the 51st minute broke the deadlock. He scored again in the 75th and 89th minutes.

The other Quebec goal came from left winger Luigi Pizzolato.

Casper Favored In Big Field

SOUTHPORT, England (Reuter) — Billy Casper, leading U.S. money winner this year, started the 6-to-1 favorite to win the $200,000 world championship golf tournament going into the first round of the Royal Birkdale course here today.

Casper, 35, has won $133,000 so far this year and a victory here would bring him an additional $15,000 first-place money.

The flags of the 18 competing nations were raised here Tuesday night when the championship was officially opened. But the United States flag was later lowered to half-staff in memory of Tony Lema, last year's tournament winner, who was killed in an air crash last month.

With Casper starting as the favorite and 88 other American entries, the United States looks likely of filling several of the top places.

A total of 185 golfers are competing in the biggest tournament ever held in Britain.

TWO MISSING

Although Americans Arnold Palmer and Jack Nicklaus, the British Open champion, are absent, the U.S. is still represented in depth by previous tournament winners Doug Sanders, Dave Ragan, and Doug Ford.

Canada also is well represented. Wilf Homenuik of Winnipeg, the 1965 Canadian PGA champion, and George Knudson, Toronto the 1964 PGA winner, are among nine Canadian entries.

But the main threat comes from Australian Peter Thomson, who has won five British Open titles at the Royal Birkdale. Thomson went around in a four-under-par 69 in practice here Tuesday. Knudson also had a 69.

Thomson is backed up by fellow Australians Bruce Devlin and Kel Nagle, New Zealand's Bob Charles and South Africans Harold and Alan Henning, Harry Franklin and Cobie le Grange.

A surprise could be 22-year-old British professional Tony Jacklin who went around in a 10-below-par 63 in practice.

The first round proceed Thursday the leading 75 players and those drawing for 75th place will qualify for final two rounds Friday and Saturday.

Canadians Fail To Qualify

POINT ALBINO, Ont. (CP)—Three Canadians failed to qualify Tuesday for the North American Lightning - class sailing championship, leaving 30 United States entries to sail for the title in the four days of competition which begin today.

The Canadians — Robert C. Pollock, Hamilton, Pete Sullman, Toronto and Don Allan, Port Credit, now will compete in consolation events.

Pollock and Allan boats competed in the three qualifying races at this Lake Erie site, 12 miles west of Port Erie.

CLAY ARRIVES

FRANKFURT, Germany (AP) — Cassius Clay arrived Tuesday for the Sept. 10 defense of his world heavyweight boxing title against Karl Mildenburger of Germany.

Bruin Player Broke Foot Roller Skating

GODERICH, Ont. (CP) — Doctors for Boston Bruins of the National Hockey League will check x-rays sent from here to determine the extent of a bone break in the right foot of Gary Doak.

Doak, a defenceman, was among 34 players expected to report for Bruins' training camp at London Sept. 16, injured the foot while roller skating last Thursday.

NOTICE

TAKE NOTICE that the Council of The Corporation of the Village of Stirling will consider the passing of a by-law on the 12th day of September, 1966, to close a by-law to stop up and sell that part of the highway known as Adam Street, lying to the south of the southerly boundary of Registered Plan number 2, being between the northerly boundary of Adam Street and the southerly boundary of Hatfield Street.

AND FURTHER TAKE NOTICE that the Council will consider the passing of a by-law to authorize the sale and conveyance of the said part of the highway to the abutting owners thereof, namely, Lots 1 and 2 on the south side thereof, or to such owners, their right to purchase within 30 days after the passing of the said by-law, to any other person who may offer to purchase the same.

The Council will hear in person, or by his or her counsel, solicitor or agent, any person who claims that his land will be prejudicially affected by the by-law and who applies to be heard.

The proposed by-law and the plan showing the highway to be closed may be inspected at the office of the Clerk of the City of Belleville City Hall.

DATED at Belleville, Ontario, this 23rd day of August, 1966.

K. GUSS PORTER, Esq., Q.C.
Barrister
210 Pinnacle Street,

Good Field Tuned For Big Race

DUNQUOIN, Ill. (AP) — A dozen three - year - old trotters, fleshed out for peak performance, start today in the wide-open $125,000 Hambletonian, harness racing's premier stake.

The winner's share for the 1 1/4 classic is $62,500 with second worth $30,022, third $14,410 fourth $9,607 and fifth $6,005.

For the 10th year, the historic race is on the fast mile oval of the Du Quoin Fairgrounds, where there is no parimutuel betting. A crowd of more than 40,000-six times the population of the once strip-coal mining centre--is expected to pour into the fairgrounds.

The first horse to win two heats is declared champion. The first heat starts at 1 p.m. Entry with others spaced at hour intervals.

Most observers look for more than two heats and possibly a fourth to decide the winner. If there is a deadlock after the first three panels, the trio returns for the deciding fourth race.

The appearance of four nearly equal-class horses makes the race unpredictable. They include:

—Carlisle, No. 7 post position, 3-1 unofficial odds.

—Kerry Way, No. 4, 7-2.

—Yankaria, No. 6, 5-2.

—Governor Armbro, No. 10, 5-1, driven by Joe O'Brien of Delphos, Ohio, grandson of Armstrong Brothers, Brampton.

The others by post position and odds are Rocket Rodney No. 1, 25-1; Carissa Viaco, No. 2, 15-1; Brakers Choice, No. 3, 20-1; Shatter Way, No. 5, 15-1; Ben Arden, No. 8, 30-1, and Rodney, No. 9, 12-1. Armbro Gaselle, No. 12, 20-1.

Carlisle is owned by Mrs. Max J. Webster of Brantford and driven by Bob Silliphant, 31, of Rapid City, S.D.

Kelly Way and Starlight Way are the only fillies, the others are colts. Fillies have won 10 Hambletonians, the last in 1958.

Heat mile time of the year for the pacers is 2:00 1-5 by Kerry Way at Springfield, Ill., two weeks ago. The Hambletonian record for heat is 1:58 4-5 set by Ayesa in 1964.

Successful Living
Long Distance Romance Has Some Limitations

DORIS CLARK

DEAR DORIS — My just reward will be to buy yourself a scooter, or runabout, or helicopter, or get a commercial pilot's licence, and see her offhand.

If you should marry her, you'll be facing a new situation. The emotions you and she have been pulling on paper could be quite different from the ones you feel when you live in the same house and start getting under each other's feet.

Writing a good love letter is an art in itself. Don't depend on it when you don't have to.

* * *

DEAR DORIS — Overweight has been a problem with me for years. This terrible desire for too much food, especially sweet things, just comes over me in spells.

The doctor has given me all my ill-health comes from that extra 25 pounds — STILL HOPING.

* * *

DEAR STILL HOPING — You don't have to crucify that sweet tooth - exactly. Just do your indulging with discretion.

If I were you I'd haunt the low-cal section of your supermarket. You'll find sugar substitutes, calorie-less candy, no-cal soft drinks, marmalade, jam, fruits canned without sugar.

Then move to the fresh fruit; the sweetness in it is less concentrated and you need the other things in fruit. Make fruits your favorite substitute for pies, cake.

Don't try to skimp on pennies when you are buying these life-savers.

* * *

CONFIDENTIAL TO MARCUS S. — The balance of opinion and intelligent counselling is on the side of a stable marriage, only. So your letter is good ones. If you want the name of a book which will help you understand this, write in again, this time giving your name and address on a stamped envelope.

(Doris reserves the right to ignore anonymous letters. If you have a legitimate beef, sign your name to your note about it. All names are kept confidential.)

Meet Alouettes
Bombers Seeking Lead

WINNIPEG (CP)—The Canadian Football League has turned to Western Canadian schools for reinforcements as the 1966 season moves into its second month.

Unfortunately, the ratio of success hovers around 10 per cent.

But two western college recruits did make good will be on hand tonight when Montreal Alouettes play host to the Bombers in CFL interlocking action.

Peter Kempf, a 1958 choice from the University of British Columbia, is the Alouettes' top draft - pick - to - date flanker.

Ken Nielsen, a 1956 choice from the University of Alberta in Edmonton, is the Bombers' tight end threat.

Both are major contributions to their clubs' triumphs in preceding games.

Kempf, a season trade acquisition from British Columbia Lions, carries all the load when Montreal trimmed Hamilton Tiger-Cats 16-8 to pull the Alouettes' record even at 2-2.

Nielsen, who donned a Bomber uniform after brief visits with Hamilton and Edmonton Eskimos, grabbed two touchdown passes in Winnipeg's 19-9 verdict over Calgary Stampeders.

The Bombers' bid to collect victory No. 3 and sole possession of first place in the Western Conference may be hobbled by injuries.

FOUR WON'T START

While the Alouettes are in good physical shape for the kickoff before cameras of the CTV national network, Winnipeg counts four regulars on the injury-sidelines, with a fifth a doubtful starter.

Tackle Ted Piper is out for the season with a shoulder separation; Frank Pinston has groin problems; Billy Cooper strained knee ligaments and Norm Rauhaus, bruised leg, is doubtful.

The bombers will bid adieu to Leo Lewis, who retired last week. Pre - game ceremonies will salute Lewis for the 13 great seasons he gave Winnipeg as a halfback.

Merrill Rohlsser will handle Minnick's outside linebacking duties while Import Bob Reed may be thrust into Piper's offensive tackle post; Rookie Gordie Brown is doing tests at tight end in a bid to free Noel Dunford to move to Cooper's defensive end. Import Bob Dick Thornton or Dick Nowery, just off the 30-day injury reserve list, may be in flankers. Canadian Ken Danchuk is ready to spell Ron Rauhaus, Billy Marlo for Lewis.

The Alouettes, seeking to even their interlocking record against Winnipeg to three victories each, adds strength in the persons of Bob Minihane and new import guard Billy Dose.

FACES THEFT TRIAL

HALIFAX (CP)—Robert Kenneth Edwards, 34, of suburban Spryfield is to stand trial before the Supreme Court of Nova Scotia during the next session on charges of theft involving provincial examination papers. The trial allegedly occurred at a printing firm where he was employed.

Astrological Forecasts

By SYDNEY OMARR

For September 1

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Keep actions low-keyed. Means don't force issues. Some facts have yet to be uncovered. Don't commit yourself just now, but play waiting game. You thus gain time and allies.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Friends may appear gloomy. But don't permit yourself to be tangled in web of depression. Seek new ways to make feelings. Surprise involving member of opposite sex, is forthcoming.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Disagreement may erupt among professional associates. Lean toward experience . . . don't fall prey to false promises. Your integrity may be at stake. Stand tall!

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): Some of recent pressure is relieved. You can see daylight involving important project. One you admire pays compliment. Others may come to you with their problems. Be generous with praise.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): You could lose both money and friends — unless you are discriminating. Don't borrow or lend without giving much thought. Stress independence, new contacts, fresh methods.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Better to be suspicious of any get-rich-quick scheme. Applies especially to partnerships, contracts, agreements. Individual who promises you much . . . may have his luck to back it.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): Be flexible. Plan now for relaxing with congenial persons. Sense of humor very important. If you don't take claims, threats, boasts seriously . . . then day glows!

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Romantic area requires attention. Some recent decisions, changes may have to be revised. Check details. You may have overlooked minor but important factor.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Changes due among higher-ups. These could affect you directly. Take advantage of activity by expressing creative views. Come out of shell . . . let talents, abilities be known.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): Study correspondence, messages. You must have clear picture of alternatives before making your views known. Decisive, motives also emphasized. Organize emotions. Be sure!

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Mate or partner may appear eccentric. Key is to be understanding. Otherwise you could make impulsive request. If it is fulfilled . . . you could regret it. Better to wait and observe.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): You can gain objective if mature. Guard against taking backward steps . . . overcome temptation to return to past. Applies in many areas, including romance. Step out with confidence!

* * *

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY . . . you are perceptive, independent, possess a stubborn streak, but when you wish you exert a fatal charm.

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Special word to Libra: Relax. Don't press. Then what you want comes to you. Cycle high for Aries, Taurus.
